Manohar Lall, J.—The plaintiff instituted Rent Suit No. 3230 of 1935 to recover rent due for the years 1339 to 1342 in respect of certain piece of gairmazrua land in the occupation of the defendants claiming rent at the rate of Rs. 7-2-0 per annum. The defence was that the land was rent-free, that they never paid any rent to the maliks nor did the maliks ever realise any such rent. The defence set up has been negatived. The Courts below have given good reasons for holding that it is impossible to believe that the land which is in Dalsinghsarai Bazar should be treated to be rent-free upon the materials put forward by the respondents.

But the Courts below dismissed the suit on the finding that there was no sufficient evidence as to when the land was assessed with rent and how much was the rent payable. It may be remarked that it was not necessary to find out the origin of the tenancy if evidence was sufficient to show the amount of rent payable for this land. The Courts below have, however, refused to place reliance upon the documentary evidence produced by the plaintiff and have held that the evidence of the plaintiff is insufficient to show that the defendants agreed to pay Rs. 7-2-0 as rent to the plaintiff. The trial Court has pointed out among other things that no village papers of the other co-sharer landlord has been produced and this was a remarkable fact considering that the case came up for hearing after setting aside the ex parte decree which had been fraudulently obtained by the plaintiff. It is true that the reasonings of the Courts of fact are not quite satisfactory when they have rejected the documents filed by the plaintiffs as manufactured, but be that as it may this Court cannot interfere in second appeal with the conclusion which has been arrived at by the Courts of fact. That conclusion is that the plaintiff has been unable to prove the rate of rent which is payable by the defendants.

It was then argued strenuously by the learned Advocate for the appellant that the suit should be remanded in order to decide what would be the damages properly payable to the appellant for the use and occupation of the land by the defendant for the the years in suit and he relied upon two cases of this Court, namely, Jai Narayan Mandar v. Kuleswar Singh (1) and Maharajadhiraj Sir Kameshwar Singh Bahadur v. Sheikh Sakhawat Ali (2), in support of his contention. But in both these cases the suits were instituted for assessment of fair and equitable rent after a declaration that the land was liable to assessment as such. The present case is wholly different. No declaration is sought for here, but on the other hand it was asserted that the land has been settled at Rs. 7-2 0 per annum with the defendants. The story of that settlement having failed it is impossible to allow this suit to be tried as a suit for declaration that the land was liable to be assessed for rent. This land has never been treated as kabil lagan, on the other hand the plaintiff treated it as always bearing a rental.

(1) 10 P L T 226; 117 Ind. Cas. 45; A I R 1929 Pat. 233; Ind. Rul. (1929) Pat 365.

(2) 17 P L T 819; 167 Ind. Cas. 238; A I R 1937 Pat. 96; 3 B R 283; 9 R P 396.

For these reasons the appeal fails and is dismissed. But as the case of the defendants was that the land was rent free and that case has been found to be false, I order that each party should bear his own costs throughout.

S. Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT

Second Appeal No. 380 of 1940
October 3, 1940
BHIDE, J.
ATA MOHAMMAD—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
LACHHMAN DAS AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENTS

Estoppel—Bond payable in certain instalments—Suit by plaintiff on default of two instalments—Suit compromised and decree for two instalments passed—In a subsequent suit by plaintiff, defendant claiming that full consideration for bond had not been paid—Defendant's plea held not barred by compromise decree in previous suit.

The test for determining whether there is an estoppel in any particular case in consequence of a decree passed on a compromise, must depend upon the answer to the question: 'Did the parties decide for themselves the particular matter in dispute by the compromise and was the matter expressly embodied in the decree of the Court passed on the compromise or was it necessarily involved in, or was it the basis of, what was embodied in the decree.' 9 Ind. Cas. 875 (3), relied on.

The original bond was payable in ten annual instalments. The plaintiff instituted a suit for recovery of certain sum when two instalments remained unpaid This suit was compromised and the plaintiff was granted a decree for the full amount and costs. The parties had come to an agreement that a decree for the two instalments should be passed, but that no further claim should be made by the plaintiff without going into the accounts relating to the balance. In a subsequent suit by plaintiff it was pleaded by the defendant inter alia that the full consideration for the bond had not been paid:

Held, that the compromise decree was merely confined to the two instalments which were in dispute in the previous suit. The decree could not, therefore, be considered to be tantamount to an admission that full consideration had been paid for the bond. Therefore, the consent decree in the previous suit was not a bar to the pleas raised by the defendant in the subsequent suit. 24 Ind. Cas. 931 (1), 157 Ind. Cas. 749 (2), distinguished.

S, A. from the decree of the District Judge, Multan dated December 8, 1939.

Malik Barkat Ali, for the Appellant.

Mr. Mela Ram Agarwal, for the Respondents.

Judgment.—This is a second appeal arising out of a suit for recovery Rs. 1,359-9-0 on the basis of a bond. The original bond was for Rs. 9,762 and it was payable in ten annual instalments. The plaintiff instituted a suit for recovery of Rs. 2,385-10-0 when two instalments remained unpaid. This suit was compromised on August 22 1935 and the plaintiff was granted a decree for the full amount and costs. Subsequently the present suit was instituted on August 28, 1936. It was pleaded by the defendant inter alia that full consideration for the bond had not been paid. The plaintiff contended in reply that it was not open to the defendant to take up this plea in view of the compromise decree passed in the previous suit. The trial Court granted a decree for Rs. 1,359 9 0. On appeal the learned District Judge remanded the case for trial of additional issues with respect to the question whether the consent decree in the previous case was a bar to pleas raised by the defendant in the present cese. These additional issues were as follows:

"(1). Did the consent decree in the previous case debar the defendant from raising the question of consideration and interest in the present case?

(2) If the former issue is found in favour of the defendant, was the bond for consideration?"

The trial Court gave findings against the plaintiff on both these issues. The learned District Judge, however, confined himself to the first of these issues and held that the consent decree was a bar to the pleas raised by the defendant and therefore it was unnecessary to go into the question whether consideration for the bond had been fully paid. He further held that the plaintiff was not entitled to any costs or interest inasmuch as he had failed to comply with the provisions of the Punjab Regulation of Accounts Act. Accordingly he granted the plaintiff a decree for the principal sum only, viz. Rs. 1,000. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred. The main point which has been agitated before me is whether the learned District Judge was right in holding that the consent decree in the previous suit was a bar to the pleas raised by the defendant. The defendant's contention was that in the previous suit the parties had come to an agreement that a decree for the two instalments should be passed, but that no further claim should be made by the plaintiff without going into the accounts relating to the balance. The learned District Judge has remarked that no such plea was raised by the defendant at first; but this does not appear to me to be correct, because in the written statement filed in this suit, it was stated that the parties had agreed at the time of the compromise in the previous suit that accounts would be gone into. It may also be mentioned here that in the written statement filed in the previous suit it was pleaded by the defendant that the consideration had not been fully paid. It cannot therefore be said that this plea is a mere afterthought.

The sole point therefore is whether according to the law it was open to the defendant to raise the plea of want of consideration in spite of the compromise in the previous suit. The learned Counsel for the plaintiff-respondent relied on Gobind Lal v. Rao Baldeo Singh (1) and Shamsul Nisa v. Mohammad Jafar (2) in support of the view taken by the learned District Judge, but these rulings appear to me to be clearly distinguishable. In the first case the defendant appeared at first and took an adjournment for effecting a compromise but subsequently he failed to appear with the result that an ex parte decree was passed against him. In these circumstances it was held that s. 11. Expln. 4 Civil P. C., applied, and the pleas which could have been set up by the defendant in the previous suit could not be reagitated in the subsequent suit. In the second case also, the question of custom which the defendant raised was such that the claim could not have been admitted by the defendant in the previous suit if he had relied on the custom. As pointed out in Kumara Venkata Perumal v. Ramaswamy 9 Ind. Cas. 875 (3).

"the test for determining whether there is an estoppel in any particular case in consequence of a decree passed on a compromise must depend upon the answer to the question: Did the parties decide for themselves the particular matter in dispute by the compromise and was the matter expressly embodied in the decree of the Court passed on the compromise or was it necessarily involved in, or was it the basis of, what was embodied in the decree?"

(1) 12 P R 1915; 24 Ind. Cas. 931; A I R 1914 Lah. 390; 226 P L R 1914.
(2) A I R 1935 Lah. 487; 157 Ind. Cas. 749; 37 P L R 65.
(3) 9 Ind. Cas 875; 35 M 75; (1911) 1 M W N 290; 21 M L J 709; 9 M L T 487.

In the present case, the compromise decree was merely confined to the two instalments which were in dispute in the previous suit. The decree could not therefore be considered to be tantamount to an admission that full consideration had been paid for the bond. Nor can the terms of the compromise decree be said to be inconsistent with the allegation of the defendant that it was agreed at the time that the accounts would be gone into before any portion of the balance was claimed. I am therefore of opinion that the consent decree in the previous suit was not a bar to the pleas raised by the defendant in the present suit. The learned District Judge has however not gone into the merits of the pleas raised by the defendant in this connection. It is therefore necessary to remand the case to him for a decision of those pleas on merits. I accept the appeal, and setting aside the decree of the learned District Judge, remand the case to him for re-decision in the light of the above remarks. The parties are directed to appear before the learned District Judge on October 28, 1940. Costs will follow final decision.

D. Case remanded.

PATNA HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 286 of 1940
November 6, 1940

HARRIES, C. J. AND MANOHAR LALL, J.

UDAI CHAND LAL—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER

versus

FIRM PANNALAL CHAMPALAL AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—OPPOSITE PARTY

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 63—Suit under r. 63 for declaration of title and injunction restraining defendant from taking possession of suit property and preventing him from taking illegal action to plaintiff's detriment falls under Sch. II, Art. 17 (1), Court Fees Act (VII of 1870).

A suit brought under O. XXI, r. 63, Civil P. C., by a claimant whose claim was rejected in proceedings under O. XXI, r. 58, for a declaration of his title and a permanent injunction restraining the defendant from taking delivery of possession of the suit property and preventing him from taking any illegal action to the detriment of the plaintiff, falls within the purview of Sch. II, Art. 17 (1); Court Fees Act and no ad valorem court-fee is necessary. Bibi Phul Kumari v. Gansyam Misra (1), relied on.

C. R App. from an order of the Sub-Judge, First Court, Arrah, dated May 18, 1940.

Messrs. S. K. Mitra and Girindra Nath Mukherji, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Harians Kumar, for the Opposite Party.

Manohar Lall, J.—This is an application on behalf of the plaintiff who instituted title suit No. 17 of 1940 for certain declarations after he was defeated in a proceeding under O. XXI, r. 58, Civil P. C. The order complained against was passed by the learned Subordinate Judge on May 18, 1940, requiring the plaintiff to pay an ad valorem court-fee of Rs. 1,132-8-0. The learned Subordinate Judge was of opinion that as the plaintiff sued for a declaration with injunction, both temporary and permanent, and also because it appeared to the learned Subordinate Judge on a perusal of the record of the execution case that delivery of possession had also been effected of the property mentioned in the plaint, the plaintiff must sue for recovery of possession. Hence the learned Subordinate Judge thought that court-fee ad valorem was payable by the plaintiff. In so doing he has completely overlooked the well-known decision of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in Bibi Phul Kumari v. Gansyam Misra (1). The plaintiff in that case also asked for relief (c) as stated at p. 203*.

"that a permanent injunction may issue on the defendant first party not to execute his said decree against the said properties of the plaintiff."

Lord Robertson, in delivering the judgment of the Privy Council, expressly approved of the decision of the Bombay High Court in Dondo Sakharam v. Govind Babaji (2), in which the learned Chief Justice had held that the ruling in Parvati v. Kisansingh (3), which had always been followed in the Bombay High Court,

"shows that although the plaintiff may pray in such a suit to be awarded possession, the plaint is still to be treated as falling under Art. 17, cl. 1 of Sch. II of Act VII of 1870, and chargable with only a 10-rupee stamp."

Act VII of 1870 was the Court Fees Act in force at that time. The present Court Fees Act has a similar provision, but the duty chargable has now been raised to Rs 15. In these circumstances I think the learned Subordinate Judge was in error in construing the reliefs asked for in the present plaint and in requiring the plaintiff to pay ad valorem court-fees. The second relief only says that "an order for permanent injunction be passed on he defendant first party so that no delivery of possession of he property in suit may take place and prevent them from taking any illegal action whatsoever to the detriment of the plaintiff."

It is therefore argued that the plaint in the present suit is not confined to the reliefs which can be properly granted in a suit instituted under O. XXI, r. 63, Civil P. C. But the cause of action in the plaint is stated to be the order in the claim case, passed on July 17, 1939, within the jurisdiction of the Court at Arrah. That being so, the question of the amount of court-fee is governed by the decision in Bibi Phul Kumari v. Gansyam Misra (1). The order of the learned Subordinate Judge is set aside, and he is directed to proceed with the suit from the stage at which he passed the order dated May 18, 1940. The plaintiff is entitled to the costs of this Court,—hearing-fee one gold mohar.

Harries, J.—I agree.

S. Order set aside.

(1) 35 C 202; 35 I A 22; 7 C L J 36; 12 C W N 169 (P C).
(2) 9 B 20.
(3) 6 B 567.

*Page of 35 C.—[Ed.]

SIND CHIEF COURT

First Appeal No. 27 of 1938
July 24, 1940
DAVIS, C. J AND LOBO, J.

SOBHOMAL THAOOMAL—APPELLANT
versus
DULAHDINOMAL TILUSING—
RESPONDENT

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 19, s. 50—Suit against father and son — Plaintiff getting money decree against father—Son awarded decree for costs against plaintiff — Son's execution application against plaintiff dismissed on ground that sum due against him as legal representative of his deceased father was larger — No enquiry under s. 50 as to extent of assets in hands of son—Dismissal held illegal —O. XXI, r. 19 held applicable.

Order XXI, r. 19, Civil P. C., applies even to a case of a claim by a defendant against a plaintiff personally and a claim by a plaintiff against the defendant as legal representative of another deceased defendant. The mere fact that there has to be some inquiry under the provisions of s. 50, Civil P. C., as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of his legal representative, or that the sum may be limited by the provisions of s. 50, Civil P. C., does not remove a case out of the scope of r. 19 of O. XXI, Civil P. C.

The plaintiff in a suit against father and son obtained a money decree against the father. The son was awarded a decree for his costs. Applications for execution by the son were dismissed on the ground that the amount due to the plaintiff from the son as legal representative of his deceased father was longer. No enquiry, however, under s. 50 was made as to the extent of the deceased father's assets in the hands of the son:

Held, that the order of dismissal was illegal. The Court should have ordered an enquiry under s. 50.

Then the sum recoverable by the plaintiff from the son would be set off against the sum recoverable by the son from the plaintiff within the meaning of O. XXI, r. 19 which applied to the case. 173 Ind. Cas 574 (1) and 175 Ind. Cas 427 (2), relied on.

Held, also that the plaintiff could demand a set off and need not have filed his own execution application against the son as a legal representative of his deceased father of his money decree which the plaintiff held against the father inasmuch as the object of O. XXI, r. 19 was to avoid multiplicity of proceedings.

F. A. against the judgment and decree of the First Class Sub-Judge, Hyderabad, dated February 21, 1938.

Mr. Dingomal Narainsing, for the Appellant.

Mr. Manghanmal Bhojraj, for the Respondent.

Davis, C. J.—This is an appeal against an order passed in execution by the First Class Subordinate Judge of Hyderabad dated February 21, 1938, in which he dismissed two applications made by defendant No. 2 in the suit in which defendant No. 1 was the father of defendant No. 2 and which resulted in defendant No. 2 obtaining an order for his costs in the trial Court and an order for his costs in the Appellant Court against the plaintiff. The plaintiff on the other hand, got a money decree against defendant No. 1, whose legal representative defendant No. 2 now is, and, indeed, defendant No. 2 is on the record as the legal representative of defendant No. 1. The decree which the plaintiff obtained against defendant No. 1 was for a sum of money, that is to say, his decree was a money decree and within the terms of s. 50, Civil P. C., he is entitled to execute that decree against defendant No. 2 as the legal representative of defendant No. 1 to the extent of the property of defendant No. 1 which has come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of. But the learned Judge seemed to assume that because the sum of money to be recovered by the plaintiff under the decree was greater than the sum of money to be recovered by defendant No. 2 on account of the costs, the application of defendant No. 2 on account of his costs should be dismissed. But we do not think that this would be the case until there had been an inquiry as to the extent of the property of the deceased defendant No. 1 in the hands of defendant No. 2 within the meaning of s. 50, Civil P. C., and if the value of that property did exceed the sum which defendant No. 2 was entitled to recover by way of costs from the plaintiffs, then rightly, the applications of defendant No. 2 would be dismissed. But no inquiry was held and we do not think it is a matter of presumption that merely because a plaintiff seeks to execute a decree against the legal representatives of a defendant, that legal representative has sufficient property of the deceased in his hands to satisfy the decree. Therefore, it would appear that the Judge, instead of dismissing the applications of defendant No. 2 for costs, should have ordered an inquiry as to the extent of the property of the deceased defendant No. 1, in the hands of defendant No. 2 within the meaning of s. 50, Civil P. C., against which the plaintiff could execute his decree. Then the sum recoverable by the plaintiff from defendant No. 2 would be set off against the sum recoverable by defendant No. 2 from the plaintiff within the meaning of O. XXI, r. 19, Civil P. C.

It was argued that O. XXI, r. 19 could not apply to a case such as this, to a claim by a defendant against a plaintiff personally and a claim by a plaintiff against the defendant as legal representative of another deceased defendant, but there is nothing, we think, in r. 19 of O. XXI to exclude its application in a case of this nature. Cases cited to us, for instance, that in Nonibai v. Jethanand (1), and in Gurushantappa Shankerappa Umbarje v. Nangappa Bandappa Kadadi (2), relating to rr. 18 and 19, show that this rule is not to be interpreted in a narrow and restricted manner; that it is not exhaustive and must be applied on equitable principles, and we do not think that it would not apply, for instance, in a case such as this merely because there has to be some inquiry under the provisions of s. 50, Civil P. C., as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of his legal representative. Rule 19 of O. XXI, Civil P. C., refers to sums of money and it is said, therefore, that there is no room for inquiry under s. 50, Civil P. C., for the sum of money must be a certain sum ascertainable at once from the decree. But in this case the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum of money under the decree from the legal representative of defendant No. 1, that is to say, from defendant No. 2, and prima facie he is entitled to recover from defendant No. 2 the sum decreed to be recovered by the plaintiff from defendant No. 1. The fact that the sum may be limited by the provisions of s. 50, Civil P. C., does not appear to us to remove a case such as this out of the scope of r. 19 of O. XXI, Civil P. C.

(1) 32 S L R 162; 173 Ind. Cas. 574; A I R 1938 Sind 31; 10 R S 218.

(2) I L R (1938) Bom. 263; 175 Ind. Cas. 427; A I R 1938 Bom. 253; 40 Bom. L R 188; 10 R B 560.

It has been suggested to us that the plaintiff, instead of demanding a set-off should have filed his own execution application against defendant No. 2 as a legal representative of defendant No. 1 of the money decree which the plaintiff held against defendant No. 1, but to accept this suggestion would be to encurage multiplicity of proceedings which we think, r. 19 of O. XXI is, among other things, intended to avoid. We think the Judge is wrong when he dismissed the execution applications of defendant No. 2 on the assumption that he had in his hands sufficient property of the deceased to meet a claim of the plaintiff. He should, we think, have held an inquiry as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of defendant No. 2 within the meaning of s. 50, Civil P. C., and if he had then found that the extent of that property and its value was greater than the sum claimed by defendant No. 2 in execution, he would have dismissed the execution applications of defendant No. 2, because the plaintiff was entitled to recover a larger sum from defendant No. 2 as legal representative than defendant No. 2 was entitled to recover from the plaintiff. But if on enquiry it was found that the extent of the property of defendant No. 1 in the hands of defendant No. 2 was less than the sum which defendant No. 2 was entitled to recover under the decree, then clearly there would be a balance in favour of defendant No. 2 which he would be entitled to recover from the plaintiff.

We think, therefore, that the order of the learned Judge must be set aside and that before he can pass an order dismissing the defendant's execution applications, he must hold an inquiry as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of defendant No. 2 within the meaning of s. 50, Civil P. C., and dispose of these execution applications including any other objections already raised by the decree-holder in these execution applications according to law. We think in the circumstances of the case there should be no order as to costs. Order accordingly.

D. Order accordingly.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Second Appeal No. 1722 of 1937
January 11, 1940
THOM, C. J.

BADRI LONIA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
Pandit DWARKA PRASAD RAM SHUKLA—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT

Landlord and tenant—Ryot, if can build house on parti land in front of his house.

A ryot is not entitled to build a residential house upon the parti land in front of the existing house. 146 Ind. Cas. 736 (1), relied on.

S. A. from the decision of the Additional Civil Judge, Gorakhpur, dated March 15, 1937.

Mr. K. L. Misra, for the Appellants.

Mr. A. P. Pandey, for the Respondent.

Judgment. — This is a defendant's appeal arising out of a suit in which the plaintiff who is a zamindar seeks an order for the demolition of a house which has been erected upon parti land in front of the defendant's house. The main defence to the suit was that the house had been erected by the defendant with the implied permission of the zamindar who had acquiesced in the construction. This defence has not been sustained in the lower Appellate Court. Upon a consideration of the evidence the learned Civil Judge has reached the conclusion that far from acquiescing in the construction of the house the plaintiff took active steps to prevent the construction being completed.

It was contended in appeal however that under the provisions of the Tenancy Act of 1939 a defendant who is a ryot in the village in which his house is situated was entitled to build a residential house upon the parti land in front of the existing house. In support of this contention learned Counsel for the appellant referred to the definition of "improvement" in that Act. "Improvement" in reference to a tenant's holding is defined in the Act as "a dwelling house erected on the holding by the tenant for his own occupation or a cattle shed or a store house or any other construction for agricultural purposes erected or set up by him on his holding."

Holding is defined as "a parcel or parcels of land held under one lease engagement or grant, or in the absence of such lease, engagement or grant under one tenure and in the case of a thekadar includes the theka are."

"Land" is defined as

"land which is let or held for growing of crops, or as groveland or for pasturage. It includes land covered by water used for the purpose of growing singhara or other produce, but does not include land for the time being occupied by buildings or appurtenant thereto other than buildings which are improvements."

Now the house which has been erected by the defendant is built in land which is within the abadi of the village. It has not been built upon the defendant's holding. The law therefore with regard to the tenant's right to construct buildings in the abadi is not altered by the provisions of the 1939 Tenancy Act. It is well settled that a ryot may not build a dwelling house on the sahan in front of his house: see Ratan Barhai v. Kishen Dei (1). The finding that the house built by the defendant is a new structure and that the plaintiff did not acquiesce in its construction is sufficient for the disposal of this appeal. In the result the appeal is dismissed with costs.

S. Appeal dismissed.

(1) (1933) A L J 56; 146 Ind. Cas. 736; A I R 1933 All. 288; 55 A 204; 17 R D 141; L R 14 A 104 Rev.; 6 R A 334.

PESHAWAR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT

Civil Appeal No. 181/69 of 1939

November 4, 1940

ALMOMD, J. C. AND MIR AHMED, J.

ISLAMUDDIN JUMMA DIN—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

FIRM JIWA SHAH RAM CHAND AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17 (1), Proviso and s. 17 (1) (d)—Punjab Government Notification No. 29 of July 4, 1888—The word "reserve"—Meaning explained.

The word "reserve" in s. 17 (1) (d), Regis. Act, and also in the Punjab Govt Notification No 29 of July 4, 1888, is a technical expression used for keeping to himself by the lessor of a yearly rent in making the grant of the land to the lessee and in common parlance it is equivalent to the word "fix".

C. A. from an order of the Additional District Judge, Peshawar, dated October 26, 1939.

Mr. Ganesha Khan, for the Appellant.

Lala Lal Chand, for Respondent No. 1.

Mir Ahmed, J.—Firm Jiwan Shah Ram Chand obtained a decree for Rs. 647-8-0 with costs against Roidar and Abdul Manaf on June 28, 1938 and in execution of that decree proceeded to attach standing crops of the land belonging to the judgment-debtors. Islamuddin objected that the land of the judgment debtors had been leased to him by two lease deeds dated April 14, 1938, and May 6, 1938. The objection was dismissed. Islamuddin therefore brought the present suit for a declaration that the land belonging to the judgment-debtors was under lease to him and that therefore he was the owner of the crops standing thereon. The decree-holder pleaded that the documents on the basis of which the plaintiff claimed his rights were inadmissible in evidence, because they were not registered. The trial Judge did not frame any issue on the point of registration. He granted a decree to the plaintiff as prayed for. An appeal was preferred by the decree-holder to the District Court at Peshawar. The Additional Judge who heard the appeal was of the view that the two documents required registration. He also incidentally remarked that the lease deeds were not acted upon. He accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit.

Islamuddin has come up on further appeal to this Court. We would first give a description of the two lease deeds. By the first lease deed dated April 14, 1938. Roidar leased 40 kanals of land for two years to Islamuddin. The yearly rent was fixed at Rs. 75. It was mentioned in the document that the lessor had received one year's rent in advance which was to be taken as the rent for the second year, and that he would receive the rent for the first year after the expiry of that year. By the document dated May 6, 1938, Abdul Manaf leased 32 kanals of land at a rent of Rs. 96 a year for three years. He admitted in the document that he had received the sum of Rs. 288, the rent for three years, in advance.

Counsel for the appellant has admitted that the two documents on which he bases his title would require registration under s. 17 (1) (d), Regis. Act. He however, takes refuge under a notification of the Punjab Govt. issued as No. 29 of July 4, 1888. It was issued under the proviso to s. 17 of Act VIII of 1871 and exempted from registration agricultural leases the terms granted by which did not exceed five years and the annual rents reserved by which did not exceed Rs. 50. We may reproduce the proviso for facility of reference below:

"Provided that the Local Govt. may by order published in the Official Gazette exempt from the operation of the former part of this section any leases executed in any district or part of a district the terms granted by which do not exceed five years and the annual rents reserved by which do not exceed Rs. 50."

The proviso to s. 17 (1) of Act XVI of 1908 which is now in force is practically to the same effect. It may be noted that by operation of s. 25, General Clauses Act, the notification will hold good under the new Act also and although this Province has been separated from the Punjab the notification has the force of law in the N. W. F. P. by virtue of s. 6 of the N. W. F. P. Law and Justice Regulation VII of 1901. Now we have to see whether the lease deeds are covered by the exemption contained in the notification and were therefore wrongly considered by the lower Appellate Judge to be inadmissible in evidence. The terms of the two leases are no doubt less than five years. The rent in one case is however Rs. 75 a year and in the other Rs. 96 a year. Prima facie the rent being more than Rs. 50 the exemption would not apply.

The learned Counsel for the appellant has urged that the word "reserve" does not necessarily mean "fix." He quoted two rulings in support of this proposition. One of them is Gopalasami Naidu v. Lakhmi Ammal (1). In this case the term of lease was three years. It was stipulated that in the third year the lessor would receive Rs. 400 from the lessee. It was held by a single Judge that no annual rent was "reserved" within the meaning of the exemption and therefore the document was not compulsorily registrable. It may be noted that the notification in Madras is similar to that made by the Punjab. It is obvious that this ruling has no application to the case before us. In the second case reported in Mengh Raj v. Nand Lal (2), a tenancy at will was created, that is to say the tenancy was terminable at the will of the landlord. Rent was however fixed and a period for the lease was also specified. It was held that there was no reservation of annual rent in the sense in which it was contemplated by the notification. In the present case no such power of cancellation has been given to the lessor and this ruling also has no bearing on the point. The word "reservation" has been defined in Wharton's Law Lexicon, 10th Edn., by J. M. Lely as "a keeping aside or providing." Again in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 18, p. 427, note 887 the term reservation has been defined as follows:

"The term 'reservation' may be used in a wide sense as meaning any benefit in respect of the subject-matter of the grant which is kept by the grantor for himself. Thus, it may imply a keeping back of a physical part of the thing, in which case it is equivalent to an exception, and accordingly, when the context requires it, the word 'reserving' is construed as making an exception; or the word may imply that the grantor reserves to himself some equivalant for the use of the land, such as rent or services in the nature of the rent, and this is the only meaning of 'reservation' when used in its strict legal sense."

It is manifest that the word "reserve" in s. 17 (1) (d), Regis. Act, and also in the notification is a technical expression used for keeping to himself by the lessor of a yearly rent in making the grant of the land to the lessee and in common parlance it is equivalent to the word "fix." We therefore arrive at the conclusion that the exemption contained in the notification of 1908 does not apply to the documents before us. It follows that the lower Appellate Judge has rightly held that the documents are inadmissible in evidence and the suit has been correctly dismissed. We dismiss the appeal with costs.

D. Appeal dismissed.

(1) A I R 1935 Mad. 305 (1); 156 Ind. Cas. 825; 41 L W 351; (1935) M W N 605 (1); 8 R M 57.

(2) A I R 1939 Lah. 558; 186 Ind. Cas. 106; 41 P L R 646; 12 R L 363.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Petition No. 550 of 1937

July 22, 1940

WADSWORTH, J.

MAYANDI VENKATESA MUDALI AND ANOTHER—PETITIONERS

versus

KONNE DESAPPA MUDALI—RESPONDENT

Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), s. 6 (e)—Sale of debtor's property in execution of decree for rent, if act of insolvency.

Sale of property which is vested in the debtor and is in his physical possession, in execution of decree for arrears of rent under Mad Estates Land Act, operates as an act of insolvency under s. 6 (e), Prov. Insol. Act. 115 Ind. Cas. 356 (1), distinguished.

C. R. P. to revise the order of the District Court, Chittoor, dated December 4, 1936.

Mr. S. Ramanujachariar, for the Petitioners.

Mr. D. Ramaswami Iyengar, for the Respondent.

Order.—The question is whether the sale of the appellant's property for arrears of rent under the Mad. Estates Land Act operates as an act of insolvency under s. 6 (e), Prov. Insol. Act. It seems to me clear that the decree for rent is a decree for the payment of money notwithstanding the fact that the rent is charged on the holding. The decree in question was passed before the appointment of the ad interim Receiver in the previous insolvency. At the time of the sale the Receiver was apparently not in possession though he had been appointed. The property therefore not only vested in the debtor but was in his physical possession and there was nothing except his poverty to prevent him from paying the rent. The property was certainly "his property" within the terms of s 6 (e), Prov. Insol. Act. The case reported in Lachmi Chand v. Bipin Behari Ghose (1), has no application for in that case there had been an adjudication and the property no longer vested in the debtor. The view taken by the Court below is correct and the petition is dismissed with costs.

N.-S. Petition dismissed.

(1) A I R 1928 Cal. 644; 115 Ind. Cas. 356; 32 C W N 716.

NAGPUR HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 645 of 1937
March 15, 1938
NIYOGI, J.

GOVINDRAM JIWANRAM—OBJECTOR—APPLICANT

versus

HARASAYA GANASAYA MARWADI—DECREE HOLDER—NON APPLICANT

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, rr. 46, 47—Applicability—Stranger in possession of property in which judgment-debtor has share—R. 46, if applicable—Prohibitory order, if can be issued against stranger.

Where the judgment-debtor owns a share or interest in some property which is in the possession of a stranger, r 46 as well as r. 47 of O. XXI, Civil P C., must come into operation so as to necessitate prohibitory orders being issued not only to the judgment-debtor but also to the stranger who is in possession of the property the judgment-debtor's share in which is intended to be attached. If, r. 46 were not to apply to such a case the result would be stultification of the attachment. While the judgment-debtor will have the prohibitory order served on him the property of which the transfer is forbidden will be sold with impunity by the person in whose possession it happens to be. That will defeat the very purpose of the attachment. Such a result could not be intended by the Legislature.

C. R. App. of the order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, Ellichpur, dated August 4, 1937.

Mr. D. T. Mangalmorti, for the Applicant.

Mr. K. L. Halwe, for the Non-Applicant.

Order.—This is an application in revision against an order passed in execution proceedings (in Miscellaneous Judicial Case No. 24 of 1937) on August 4, 1937. The non-applicant decree-holder attached some quantity of cotton stored in Pandurang Ginning Factory as being the property of his judgment-debtor. The applicant, who is judgment-debtor's father, objected to the attachment. The lower Court found that the judgment-debtor had a half share in the cotton which alone was liable to attached and sold. It further held that as a prohibitory notice under r. 47 of O. XXI, had not been issued, the attachment was irregular, and ordered a notice under r. 47 to be issued to the judgment-debtor. It, however did not pass any order withdrawing the attachment.

On behalf of the objector who feels aggrieved by the lower Court's order, it is urged that the lower Court ought to have held that the attachment had ceased or should have withdrawn the attachment. Reliance is placed on Rajendra Nath Das v. Chairman Jessore District Board (1). In that case some movable property of which the judgment-debtor was supposed to be the full owner was attached under s. 43 of O. XXI. On an objection made by a stranger it was found that the judgment-debtor was only a part owner of the property. The original attachment was, therefore, set aside and an order was made to issue a notice to the judgment-debtor under O. XXI, r. 47. That case does not afford much guidance for the decision of this case. In the present case the property was in the possession of the objector although it was in the immediate custody of the ginning factory. The question is whether the lower Court was right in issuing a prohibitory order to him under r. 46 of O. XXI. It is vigorously contended that r. 46 is inapplicable in the circumstances of this case and that the only rule which is relevant is r. 47. I cannot assent to this argument. Rule 46 must be read with r. 43 and r. 47. Rule 43 contemplates a case of attachment of property of which the judgment-debtor is the full owner and in possession. Rule 46 refers to a case where the property of the judgment-debtor is not in his possession but in possession of a third party. Rule 47 relates to a case where the judgment-debtor is not the full owner of the property intended to be attached. Rule 47 is silent as to whether the property should be in possession of the judgment-debtor or not. Rule 46 only says "in the case of other movable property not in the possession of the judgment-debtor." The other movable property is the property other than that specified in cls. (a) and (b) of sub-r. (1). It, therefore, relates to all movable property which is not in the possession of the judgment-debtor. It is argued by the learned Counsel for the applicant that if the ownership of the judgment-debtor is fractional instead of being integral r. 46 does not apply. I think it ought to apply for this reason: Rule 47 speaks of "share or interest of the judgment-debtor in movable property" but does not explicitly state whether it refers to property in his possession. In the absence of any express allusion to possession it may well be construed as meaning all movable property which is in his own possession or in the possession of a stranger. If r. 47 must apply in either case, then in the latter case when his property which takes the form of a fractional interest is in possession of somebody else, it must also fall under s. 46 (1) (c) which applies to all cases of movable property belonging to the judgment-debtor not being in his possession. The person who is in possession of the judgment-debtor's property is in possession of the property as a whole nothwithstanding that the judgment-debtor is only a part owner of it. The position would be elucidated in this way. A judgment-debtor may own share or interest in property A. When property A is in possession of a stranger the stranger must be taken to be in possession of the whole of property although from the point of view of the judgment-debtor it is a fractional share. Consequently, where the judgment-debtor owns a share or interest in some property which is in the possession of a stranger, r. 46 as well as 47 must come into operation so as to necessitate prohibitory orders being issued not only to the judgment-debtor but also to the stranger who is in possession of the property the judgment-debtor's share in which is intended to be attached. If, as contended for by the learned Counsel for the applicant, r. 46 were not to apply to such a case the result would be stultification of the attachment. While the judgment-debtor will have the prohibitory order served on him the property of which the transfer is forbidden will be sold with impunity by the person in whose possession it happens to be. That will defect the very purpose of the attachment. Such a result could not be intended by the Legislature. I am, therefore, of the opinion that the lower Court was right in issuing the prohibitory order to the objector who was in possession of the entire quantity of cotton and further is not withdrawing the prohibitory order addressed to him.

(1) 59 C 808; 137 Ind. Cas. 672 (2); A I R 1932 Cal. 408; 54 C L J 488; Ind. Rul. (1932) Cal. 363.

The application is dismissed with costs. Pleader's fee Rs. 20.

D. Application dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT

Letters Patent Appeal No. 120 of 1939

May 29, 1940

TEK CHAND AND BHIDE, JJ.

OM PARKASH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MUKHTAR AHMAD—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Mortgage—Simple mortgage—Characteristics of, stated—Second appeal—Question of law—Deed, document of title and foundation of suit—Its construction is question of law—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), ss. 17, 49—Unregistered simple mortgage deed—Admissibility of, to obtain money decree.

The characteristics of a "simple morgage," are (1) that there must be a loan; (2) that the mortgagor must have bound himself personally to repay the loan; (3) that to secure the loan he has transferred to the mortgagee the right to have specific immovable property sold, in the event of his having failed to repay and (4 that possession of the property has not been, and is not to be, transferred to the mortgagee during the pendency of the mortgage. These stipulations may be express, or they may appear by necessary implications from the terms of the particular transaction. Thus a promise to pay necessarily arises out of the acceptance of a loan and it need not be stated in so many words in the deed. It is implicit in the transaction itself that the obligor is under a personal liability to repay, unless this liability is excluded by the terms of the contract, expressly or impliedly, as for example in the case of a usufructuary mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale, where the agreement is to repay out of a particular property or fund alone and in a particular manner. 38 Ind. Cas. 932 (24) and 135 Ind Cas. 33 (25), relied on Narotam Das v. Sheo Pargash Singh (26) and Kalka Singh v. Paras Ram (21), distinguished. [p. 792, col. 1.]

Where a deed is the document of title in the case and is the foundation of the plaintiff's suit, the construction of such a document is a question of law, which can be raised in second appeal. [p. 796, col. 2.]

[Case-law referred to.]

The personal covenant to pay is distinctly divisible or separable in a simple mortgage, from its hypothecation clauses and the bond so regarded, is clear evidence of the debt. Therefore, though a simple mortgage deed creating charge on immovable property over Rs. 100 is unregistered, the deed is admissible in evidence to support the mortgagee's claim for a money decree.

[Case-law reviewed.]

L. P. A. from the judgment of Sale, J., in S. A. No. 76 of 1939, dated May 10, 1939.

Mr. Achhru Ram, for the Appellant.
Mr. Barkat Ali, for the Respondent.

Tek Chand, J.—The suit which has given rise to this appeal was instituted by the plaintiff-appellant against the defendant-respondent for recovery of Rs 1,057-15-0, on the allegation that on April 4, 1936, the defendant had borrowed Rs. 1,000 in cash from the plaintiff at Lahore agreeing to repay on demand the amount together with interest at 5 annas per cent. per mensem; that in order to secure the amount he had further agreed to hypothecate a house situate at Miani, District Shahpur; that the defendant then actually executed a document (Ex. P-1) in which the above facts were recited, and undertook to have it registered in the Shahpur District, where the house was situate, but subsequently he declined to have this done, and for this reason no charge was actually created on the house. The plaintiff averred that he had made several demands for repayment of the amount advanced and the interest, but the defendant had failed to pay. He accordingly prayed that a decree for Rs. 1,000 as principal and Rs. 57-15-0 as interest be passed against the defendant. The defendant denied the plaintiff's claim. He admitted execution of Ex. P-1, but alleged that he did not receive the consideration. He further pleaded that the document, Ex. P-1, was a mortgage deed affecting immovable property, worth more than Rs. 100 in value, and being unregistered was not admissible in evidence for the purpose of supporting the plaintiff's claim for a money decree. He also denied that he had agreed to pay interest to the plaintiff.

The trial Judge found that Rs. 1,000 had in fact been paid in cash by the plaintiff to the defendant. But he held that Ex. P-1 was inadmissible in evidence even for enforcing a claim for the amount advanced against the defendant personally, as this liability was indivisible from the transaction of the mortgage. On this finding, he dismissed the suit. The plaintiff appealed to the District Judge, who also came to the same conclusion. He held that the deed, Ex. P-1, contained no contract on behalf of the mortgagor to make himself personally liable for the mortgage money, apart from the property which was sought to be mortgaged and therefore it was inadmissible in evidence to support a claim for a money decree. He accordingly dismissed the appeal without coming to any finding on the issues relating to consideration or interest.

On second appeal before a Single Bench of this Court, the question of the interpretation of Ex. P-1 was raised, and it was contended that on a true construction of the deed the transaction was divisible in the sense that the personal obligation to repay the money could be separated from the transaction of mortgage. But the learned Judge held that the interpretation of Ex. P-1 was not a matter which could be raised in second appeal. He observed that this question was concluded by the finding of fact recorded by the District Judge that upon a proper construction of the document the transaction was indivisible and did not contain a personal covenant to repay the loan. He then held that as the deed related to a single and indivisible transaction with a covenant that the mortgage money was recoverable from immovable property, over Rs. 100 in value, and as it was unregistered, it was inadmissible to prove the loan and therefore no money decree could be passed. In support of this proposition, the learned Judge relied upon Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1), Thakur Das v. Fatte Khan (2), Jai Sukh v. Mahomed Khan (3), Chuhar v. Wazira (4), Fatte Singh v. Mian Singh (5) and Ghansham Das v. Hem Raj (6) He, accordingly, affirmed the decision of the Courts below dismissing the suit. On an application by the plaintiff, however, he granted a certificate for a further appeal under cl. 10, Letters Patent.

The most important question in the case is the determination of the real nature of the transaction between the parties, as embodied in Ex. P-1 and therefore the decision of the case depends upon its construction. Admittedly, Ex. P-1 is the document of title in this case. It is the foundation of the plaintiff's suit, and it is well-settlad that the construction of such a document is a question of law, which can be raised in second appeal. In Chander Coomar v. Namni Khanum (7), it was held by Sir Richard Couch, C. J. of Calcutta, as far back as 1873, that the misconstruction of a

(1) 4 C 83; 2 C L R 428.
(2) 60 P R 1880.
(3) 89 P R 1880.
(4) 17 P R 1881.
(5) 131 P R 1883.
(6) 92 P R 1890.
(7) 19 W R 322; 11 Beng. L R 434 (P B).

document, which is the foundation of a suit, or which is in the nature of a contract or a document of title, is a good ground for second appeal; but a second appeal does not lie merely because some portion of the evidence is in writing and a mistake has been made as to its meaning. This has been followed in numerous cases in various High Courts: see inter alia Dursan Singh v. Durbejoy Singh, 1 Ind. Cas. 530 (8), Buzlal Karim v. Satish Chandra, 10 Ind. Cas 325 (9), Palaniandy Chetty v. Kambaraya Chetty, 24 Ind. Cas. 87 (10), Vithoba Madhav v. Madhav Damodar (11), Rudreshwari Prasad Singh v. Dhana Mahto, 52 Ind. Cas. 119 (12), Dayal Singh Harnam Singh v. Beli Ram Nathu Ram (13), Ali Ahmad v. Khan Muhammad (14), Abdul Latif v. Rahmatullah (15), Allah Ditta v. Khuda Bakhsh (16), Ram Diyal v. Darbari Ram (17), Kanshi Nath v. Chakar Dhar (18), Hans Raj v. Tulsi (19) and Ram Ranbijaya Prasad Singh v. Krishna Madho Singh, 182 Ind. Cas. 982 (20). It must, at the same time, be stated that there are cases in which the distinction has not always been kept in view. The matter however is concluded by recent pronouncements of their Lordships of the Privy Council.

In Fateh Chand v. Kishen Kaur (21), the lower Appellate Court, on a construction of the wajib-ul-arz and other documentary evidence, had held that the plaintiffs were proprietors of the land. On second appeal to the High Court, it was sought to be contended that the Court was bound to accept this finding as conclusive, the question being one of fact; but the High Court rejected the contention and held that on a true construction of the documents the plaintiffs were tenants of the land and not proprietors as found by the lower Appellate Court. Their Lordships, in affirming this decision, held that the Subordinate Judge's decision had been arrived at by inferences drawn from a misconstruction of the wajib-ul-arz; and that "the right construction of documents was a question of law" which the Court on second appeal was not precluded from considering. Again, in Midnapur Zamindari Co. Ltd. v. Uma Charan Mandal (22), Lord Sumner, in delivering the judgment of the Judicial Committee, emphasized the distinction between "documents which were instruments of title or otherwise the direct foundation of rights" and those which were "really historical materials." He observed that when the question to be decided was one of fact, it did not involve an issue of law merely because documents, which were not instruments of title or otherwise the direct foundation of rights, had to be construed for the purpose of deciding the question. This proposition was re-affirmed by another Board of the same high tribunal in the well-known case in Wali Muhammad v. Mohammad Bakhsh (23), at (p. 207) in which the scope of s. 100, Civil P. C., was more fully discussed. In Wali Mohammad v. Mohammad Bakhsh (23), their Lordships cited with approval the rule laid down by Sir Richard Couch, C. J. in Chander Coomar v. Namni Khanum (7), to which reference has been made above.

In view of this authoritative statement of the law and having regard to the fact that in the case before us, Ex. P-1 is the foundation of the suit, Mr. Barkat Ali for the respondent frankly conceded that its construction is a question of law which could be raised in second appeal and should have been decided by the learned Judge. Turning to the document, we find that in heading it is described as an "ar rahn nama (simple mortgage deed). After giving the name and particulars of the executant and describing in detail the house owned by him, it is expressly stated that in lieu of the sum of Rs. 1,000, which the executant had already received from the plaintiff, he

(8) 1 Ind. Cas. 530; 9 C L J 623.
(9) 10 Ind. Cas. 325; 13 C L J 418; 15 C W N 752.
(10) 24 Ind. Cas. 87; A I R 1914 Mad. 685; 1 L W 416.
(11) 42 B 341; 46 Ind. Cas. 734; A I R 1918 Bom. 158; 20 Bom. L R 654.
(12) 52 Ind. Cas. 119; A I R 1919 Pat. 334.
(13) A I R 1929 Lah. 38; 115 Ind. Cas. 77; Ind. Rul. (1929) Lah 333.
(14) A I R 1929 Lah. 833; 120 Ind. Cas. 420; Ind. Rul. (1930) Lah. 52.
(15) A I R 1930 Lah. 139; 123 Ind. Cas. 533; Ind. Rul. (1930) Lah 453.
(16) A I R 1930 Lah. 691; 125 Ind. Cas. 610; Ind. Rul. (1930) Lah. 626.
(17) A I R 1934 Lah. 35; 149 Ind. Cas. 934; 6 R L 761 (1).
(18) A I R 1934 Lah. 193 (1); 149 Ind. Cas. 1016; 36 P L R 98; 6 R L 781.
(19) A I R 1939 Lah. 264; 41 P L R 326.
(20) 182 Ind. Cas 982; A I R 1939 Pat. 364; 20 P L T 677; 5 B R 864; 12 R P 89; 20 P L T 677.
(21) 34 A 579; 16 Ind. Cas. 67; 39 I A 247; 10 A L J 335; 16 C W N 1073; 23 M L J 330; 12 M L T 413; (1912) M W N 1065; 14 Bom. L R 1090; 17 C L J 1 (P C).
(22) 29 C W N 131; 74 Ind. Cas. 432; A I R 1923 P C 187; 21 A L J 723; 4 P L T 627; 33 M L T 291; (1923) M W N 832; 45 M L J 663; 25 Bom. L R 1287; 40 C L J 16 (P C).
(23) 11 L 199 (207); 122 Ind. Cas. 316; A I R 1930 P C 91; 57 I A 86; (1930) A L J 292; Ind. Rul. (1930) P C 124; 31 P L R 145; 31 L W 321; 32 Bom. L R 380; 51 C L J 516; 59 M L J 54 (P C).

had transferred the property as ar rahn ya'ni bila qabza (by way of simple mortgage, i. e. without possession). The executant then stipulates to pay the amount borrowed, together with interest thereon at 5 annas per cent. per mansem, indultalab yak musht (in one lump sum, on demand by the mortgagee), on payment of which the house would be redeemed. Lastly, there is the clause that in case the plaintiff was unable to realize the amount due by sale of the house mentioned above, or because of any defect in his title, the person and other property of the executant would be liable for the balance. These terms show unmistakably that the transaction was in fact, what it was described to be, namely that of a simple mortgage. In s. 58 (a), T. P. Act, 'mortgage' is defined as follows:

"A mortgage is the transfer of an interest in specific immovable property for the purpose of securing the payment of money advanced, or to be advanced, by way of loan, an existing or future debt or the performance of an engagement which may give rise to a pecuniary liability."

Clause (b) of this section contains the definition of a "simple mortgage":

"Where, without delivering possession of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor binds himself personally to pay the mortgage-money, and agrees, expressly or impliedly, that, in the event of his failing to pay according to his contract, the mortgagee shall have a right to cause the mortgaged property to be sold and the proceeds of sale to be applied, so far as may be necessary in payment of the mortgage money, the transaction is called a simple mortgage and the mortgagee a simple mortgagee.

The characteristics of a "simple mortgage," thus, are (1) that there must be a loan; (2) that the mortgagor must have bound himself personally to repay the loan; (3) that to secure the loan he has transferred to the mortgagee the right to have specific immovable property sold, in the event of his having failed to repay, and (4) that possession of the property has not been, and is not to be, transferred to the mortgagee during the pendency of the mortgage. These stipulations may be express, or they may appear by necessary implications from the terms of the particular transaction. Thus a promise to pay necessarily arises out of the acceptance of a loan and it need not be stated in so many words in the deed. It is implicit in the transaction itself that the obligor is under a personal liability to repay, unless this liability is excluded by the terms of the contract, expressly or impliedly, as for example in the case of a usufructuary mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale, where the agreement is to repay out of a particular property or fund alone and in a particular manner. This matter is now concluded by the highest authority. In Ram Narayan Singh v. Adhindra Nath (24) their Lordships of the Privy Council laid down the following propositions: (a) that a 'loan' prima facie involves a personal liability; (b) that such a liability is not displaced by the mere fact that security is given for the repayment of the loan with interest; (c) but that the nature and terms of such security may negative any personal liability on the part of the borrower. As explained by Dalip Singh, J., while delivering the judgment of the Division Bench in Parsram v. Brij Mohan (25) at p. 266:

"In all mortgages a personal covenant to repay the mortgage must be presumed unless there is something in the nature and the terms of the mortgage deed to negative it. Of the various kinds of mortgages enumerated in s. 58, T. P. Act, two, namely a simple mortgage, and an 'English mortgage' necessarily connote that the mortgagor binds himself to repay the mortgage money In the other four forms, namely 'mortgage by conditional sale' 'usufructuary mortgage,' 'mortgage by deposit of title-deeds' and 'anomalous mortgage,' the Court would not necessarily come to any conclusion by deciding the nature of the deed as to whether there was, or was not, a personal liability."

The terms of the deed will have to be examined and ultimately determined whether the personal liability has been, or has not been enforced."

It will be seen that the transaction described in Ex. P. 1 contains all the characteristics of a simple mortgage. There is nothing in its terms which excluded the personal liability of the mortgagor, which is implicit in every transaction of simple mortgage. Nor is it stated that the obligee must look to the mortgaged house alone for recovery of his money. On the other hand, the personal obligation of the executant is clear from the undertaking to pay the money (indul talab) "on demand" by the mortgagee. It is further emphasized that this liability would subsist even after the house has been sold, if the sale proceeds are found to be insufficient to discharge the amount due as principal and interest. Mr. Barkat Ali referred us to two decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council and urged that the plaintiff could not maintain the suit for a personal decree against the defendant. The facts of both these cases were however materially different. In Narotam Dass v. Sheo Pargash Singh (26) a taluqdar the management of whose taluq at the time, was vested in an officer under the Oudh Taluqdars' Relief Act, had made an instrument purporting to hypothecate the taluq to secure payment of money borrowed by him. On an examination of the terms of the instrument their Lordships held that the contract was to pay out of the hypothecated estate alone and there was no covenant to pay out of his personal property. The facts of the other case, Kalka Singh v. Paras Ram (27) are still more dissimilar. In that case their Lordships reiterated the general rule that an unqualified admission of a debt implies a promise to pay, but such a promise may be negatived by an express promise appearing in a subsequent part of the deed to pay the amount in a particular manner and on the happening of a certain event. On an examination of the terms of the particular document before them, they found that the agreement was to repay the loan out of a particular fund and in a particular manner and that there was no personal obligation which could be separately enforced against the obligor.

(24) 44 C 388; 38 Ind. Cas. 932; A I R 1916 P C 119; 44 I A 87; 21 M L T 12; 15 A L J 107; (1917) M W N 94; 32 M L J 39; 25 C L J 121; 21 C W N 383; 19 Bom. L R 194 (P C).

(25) 13 L 259 (266); 135 Ind. Cas. 33; A I R 1932 Lah. 164; 33 P L R 536; Ind. Rul. (1932) Lah. 17.

The other cases cited by Mr. Barkat Ali, Kuraishi Begam v. Mumtaz Mirza, 3 Ind. Cas. 871 (28) and Raghuntah v. Sheolal, 39 Ind. Cas. 849, (29) are equally inapplicable. In both of them the transactions in dispute were held to be mortgages by way of conditional sale, in which there can be no personal liability on the part of the mortgagor. This is not so in the case before us. Here the transaction is one of simple mortgage, which contained a personal covenant to pay as well as purported to create a charge on immovable property, admittedly over Rs. 100 in value. For the latter purpose, the document required to be compulsorily registered under s. 17, Regis. Act, and, being unregistered, it cannot, as laid down in s. 49 of the same Act, be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property. But that section does not say that it is inadmissible in evidence even for the purpose of enforcing the personal covenant which in a transaction of simple mortgage is separable and divisible. In this connection reference may be made to Sheo Dial v. Prag Dat (30) which has been described as the leading case on the subject. In that case, as in that before us, the plaintiff sued to recover money on an unregistered hypothecation bond. The consideration had been received in cash, the obligor had agreed to repay the amount with interest within one year, and had also hypothecated immovable property as collateral security. The plaintiff did not seek to enforce the hypothecation contained in the bond for the reason that it was unregistered, but merely asked for a money decree. The defendant pleaded that the bond, being unregistered, was inadmissible in evidence even to enforce the personal obligation. The Full Bench repelled the contention and held that "in such cases the personal covenant in the bond is distinctly divisible or separable from its hypothecation clauses and, so regarded, the bond is clear evidence of the debt.

Two years later, the same question came up for consideration before a Full Bench of five Judges of the Calcutta High Court in Ulfatunnisa v. Husain Khan (31). There, also, an unregistered hypothecation bond recited that Rs. 2,600 had been received in cash at the time of the execution of the bond, that the obligor would "pay the amount peaceably" within a year; failing which the obligee would be entitled to sell the hypothecated property and then proceed against the other property of the obligor. The suit was for a simple money decree for the principal and interest. The Full Bench held that the bond, though unregistered, could be used in evidence to enforce the personal obligation. This ruling was followed in Madras in Gonaji v. Subbarayappa (32) where a simple mortgage had been created by an unregistered bond and the agreement was to re-pay the amount on demand, failing which the mortgagee was entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale. It was held that the mortgagee was entitled to sue on the personal covenant and obtain a personal decree. Similarly, in Vani v. Bini (33) at p. 557, it was laid down that an unregistered bond for Rs. 100, or upwards, may be admissible in evidence to prove the simple debt or a personal obligation, though it is inadmissible to prove any right to immovable property. To the same effect are the decisions of the Rangoon High Court in Maung Po Din v. Mg, Tha Saing, 126

(26) 10 C 740; 11 I A 83; 4 Sar 522 (P C).
(27) 22 C 434; 22 I A 68; 6 Sar. 545 (P C).
(28) 3 Ind. Cas. 871; 12 O C 275.
(29) 39 Ind. Cas. 849; A I R 1916 Nag. 120; 13 N L R 69.
(30) 3 A 229 (F B).
(31) 9 C 520; 12 C L R 209 (F B).
(32) 15 M 253.
(33) 20 B 553 (557).

Ind. Cas. 655 (34) and Motiram v. Daw Hnin E. (35).

That the personal covenant to repay is implicit in such transactions, and is separable and divisible from the charge created on the property, is the foundation of the decisions in another class of cases in which it has been held that where a document, which purported to be a mortgage but was not a mortgage owing to non-compliance with certain provisions of the law was admissible to prove the personal covenant to pay. It was held that the failure to comply with the statutory provisions could have no further effect than to invalidate the intended transfer of immovable property; it did not affect the validity of the contract to pay the debt: Saddu Kaiaur v. Tadepally Basaviah (36) and Kunhu Moidu v. Madhava Menon (37). Another instance of the recognition of this principle will be found in cases like Mathura Pershad v. Chandra Narayan (38) where registration of a document was held to be invalid as registration had been effected in a district where no part of the property really sought to be mortgaged was situate. The document was therefore held to be inadmissible to support a claim on the basis of the mortgage transaction comprised in it but at the same time their Lordships recognized that the creditor could maintain "the alternative claim for a personal judgment for the mortgage debt" and they remanded the case to the High Court for investigation of the plea of limitation and other defences to this claim. This was followed by the Madras High Court in Rama Rao v. Vedayya (39) where the facts were similar. In these cases the personal covenant which exists in every transaction of mortgage, was taken to be separable and divisible from the mortgage and the deed held admissible to prove it. In support of their decision to the contrary, the Courts below have relied principally upon Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1) which has been described as the "basic ruling" on the subject. The terms of the document in question in that case were very peculiar and the learned Judges observed that it was "doubtful whether having regard to the terms of the loan the defendant was personally liable for the money and whether the only remedy of the plaintiff was not against the mortgaged property."

They observed that the document disclosed that the intention of the parties, in any case, appeared to be that the money was to be realized in the first instance from the property. Therefore they held that the loan and the pledge could not be separated and the transaction was not divisible in its nature. This case is therefore no authority for the broad proposition that, in the absence of a clear stipulation to the contrary, a transaction of a simple mortgage must be taken to be single and indivisible, and, consquently, the document held to be inadmissible not only to affect immovable property but also to support a claim for recovery of the money from the obligor. As pointed out in Sheo Dial v. Prag Dat (30) at pp. 232-3* by Straight, J., Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1) must be taken to have been decided on "the special language of the document involved in the suit before the Court." Indeed, it could not have been the intention of the learned Judges who decided Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1) to lay down any such general proposition for (as pointed out in Krishto Lall v. Bonomalee Roy (40) at p. 613), they themselves in their judgment had distinguished the case before them because of the peculiar terms of the document, from the earlier Full Bench ruling of their own Court in Lachmipat Singh v. Mirza Khairat Ali (41) where it had been held by Sir Barnes Peacock, C. J. (with the concurrence of four other Judges), that an unregistered hypothecation bond, though inadmissible under s. 49 of Act XX of 1866, affecting an interest in the land, was admissible to support a suit for recovery of money due on the bond. In Gour Churn v. Jinnut Ali (42) at p. 167 another Division Bench of the Calcutta Court took the same view of Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnaroin Sad Khan (1) and the matter appears to have been put beyond doubt by the Full Bench in Ulfat-un-nisa v. Husain Khan (31) where Sir Richard Garth, C. J., (who had delivered the judgment in Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1) reaffirmed the Full Bench decision in Lachmipat Singh v. Mirza Khairat Ali (41) holding that no change in the law had been effected

(34) 126 Ind. Cas. 655; A I R 1930 Rang. 142; Ind. Rul. (1930) Rang. 335.
(35) 153 Ind. Cas. 56; A I R 1934 Rang. 196; 7 R Rang 192.
(36) 30 M 284; 17 M L J 167.
(37) 32 M 410; 1 Ind. Cas. 1; 19 M L J 584.
(38) 48 C 509; 63 Ind. Cas. 770; A I R 1921 P C 8; 48 I A 127 (P C).
(39) 46 M 435; 73 Ind Cas. 188; A I R 1923 Mad. 447; 44 M L J 373; (1923) M W N 166; 32 M L T 222; 17 L W 695.
(40) 5 C 611 (613); 5 C L R 43.
(41) 4 Beng. L R 18; 12 W R 11 (F B).
(42) 11 C L R 166 (167).

*Page of 3 A—[Ed.].

by the amendment made in s. 49 by Act III of 1877, and ruled that an unregistered bond containing a personal undertaking to repay the money borrowed and also a hypothecation of land above Rs. 100 in value as security may be used in evidence to enforce a personal obligation.

In the Punjab, the earliest reported case is Bishen Singh v. Sunder (43) in which it was held, in general terms, that though an unregistered deed of mortgage cannot be received in evidence to affect the property mortgaged, it is receivable in evidence to prove the debt for the purpose of granting a money decree. This rule appears to have been modified in some cases decided in the early eighties after the decision in Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1). The judgments in these cases are brief and the exact terms of the documents under consideration are not set out in detail. It is possible that the particular transactions were similar to that in Mattongeny Dossee v. Ramnarain Sad Khan (1) and therefore the decisions proceeded on their special terms. An examination of the judgments however discloses that a distinction was drawn between (1) cases in which the deed contained either an acknowledgment of a pre-existing debt or a distinct and formal undertaking to repay the loans, and (2) those in which the deed merely recited that immovable property had been given as security for the debt. In the former class of cases it was held that the personal obligation was divisible and that a claim for a money decree could be maintained on the deed : Muhammad Khan v. Jai Sukh (44), Khuddu Mal v. Kunji Lall (45) and Prem Singh v. Mula Mal (46). In the latter class, however, it was laid down that the unregistered bond was not admissible, as in the absence of clear words to this effect the transaction mentioned must be taken to be a "mortgage and mortgage only ;" it could not be said that "it comprised two distinct transactions—one the mortgage and the other a personal undertaking to pay" ; Thakur Das v. Fatte Khan (2), Jai Sukh v. Mahomed Khan (3), Chuhar v. Wazira (4) and Fatteh Singh v. Mian Singh (5). This distinction however has not been recognized in subsequent ruling (see e. g. Basant Lal v. Jowahir Singh, 87 Ind. Cas. 609 (47) and if I may say so with respect it can no longer be maintained in view of the pronouncements of the Privy Council already referred to, that every loan involves a promise to repay and that such a liability is not displaced by the mere fact that security is given for its repayment with interest, unless the nature and terms of such security negative any personal liability on the part of the borrower.

In the case before us there is nothing in Ex. P-1 which expressly or by necessary implication excludes the personal obligation of the defendant. On the other hand, as shown above, this obligation is recognized in the stipulation to repay the amount borrowed "on demand" (indul talab) and is re-affirmed in the succeeding clauses. It must therefore be held that Ex. P-1 is admissible in evidence to support the plaintiff's claim for a money decree. I would accordingly accept this appeal, set aside the judgment of the learned Judge in Single Bench, and remand the case to the District Judge for decision of the issues as to consideration and interest which he had left undecided. Court-fee on this appeal as well as on the appeal before the Single Bench shall be refunded; other costs shall be costs in the cause. Counsel have been directed to cause their clients to appear before the District Judge, Shahpur (at Sargodha), on June 24, 1940, when a date for the hearing of the appeal will be fixed.

Bhide, J.—I agree,

S. Order accordingly.

(43) 40 P R 1874.
(44) 88 P R 1880.
(45) 80 P R 1881.
(46) 10 P R 1883.
(47) 87 Ind. Cas. 609; A I R 1925 Lah. 356; 7 Lah. L J 3.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT

First Appeal No. 305 of 1379
July 19, 1940
BEAUMONT, C. J. AND WASSOODEW, J.
SHRIPADGOUDA VENKANGOUDA APARANJI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
GOVINDGOUDA NARAYANGOUDA APARANJI—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Evidence Act (1 of 1872), s. 44—"Obtained by fraud" and "collusion" in s. 44, explained—X executing pro-note in favour of Y, to shield property from creditors—Y agreeing not to execute decree on pro-note—Suit on pro-note—X and Y making bogus reference to arbitration—Decree passed on award—Y executing decree inspite of agreement to contrary—Suit by X to set aside decree as fraudulent and collusive—X and Y held, both being in pari delicto, X could not vacate decree—Proper remedy of X stated—Decree—Consent decree and decree obtained on award, difference.

A judgment or order obtained by fraud upon a Court binds no such Court, and its nullity may be alleged in any collateral proceeding without the necessity of setting it aside. The expression "obtained by fraud" in s. 44, Evi. Act, expressly refers to the fraud practised against the Court by any one party, or it may also imply a fraud against any party to the proceeding. The term 'collusion' is used apparently in a different sense, and the language of the section is so comprehensive that it might enable a party to the collusion to lead evidence of his own fraud. But as the section lays down a rule of proof it would not abrogate the rule of larger equity which must guide the Court in granting relief. The collusive decree can be impeached by innocent persons claiming under the parties to the judgment or represented by them therein, or by strangers who were neither privies to nor representatives of the parties to the former suit. If, however, fraud is practised by both the parties on the Court, neither of them can impeach the judgment on the ground that it was collusively procured. [p. 797, col. 2; p. 798, col. 1.]

X executed a promissory note in favour of Y in order to shield his property from his creditors. Y agreed not to execute the decree on the pro-note. Y broughht a suit on the pro-note and both X and Y made a bogus reference to arbitration and obtained a decree on the award by falsely representing the award to be genuine and thus practised fraud on the Court. Subsequently Y in violation of his agreement put the decree into execution. A then brought a suit to set aside the decree as being collusive and fraudulent;

Held, that both parties having colluded and practised fraud on the Court, were in pari delicto and it was not, therefore, open to one of the parties to vacate the decree and thus take advantage of his business. Nor could the collusive decree be dealt with on the analogy of a transfer fraudulently effected under s. 84, Trusts Act. 126 Ind. Cas. 305 (17), relied on

[English and Indian case-law discussed]

Held, further that proper remedy for X for preventing Y from executing the decree in breach of his agreement was by way of suit for injunction and not by a suit for setting aside the decree.

A decree obtained upon an award given after hearing the parties by an arbitrator duly selected by them, cannot be treated on the same footing as a consent decree. The two are radically different. The Court's power in recording compromises cannot be used for disturbing an agreement between the parties. On proof of the compromise, the Court is bound to record the adjustment, unless it is unlawful, and to pass a decree in terms thereof. In the matter of awards, the procedure is laid down, so far as the mofussil Courts are concerned, in Sch. II, Civil P. C. If the award is not challenged on any of the grounds in para. 15 of that Schedule, the Court's business would be to record the award and pass judgment accordingly. The difference between a compromise decree and an award decree is this; that while the former is the result of the agreement of the parties with the Court's seal of approval, the award is the act of a Court or a tribunal set up by the parties of their own choice and is independent of the agreement of the parties. Moreover, if an award were irregular and offended against the provisions of the law, or if there were other grounds sufficient to invalidate it, the procedure to be followed to impeach the award would be the procedure laid down in the Code. [p. 799, col. 2; p. 800 col. 1.]

F. A. from the decision of the Joint First Class Sub-Judge, Dharwar, in Special Civil Suit No. 34 of 1934.

Mr. R. A. Jahagirdar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. D. R. Manerikar and V. G. Wagle, for the Respondent.

Wassoodew, J.—This appeal arises from an action instituted by the plaintiff-appellant in the Court of the First Class Subordinate Judge at Dharwar to set aside, on the ground of fraud and false representation, a decree upon an award passed in Suit No. 53 of 1931 between the parties on April 1, 1932. That decree was passed by the same Court in which it is now challenged. The former suit was instituted by the defendant to recover Rs. 12,000 with interest upon a promissory note executed in his favour on April 22, 1930. The plaintiff, who was the defendant in that suit, had filed a written statement in which he contended inter alia that he was liable to pay only Rs. 2,000, a debt due from the family and contracted by his eldest brother Pralhad in his lifetime while he was the manager of the family, that the balance of the claim was fraudulent, and that the promissory note was obtained by fraud, misrepresentation and undue influence. After that defence was filed and before the hearing commenced, both the parties asked the Court to refer the matter in dispute to arbitration, and accordingly it was so referred to one Narsingrao, a friend of the parties and also a distant relative of the plaintiff, for the determination of the dispute. Upon that reference the arbitrator made his award, and after hearing the parties the decree now impeached was passed by the Court. The arbitrator refused interest to the defendant and granted instalments to the debtor-plaintiff. The plaintiff's allegations of fraud and false representation, which form the basis of the suit for setting aside the decree, are fully set out in the plaint and the plaintiff's statement.

After stating that the claim was false and fraudulent inasmuch as there was no consideration for the promissory note and that the defendant had represented to the plaintiff that by passing a promissory note to him (defendant) the plaintiff's other creditors could be coerced into accepting a lesser amount in satisfaction of their debt, for they would by suing the plaintiff be subjecting their claim to a decree which could be paid off rateably out of his assets, the plaint proceeds to say as follows:

"The defendant further represented to him (plaintiff) that the mere taking of promissory notes was not sufficient to threaten other creditors and that if a decree were obtained (on the promissory notes) it would be effective, and that the other creditors could be asked to adjust their debts by giving remissions and that (in this way) his property could be shielded and that no loss to the plaintiff would be caused. By such representation and without giving the plaintiff any opportunity to secure independant advice in the matter, and by fraudulent misrepresentation and undue influence the defendant got the plaintiff to consent to the arbitration and got from him the necessarry documents and got one Narsingrao Nadagouda, a relation and a friend of his, to act as arbitrator in the case. The arbitrator also without making any inquiry passed an award in accordance with the wishes of the defendant."

It is also suggested that the defendant represented to the plaintiff that even if a decree were passed on the award, it would not be executed to the plaintiff's detriment. The plaint then proceeds to say that notwithstanding that representation after the decree was obtained, the defendant attached certain property of the plaintiff and applied for execution of the decree. Then the plaint winds up as follows:

"The plaintiff being alarmed by these proceedings asked the defendant to take lands for whatever sum that was found due to him on accounts being taken as promised by him. The defendant refused to render such account and so betrayed his real intention of recovering the full amount of the decree by bringing to sale the whole of his properties. In this way, the plaintiff came to know about the defendant's fraudulent intention."

Now, upon that statement, apart from the allegations that the claim made by the defendant in the former proceedings was false and that the promissory note upon which that claim was based was obtained by fraud and misrepresentation and without consideration, the plea in substance amounts to this: that both the plaintiff and the defendant had agreed to obtain the award with the object of depriving the plaintiff's creditors of their just dues, or bringing pressure upon them to reduce their claim, and that the consent of the plaintiff was procured by the defendant's assurance that the decree passed upon the award would not be enforced. In other words, the plaintiff alleges that the judicial proceedings were collusive, and that he consented to the order of reference and the decree upon the representation made to him by the defendant. The necessary implication is that that secret understanding between him and the defendant as well as the fact alleged, namely that the arbitrator Narsingrao had agreed to give his award as the parties desired him to give, as a result of their collusion, was suppressed from the Court with a purpose. That purpose was evidently fraudulent for the object was to defeat the creditors of the plaintiff. There is not the slightest suggestion in the plaint that any material fact was suppressed from the plaintiff himself, and it is important and significant to note that the plaintiff's action is not founded on deceit either for damages or for injunction.

If, therefore, upon the pleadings, the fraud alleged was a fraud by the parties to the suit on the Court in obtaining an order of reference and the order making the award the decree of the Court, the question is whether such a collusive conduct in a judicial proceeding can be made the basis of an action to nullify a judgment of that Court. That aspect of the case does not seem to have been clearly appreciated in the Court below, which proceeded to consider the evidence led by the plaintiff as to the nature of the claim on the promissory note and the agreement between the parties to refer the dispute to arbitration. The lower Court came to the conclusion that the promissory note itself was for consideration, that the promissory note and the decree were not obtained by fraud, and that the defendant was justified in recovering the amount of the decree. The question, whether the defendant agreed not to execute the decree, was also considered and decided against the plaintiff. Accordingly the plaintiff's suit was dismissed. It is now well settled that a judgment or order obtained by fraud upon a Court binds no such Court, and its nullity may be alleged in any collateral proceeding without the necessity of setting it aside: see Reg. v. Saddler's Co. (1), at p. 431. James, L.J. in Flower v. Lloyd (2), observed that "in the case of a decree being obtained by fraud, there always was power, and there still is power, in the Courts of law in this country to give adequate relief."

In Ex parte White v. Tommey (3), the House of Lords discharged its own order as having been obtained by suppression and misrepresentation. The jurisdiction to set aside a decree has been recognized in Indian decisions. In Gopi Wasudev Bhat v. Markande Narayan Bhat (4), there was a collusive mortgage supported by a collusive decree, and West, J. remarked that "if the ostensible sale or mortgage was really a mere colourable transaction, the vendee from the mortgagor may claim to have it disregarded, even though the fraud has been carried a stage further, so as to give to the sham mortgage the corroboration of a decree which is then allowed to lay by unexecuted for several years."

In another case in Narayan Gop Habbu v.

(1) (1863) 10 H L C 404 (431); 32 L J Q B 337; 9 Jur. (N S) 1081; 9 L T 60; 11 W R 1004.
(2) (1877) 6 Ch. D 297; 46 L J Ch. 838; 37 L T 419. 25 W R 793.
(3) (1853) 4 H L C 313; 94 R R 125.
(4) 3 B 30.

Pandurang Ganu (5), the jurisdiction to set aside a collusive decree was not questioned; the Court however held that the allegation of collusion failed altogether. Those were cases where the collusive decree was impeached not by the parties to it but by innocent persons claiming under the parties to the judgment, or represented by them therein, or by strangers who were neither privies to nor representatives of the parties to the former suit. The question is whether, if fraud is practised by both the parties on the Court, either of them could impeach the judgment on the ground that it was collusively procured. Wharton in his Law Lexicon (Edn. 15, p. 212) defines "collusion" as "uniting in the same play or game, and thus uniting for the purposes of fraud or deception," and therefore implying:

"an agreement or compact between two or more persons to do some act in order to prejudice a third person, or for some improper purpose."

He says:

"Collusion in judicial proceedings is a secret agreement between two persons that the one should institute a suit against the other, in order to obtain the decision of a judicial tribunal for some sinister purpose, and appears to be of two kinds: (1) when the facts put forward as the foundation of the sentence of the Court do not exist; (2) when they exist, but have been corruptly preconcerted for the express purpose of obtaining the sentence."

A decree obtained by collusion has been described in the well-known argument in the Duchess of Kingstons case (6) as fabula, non judicium, hoc est; in scena, non in foro, res agitur: see Nistarini Dassi v. Nundo Lall Bose (7) and Sardarmal v. Aranvayal Sabhapathy (8), where the question as to what amounts to collusion has been considered. There can be no doubt, in my opinion, that as between the parties such a decree would be binding. In Prudham v. Philips (9), Willes, C. J., said that "if both parties colluded it was never known that one of them could vacate it." The authorities show that strangers could repudiate it. In that connection, I might refer to the provisions of s. 44, Evi. Act. That section says that

"any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree which is relevant under ss 40 41 or 42, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion."

The expression "obtained by fraud" in my opinion expressly refers to the fraud practised against the Court by any one party, or it may also imply a fraud against any party to the proceeding. The term 'collusion' is used apparently in a different sense and I must confess that the language of the section is so comprehensive that it might enable a party to the collusion to lead evidence of his own fraud. But the Evi. Act lays down a rule of proof and assuming that a party was allowed to prove his own collusion, that would not abrogate the rule of larger equity which must guide the Court in granting relief. In Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy (10) the question of fraud as affecting the judgment of a Court was considered on general grounds and numerous English authorities have been considered on the question as to what classes of persons would be affected by the judgment such as, (1) the parties and privies to it (2) the representatives of such privies and parties and (3) strangers who are neither privies to nor representatives of the parties. The defendants, who were in the position of residuary legatees, were allowed to dispute a decree of 1876 obtained by the plaintiff against an administrator, on the ground that the decree represented a private debt due by the administrator to the plaintiff and had been obtained by fraud and collusion. That was clearly a case where the representatives of the parties to the suit challenged the decree on the ground of the fraud of the representatives. On similar principles Courts have allowed a minor to challenge a decree obtained against him on account of the fraud of his guardian: see Cursandas Natha v. Ladkavahu (11) and Bhanudas v. Krishnabai (12.) There are other cases of Indian Court where the same principle was affirmed. In Pran Nath Roy v. Mohesh Chandra Moitra (13) the plaintiff who had unsuccessfully attempted to set aside an ex parte decree under ss. 108 and 311 of Act XIV of 1882, and who had not appealed against the order under s. 103, was held not to be disentitled to sue to have the decree set aside on the ground of fraud. In Nistarini Dassi v. Nundo Lall Bose (7) the authorities were reviewed by Stanley, J. There a preliminary objection was taken that the High Court had no jurisdiction to set aside a decree of the Alipore Court passed upon an award to which the consent of the plaintiff, a pardanashin lady, had been fraudu-

(5) 5 B 685.
(6) (1776) 20 Howell's St Tr. 537.
(7) 26 C 891; 3 C W N 670.
(8) 21 B 205.
(9) (1775) 2 Amb. 763.
(10) 6 B 703.
(11) 19 B 571.
(12) 28 Bom. L R 1225; 99 Ind. Cas. 307; A I R 1927 Bom. 11; 50 B 716 (F B).
(13) 24 C 546.

lently obtained, and that the relief sought would be in the nature of a bill of review filed in the Alipore Court. The objection was held to be unsustainable. In applying the rule in Reg. v. Sadlers Co., (1) Stanley, J., said (p 908*) :

"It matters not whether the impeached judgment has been pronounced by an inferior tribunal or by the highest Court of Judicature in the realm; in all cases alike it is competent for every Court, whether superior or inferior to treat as a nullity any judgment which can be clearly shown to have been obtained by manifest fraud."

There is however, clear authority of this Court on the question in issue in the judgment of West, J., in Chenvirappa v. Puttappa (14). In that case the plaintiff had bought a house from a person and allowed the vendor to execute the conveyance in the name of the defendant. That was done with the object of protecting the property against the claims of the plaintiff's creditors. After the conveyance the plaintiff occupied the house, ostensibly as a tenant of the nominal purchaser for nominal rent. Later on, the benamidar or the nominal purchaser brought a suit against the plaintiff to recover possession of the house and obtained an ex parte decree. He then applied for execution of the decree but allowed the execution proceedings to drop. The plaintiff realizing that the benamidar was intent on executing his decree for possession filed a suit for declaration of his title to the house in question, and of his right to retain possession, alleging that the defendant was a mere benamidar, that the sale deed and the ex parte decree were sham and collusive transactions in fraud of the plaintiff's creditors and that the nominal purchaser was merely a trustee or a transferee for his benefit. On the question arising as to the effect of the decree for possession it was held, upon the general principle of res judicata, that the plaintiff was estopped from raising the question of fraud in that suit and that he was bound by the decree in the defendant's favour although it was a collusive decree. The plaintiff could not get the judgment set aside which the defendant had obtained against him by his own contrivance even if the trust was enforceable in his favour for it arose ex turpi causa. In dealing with the remarks that a decree obtained by fraud and collusion could be impeached in a collateral proceedings, in The Queen v. Wardens and Assistants of The Saddlers' Company (15), it was pointed out that the expression "impeached in any collateral proceeding" should be understood as "impeached by one not a party to the fraudulent decree." The learned Judge then proceeded to make the following observations (p. 721*) :

"In the present case the parties are the same; the proceeding is not collateral; it is in direct contradiction to the decree, and proposes to avoid it by setting one judgment up against another. This incongruity the law will not tolerate : see Castrique v. Behrens (16)."

That is a clear authority for the proposition that a party to the decree cannot complain of any fraud practised by himself and another upon the Court. In other words, a party could not be permitted to take advantage of his own baseness or permitted to defeat a judgment by showing that in obtaining it he had practised an imposition on the Court. It would indeed be otherwise if one of the parties and the Court were deceived by the fraud of another. In such a case, as I have pointed out, the jurisdiction of the Court to set aside a decree cannot be denied provided the alleged fraud is established, and there is no excessive delay in bringing the action after the discovery of fraud.

But it is urged before us that inasmuch as the real intention of the plaintiff was fraudulently suppressed in obtaining his consent to the reference to arbitration, the real intention being to execute the decree, the decree obtained upon the award which was no better than a consent decree, should be set aside on account of that deception. The underlying assumption is that an award decree is on the same footing as a consent decree and as a consent decree could be set aside on any of the grounds invalidating a contract, the award decree could be similarly treated. Now, it seems to me, without expressing any opinion as to the alleged misrepresentation or fraud, that a decree obtained upon an award given after hearing the parties by an arbitrator duly selected by them, could not be treated on the same footing as a consent decree. The two are radically different. The Court's power in recording compromises cannot be used for disturbing an agreement between the parties. On proof of the compromise, the Court is bound to record the adjustment, unless it is unlawful, and to pass a decree in terms thereof. In the matter of awards, the procedure is laid

(14) 11 B 708; 12 Ind. Jur. 102.

(15) (1861) 30 L J Q B 186; 3 El. & El. 42; 6 Jur. (N S) 1113; 2 L T (N S) 502.

(16) (1860-61) 30 L J Q B 163; 3 El. & El. 709; 7 Jur. (N S) 1028; 4 L T (N S) 52; 122 R R 910.

* Page of 26 C.—[Ed.]

* Page of 11 Bom.—[Ed.]

down, so far as the mofussil Courts are concerned, in Sch. II, Civil P. C. If the award is not challenged on any of the grounds in para. 15 of that schedule, the Court's business would be to record the award and pass judgment accordingly. The difference between a compromise decree and an award decree is this: that while the former is the result of the agreement of the parties with the Court's seal of approval, the award is the act of a Court or tribunal set up by the parties of their own choice and is independent of the agreement of the parties. Moreover, if an award were irregular and offended against the provisions of the law, or if there were other grounds sufficient to invalidate it, the procedure to be followed to impeach the award would be the procedure laid down in the Code. We are not referred to any authority for the proposition that when an award in obtained by collusion of the parties and the arbitrator, the decree upon such an award could be impeached in an independent proceeding. The case in Raoji Narainji v. Ratansi Kanji (17), at p. 703 is an authority to the contrary. Consequently, on the grounds urged in the plaint it is difficult to grant the prayer for setting aside the decree. The argument that a collusive decree should be dealt with on the analogy of a transfer fraudulently effected under the provisions of s. 84, Trusts Act, is clearly not well founded.

As I have already remarked, if the implication of the statements in the plaint was that the defendant had failed to carry out his undertaking not to execute the decree, the cause of action for relief against the defendant's refusal to observe that undertaking would be entirely different. As I have said this is neither an action for injunction nor an action in damages for deceit. We were referred to a passage in the plaint which deals with an ancillary relief by way of injunction prohibiting the defendant from further executing his decree and it is suggested that this suit should be converted into a suit for an injunction restraining the defendant from executing further the decree on the ground that he has failed to observe his undertaking. The pleadings are not clear, and no issue was raised expressly upon a cause of action founded on breach of contract. With the exception of two witnesses who were casually asked questions about the alleged undertaking, the questions to the other witnesses were not directed to that point. Therefore, we are reluctant to convert this suit into a suit for injunction. Consequently, I do not think it desirable to express an opinion on the merits of the allegation in that respect. It is sufficient for me to say that the claim as based on the pleadings is not sustainable, and the appeal must therefore fail. Accordingly the appeal would be dismissed with costs.

(17) 54 B 696 (703); 126 Ind. Cas. 305; A I R 1930 Bom. 431; 32 Bom. L R 389; Ind. Rul. (1930) Bom. 401.

Beaumont C. J.—I agree. The essence of the plaintiff's case is that a decree was obtained in favour of the defendant, which would have the effect of preventing the plaintiff's creditors from claiming his property, and that the defendant represented that he would not enforce that decree. The plaintiff alleges that by reason of that representation he consented to a reference of the defendant's claim on promissory notes to arbitration, and agreed that the arbitrator should give an award in favour of the defendant, and that the award should be embodied in a decree of the Court. Now, that is really a case of obtaining a collusive decree. Both parties were in pari delicto. The plaintiff and the defendant each knew the facts, and both agreed that a bogus reference to arbitration should be made, and that a decree of the Court should be obtained on the award, and they deceived the Court by representing that the award was a genuine award, though in fact it was not. That is the plaintiff's case, and on that case, as I have said, the decree is a collusive decree. I know of no authority for the proposition that one party to such a decree can obtain relief by getting the decree set aside, and the case to which my learned brother has referred, Reg v. Sadlers' Co. (1), is a direct authority against such a proposition.

The only real complaint, when one analyses the pleading of the plaintiff as against the defendant, is that the defendant is not carrying out the bargain on which the decree was obtained, namely that the defendant would not execute it. But, if that is the plaintiff's case, he is seeking the wrong remedy. There is no case for setting aside the decree, his only claim would be for an injunction to restrain the defendant from executing the decree in breach of his agreement or for damages. But such a claim is not made out in this suit, and no issue was raised upon it and the bulk of the evidence was not directed to that case. Therefore, it would not, I think, be right to give leave to amend the plaint by raising that case now. The learned Judge in the Court below held against the plaintiff on merits, and I am certainly not suggesting that his judgment was wrong. It is not necessary, in our view, to go into the merits of the case on this appeal. The appeal must fail on the legal point that the plaintiff is not entitled to the remedy he seeks. If he has any case against the defendant for breach of agreement, he will have to bring it in a separate suit, and I express no opinion upon the question whether such a suit lies. I agree that the appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs.

S. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Original Side Appeal No 64 of 1938

January 24, 1940

LEACH, C. J. AND KRISHNASWAMI AYYANGAR, J.

V. G. MANICKA MUDALIAR—APPELLANT

versus

ANDALAMMAL—RESPONDENT

Madras High Court (Original Side) Rules—Questions raised, within province of Judge—When can be referred to Official Referee—Consent of parties—Consent withdrawn—Report of Official Referee, value of.

The Official Referee is not a Judge of the Court but only a Commissioner and the adjudication by him of the questions, which under the Code and the Rules, form part of the functions of a Judge would be ultra vires. The Judge referring to the Official Referee questions which have to be tried by himself cannot confer jurisdiction on the Official Referee any more than he can confer jurisdiction on a stranger by asking him to decide points in dispute in the case Questions as to the substantive rights are solely within the province of a Judge and matters of detail, i. e., the working out of those rights either by taking out accounts or effecting a partition or selling properties are, under the rules, functions which the Judge may delegate to the Official Referee. 73 Ind. Cas. 903 (1), followed. [p. 802, col. 2]

Where the questions raised in the issues are entirely within the province of the Judge, the Court has no jurisdiction to refer them to any one for decision unless the parties have agreed to submit their disputes to arbitration. When the consent of the party to the matter proceeding before the Official Referee is withdrawn the report of the Official Referee should not be considered If, however, the parties have expressly agreed that the evidence recorded by the Official Referee shall be treated as evidence in the case there can be no objection to the Court taking that evidence into consideration. [p. 803, col. 1.]

O. S. A. against the judgment of the Venkataramana Rao J., in O. S. No. 562 of 1930, dated July 25, 1938.

Mr. W. S. Krishnaswamy Naidu, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. Seshachariar, for the Respondent.

Leach, C. J.—This appeal arises out of a suit filed by the respondent on the original side of this Court for a declaration that a piece of land conveyed to the appellant under a deed dated October 30, 1925 is her property and that she is also entitled to the house built thereon. The respondent's case is that she acquired the site and built the house out of the proceeds of a milk business belonging to her. The appellant claimed that the milk business belonged to him and that the property was his. The suit was tried by Venkataramana Rao, J. who held that the property belonged to both of them in equal shares. Consequently, the learned Judge granted a decree for partition and the delivery to the respondent of her half share with mesne profits The respondent has not appealed, and the main question which the Court is called upon to consider is whether the appellant is entitled to the share allotted to the respondent; in other words whether he is absolute owner of the site and the house. The procedure which was adopted in this case was not in accordance with that contemplated by the Civil P. C., and it is necessary also to consider the effect of this. It will be convenient to deal first with the question relating to the procedure adopted. The plaint was filed on November 18, 1930. The hearing was interrupted after a portion of the plaintiff's evidence had been recorded by Lakshmana Rao, J. and on October 1, 1935, the following order was passed by the learned Judge with the consent of the parties:

"(1) That this suit be and is hereby referred to the Official Referee of this Court for the determination of the following issues, viz,:

(i) Did the plaintiff carry on milk business or any other business of her own and was the defendant entrusted with the management of all or any of the said business as her agent? If so is the defendant liable to render an account;

(ii). Was the said house No. 14 Pallappan Street, Triplicane, Madras, purchased and constructed out of funds belonging to the plaintiff in the name of the defendant benami for the plaintiff? If so is the defendant liable to account to the plaintiff for the mesne profits?

(iii). Is the defendant in possession of all the movable properties mentioned in Sch. "B" to the plaint and do any of them belong to the plaintiff?

2. That the said Official Referee do give his findings on the said issues and submit his report and proceedings thereon to this Court expeditiously.

3. That the evidence recorded herein so, far, shall be treated as evidence before the said Official Referee and the said Official Referee do continue the enquiry from the stage at which it was stopped.

4. And that the further consideration of this suit do stand adjourned until after the receipt of the report of the said Official Referee by this Court."

In accordance with this order the Official Referee recorded the further evidence tendered by the parties and the depositions and exhibits comprise a volume of nearly 200 printed pages. The Official Referee presented his report to the Court on September 2, 1937, and it was considered by Venkataramana Rao, J. on May 12, 1938. I should mention that shortly after the consent order of October 1, 1935, had been passed the respondent applied to Lakshmana Rao, J. to recall the order on the ground that the Official Referee had no jurisdiction to conduct the inquiry into the questions set out therein and that it had been passed without the position being fully realized. The learned Judge, however, refused to recall the order and stated his reasons in these words :

"The suit was referred to the Official Referee by consent and it is this Court that goes finally into all the questions and decides the right of the parties. There is therefore no need to or ground for review and the application is dismissed with costs."

The question relating to the procedure adopted, was raised before Venkataramana Rao, J. who considered that it was unlawful and expressed the opinion that Lakshmana Rao, J. should have recalled the order of reference. Inasmuch as the suit was of long standing and the parties had agreed that the evidence recorded by the Official Referee should be treated as evidence in the trial, the learned Judge decided not to put the case back for trial de novo and gave his judgment on the evidence recorded by the Official Referee, but he did not ignore the Official Referee's report altogether. There can be no doubt that the procedure adopted in this case was not only irregular, but was opposed to the provisions of the Civil P. C., and had no sanction from the rules of practice of the original side of this Court. I entirely agree with the observation of Venkataramana Rao, J., that Lakshmana Rao, J. should have recalled the order of reference when the application was made to him by the respondent. As a matter of fact he ought to have refused to pass the consent order. The questions raised in the issues were entirely within the province of the Judge, and, as Venkataramana Rao, J. has said, the Court had no jurisdiction to refer them to any one for decision unless the parties had agreed to submit their disputes to arbitration. This very question was raised before Kumaraswami Sastri, J. in C. S. No. 661 of 1920 Abdul Wahab v. Rokia Bibi (1), and, with Venkataramana Rao, J., I am in agreement with the following observations which Kumaraswami Sastri, J. made in that case :

"He (the Official Referee) is not a Judge of the Court but only a Commissioner and I think that the adjudication by him of these questions, which under the Code and the Rules, form part of the functions of a Judge would be ultra vires. The Judge referring to the Official Referee questions which have to be tried by himself could not confer jurisdiction on the Official Referee any more than he can confer jurisdiction on a stranger by asking him to decide points in dispute in the case. Questions as to the substantive rights are solely within the province of a Judge and matters of detail, i. e., the working out of those rights either by taking out accounts or effecting a partition or selling properties are under the rules, functions which the Judge may delegate to the Official Referee..... It will be a novel and, in my opinion, a dangerous proposition to hold that the Rules of Practice in English Courts apply en bloc to the Original Side except so far as our own rules modify them."

In a suit of the description of the one now under consideration the Court has no power to adopt the rules of practice in England. Order XXVI, Civil P. C., states when commissions may be issued. They may be issued for the examination of witnesses for the purpose of local investigations, for the purpose of examination of accounts and for the effecting of partition but for no other purposes. Order XXIII, of the rules of the original side states the procedure which should be followed when there is a reference, but they do not purport to enlarge the powers of the Official Referee or authorize the issue of commissions beyond those mentioned in the Civil P. C.

Counsel are agreed, as they were agreed before Venkataramana Rao, J. that the Court shall treat the evidence recorded by the Official Referee as being evidence recorded by the Court and they are content that the rights of the parties shall be decided on what appears in the printed record, but they suggest that the report of the Official Referee should be eliminated. It seems to me that it is open to the Court in the circumstances of this case to adopt this course. I consider that the Court should ignore the report of the Official Referee, and I may say that neither I nor my learned brother has read it. Approval for the suggested course may be obtained from the decision of the Privy Council in Sri Thakur Ramakrishna Muraji v. Ratan Chand (2). In that case an ancestral business of a Mitakshara joint family had been carried on in partnership with another person. The stranger partner retired and thereupon the partnership was dissolved and wound up. The business was then carried on in the same commodities and in the same premises though under a new firm name and with new books. It was alleged that speculative transactions were subsequently entered into and it was contended that the business could not be regarded as a family affair. When the case was before the High Court on appeal a Commissioner was appointed to examine the books and report whether the new business was of a gambling nature. The Privy Council disapproved of this course as this question was one for determination by the Judge alone. As their Lordships were not aware whether the order referring to the Commissioner was made under protest by the appellant-defendant or with his consent, they were not prepared to hold that the report of the Commissioner should be disregarded and in fact took it into consideration along with the other evidence in the case. In the case before us the consent of the respondent to the matter proceeding before the Official Referee was withdrawn and it is for that reason that I consider that the report of the Official Referee should not be considered. As the parties have expressly agreed before us that the evidence recorded by the Official Referee shall be treated as evidence in the case there can be no objection to the Court taking that evidence into consideration, but at the same time I trust that in future similar references will not be made to the Official Referee.

(1) A I R 1921 Mad. 406; 73 Ind. Cas. 903.

Turning now to the facts, the respondent is the wife of one Balasundara Mudaliar whom she married in 1895. In 1919 the appellant married the daughter of the respondent's brother. He had been married before, but his first wife has died. At the time of the appellant's marriage the respondent and her husband were living in her brother's house with her brother and his family. In 1920 the appellant became ill and he went to live in his father-in-law's house. That year his wife and his daughter by his first wife were accidentally drowned. The appellant continued to live in the respondent's brother's house and it is now common ground that improper relations developed between the appellant and the respondent. This was persisted in and resulted in the respondent's husband leaving the house in 1921, since when he has never returned to live with the respondent. The illicit intercourse between the appellant and the respondent continued and eventually they lived openly as man and wife. The site of the house was bought in 1925 and the house was built during the years 1927 and 1928. When it was completed the appellant and the respondent left the respondent's brother's house and went to live in the new house and continued to do so until 1930 when they quarrelled.

The appellant says that he provided the whole of the money for the purchase of the land for the building of the house, but it appears to me to be abundantly clear that he had not sufficient resources of his own to meet anything like the cost of this property. The site was bought for Rs. 1,939-5-4 and over Rs. 10,000 was spent on the building of the house. The appellant was a Police constable and never in his service drew more than Rs. 38 a month. He retired from the Police force in 1924 on a pension of Rs. 11 a month. The evidence discloses that the respondent had means. It is admitted that when the appellant went to live in her brother's house she had two businesses one in dhall and the other in lungis, and it has been proved that she was carrying on a milk business as long ago as 1911. The lungi business was closed in 1922 because of the fall in price of piece-goods and the dhall business was closed in 1924. The reason given for the closing of the dhall business was that the milk business in which the appellant was assisting had so grown and was so profitable that there was no time for the dhall business. The evidence also discloses that the respondent was in the habit of lending money and that she had a post office savings bank account.

I agree with the learned trial Judge that the fact that the land was bought in the name of the appellant is not of very great importance. When it was bought the appellant and the respondent were living openly as man and wife and this no doubt accounts for the fact that the land was taken in the name of the appellant. It is also true that some of the money for the building of the house was borrowed in the appellant's name. It would be far easier for a man, than a woman, to borrow money and as they were living together and were going to live in the new house it was only natural that the appellant should borrow money in his own name. I concur in the finding of the learned trial Judge that the milk business belonged to the respondent and that the house was really bought from the profits of this business. The learned Judge awarded the appellant a half share in the property because he considered that it was "unlikely that the appellant would have retired from service but for some understanding between them that the business should be shared equally between them and that whatever was earned by either must be shared by either."

(2) 53 A 190; 132 Ind. Cas. 613; A I R 1931 P C 136; 58 I A 173; (1931) A L J 458; 53 C L J 390; 33 Bom. L R 988; 35 C W N 841; Ind. Rul. (1931) P C 197, (1931) M W N 733; 34 L W 175; 61 M L J 665 (P C).

In these circumstances the learned Judge considered that there was an agreement of partnership subsisting between them. As I have indicated, this finding has not been challenged. It has been stated at the Bar that the respondent had not the means to pay the court-fee necessary for a cross appeal. That is a question which the Court cannot go into now. There was no appliion for leave to appeal in forma pauperis and the Court can only assume that the respondent acquiesced in this part of the judgment of Venkataramana Rao, J. On the evidence the appellant can clearly not maintain a claim for more than what has been awarded to him. The learned Judge has discussed the evidence in detail and I consider that the reasons which he has given for finding in favour of the respondent to the extent of a half share in the property cannot be seriously challenged. Whether the respondent might have succeeded if a cross appeal had been filed is a question which does not in the circumstances require to be considered. For the reasons indicated I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Krishnaswami Ayyangar, J.—I am in entire agreement with the judgment just pronounced by my Lord I shall however add a few words on the question as to what matters are properly referable for inquiry to the Official Referee. Before the creation of the office of the Official Referee some 25 or 30 years back, the practice on the original side was to entrust inquiries into accounts and such other matters as are referable to a Commissioner under O. XXVI, Civil P. C., to a Commissioner appointed ad hoc by the Court. There were delays in the submission of reports and defects noticed in them which necessitated fresh references. For these and other reasons, it was felt it would be a great advantage to have a permanent officer with the necessary training and experience to enable him to do in a more satisfactory way what was till then being done by a Commissioner. To start with, it was certainly not the idea to delegate to the Official Referee any of the functions of the Court. Neither is there anything in the rules of the original side to warrant the view that there has since been an enlargement in the scope of the functions of the Official Referee. He is to be no more than a permanent Commissioner for the purpose of taking the accounts and making the inquiries contemplated by the Civil P. C. Order XXIII, of the rules of the original side contain the provisions relating to the appointment of a Commissioner, and a definition of the matters which could be left to him for enquiry and report. There is nothing in O XXIV, of the Original Side Rules to suggest that it was the intention to give him an extended jurisdiction. Rule 1 of this Order says that:

"Subject to the rules hereinafter contained, O. XXIII of the rules relating to accounts and enquiries referred to a Commissioner shall, as far as practicable, apply to all proceedings before the Official Referee.

This is a fair indication that the Official Referee is only expected to perform the functions of a Commissioner under the Code and that it was never intended that he should have power to deal with or decide material questions of fact or law on which the decision of the suit itself depends. So far as my knowledge goes questions of this character were rarely, if ever, referred to the Official Referee for decision or report. Such a course might have been taken in a few exceptional instances, but I think that it happened almost always because both sides consented to it and invited the presiding Judge to adopt this procedure. In such cases the inquiry generally went on without demur and the report when made was taken into consideration by the Court. I am not aware that there has been any instance of a reference being made on substantial questions in contest between the parties, without their express consent, or the Referee's report considered valid in spite of objection taken to his jurisdiction to try.

I may also observe that whenever during an inquiry before the Official Referee material questions of fact or law arose it has been the practice ordinarily for the Referee to refer those questions to the Court or ask the parties to take the orders of the Court thereon. Questions of title to property and such other material questions were as a rule dealt with by the Court. I agree that in view of the fact that in the present case the consent had been withdrawn even before the commencement of the inquiry before the Official Referee there is good reason for ignoring the findings of the Referee altogether, though there can be no objection to the evidence recorded by the Official Referee being treated as evidence in the case with the consent of the parties. It is on this footing that we have considered the appeal, learned Counsel on both sides having expressly assented to this course.

N.-S. Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 501 of 1939
September 18, 1940
BOSE, J.

ABDUL AZIZ AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS
versus
Sheikh AMIR AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—NON-APPLICANTS

Limitation—Minor — Suit against— Plaint within time—Subsequently defendant found to be minor—Guardian ad-litem appointed, but beyond limitation —Suit, if barred — Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXII, r. 3 (C. P. Amendment)—Scope and interpretation—Specific Relief Act (I of 1887), s. 9*—Suit under - Each party claiming exclusive possession —Neither claiming joint possession — Court, if can pass decree for exclusive possession,*

Order XXXII, r 3 of Civil P. C., as amended in the Central Provinces contemplates distinctly a suit brought against a certain defendant in which a dispute about minority is raised and in which the Court has to be satisfied about the fact of minority and then on being satisfied it has to appoint a proper person to be guardian. It does not mean that the suit is a nullity until that is done or that no suit can be taken to have been instituted until a guardian has been appointed. The Lim. Act contemplates a suit brought against particular person; it does not matter whether that person is a major or a minor The suit is not instituted against the guardian but against the minor himself and the minor does not become another person simply because he is subsequently described as a major. Consequently the suit, so far as the Lim. Act is concerned, is against the proper person, whether he is described as a major or a minor and therefore is within time if it is within time on the date on which the suit is instituted by the presentation of the plaint. The question of guardianship is a separate matter and relates not to the institution of the suit but to the right of the plaintiff to carry it on against the person who in point of fact is a minor. If no proper guardian is appointed, the suit of course in the result becomes a nullity. But it is a nullity not because it is not instituted in time but because the procedure for continuing the suit against the minor and for obtaining a decree or order against him has not been carried into effect. 29 Ind. Cas. 314 (1), explained.

Where in a suit under s. 9, Specific Relief Act, neither side contends that within the six months preceding the suit either had been in joint possession but each claims to be in exclusive possession, the Court is right in not going into the question of joint possession and in placing that party in exclusive possession which on the facts before it it considers to have been in possession at the date of the dispossession.

It may well be that a joint owner of property is still at the date of suit under s. 9 entitled to the property and would be given possession in a suit probably instituted for that purpose. But nevertheless it is open to one co-owner of property to oust the others and to obtain exclusive possession for himself The title of the others may not be extinguished when this is done, but if that ouster took place more than six months before the institution of the suit under s. 9, then for the purposes of s. 9 that ouster would hold good even though the title of the plaintiff may not be extinguished. Consequently the admission of the defendants which go to the question of title do not oust the jurisdiction of the Court, and where neither side contends that they were in joint possession within six months before the suit is filed, the lower Court is right in placing the plaintiff in exclusive and not in joint possession.

C. R. App. of the decree of the Court of the Third Subordinate Judge. Second Class, Nagpur, dated July 31, 1939.

Messrs. Fida Hussain and N. B. Chandurkar, for the Applicant.

Messrs. A. D. Mande and G. S. Padhye, for the Opposite Party.

Order.—The suit was under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. The lower Court holds that the plaintiff was in p ssession within six months of the suit, that is to say, on January 7, 1938, and that the defendants ousted him and, therefore, has passed an order in the plaintiff's favour. Two questions are raised in revision. The first is whether the suit is within limitation and the second is whether the Court could pass and order placing the plaintiff in exclusive possession without determining whether the parties had been in joint possession and, therefore, entitled to joint possession.

As regards the first point, the matter arises in this way. The cause of action is stated in the application to have arises on January 8, 1938. The suit was filed on February 24, 1938. In the entitling the third defendant was shown as a major. In the course of the proceedings it was objected that he was in point of fact a minor. The plaintiff accepted this without contest and a guardian was appointed on September 5, 1938. It is argued on behalf of the defendants that the suit as against the minor defendant must be taken to have been instituted on September 5, 1938, and that as this makes it more than six months beyond the date of dispossession the suit under s. 9 did not lie. Reliance is placed for this on Payidanna v. Lakshminarasamma (1).

I am not able to agree. Order XXXII, r. 3. of the Civil P. C. as amended locally, states that

"where the defendant is a minor, the Court, on being satisfied of the fact of the minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit of such minor."

This appears to me to contemplate distinctly a suit brought against a certain defendant in which a dispute about minority is raised and in which the Court has to be satisfied about the fact of minority and then on being satisfied it has to appoint a proper person to be guardian. It does not mean that the suit is a nullity until that is done or that no suit can be taken to have been instituted until a guardian has been appointed. It seems to me clear that the Lim. Act contemplates a suit brought against a particular person: it does not matter whether that person is a major or a minor: so long as the suit is brought it is brought against that person. The suit is not instituted against the guardian but against the minor himself and the minor does not become another person simply because he is described as a major. He still is the same person. Consequently the suit, so far as the Lim. Act is concerned, is against the proper person, whether he is described as a major or a minor, and, therefore, is within time if it is within time on the date on which the suit is instituted by the presentation of the plaint. The question of guardianship is a separate matter and relates not to the institution of the suit but to the right of the plaintiff to carry it on against the person who in point of fact is a minor. If no proper guardian is appointed, the suit of course in the result becomes a nullity and that is the decision in Payidanna v. Lakshminarasamma (1). But it is nullity not because it is not instituted in time but because the procedure for continuing the suit against the minor and for obtaining a decree or order against him has not been carried into effect.

The next question is whether the lower Court is right in ordering the property to be placed in the exclusive possession of the plaintiff. The plaint claims that the plaintiff was in exclusive possession and that he was dispossessed. The written statements of the defendants state on the other hand that they and not the plaintiff have been in possession. Therefore, neither side contended that within the six months preceding the suit either had been in joint possession. Each claimed to be in exclusive possession. Consequently the lower Court was right in not going into the question of joint possession and in placing that party in exclusive possession which on the facts before it, it considered to have been in possession at the date of the dispossession.

Reliance is, however, placed by the learned Counsel for the applicant on certain statements in the written statements where the defendants admit that the property is the joint property of the plaintiff and the defendants and on a statement of defendant No. 5 where she admits that they have a joint title. That, however, has nothing to do with the question of possession under s. 9. It may well be that a joint owner of property is still at the date of suit under s. 9 entitled to the property and would be given possession in a suit probably instituted for that purpose. But nevertheless it is open to one co-owner of property to oust the others and to obtain exclusive possession for himself. The title of the others may not be extinguished when this is done, but if that ouster took place more than six months before the institution of the suit under s. 9, then for the purposes of s. 9 that ouster would hold good even though the title of the plaintiff may be extinguished. Consequently the admissions of the defendants which go to the question of title do not oust the jurisdiction of the Court, and as neither side contended that they were in joint possession within six months before the suit was filed, the lower Court was right in placing the plaintiff in exclusive and not in joint possession. The application is dismissed with costs. Counsel's fee Rs. 15.

D. Application dismissed.

(1) 38 M 1076; 29 Ind. Cas. 314; A I R 1916 Mad. 33; 28 M L J 525.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

Appeal No 211 of 1936
May 10, 1940
NASIM ALI AND NARSING RAU, JJ.
SECRETARY OF STATE—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
Syed SADEK REZA—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT

Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (III of 1913), ss. 35, 37, 5 — Cancellation of certificate on ground that it is not duly filed or question whether certificate is duly filed, whether excluded from jurisdiction of Civil Court—Jurisdiction of certificate officer, whether depends upon situation of property in respect of which demand arises or upon place where money is payable or demandable — Murshidabad Estate Administration Act (XXIII of 1933), s. 19 (1)—"Arrears", if covers arrears due before Act came into force.

Per Narsing Rau, J.—Cancellation of certificate on ground that the certificate has not been "duly filed" is not beyond the jurisdiction of the Civil Court under s 35, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act. Similarly under s. 37 the question whether the certificate has been duly filed under the Act is not excluded from the purview of the Civil Court, therefore the Civil Court can go into this question by virtue of the general provision in s. 9, Civil P. C. [p. 812, col. 1.]

Whether certificate officer is a Collector or a Sub-Divisional Officer or some officer appointed by the Collector under s. 3 (3) of the Act, he is a certificate officer of the district and not of any local area in the district; and he exercises jurisdiction in the district as implied in s. 5 and not merely in some local area in the district. The certificate officer referred to in s. 5 is the certificate officer of the place where the public demand is payable; for it is there that it is a demand at all. The jurisdiction of the certificate officer under s. 5 does not therefore depend upon the situation of the property in respect of which the demand arises, but upon the place where the money is demandable or payable. If this place is within the district where the certificate officer holds office, the certificate officer has jurisdiction to receive the requisition and to make a certificate. [p. 812, col. 2; p. 813, col 1.]

The word "arrears" in s. 19 (1), Murshidabad Estate Administration Act, covers "arrears" which became due before the Act came into operation.

A. from the original decree of the Sub-Judge, Murshidabad, dated June 30, 1936.

Mr. Ramaprasad Mookherjee, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Amarendra Nath Bose and Hemendra Kumar Das, for the Respondent.

Nasim Ali, J.—On February 11, 1924, the plaintiff in the present suit obtained from the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad an Ijara settlement of certain properties appertaining to Mahal Taraf Sambalpur within Tauzi No. 210, Parganah Kanagjole in the District of Maldah on an annual rent of Rs. 10,172 for a period of 21 years commencing from Baisak 1330 B. S. to the end of Chaitra 1350. The material terms of this Ijara were: (1) That the rent reserved is to be paid by the lessee kist by kist in the Sadar Kachery of the Nawab Bahadur in Lalbagh in the district of Murshidabad. (2) That during the term of settlement, the lessor would have nothing to do with possession or dispossession of the properties covered by the Ijara and that the lessee will have to pay the fixed annual rent without any objection. (3) That the lessee will have no right to surrender his rights under the Ijara during the fixed term of the Ijara. (4) That if during the term of the present lease the lessor wants to take Khas possession of the Mahals, he shall have to give 15 days notice and from the date of the receipt of the notice the Khas possession of the Mahals will be made over to the lessor.

In the year 1929 the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad instituted a suit for ejecting the plaintiff from the Ijara Mahals. This suit was subsequently converted into a suit for arrears of rent of the Ijara Mahal due up to the end of Chaitra 1337 B. S. In the year 1930, another suit for ejectment was instituted by the Nawab Bahadur against the plaintiff. Both these suits were compromised on April 24, 1931. By this compromise, the Ijara was declared to be valid and binding on the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad for the Ijara period, namely 21 years and the right of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad to take Khas possession of the Mahal during the continuance of the lease by giving 15 days' notice to quit was extinguished. The plaintiff in the present suit executed a handnote for Rs. 22,000 in favour of the Nawab Bahadur at the time of this compromise and both the suits were dismissed in terms of the compromise. On September 21, 1933, the Murshidabad Estate Administration Act (Act XXIII of 1933) came into operation. Mr. K. C. De was appointed manager of the Murshidabad estate under s. 3 of this Act. Thereafter, the manager filed a requisition under s. 5, Public Demands Recovery Act, before the certificate officer of Lalbagh for realization of arrears of rent of the Ijara Mahal for the years 1338, 1339 B. S. and for the six months of 1340 B. S. The certificate officer thereupon filed a certificate on November 21, 1933. Another certificate was filed by the same certificate officer for the arrears of rent of the remaining six months of 13¹0 on May 10, 1934.

On April 30, 1934 the manager cancelled the Ijara settlement under s. 12 of Act XXIII of 1933. The plaintiff appealed to the Board of Revenue against this order of the manager under s. 13 of the Act. On August 16, 1934 the Board of Revenue asked the manager to re-consider the case, to give the plaintiff another trial and to help him to recover the arrears due to him from his tenants. The Board of Revenue, however, observed that if the plaintiff did not pay the arrears after this arrangement by reasonable instalments, vigorous steps should be taken to realise them by certificate, etc. On August 25, 1934 the manager asked the plaintiff to state on what conditions he was willing to continue the lease and what terms he would propose for payment of the arrears due from him. On September 19, 1934, the plaintiff proposed certain terms. The material portion of this proposal is as follows: (1) a responsible officer of the Murshidabad estate is to be deputed at the cost of the estate during the rent realisation season to assist the plaintiff's officer in the realisation of rent from the tenants; (2) the plaintiff would pay sums of money that would be realised from time to time from the tenants either in payments of rents due or in execution of decrees for arrears of rent which had been already obtained by him deducting 25 per cent. thereof for collection expenses of the plaintiff and maintenance cost of himself and his family. On the same day, the manager accepted these terms but stated that the certificate cases would not be withdrawn as there would be no way of recovering arrears if the proposed arrangement failed. The manager added that he would not apply for coercive measure from the certificate officer so long as the arrangement would work. On November 28, 1934, an officer was appointed by the manager in accordance with this arrangement. On March 11, 1935, the Board of Revenue wrote to the lessee that he had paid only Rs. 149 4·0 within the last three months and that unless reasonable amount was paid without further delay, certificates would be executed. On June 29, 1935, the manager reported to the Board of Revenue that the arrangement had failed and asked for permission to execute the certificates against the plaintiff. On July 9, 1935, the Board approved the proposal of the manager. The services of the officer who was appointed in accordance with the arrangement were dispensed with by the manager on August 15, 1935. On October 8, 1935, the plaintiff applied to the Board to postpone all proceedings for execution of the two certificates. This application, however, was refused. On October 25, 1935, the certificate officer of Lalbagh issued an order upon the tenants of the Ijara Mahal prohibiting them from paying any rent to the lessee under r. 18 (1) (a) and (c) of the Rules in Sch. II, Public Demands Recovery Act. On the same day, he ordered that the Ijara Mahal would be sold by public auction.

On January 16, 1936, plaintiff served a notice on the Secretary of State for India in Council represented by the manager of the Murshidabad Estate under s. 80, Civil P. C. The cause of action and the relief claimed as stated in this notice are these: The two certificates obtained by the manager were bad as the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad could not put the plaintiff in possession of some of the Ijara properties and consequently the plaintiff was not liable to pay any rent for the Ijara. The manager had no power to execute the certificates in violation of the contract and adjustment between him and the plaintiff on September 19, 1934. The plaintiff was therefore entitled to get a declaration that the agreement of September 19, 1934 was binding on the Secretary of State for India in Council that the proceedings in execution of the certificate were illegal, void, and ultra vires and that the plaintiff was entitled to get a permanent injunction restraining the Secretary of State for India in Council from taking any steps in execution of those certificates. On April 6, 1936, plaintiff raised the present suit.

The case of the plaintiff so far as it is material for the purposes of the present appeal is this: The Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad failed to deliver possession to the plaintiff of Khord Joyrampur, one of the properties covered by the Ijara. The rent reserved by the Ijara was a lump rent for the entire Ijara Mahal. The plaintiff was therefore, entitled to total suspension of the entire rent from 1338 to 1340 B. S. In spite of the faithful performance of the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant's manager, the plaintiff was arrested in execution of the certificates on July 23, 1935. He was released on July 25. The prohibitory order and the order for sale made by the certificate officer on October 24, 1935 were without jurisdiction as the properties affected by the said orders were outside the district of Murshidabad. The plaintiff is therefore entitled to get, (a) a declaration that the agreement and arrangement of September 19, 1934, are in force and were being performed by the plaintiff and binding on the defendant, (b) a declaration that the issue of certificate as well as execution proceedings started thereunder are void, fraudulent, illegal and without jurisdiction, (c) a perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from taking any steps under the said certificates and from interfering with plaintiff's right and enjoyment of the Ijara Mahal up to the year 1350 B.S.

The Secretary of State for India in Council opposed this suit. His main defences are these: (1) That the suit is barred by s. 34 and s. 37, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, (Ben. Act III of 1913). (2) That at the time when the Ijara lease was executed, the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad was not in possession of Khord Joyrampur and that the plaintiff was aware of this fact at the time when he took the Ijara. (3) That as the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad was out of possession of Khord Joyrampur at the time of the Ijara settlement, the assets of this property were excluded when the rent of the Ijara was settled. (4) That the plaintiff not having based his cause of action on the ground of suspension of rent for non-delivery of possession of Mouza Khord Joyrampur in the notice under s. 80, Civil P. C. is not entitled to raise this question in this suit. (5) That the order of the manager on September 19, 1934 accepting the proposals made by the plaintiff was not an agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant's manager and that even if it was, it was not binding on the defendant as it was not entered into with the previous sanction of the Board of Revenue. (6) That the plaintiff's allegation that he had acted according to the terms of the arrangement between him and the manager is false. (7) That the certificate officer had jurisdiction to issue the prohibitory order restraining the tenants of the Ijara Mahal from paying their rent to the plaintiff. The following issues were framed on the pleadings of the parties before the trial Judge:

"(1) Is the suit barred by ss. 34 and 37, Public Demands Recovery Act?

(2) Was any agreement or arrangement made on September 19, 1934 that the Murshidabad Estate would not take any coercive measures against the plaintiff in the matter of the certificates in question?

(3 Was it an agreement or arrangement or order? Was it illegal and void ab initio? Was it set aside by the Board of Revenue?

(4) Has such agreement or arrangement, if any, ceased to be in force? Is the defendant precluded thereby from executing the certificates in question?

(5) Are the certificates in question as well as the execution proceedings thereunder without jurisdiction, illegal and void?

(6) Is the plaintiff entitled to the declaration asked for?

"(7) Is he entitled to the permanent injunction claimed?"

The trial Judge after considering the evidence in this case recorded the following findings: (1) That the present suit was not hit by ss. 34 and 37, Public Demands Recovery Act. (2) That the arrangement accepted by the manager on September 19, 1934 was not a valid agreement. It was in the nature of a trial and the defendant had the option of not risking it any longer. (3) That the defendant was not precluded by this arrangement from executing the certificates in question. (4) That the certificate officer of Lalbagh Sub-Division of Murshidabad had no jurisdiction to entertain requisitions or file certificates in respect of demands relating to property situated outside the district of Murshidabad and consequently the certificates were invalid. (5) That the plaintiff took lease of the entire Mahal including Khord Joyrampur with the knowledge that this latter Mauza was not in possession of the lessor and that the gross annual assets on the basis of which the rent reserved by the Ijara was calculated did not include the assets of Khord Joyrampur. (6) That the possession of the plaintiff in the Ijara Mahal was not interfered with by the Nawab Bahadur's estate in the years 1338 to 1340 B. S.

On these findings, the learned Subordinate Judge decreed the suit. Hence this appeal by the defendant. From what has been stated above, it is clear that the Subordinate Judge has rejected the grounds on which the plaintiff attacked the two certificates in question in the plaint. He has however declared them to be illegal and void on a ground which was not taken either in the notice under s. 80, Civil P. C., or in the plaint. This ground is that the certificate officer of Lalbagh had no jurisdiction to file the certificate inasmuch as the Ijara Mahal was outside the district of Murshidabad. Under s. 5, Public Demands Recovery Act, when any public demand payable to a person other than the Collector is due, such person may send to the certificate officer a written requisition in the prescribed form. The form prescribed shows that the person who makes the requisition is to state the name of the certificate debtor, the address of the certificate debtor, the amount of public demand for which the requisition is made and the nature of the public demand for which the requisition is made. Section 5 evidently contemplates that the demand must be a public demand within the meaning of the Public Demands Recovery Act and must be due to that person. The manager of the Murshidabad Estate appointed under s. 3, Murshidadad Estate Administration Act, is entitled under s. 6 of the Act to receive and recover all rents, issues and profits due in respect of the immovable properties of the estate. Section 6 therefore gives power to the manager to realise the arrears of rent as well. The arrears of rent for the Ijara therefore were due to the manager. Under s. 19 (1) of the Act, the manager shall have for the purpose of realising and recovering the rents, issues and profits of the immovable properties of the estate, the same powers as the Nawab Bahadur would have had for such purpose had the Secretary of State not entered into the said properties and all arrears of rent and all demands recoverable as rent, and, all interest due on such arrears or demands shall together with all costs incurred for realising the same be recoverable as public demands.

It was contended on behalf of the plaintiff-respondent that the word 'Arrears' in s. 19 (1) contemplates 'arrears' which would become due after the Act come into operation. I am unable to accept this interpretation. Section 6 of the Act gives right to the manager to realise arrears of rent as well. After the Secretary of State for India in Council entered into possession in pursuance of the Act, the Nawab Bahadur had no right to realise the arrears. Section 19 (1) lays down the procedure which the manager can adopt for realising the current as well as the arrears of rent. In addition to the ordinary procedure, viz, by suit in the Civil Court, the manager can adopt the summary procedure under the Public Demands Recovery Act. The arrears of rent for which the certificates were filed were therefore due to the manager within the meaning of s. 5, Public Demands Recovery Act. The next question is before which certificate officer the requisition is to be made. The Act itself does not give any express indication as regards the matter. But, on general principles, the certificate officer within whose jurisdiction the cause of action arises will have jurisdiction to entertain the requisition. For a suit in the Civil Court the cause of action for such a suit is to be, deemed under s. 144, Ben. Ten. Act, to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for possession of tenure or holding in connexion with which the suit is brought. Admittedly s. 144, Ben. Ten. Act, is no bar. The certificate officer of Lalbagh would therefore have jurisdiction to entertain the requisition and to file the certificates, if the cause of action for filing such certificates arose within Lalbagh From the Ijara lease as has already been stated, it is clear that the Ijara rent was payable by the lessee (certificate-debtor) at the Sadar Kachery of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad in Lalbagh. The manager was therefore entitled to demand payment in Lalbagh and the debt not having been paid in Lalbagh, the manager's cause of action for making the requisition under s. 5 arose within the jurisdiction of the Lalbagh certificate officer.

Our attention was not drawn to any statutory bar which would deprive the certificate officer of Lalbagh of his jurisdiction to entertain requisitions for realizations of public demands payable within Lalbagh sub-division. If the money is payable to the Collector of a District under s. 4, the certificate officer of that District will have jurisdiction to file the certificate. The jurisdiction of a certificate officer under the Public Demands Recovery Act depends upon the place where the public demand is payable. I therefore hold that the certificate officer of Lalbagh had jurisdiction to file the certificates in question. The learned Advocate for the plaintiff-respondent made an attempt to support the decree of the trial Judge on the following grounds: (1) That the certificates were void as plaintiff was not at all liable for the rents of the Ijara Mahal for the years 1338, 1339 and 1340 B. C., as the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad did not put him in possession of one of the Ijara properties, namely, Khord Joyrampur. (2) That the possession of the plaintiff was substantially interfered with by the manager of the Murshidabad Estate during this period.

Admittedly, the plaintiff did not obtain possession of Khord Joyrampur. The evidence in this case shows that before the Ijara the Nawab Bahadur himself was not in possession of this property and the plaintiff was aware of this fact. The rent reserved by the Ijara was assessed on the gross assets of the Ijara properties after making certain deductions. The evidence in this case shows that in calculating the assets of the entire Ijara properties the assets of Khord Joyrampur were not taken into consideration. The plaintiff is not therefore entitled to claim either suspension of rent or abatement of rent. As regards the complaint of the plaintiff that his possession was interfered with during the period in question, namely, 1338 to 1340 B. S., it appears that no such complaint was made either in the notice under s. 80 or in the plaint itself. There is no satisfactory evidence also in this case to show that the plaintiff's possession during this period was interfered with by the defendant's officers. For the reasons given above, the plaintiff's prayer for a declaration that the two certificates in question were illegal and void must be rejected. As regards the plaintiff's claim for declaration that the proceedings in execution of the two certificates were illegal, the plaintiff's case is, as has already been stated, that there was an adjustment of the certificate debts by agreement between the plaintiff and the manager of the defendant on September 19, 1934 and that in view of this adjustment defendant had no right to execute the certificates so long as the plaintiff was performing and was willing to perform his part of the contract.

The learned Subordinate Judge has found that there has been no contract but only an arrangement in the nature of a trial. From the evidence in this case, I am not prepared to say that the Subordinate Judge was wrong. Assuming however that there was any such contract, it cannot be binding on the defendant as under s. 21, Murshidabad Estate Administration Act, the manager cannot enter into any such contract without obtaining the previous sanction of the Board of Revenue. The evidence in this case does not show that previous sanction of the Board of Revenue was taken by the manager before he accepted the proposals of the plaintiff. The Board of Revenue while disposing of the plaintiff's appeal simply asked the manager to help the plaintiff to recover his arrears and to give him another trial. But the subsequent arrangement proposed by the plaintiff and accepted by the manager was never sanctioned by the Board of Revenue. Again under s. 37, Public Demands Recovery Act, every question arising between the certificate-holder and the certificate debtor relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a certificate is to be determined by the certificate officer and not by a suit. If the arrangement between the manager and the plaintiff amounted to an adjustment of the certificate-debt, such question is to be determined by the certificate officer and not by the Civil Court in a suit. The agreement pleaded by the plaintiff therefore cannot operate as a bar to the execution of the certificates by the certificate officer.

It was contended on behalf of the plaintiff-respondent that the order of the certificate officer prohibiting the tenants of the Ijara Mahal from paying their rents to the plaintiff and the order for sale of the Ijara properties were without jurisdiction as the properties affected by these two orders were outside the District of Murshidabad. It appears from s. 8 (b), Punjab Demands Recovery Act, that after the service of notice of any certificate under s. 7, upon the certificate-debtor, the certificate-debt becomes a charge upon the immovable property of the certificate-debtor wherever situated. Rule 23 of Sch. II of the Public Demands Recovery Act lays down that where the properties are immovable, no attachment need be made before the sale. No prohibitory order issued by the certificate officer in this case was the attachment of certain debts due to the certificate-debtor and there is nothing to show why the debts outside the jurisdiction of the attaching Court cannot be attached by a prohibitory order. Further, these are matters which relate to the execution of the certificates and are to be determined by the certificate officer under s. 37, Public Demands Recovery Act. If the plaintiff's contention is correct, the certificate officer would have jurisdiction to set aside these proceedings. Sufficient ground for perpetual injunction has not therefore been made out. For the reasons given above, I allow this appeal and dismiss the cross-objection. The suit is dismissed. The defendant appellant will get his full costs in the trial Court and six gold mohurs as hearing fee in this Court with half of the other costs incurred in this Court.

Narsing Rau, J.—I agree that this appeal should be allowed. The main issue in the appeal is whether the certificates were filed or made without jurisdiction. This was Issue No. 5 raised before the Subordinate Judge. A preliminary question connected with this issue is whether it can be raised at all in the Civil Court. Section 35, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, is undoubtedly no bar, for its opening words are, 'no certificate duly filed under this Act shall be cancelled by a Civil Court except etc.', so that cancellation on the ground that the certificate has not been "duly filed" is not beyond the jurisdiction of the Civil Court under this section. Section 37 appears at first sight to be more comprehensive, because, it states that except as otherwise expressly provided in the Act every question arising between the certificate-holder and the certificate-debtor or their representatives relating to the making, execution, discharge or satisfaction of a certificate duly filed under the Act, etc., shall be determined not by suit but by order of the certificate officer before whom such question arises. Although the section thus enacts a general bar extending to all questions relating to the making of certificates, it immediately qualifies the effect by using the words "duly filed under the Act", so that once again, the question whether the certificate has been duly filed under the Act is not excluded from the purview of the Civil Court. I am, therefore, of opinion that the Civil Court can go into this question by virtue of the general provision in s. 9 Civil P. C.

The grounds upon which the learned Subordinate Judge has held in favour of the plaintiff upon this issue are: (a) that the jurisdiction of the Sub-Divisional Officer, Lalbagh who made the first certificate and of the special certificate officer who made the second certificate were both confined to the sub-division of Lalbagh in the District of Murshidabad, and (b) that Mahal Sambalpur being partly in the District of Malda and partly in the District of Purnea, neither of these officers had territorial jurisdiction to entertain a requisition for, or to file, a certificate in respect of demands relating to the Mahal. As to ground (a), I am inclined to think although the point is not very material in the present case, that the jurisdiction of each of the officers extended to the entire District of Murshidabad and was not limited to Lalbagh sub division. The provisions of the Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, are not as explicit on this point as they might have been; but the position seems to be reasonably plain from the terms of s. 15 and from the headings of Forms Nos. 1 and 2 in the Appendix to the Act, which it may be noted, is part of r. 84, in Sch. II, which, in its turn, has effect as if enacted in the body of the Act by virtue of s. 38. Section 15, provides that where a revenue-paying estate or any share therein is liable to sale in execution of a certificate, such sale may be held either, (a) by the certificate officer exercising jurisdiction in the District to the revenue-roll of which the estate or share appertains, or (b) by the certificate officer exercising jurisdiction in the District in which such estate or share is situated.

The Forms 1 and 2 in the Appendix are headed respectively "Filed in the office of the certificate officer of (name of District)" and "To the certificate officer of the District of....." It seems reasonably clear from these indications that whether certificate officer is a Collector or a Sub-Divisional Officer or some officer appointed by the Collector under s. 3 (3) of the Act, he is a certificate officer of the district (as stated in the Forms) and not of any local area in the district; and he exercises jurisdiction in the district as implied in s. 15 and not merely in some local area in the district. This, however, does not solve the real problem. To appreciate the real difficulty in this case, we must turn to the provisions of s. 5, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, sub-s. (1) of which enacts that when any public demand payable to any person other than the Collector is due, such person may send to the certificate officer a written requisition in the prescribed form. This certificate officer may thereupon make a certificate under s. 6.

Let us take the extreme case where the person (other than the Collector to whom the public demand is to be paid resides in district A; the person from whom it is due resides in district B and most of his property is in district C; the payment is due to be made in district D and it is on account of property situate in district E. Which of these districts is the one whose certificate officer has jurisdiction to make the necessary certificate? It cannot be that unless all these districts are identical, the provisions of the Act are inapplicable; for s. 12, makes specific provisions for transfer of certificates for execution form one certificate officer to another, a provision which would be wholly unnecessary if all the districts were identical. How then is the jurisdiction to be determined if all the districts are not identical? The only reasonable interpretation of s. 5 seems to me to be that the certificate officer referred to therein is the certificate officer of the place where the public demand is payable; for it is there that it is a demand at all. The jurisdiction of the certificate officer under s 5 does not therefore depend upon the situation of the property in respect of which the demand arises, but upon the place where the money is demandable or payable. If this place is within the district where the certificate officer holds office, the certificate officer has jurisdiction to receive the requisition and to make a certificate. In this connection, it is relevant to refer to the provisions of the Revenue Recovery Act, 1890 (Central Act I of 1890), which is a statute still in force throughout British India and is closely allied to the Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913. Sections 3 5, Revenue Recovery Act, 1890, run :

"3. (1) Where an arrear of land revenue, or a sum recoverable as an arrear of land revenue, is payable to a Collector by a defaulter being or having property in a district other than that in which the arrear accrued or the sum is payable, the Collector may send to the Collector of that other district a certificate in the form as nearly as may be of the schedule stating, (a) the name of the defaulter and such other particulars as may be necessary for his identification, and (b) the amount payable by him and the account on which it is due.

(2) The certificate shall be signed by the Collector making it or by any officer to whom such Collector may, by order in writing, delegate this duty, and, save as otherwise provided by this Act, shall be conclusive proof of the matters therein stated.

(3) The Collector of the other district shall, on receiving the certificate, proceed to recover the amount stated therein as if it were an arrear of land revenue which had accrued in his own district.

... ...

(5) Where any sum is recoverable as an arrear of land revenue by any public officer other than a Collector or by any local authority, the Collector of the district in which the office of that officer or authority, is situate shall, on the request of the officer or authority, proceed to recover the sum as if it were an arrear of land revenue which has accrued in his own district, and may send a certificate of the amount to be recovered to the Collector of another district under the foregoing provisions of this Act, as if the sum were payable to himself,"

It will be seen from s. 5 that in the case of sums due to officers other than the Collector, it is the Collector of the district in which the office of that officer is situate who can make the certificate; in other words, it is the Collector of the district in which the sums are payable who has jurisdiction to receive the requisition for, and to make, the necessary certificate. The Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, is in force throughout Bengal, but not outside; if there is a public demand due in Bengal from a defaulter who resides or has property outside Bengal, the assistance of ss. 3 and 5, Revenue Recovery Act, 1890, (which is a Central Act in force throughout British India) may have to be invoked. The two Acts are in pari materia, though differing in local extent. In the present instance it is clear that the Ijara rent was payable under the terms of the Ijara lease at the Sardar Mahalat Kutchery of the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad which is within the Lalbagh sub-divison of the Murshidabad district. Therefore the Sub-Divisional Officer of Lalbagh and the special certificate officer had jurisdiction to make the certificates in question. What territorial limitations there may be on their powers in execution is a different question upon which it is not necessary to express any opinion in the present case. On this issue, therefore, I think the Subordinate Judge's finding cannot be upheld.

The other points raised in the appeal can be disposed of briefly. It has been contended on behalf of the respondent that the certificates ought to be cancelled under s. 35 (1) b), Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, because there was no liability to pay the Ijara rent and there was not this liability, because (i) he was not given possession of Mouza Khord Joyrampur although the Mouza was included within his lease, and (ii) his possession of the Mahal as a whole was disturbed by the lessor. As to (i), the Subordinate Judge's finding is that the plaintiff took the lease including the Mouza with the knowledge that the Mouza was not in the possession of the lessor and that possession could not be delivered to him in respect of it. Indeed in para. 5 of the notice served on the defendant under s. 80, Civil P. C., the plaintiff admits that he could not obtain possession of this Mouza from the date of the lease because the Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad was out of possession at that time. As to ground (ii), there is no satisfactory evidence and hardly any allegation that there was any disturbance of such possession during the period covered by the certificate. Some sort of disturbance has been alleged in connection with certain suits of 1929 and 1930 instituted by the Nawab Bahadur but the suits ended in a petition of compromise filed in Court on April 24, 1931. The certificates are for the Bengali years 1338-40, that is to say, for the three years beginning from about the middle of April 1931. The position after the compromise has been set out by the plaintiff himself in para. 8 of the plaint in the following terms :

"Although all opposition to the actual possession of the Ijara Mahal was withdrawn by the said Nawab Bahadur in pursuance of the said compromise decree yet he failed to give possession of the Mahal Khord Joyrampur as comprised in the said Ijara."

Thus, the plaintiff's grievance after the compromise was confined to the Nawab Bahadur's failure to give him possession of Joyrampur Mouza, a point which I have already dealt with. The next disturbance of possession alleged was after April 30, 1934 the date on which the manager cancelled the lease under s. 12, Murshidabad Estate Administration Act of 1933. But this was after the period covered by the certificates. The net result on this branch of the case, is that the plaintiff was in undisturbed possession of the Mahal during the relevant period except as regards Mauza Khord Joyrampur and so far as this Mouza was concerned, the plaintiff took the lease with full knowledge that his lessor could not give him possession. Therefore the plaintiff was liable in full for the amounts claimed in the certificates and the certificates cannot be cancelled or modified under s. 35, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act. Whether execution of the certificates was or was not barred by reason of the manager's decision of September 19, 1934 and whether particular orders passed in executions were or were not bad are all questions relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the certificates. As such, they are not questions, which can be raised in this suit, s. 37, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, being an express bar. No fraud has been proved in the present case and I have already found that the certificates were duly filed under the Act.

Finally, it was sought to be argued on behalf of the respondent that the terms "arrears of rent" in s. 19, Murshidabad Estate Administration Act, 1933, must be held to mean rent which falls due after the commencement of the Act (September 21, 1933), and remains in arrear and that the terms does not include rent which fell due before the Act came into force. If this interpretation of the term "arrears of rent" is adopted in s. 19 then, on the same principle, a similar interpretation will have to be placed on the term "rent" which occurs both in s. 19 and s. 6 of the Act, "rent" being construed as rent falling due after the commencement of the Act. The result would be that there would be no provision in the Act enabling the manager to recover at all, whether by suit or by certificate procedure, any rent which has remained due to the estate since before the commencement of the Act. I do not think that the Legislature intended any such limited interpretation of the term "arrears of rent." In the result, I agree that the appeal must be allowed with costs as directed in the judgment just delivered by my learned brother.

D. Appeal allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Referred Trial No. 25 and Criminal Appeal No. 121 of 1940
April 1, 1940

BURN AND LAKSHMANA RAO, JJ.

In re ABDUL BASHA SAHIB—

ACCUSED

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 27 and 30—Only those portions of information given by accused which relate to facts discovered thereby are admissible—Statement of accused involving other accused but not relating to aforesaid facts — Admissibility of statement against other accused—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 300, 201—First accused found guilty—Accused No. 2 meeting first accused on evening of day of murder and knowing where certain articles belonging to deceased which she carried with her on the evening of murder were to be found—Facts, if sufficient to warrant conviction of accused No. 2 either under s 300 or s. 201.

It is necessary to observe strictly the provisions of s. 27, Evi. Act, by which the only portions of the information given by accused which are admissible are those which relate distinctly to the facts discovered thereby. Hence, statements by an accused which do not relate to aforesaid facts but involve other accused are inadmissible under s. 27 against the latter.

Where an accused is found guilty of the offence of murder, the facts that 2nd accused met the first on the evening of the date of murder and knew the place where certain articles belonging to the deceased which she had carried with her on that fateful evening were to be found, lead to grave suspicion against accused No. 2 but are not sufficient to warrant his conviction either for murder or for intentional concealment of evidence.

R. T. and A. referred by the Court of the Session, Chingleput Division, dated January 27, 1940.

Mr. R Narasimham, for the Accused.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Crown.

Burn, J.—On the morning of October 13, 1939, an Adi Dravida named Mandan (P. W. No. 9) who lives in Poonamallee found a corpse floating in a well called Mangadu Mudaliar's well. He saw a crowd of people searching in a neighbouring well and he told them what he had seen. Amongst that crowd was Mahadeva Chettiar (P W. No. 8). He and the other people with him were looking for his mother Kanniammal who had left home the previous evening at abont 6-30 to deliver some oil at the house of one Abdul Wahab Sahib and had not returned. P. W. No. 8 had reported the disappearance of his mother at the Police Station in Poonamallee at 1-10 A. M. on the 13th (vide Ex. F) and had requested the Police to make enquiries about her disappearance. He mentioned there that his mother was in the habit of wearing valuable jewels consisting a gold chain made out of twenty sovereigns, gold bangles and Kammals set with red stones. P. W. No. 8 on hearing what P. W. No. 9 had discovered, went to the well of Madgadu Mudaliar and saw that the corpse in the well was the corpse of his mother. He therefore went again to the Police Station at 7 A. M. and reported this fact. The Police had the body lifted out of the well and held an inquest which showed that the woman had been brutally murdered. No jewels were found upon the body except a nose screw. After the inquest the body was sent to the doctor in charge of the Poonamallee hospital and on the afternoon of October 13, he made a post mortem examination. He found that the woman's lower jaw had been fractured, that there was a contused wound on her face, abrasions on her face and neck, that the lobes of both ears had been torn through and that seven ribs on either side of the chest had been fractured. All these injuries had been inflicted before death and were the cause of death. There were no signs of drowning.

The two appellants were tried by the learned Sessions Judge of Chingleput for the murder of Kanniammal. The unanimous opinion of the assessors was that accused No. 1 was guilty of murder and that accused No. 2 was guilty of an offence under s. 201, I P. C. The learned Sessions Judge agreed with the assessors and convicted accused No. 1 of murder and sentenced him to death. He convicted accused No. 2 under s. 201, I. P. C. and sentenced him to three years' rigorous imprisonment. Accused No. 1 is the brother-in-law of Abdul Wahab Sahib, and the evidence of P. Ws. Nos. 4 and 5, the granddaughter and grandson of the deceased was that on the evening of October 12, accused No 1 came to their house to tell their grandmother Kanniammal that oil was required at the house of Abdul Wahab. Both these witnesses say that their grandmother picked up the vessel containing oil and the other implements of her trade and went off to deliver oil as requested. The Police in their investigation found that she had actually delivered oil at the house of Abdul Wahab that evening. A dhobi (P. W. No. 6) said that he had seen the deceased going in the direction of Abdul Wahab's house followed by both the accused. Narasamma (P. W. No. 7) who lives on the way between the house of the deceased and the house of Abdul Wahab also said that she had seen the deceased going in the direction of Abdul Wahab's house followed by the two accused.

The most important evidence is connected with the discovery of Kanniammal's gold chain, gold bangles and ear ornaments. Accused No. 1 was arrested after the inquest and on the morning of October 14, he made a confession to the Circle Inspector P. W. No. 14. The portions of this confession admissible under s. 27, Evi. Act, relate to M Os Nos 1, 6, 7 and 8. He alleged that Kanniammal had been beaten with a brick by accused No. 2 and offered to show the place where the murder had taken place. He showed in the backyard of Abdul Wahab's house a piece of brick M. O. No. 1 upon which stains of blood were found. These stains were afterwards proved to be stains of human blood. Accused No. 1 further said that after Kanniammal had been murdered he and accused No. 2 had robbed her of her bangles, Kammals and chain and had concealed them in a place which he offered to show. He took the Police Inspector and Sub-Inspector and three other witnesses P. Ws. Nos. 11 and 12 to a piece of waste ground in front of the Dharmaraja Koil and there dug up a spot which he had marked. He produced a piece of rag M. O. No. 19 which when untied was found to contain a gold chain necklace, a pair of gold bangles a and a pair of Kammals M. Os. Nos. 6, 8 and 7. These have been identified as the jewels of Kanniammal which she was in the habit of wearing and which she was wearing on the evening of October 12, when she went out. Moreover, on the Kammals the Chemical Examiner found blood though the stains were so far disintegrated by the time the Kammals reached the Imperial Serologist that it was not possible to say for certain that the blood was human blood.

Accused No. 2 was arrested on October 15, after the confession made by accused No. 1 in which he was involved. He is then said to have made a statement which led to the discovery of the oil vessel, the funnel, the ollock measure and the ladle that Kanniammal was in the habit of using. These are M. Os. Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 and they were found in consequence of information given by accused No. 2 in two ruined wells about half a mile away from the well in which Kanniammal's corpse was found. Some evidence also was let in about some articles of clothing which it was said had been left by accused No. 1 in the house of his brother Ismail. Blood was found on one of these garments but this item of evidence cannot be taken into consideration against accused No. 1 because no one has been examined as a witness to prove that they were left in the house of Ismail by accused No. 1.

Both the accused denied that they had anything to do with the murder. Accused No. 2 pleaded alibi and examined eight witnesses in support of his plea. Accused No. 1 alleged that on the evening of the 12th he had been engaged in his shop until 8-30 or 8-45 P. M. and that after that had gone home and gone to bed. He said that the Chettis, namely the relations of Kanniammal, had been to his house during the night to enquire about her and that he had joined them in the search. He did not examine any witnesses to prove that he was engaged in his shop till 8-30, and when P. W. No. 8 was in the witness box no suggestion was put to him that accused No. 1 had joined in the search. The alibi of accused No. 1 was therefore clearly not established. The alibi of accused No. 2 need not be discussed in detail since we are of opinion that he must be acquitted on the evidence adduced for the prosecution.

Learned Counsel for appellant No. 1 has contended that the evidence of the witnesses who say they saw accused No. 1 come to fetch Kanniammal on the evening of October 12, is unreliable, and that the confession said to have been made by accused No. 1 to the Police is admissible in evidence. We can find no reason whatever for rejecting the evidence of P. Ws. Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7. No facts were elicited from them in cross-examination from which it could be inferred that they had any reason to give false evidence against either of the accused. Narasammal P. W. No. 7 was mentioned by P. W. No. 8 in his first complaint to the Police Ex. F which was made at 1-10 A. M. several hours before the corpse of Kanniammal was found. With regard to the statement made by accused No. 1 to the Police learned Counsel's argument is based upon an assumption that before accused No. 1 made any statement to the Inspector on the morning of October 14, he had already disclosed to the Police what he knew. This argument is an attempt to apply the principle of decisions recently given to the effect that if the Police got incriminating information from an accused person and then called upon him to repeat that information in the presence of witnesses, the statements made in the presence of witnesses would not be admissible under s. 27, Evi. Act. In the present case, however, there is no foundation for that argument because the Inspector has said quite clearly that the information given by accused No 1 which led to the discovery of the jewels was disclosed to him only on the morning of the 14th in the presence of the Village Munsif P. W. No. 10 and two other witnesses P. Ws. Nos. 11 and 12. We cannot find any reason to suspect the Inspector of telling falsehood in this matter. The jewels undoubtedly belonged to the deceased woman; she was wearing them when she went out to her death; the ear-rings had blood on them; they were found in consequence of what accused No. 1 said. Accused No. 1's statement, so far as it relates to the discovery of these jewels, is therefore admissible under s. 27, Evi. Act. There can be no doubt that accused No. 1 is guilty and has been properly convicted of the murder of Kanniammal. We confirm his conviction for murder and the sentence of death passed upon him by the learned Sessions Judge.

The case of accused No. 2 is very different. He did not make any confession involving him in the murder. All that he said was that he had met accused No. 1 at about 7-30 on the night of October 12, and that accused No. 1 had given him M. Os. Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 and had asked him to throw them away in any well tha might be on his path. The learned Sessions Judge considers that accused No. 2 must have known that Kanniammal had been murdered and must have disposed of these articles in order to screen accused No. 1 from punishment. It cannot be said that this conclusion follows from the mere fact of accused No. 2 complying with the request made by accused No. 1. Accused No. 2 can only be convicted if the statement of accused No. 1 is taken into consideration as against him. The learned Public Prosecutor suggested that this could be done under s. 30, Evi. Act. One great difficulty in accepting this contention is that if the statement of accused No. 1 is taken into consideration as against accused No. 2 and if it is believed, accused No. 2 also should be convicted for the murder of Kanniammal. In fact, if accused No. 1 was telling the truth to the Police, it was accused No. 2 who inflicted on Kanniammal the injuries that caused her death. Accused No. 1 says that it was accused No. 2 who sat upon the old woman's chest and beat her on face and neck with a brick. We are of opinion that it is not possible to take the statement of accused No. 1 into consideration as against accused No. 2. It is necessary to observe strictly the provisions of s. 27 by which the only portions of the information given by accused No. 1 which are admissible are those which relate distinctly to the fact discovered thereby. The facts discovered thereby, as we have already said, are the jewels of the murdered woman and the bloodstained brick (M. O. No. 1) which was used to beat her about the face. It cannot be said that statements made by accused No. 1 involving accused No. 2 relate in any way to these facts. All that is established as against accused No. 2 therefore is that he met accused No. 1 on the evening of October 12, and that he knew where M. Os. Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 were to be found. These facts lead to grave suspicion against accused No. 2 but they are not sufficient to warrant his conviction either for murder or for intentional concealment of evidence. Accused No. 2 must therefore be acquitted. We set aside his conviction under s. 201, I. P. C. and the sentence of three years' rigorous imprisonment and direct that he be set at liberty forthwith.

N.-S. Order accordingly.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Criminal Revision Application No. 579 of 1940

November 8, 1940

HAMILTON, J.

RAM DIHAL—APPLICANT

versus

BADRI—OPPOSITE PARTY

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 517, 520—Order of acquittal and order under s 517 passed by First Class Magistrate—Appeal—Forum.

An appeal from an order of acquittal and an order under s. 517, Criminal P. C., for disposal of property regarding which the offence had been committed, passed by a First Class Magistrate, lies to the Sessions Judge. Cr. Revn. No 695 of 1932, followed, 81 Ind. Cas. 992 (1), held Overruled.

Cr. R. App. from an order of the Sessions Judge, Mirzapur, dated July 6, 1940.

Messrs. Kumuda Prasad and S. N. Verma, for the Applicant.

Mr. B. B. Chanara, for the Opposite Party.

The Deputy Govt. Advocate, for the Crown.

Order.—This is an application in revision by one Ram Dihal against the order of the Sessions Judge, Mirzapur, who maintained the order of a Magistrate, first class, directing that a certain lorry be handed over to Badri opposite party. This lorry was apparently purchased in Calcutta and Badri was the person who went there to effect the purchase and to take delivery of the lorry. He purchased it in his name but had it registered in the name of Bishnath as owner, he himself being entered as transferee. Bishnath remonstrated with the result that Bishnath himself was entered as transferee, so that ostensibly the owner of the lorry was Bishnath. This last entry was made on June 20, 1936. On August 25, 1938, Bishnath sold the lorry to the present applicant Ram Dihal and Ram Dihal was accordingly entered as the owner on the registration certificate on August 31, 1939; so Ram Dihal was the ostensible owner of the lorry. In 1939 Badri brought a suit against Bishnath for dissolution of partnership and damages and it was decreed as regards the prayer for dissolution of partnership but dismissed as regards damages. On September 30, 1939 Ram Dihal had gone with his family in the lorry to bathe and while the party were bathing three brothers of Badri with their servant came and took away the lorry and locked it in the garage of Badri. A criminal case was brought against those persons and it was after decision of that case that this lorry which had been taken over by the Police was ordered to be returned to Badri. Ram Dihal who was complainant in that case appealed against the order of the original Court that the lorry be handed over to Badri.

The learned Sessions Judge held on the basis of Debi Ram v. Emperor (1), that no appeal lay in this case for although there were decisions of the Bombay High Court taking a different view he felt himself bound to follow the decision of this Court. He then stated that an appeal can be treated as an application for revision, and had he not been satisfied that the order of the Court below was correct on the facts he would have treated it as a revision and referred the matter to this Court As it stands however he held that an appeal had been brought before him, that he saw no reason to treat it as a revision and the appeal could not be maintained and was accordingly dismissed. Since that decision in Debi Ram v. Emperor (1), which was a single Judge decision, the same question came up before a learned Single Judge of this Court in Cr. Revn. No. 695 of 1932 Nabi ban Tauaf v. Shyam Lal and as he was doubtful as to the correctness of that earlier decision, reviewing the authorities, he directed that the case be laid before a Bench of two Judges. This was done and it was held that an appeal lies. The learned Juges who composed that Bench held that on a plain reading of s 520 Criminal P. C, it would appear that any Court of Appeal, confirmation, reference or revision may direct any order under s. 517 passed by a Court subordinate thereto to be stayed and that Court of Appeal may modify, alter or annul such order. The case before the Bench was one where an Assistant Sessions Judge had passed an order of acquittal and under s. 517, Criminal P. C., had passed an order for disposal of property regarding which an offence had been committed. The learned Judges of the Bench went on to say that an Assistant Sessions Judge was subordinate to the Sessions Judge and appeals from the decisions of an Assistant Sessions Judge ordinarily lay to the Sessions Judge. In the present case the original order was passed by a first class Magistrate who acquitted the accused. The appeal from the Court of a first class Magistrate is to the Sessions Judge. The learned Sessions Judge through no fault of his followed a Single Judge's decision of this Court which was directly overruled after consideration by a Bench of this Court and of course the Bench decision must prevail. In the circumstances therefore I set aside the order of the learned Sessions Judge refusing to hear the appeal on the ground that no appeal lies and order him to hear the appeal and to decide it on the merits.

(1) A I R 1924 All. 675; 81 Ind. Cas. 992; 25 Cr. L J 1168; 46 A 623; 22 A L J 505; L R 5 A 91 Cr.

S. Order set aside.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Appeal No. 46 of 1939

August 22, 1940

LEACH, C. J. AND HORWILL, J.

R. C. BHIDE—APPELLANT

versus

TRAVANCORE NATIONAL AND QUILON BANK LTD., (IN LIQUIDATION) —RESPONDENT

Companies Act (VII of 1913), ss. 230-A, 229—Winding-up of insolvent company—General law of insolvency, if applies—Application by customer of Bank after passing of compulsory winding up order, for rescinding contract with Bank and for damages—Applicant, if entitled to be heard.

The general law of insolvency applies to the winding-up of an insolvent company. A creditor in insolvency cannot in ordinary circumstances bring a suit against the Official Assignee. If he claims to be a crediter he must file a proof of his debt with the Official Assignee. If his claim is rejected, then he has the right of asking the Judge sitting in insolvency to reverse the Official Assignee's decision. Hence a customer of a Bank who has filed an application under s. 230-A, Companies Act, for an order rescinding the contract with the Bank and awarding him damages, subsequent to an order of compulsory winding-up of the Bank is passed, is entitled to be heard. If the Court then came to the conclusion that the contract had already been rescinded it would have no power to pass an order on the application and the appellant would have to be relegated to the ordinary procedure provided by the Act for proving any debt in the winding-up The applicant cannot be relegated to the procedure of filing a suit unless he is heard.

A. from judgment and order of Venkataramana Rao, J., datad September 1, 1939.

Mr. C. V. Nilakantan, for the Appellant.

Messrs. King and Partridge, for the Respondents.

Leach, C. J.—The appellant claims to be a creditor of the Travancore National and Quilon Bank Ltd.. which is now in liquidation under an order passed by this Court for its compulsory winding up. In February 1938 the appellant entered into an agreement with the Bank under which the Bank was to allow him on certain conditions to overdraw his account upto the sum of Rs. 75,000 for the purpose of financing a contract which he had entered into with the Travancore Govt. The Bank suspended payment on June 20, 1938. The petition for winding-up was filed on June 21, 1938, and the order for compulsory winding-up was passed on September 4, 1938. On the date of suspension of payment by the Bank the appellant had overdrawn his account to the extent of Rs. 56,000. After suspension of payment he was, of course, not allowed to draw further on his account and he says that in consequence the Bank has committed a breach of contract. He also alleges that the contract is a continuing one. On this basis he filed an application under s. 230-A, Companies Act, for an order rescinding the contract and awarding him damages. Other reliefs were also asked for, but the learned Judge refused to consider the application and directed the appellant to file a regular suit. The appellant contends that the learned Judge erred in so doing. In the first place he says that the learned Judge had no power to relegate him to a regular suit and in the second place that he should have heard the application and passed such order thereon as the circumstances demanded. If the appellant was not entitled to an order under s. 230-A, he would be entitled to prove in the ordinary way for any loss suffered by him. Section 230 5) says :

"The Court may, on the application of any person, who is, as against the liquidator, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the company, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise as the Court thinks just, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt in the winding up"

The discretion here given to the Court is a discretion to make an order rescinding the contract. Of course if a contract has already been rescinded an application under this section will not lie, and it is the case of the liquidators that this contract has been terminated by a notice calling in the amount due on the overdraft. It is said that the liquidators had a right to do this because the contract between the appellant and the Bank provided that the amount was to be repayable on demand. Section 229, Companies Act, states that in the winding-up of an insolvent company the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable as are in force under the law of insolvency and that all persons who in such a case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the company may come in under the winding-up and make such claims against the company as they are entitled to by virtue of the section. Therefore the general law of insolvency applies to the winding-up of an insolvent company. A creditor in insolvency cannot in ordinary circumstances bring a suit against the Official Assignee. If he claims to be a creditor he must file a proof of his debt with the Official Assignee. If his claim is rejected, then he has the right of asking the Judge sitting in insolvency to reverse the Official Assignee's decision. The Presidency Towns Insol. Act contains a section similar to s. 230-A, Companies Act, namely s 65. When it is not a question of rescinding a contract and assessing damages under s. 65 a person who has contracted with an insolvent may file a proof of the damages suffered by him by virtue of the provisions of s. 46, Presidency Towns Insol. Act. The position then is this. The appellant was entitled to have his application heard. If the Court then came to the conclusion that the contract had already been rescinded it would have no power to pass an order on the application and the appellant would have to be relegated to the ordinary procedure provided by the Act for proving any debt in the winding-up. The learned Counsel for the liquidators has been unable to point to any authority, either in England or in India, which lends support for the course taken by the learned Judge in this case.

The appeal must be allowed and the case will be remanded to the learned Judge to hear and decide according to law. The appellant is entitled to his costs. The liquidators will be entitled to their costs out of the estate. The court fee paid on the memorandum of appeal will be refunded to the appellant. It follows from this order that Application No. 1-63 of 1939 which the appellant has filed asking that leave be granted to the liquidators to compromise the appellant's claim will also be remanded to the learned Judge for disposal. His order under appeal apparently applied to this application as well.

N. S. Appeal allowed.

PESHAWAR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT

Appeal No. 3 /22 of 1940

December 2, 1940

ALMOND, J. C. AND MIR AHMED, J.

Mst. RAMESHRI w/o S. MANMOHAN SINGH AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

Mst. VAISHNO DITTI d/o B. GURMUKH SINGH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 35 (2)—Proceedings under—Failure to affix warrant or to proclaim by beat of drum whether fatal—Co-sharers—Decree for possession not executed—Decree-holder does not become co-sharer with judgment-debtor is not entitled to share profits.

The conditions precedent for effecting delivery of possession under O. XXI r. 35 (2), Civil P. C., are the affixing of the warrant to the property and the beat of drum. The omission to take any one of these two steps is fatal to the proceedings and there is no delivery in law.

Without executing a decree for possession a decree-holder cannot become a share-holder with the judgment-debtors and cannot consequently ask for a share in the profits of the property.

A. from an order of the Additional Judge, Peshawar District, dated January 24, 1940.

S. B. Sardar Raja Singh and S. Anup Singh, for the Appellants.

S. Beant Singh, for the Respondent.

Mir Ahmed, J.—On July 20, 1928, Mst. Vaisno Ditti obtained a decree from their Lordships of the Privy Council* for possession of one-fourth of the movable and immovable property left by one Bal Mokand. That decree was executed in Peshawar. Amongst other properties the executing Judge ordered that joint possession should be given to her of a cinema which has burnt down subsequently. The report of the bailiff dated November 19, 1931 shows that he handed over joint possession of the property to the decree-holder by beat of drum.

The present suit was instituted by Mst. Vaisno Ditti on July 15, 1937 for mesne profits for a period of three years. She claimed Rs. 1,800. Inter alia, the defence was taken that the decree-holder had not taken possession according to law and was therefore not entitled to the income of the property. Evidence was led. The bailiff said that his report was correct and no one else was questioned as to the procedure adopted by the bailiff for delivering possession. The decree-holder took up the attitude that even if possession was not delivered according to law she was entitled to a share in the income of the property as damages or compensation for the use of it by the other co-sharers.

That trial Judge found that possession was delivered by beat of drum only and the warrant of possession was not affixed to the property as required by O. XXI, r. 35 (2), Civil P. C. He held that the faiure to affix the warrant vitiated the proceeding, and that consequently joint possession was never taken by the decree-holder. As regards the contention that the decree-holder was entitled to a share in the profits of the property independently of the execution proceedings he was of the opinion that the decree-holder had no such independent right. He therefore dismissed the suit.

The decree-holder presented an appeal to the District Court at Peshawar against that order. The learned Additional Judge agreed with the trial Judge that the possession was not delivered according to law and that the delivery of possession should therefore be ignored. He however held that the plaintiff had an independent right of recovering her share in the profits from the judgment-debtors. He calculated her share of income at Rs. 14 a month and gave a decree for Rs. 504 He also gave interest on that amount at 8 per cent. per annum for three years. The judgment debtors have come up on further appeal to this Court. Order XXI, r. 35 (2), Civil P. C., runs thus :

"(2) Where a decree is for the joint possession of immovable property, such possession shall be delivered by affixing a copy of the warrant in some conspicuous place on the property and proclaiming by beat of drum, or other customary mode at some convenient place, the substance of the decree."

It is obvious that the conditions precedent for effecting delivery of possession under O XXI, r. 35 (2), Civil P. C., are the affixing of the warrant to the property and the beat of drum. The weight of authority is clearly in favour of the proposition that the omission to take any one of these two steps is fatal to the proceedings and there is no delivery in law. Counsel for the parties have not denied the correctness of this view. We therefore maintain the concurrent findings of the two Courts below that possession was not handed over to the decree-holder under the decree.

The argument of the learned Counsel for the respondent that his client is entitled to a share in the income of the property independently of the decree, is void of all force. No doubt parties put forward their respective claims during the litigation and make an attempt to substantiate them. But when once those claims have been adjudicated upon, the decree represents the rights and liabilities possessed by them and it is the decree which has to be consulted for the purpose of ascertaining as to how they stand in the matter. They cannot fall back on the rights which they alleged they possessed before the decree was passed even though those rights may have been confirmed by the decree. Again, an executory decree has to be enforced in order that it should be effective. A successful suitor cannot say that he has become a share-holder by merely obtaining a decree for possession. In fact if the decree is not executed there is a likelihood of the original right to possess which had merged into the decree being lost by the efflux of time. It follows therefore that without executing a decree for possession a decree holder cannot become a share-holder with the judgment-debtors and cannot consequently ask for a share in the profits of the property. As a result we find that the view of the lower Appellate Court is wrong. We accept the appeal, set aside the order of the lower Appellate Judge and restore that of the trial Court with costs throughout.

D. Appeal accepted.

*See 113 Ind. Cas. 1.—[Ed.]

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Original Appeal No. 35 of 1939
August 21, 1940
LEACH, C. J. AND HORWILL, J.

MANAGING DIRECTOR NAYAR MODERN BANK LTD.—APPELLANT
versus
OFFICIAL LIQUIDATORS OF THE TRAVANCORE NATIONAL AND QUILON BANK LTD. (IN LIQUIDATION)—RESPONDENTS

Banker and customer — Money deposited with Bank by company as statutory obligation imposed by s. 282-B Companies Act (VII of 1913 — Liquidation of Bank — Company, if entitled to priority over ordinary creditors.

The mere fact that the depositor is the trustee and the money deposited is trust money, does not affect the relation which the law creates between a Bank and an ordinary customer, namely, the relation of debtor and creditor. The legal effect of the notice to the Bank that the moneys deposited were trust moneys is only to cast a duty on the Bank not to participate in a breach of trust by the trustee Consequently where money is deposited with the Bank by a company, as the result of the statutory obligation imposed upon the company by s. 282-B (1), Companies Act, the company is not entitled to rank in the liquidation of the Bank in priority to the ordinary creditors.

O. A. from an order of Venkataramana Rao, J., reported in 159 Ind. Cas. 824.

Mr. K. Kuttikrishna Menon, for the Appellant.

Messrs. King and Partridge, for the Respondents.

Leach C. J.—The appellant is a company registered under the Companies Act and carries on a banking business at Palghat in Malabar. The appellant requires certain employees to deposit sums of money with it as security for the due fulfilment of their duties. Section 282-B (1), Companies Act, states that all moneys or securities deposited with a company by its employees in pursuance of their contracts of service with the company shall be deposited by it in a special account to be opened for the purpose in a scheduled bank as defined in cl. (e) of s. 2, Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, and that no portion of the money shall be utilized by the company except for the purposes agreed to in the contract of service. The Travancore National and Quilon Bank Ltd. (I will refer to it for brevity as "the Bank") was a scheduled bank as defined in the Reserve Bank of India Act, but it is now in liquidation as the result of an order for compulsory winding up passed by this Court on September 4, 1933. On July 30, 1937 the appellant deposited with the Bank a sum of Rs. 1,000 received as security from an employee. On January 15, 1938 and on February 21, 1938 it deposited with the Bank Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 500 respectively, these sums also representing security received from employees. These moneys were credited to the appellant in an account headed "employees' cash security." They were, of course, deposited with the Bank as the result of the statutory obligation imposed upon the appellant by s. 282-B (1), Companies Act. The question involved in this appeal is whether the appellant is entitled to rank in the liquidation of the Bank in priority to the ordinary creditors. The question was decided against the appellant by Venkataramana Rao, J. and this appeal is from his order.

The learned Counsel for the appellant frankly and rightly concedes that the Bank did not hold the moneys as a trustee for the employees of the appellant, but he says that his client is entitled to prior payment because it is recognized that property which has been delivered to a bankrupt for a specific purpose does not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy, and quotes a passage from Halsbury's Laws of England where it is stated that property of this nature is clothed with a species of trust and is subject to the same principle as trust property: Vol. 2, p. 228, Hailsham Edition. The learned Judge rejected this contention. He recognized that in such a case as the present one the depositor is the trustee and the money deposited is trust money, but he held that this does not affect the relation which the law creates between a bank and an ordinary customer, namely, the relation of debtor and creditor. The learned Judge pointed out that the legal effect of the notice to the Bank that the moneys deposited were trust moneys was only to cast a duty on the Bank not to participate in a breach of trust by the trustee. We agree with the opinion of the learned Judge. The appellant would be entitled to succeed only if the Bank was in the position of a trustee or if the money had been deposited for a specific purpose. The appellant has conceded that the Bank was not a trustee; and we think it is equally clear that these moneys were not deposited with it for a special purpose so far as the Bank was concerned. The appellant held the moneys for a special purpose and was required by statute to deposit them in a Bank, but the section makes no difference in the position of the Bank. Its poition was still that of a banker keeping an account for a customer. The Bank, having notice of the trust, could not be a party to a breach of trust but that does not help the appellant. There has been no breach of trust. The appeal fails and will be dismissed with costs.

N. S. Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Letters Patent Appeal No. 5[illegible] of 1939
November 11 1940
THOM, C. J., AND GANGA NATH J.
Mst. BADRUNNISSA AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
MUNICIPAL BOARD, AGRA, THROUGH EXECUTIVE OFFICER—PLAINTIFF—
RESPONDENT

Municipality—Insufficiency of municipal service, whether ground for tax payers withholding payment of tax—U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), ss 166, 177—Liability of tax payer to pay tax, it depends upon municipality presenting a bill to tax-payer—Liability, when arises.

The insufficiency of municipal service is no ground for the tax-payers withholding the payment of tax. If they are dissatisfied with the service provided by the Municipal Board they may complain to the District Magistrate and have their grievances remedied. The High Court, however, has no jurisdiction to reduce or disallow taxes on the ground that the Municipality has been inefficient in the discharge of its municipal duties.

The liability of the tax-payer to pay municipal tax is not made to depend upon the Board presenting a bill to the tax-payer. The liability arises the moment the tax-payer has been assessed and the money becomes due upon the date on which the Municipality have declared by their rules that the tax is payable. There is nothing in the U. P. Municipalities Act disentitling the Municipality from executing its charge because it has failed to present a bill for the tax to the tax-payer.

L. P. A. from the judgment of Bennet, J.

Messrs. B. S. Darbari and Gopal Behari, for the Appellants.

Mr. Din Dayal, for the Respondent.

Thom, C. J.—This is a defendants' appeal arising out of a suit by the Municipal Board of Agra. The Board sued the defendants to recover the sum of Rs. 288 alleged to be due by the defendants in respect of arrears of taxes for the years 1922 to 1934. The prayer in the plaint is for the payment of this sum by the sale of property in respect of which the taxes are due. The learned Munsif granted a decree in respect of Rs. 238. The Appellate Court however has granted a decree in respect of the full amount claimed, Rs. 288.

The decision of the Court below is challenged upon the ground that the failure of the Municipal Board to present a bill to the defendants for the taxes due, in accordance with the provisions of s. 166, Municipalities Act, disentitles the Board from recovering any of the arrears of taxes from the defendants. Section 166 directs that after the assessment is passed with all convenient speed the Municipalities should send a bill to the tax-payer. This, according to the finding of the Court below, the Municipality failed to do. It does not follow however that because the Municipality neglected to carry out its statutory duty the arrears of taxes due by the defendants cannot be recovered in the present suit. Sub-section (2) of s. 166, Municipalities Act, directs that "a person shall be deemed to become liable for the payment of every tax and license fee upon the commencement of the period in respect of which such tax or fee is payable."

Now under the rules framed in virtue of the powers conferred upon it by the Act, the Municipality of Agra has declared that the amount to which a tax-paver is liable shall be payable on April, and on October 1, of the each year. The tax therefore became due and payable to the Municipality by the tax-payer on April 1, and October 1, of every year from 1922 to 1934. The liability of the tax-paver to pay this tax is not made to depend upon the Board presenting a bill to the tax-paper. The liability arises the moment the tax-payer has been assessed and the money becomes due upon the date on which the Municipality have declared by their rules that the tax is payable. Under s. 177, Municipalities Act:

"All sums due on account of a tax imposed on the annual value of buildings or lands or of both shall, subject to the prior payment of the land revenue (if any) due to His Majesty thereupon, be a first charge upon such buildings or lands."

This section constitutes a charge in favour of the Municipal Board in respect of all arrears of sums due on account of tax. As already indicated the amounts in respect of tax for which the appellants were liable fell due upon April 1, and October 1 of each year. Upon these dates in respect of the amounts due a charge is created by s. 177, Municipalities Act. There is nothing in the Act disentitling the Municipality from executing its charge because it has failed to present a bill for the tax to the appellants No doubt the Municipal Board ought to have presented a bill each year to the defendants and no explanation is forthcoming as to why the annual bill for tax was not presented. Be that as it may, the property belonging to the defendants having been duly assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Municipalities Act, the defendants became liable to pay the tax on April 1 and October 1, each year and in respect of the amounts due a charge has been created in favour of the Municipal Board. In our judgment the Board is entitled to sue on its charge for the recovery of the arrears due by the defendants.

The suit was instituted in the first instance against the defendant, Hafiz Nizamuddin. The other defendants Nos. 2 to 7 were added upon an application made by the plaintiff. This application however was made in 1935. The claim, so far as they are concerned therefore, in view of the provisions of s. 22, Lim. Act, is barred in respect of their share of the tax from the year 1922 to 1934. It was contended for the defendants that they were not liable for the water-tax since the supply of water to their property was insufficient. The insufficiency of municipal service is no ground for the tax-payers withholding the payment of tax. If they are dissatisfied with the service provided by the Municipal Board they may complain to the District Magistrate and have their grievances remedied. This Court however has no jurisdiction to reduce or disallow taxes on the ground that the Municipality has been inefficient in the discharge of its municipal duties. In the result the appeal is allowed in part and the order of the learned single Judge is modified to this extent that the share in the property of defendants Nos. 2 to 7 shall be liable to the extent of Rs 252 only quod ultra the appeal is dismissed. Parties will bear their own costs throughout.

S. Appeal partly allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Petition No. 562 of 1937

July 24, 1940

PATANJALI SASTRI, J.

S. P. RM. M. MEYAPPA CHETTIAR—PETITIONER

versus

S. P. RM. RM. RAMASWAMI CHETTIAR—RESPONDENT

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Arts. 120, 61—Joint purchase of property by plaintiff and defendant—Stamps for sale certificate purchased by plaintiff—Suit for contribution—Article applicable—Cause of action when arises.

A claim for contribution in respect of a share of the amount spent by the plaintiff for purchase of stamps for a sale certificate issued in respect of properties jointly purchased by him and the defendant is governed by Art. 120, Lim. Act and not by Art 61. The cause of action in such a case does not arise when the stamps are purchased but when they are actually utilized for the purpose in question. 70 Ind. Cas. 405 (1), relied on.

C. R. P. to revise the decree of the District Munsif, Sivaganga, dated November 30, 1936.

Mr. V. Ramaswami Ayyar, for the Petitioner,

Mr. A. C. Sampath Ayyangar, for the Respondent.

Order.—The only point for determination in this revision petition relates to the applicability of Art. 61, Lim Act to the petitioner's claim for contribution in respect of a half share of the amount spent by him for purchase of stamps for a sale certificate issued in respect of properties jointly purchased by the petitioner and the respondent. The stamps were purchased on February 13, 1933. The sale certificate, Ex. A was issued by the Court on February 20, 1933. The suit was brought on February 18, 1936. The Court below applied Art. 61, Lim. Act, and reckoning three years from February 13, 1933 when the petitioner actually paid the money for the purchase of the stamps held the suit barred by limitation. I cannot agree with this view. Even assuming that Art. 61 is applicable to certain classes of suits for contribution, I am clearly of opinion that it cannot apply to a suit of this description. For it is obvious that the petitioner could not have a cause of action against the defendant as soon as he purchased the stamps though he might have intended such purchase to enure to the benefit of the defendant also by the stamps being utilized for the purpose of engrossing the sale certificate to be issued jointly in the name of both the parties. Until the stamps were actually utilized for the purpose the petitioner could not as it seems to me, claim to recover any part of the purchase money from the respondent. To a case of this kind Art. 61 which presupposes the accruing of a cause of action when the payment is made cannot be applicable: cf. Sundara Iyer v. Ananthapadmanabha Iyer (1). It is not disputed that if Art. 61 does not apply; the proper Article applicable is 120, and the suit was filed in time. The civil revision petition succeeds and the petitioner's suit will be decreed with costs here and in the Court below.

(1) 43 M L J 271; 70 Ind. Cas 405; A I R 1923 Mad. 64; 16 L W 231; 31 M L T 164; (1922) M W N 608.

N. S. Petition allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Second Appeal No. 1846 of 1937
January 22, 1940
ALLSOP, J.

RAMAI CHAUBEY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
RAM DATTA SONAR—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Landlord and tenant—Haq-i-chaharum—Liability of lessee or vendee of building site to pay, on transfer of building—Question is not of custom having force of law.

The question whether the vendee or lessee of building sites would be liable to pay haq-i-chaharum to the zemindar on transfer of the buildings, is not a question of a custom having the force of law. The question really is one of contract between the zemindar and the person in occupation of the site.

S. A. from the decision of the Additional District Judge, Basti, dated August 5, 1937.

Mr. A. P. Pandey, for the Appellant.

Mr. Harnandan Prasad, for the Respondent.

Judgment.—This second appeal arises out of a suit in which the plaintiff-appellant sought to recover haq-i-chacharum from the defendant-respondent on account of a sale which took place on November 27, 1930. The plaintiff alleged that there was a custom under which he was entitled to make this claim. The defendant denied the existence of the custom. The learned Judge of the lower Appellate Court has found that no custom has been proved. The only evidence consisted of some kabuliats dating from not earlier than the year 1922 and two or three deeds of sale executed about the year 1931. The kabuliats were documents executed by the vendees or lessees of certain building sites agreeing that they would pay haq-i-chacharum if they transferred the buildings which they erected. The learned Judge has said that the evidence is quite insufficient to establish a custom. In my judgment, his finding is right, if this is strictly speaking a question of custom at all. I know that it appears always to have been assumed at the bar that this is a question of a custom having the force of law, but if the matter is strictly examined I doubt whether it is such a question Nobody, I suppose would assert that the zamindar, if he was making a grant of a building site to-day would be compelled by any rule of law to lease it or grant it on any particular terms. There would be no custom having the force of law which would debar him from making it a condition in his grant that he would get one-half of the materials if the building was sold or making it a condition that the materials might be sold and not the right to occupy the land.

The question really is one of contract between the zamindar and the person in occupation of the site. If the grant was made a long time ago and its nature is not known, it may be inferred from the prevailing practice that a grant was made in a certain form. If it can be shown over a long period of years that the assumption has always been made and acted upon that grants included the conditions that a vendor or a vendee would pay one-fourth the purchase price to the zamindar, then it might fairly be assumed that forgotten grant was in the same form unless the contrary was shown. In the present case, as far as we know, the grant to the vendors of the defendant respondent was made a very long time ago and the nature of it is unknown. It has not been shown that at any period when this grant could have been made, there was any practice of exacting haq-i-chacharum. The mere fact that the zamindar began about the year 1922 to make grants of such a nature could hardly justify the conclusion that grants of that nature had always been made. I am satisfied that the plaintiff-appellant has failed to prove that he had any right to recover haq-i-chacharum from the present defendant-respondent. Even if the question is one of custom having the force of law the finding of the lower Appellate Court is justified. I therefore dismiss the appeal with costs. Leave to appeal under the Letters Patent is refused.

S. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Letters Patent Appeals Nos. 97 and 98 of 1938

December 12, 1939

LEACH, C. J. AND KRISHNASWAMI AYYANGAR, J.

REDDI KRISHNAN NAIDU AND OTHERS —APPELLANTS

versus

CHINTALA SOMI NAIDU AND OTHERS —RESPONDENTS

Hindu Law—Suit on promissory note executed by father—Sons joined as defendants but subsequently dismissed from suit—Decree against father alone —Interest of sons in family property, if liable in execution.

Where in a suit on a promissory note executed by father alone, the sons are impleaded on the ground that the debt was incurred for family necessity but the sons are subsequently dismissed from the suit and a decree is passed against the father alone, the decree-holder can proceed to execute the decree against the son's interests in the family property Periasami Mudaliar v. Seetharama Chettiar (2), relied on, 172 Ind. Cas. 5 (1), explained.

L. P. A from judgment of King J., in A. A. A. O. No. 39 of 1936 dated October 28, 1938.

Mr. V. Govindarajachari, for the Appellants.

Mr. Y. Suryanarayana, for the Respondants.

Leach, C. J.—These two appeals arise out of the same suit and they can be disposed of here in one judgment. The appellants obtained a money decree against respondent No. 3 in the Court of the District Munsif of Parvatipur. The appellants made respondent No. 3's sons parties to the suit and they are respondents Nos. 1, 2 and 4. The suit was on a promissory note executed by the father alone. The sons were joined as defendants on the ground that the debt was incurred for family necessities. The District Munsif dismissed the suit, as he was not satisfied that the promissory note was genuine, but on the appeal to the District Judge a decree was passed against the father. In the District Court the appellants decided not to ask for a decree against the sons who were dismissed from the suit. In due course the appellants instituted execution proceedings and asked for the attachment and sale of the sons' interests in the family property. The sons objected on the ground that as they had been dismissed from the suit they could not be held liable for their father's debt. The District Munsif upheld their objection, but on appeal the Subordinate Judge held that they could be held liable in execution proceedings. The sons then appealed to this Court. The appeal was heard by King. J. who allowed it, but granted leave to appeal under cl. 15, Letters Patent.

The Subordinate Judge found that there was no intention on the part of the appellants in allowing the sons to be dismissed from the suit to exonerate them altogether. King, J. reversed the Subordinate Judge's decision because he considered that the authorities which support the Subordinate Judge's decision had in effect been overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in Raja Ram v. Rajah Bakhsh Singh (1). The appellants contend that the learned Judge has misconceived the effect of this decision. They say that it has not in any way altered the law as stated in the decisions of this Court. It is not necessary to examine all the judgments of this Court which have a bearing on the question; it is sufficient to refer to the Full Bench decision in Periasami Mulaliar v. Seetharama Chettiar (2) and to Periasami v. Vaithiling Pillai (3) and Doraisami Nadan v. Nagasami Naicken (4) which were decided by Division Benches. In Periasami Mudaliar v. Seetharama Chettiar (2) Benson, Bhashyam Ayyangar and Russell, JJ. held, that independently of the debt arising from the original transaction entered into by a father, a decree passed against him in respect of the transaction by its own force creates a debt as against him which his sons are, under the Hindu Law, under an obligation to discharge, unless they can show that the debt is illegal or immoral. Bhashyam Ayyangar, J said :

"But I can see no reason why a suit could not be brought against the son to recover a debt of record due by the father, which debt the father was under an obligation to discharge, quite independently of the cause of action or the alleged original debt on which the suit had been brought against him..... The whole of the joint family property in the hands of the son must be held liable to satisfy the debt imposed upon the father by the judgment, as a solemn debt of record, quite independently of the original cause of action or alleged debt on which the suit against the father had been brought"

In Periasami Mudaliar v. Vaithilinga Pillai (3), Varadachariar and Pandrang Row, JJ., considered a case in which the suit

(1) 13 Luck. 61; 172 Ind. Cas. 5; A I R 1938 P C 7; 32 S L R 221; 1937 O W N 1199; 10 R P C 119; 1937 O L R 614; 1937 A L R 982; 4 B R 169; 42 C W N 200; 19 P L T 1; 47 L W 1; (1938) M W N 1; (1938) 1 M L J 41; 40 Bom. L R 277; 66 C L J 422 (P C).

(2) 27 M 243; 14 M L J 84 (F B).

(3) 47 L W 60; 175 Ind. Cas. 359; A I R 1937 Mad. 718; (1937) M W N 313; 47 L W 60; 11 R M 73.

(4) A I R 1929 Mad. 898; 121 Ind. Cas. 863; Ind. Rul. (1930) Mad. 271.

was filed against the father and his sons, but before judgment was passed this suit was withdrawn as against the sons. The question was whether the sons were liable inasmuch as the debt was a debt binding upon them under the rule of Hindu Law. The learned Judges held that the withdrawal of the suit as against the sons did not exonerate them. The result of the withdrawal was not to bring into operation the rule of res judicata embodied in s. 11, Civil P. C., but only to entail the statutory penalty enacted in O. XXIII, r. 1, which was that no fresh suit could be instituted against the sons on the same cause of action Therefore it could not be said that what had happened in the suit amounted to an adjudication that the sons were not liable in respect of the decree debt. Doraisami Nadan v. Nagasami Naicken (4) was decided by Courtts. Trotter C. J., and Walsh J., who also held that a decree passed against a father personally after the sons had been exonerated could be executed against the sons' interests in the family property in respect of a decree debt passed against the father.

The facts in Raja Ram v. Rajah Baksh Singh (1) on which King, J. based his decision were these. After the death of a Hindu, the sons and grandsons were made defendants in a suit filed by a creditor of the deceased to recover the amount of the debt from their interest in the family properties. Before judgment the grandsons were dismissed from the suit, but it was sought to realize their interests in the property in execution proceedings. The Privy Council held that they were not liable inasmuch as they had been dismissed from the suit. The question of their liability was directly raised and as they had been dismissed from the suit they could not be made liable under the decree passed in it. That case differs from the case now before us in that there the suit was brought against the grandsons after the death of the grandfather against whom no decree had been obtained. The dismissal of the grandsons from the suit amounted to a decision in their favour, of the question of their liability. That is not the position here. A decree was passed against the father after the sons had been dismissed from the suit, and the passing of the decree gave to the decree-holders a new right, which they could enforce against the sons. We do not consider that Raja Ram v. Rajah Bakhsh Singh (1) has overruled the decision of the Full Bench in Periasami v. Mualiar Setharama Chettiar (2). In our opinion the decision of the Full Bench remains unaffected and a decree-holder in circumstances like we have here may proceed to execute the decree against the sons' interests in the family property. The appeals will be allowed with costs in this Court and in the second appeals but the Advocate's fee will be allowed only in Appeal No. 97 of 1938 of this Court and in the corresponding second appeal. The result is that the decrees of the Subordinate Judge will be restored.

N. D Appeals allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Civil Revision No. 117 of 1940
December 4, 1940
COLLISTER, J.

AHMAD SAYEED—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPLICANT

versus

KANIZAK ZOHRA—DECREE-HOLDER—OPPOSITE PARTY

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60 (1) (b) —Sewing machines in tailor's shop whether tools of artisan

A tailor who uses a sewing machine is an artisan and the sewing machine is an artisan's tool. Section 60 (1) (b), Civil P. C., does not say that only such tools shall not be liable to attachment as are necessary for the maintenance of the artisan. Hence all the machines which were in use in the tailors shop at the time of the attachment are artisan's tools within the meaning of s. 60 (1) (b) and exempt from attachment. The fact that only one machine is sufficient for the tailor's maintenance or that he is working in another man's shop subsequent to attachment is no ground for refusing to release the machines from attachment. 65 Ind. Cas. 416 (1), relied on.

C. R. against the order of the Small Cause Court, Cawnpore, dated December 16, 1939.

Mr. S. Zakir Ali, for the Applicant.

Mr. S. M. Salman, for the Opposite Party.

Order.—This is a judgment-debtor's application under s. 25, Small Cause Courts Act. The opposite party in execution of her decree against the applicant attached, among other things, six sewing machines which were in the applicant's tailoring shop. It appears from the judgment of the Court below that two of these machines were released from attachment and that the applicant thereafter sold them. The applicant claimed the release of the remaining four machines under s. 60 (1) (b), Civil P. C., but his claim has been disallowed. The learned Judge says:

"He is now working elsewhere. One machine was enough for his livelihood and he had no business to sell the released machines."

Section 60 (1) (b), Civil P. C., enacts that "tools of artisans" shall not be liable to attachment; it does not say that only such tools shall not be liable to attachment as are necessary for the maintenance of the artisan. An artisan is defined in Webster's New International Dictionary, Edn. 2 as "one trained to manual dexterity in some mechanical art or trade; a handicraftsman; a mechanic." There can be no doubt that a tailor who uses a sewing machine is an artisan and that the sewing machine is an artisan's tool. This view was taken in Vitkoba v. Babulal (1), where the learned Judge says :

"I can find no guidance on the point in reported rulings, but I consider that a sewing machine is a tool, It can hardly be denied that a simple machine such as a simple form of loom is a tool. I do not see how a line can be drawn shutting out a more complicated form of loom from the definition. A complicated loom or a sewing machine is certainly an instrument used by a craftsman or labourer at his work Section 60, Civil P. C., speaks of the tools of artisans and the implements of husbandry of an agriculturist. Implement of husbandry may be specialised and costly. I see no reason why a tool should be confined to primitive implements. I hold then that a sewing machine is a tool."

With the above observations I am in agreement. The applicant stated that he used to do the cutting out of materials at his shop and that he also used to do the sewing along with some employees. The learned Judge says that the applicant is now working elsewhere and I find from the applicant's deposition that he is working on commission at a shop belonging to another person; but I do not think that this circumstance and the fact of his having sold two machines will in any way affect his claim. The criterion in such matters is the position of affairs at the time of execution. At the date of execution the applicant was working at his own shop with half a dozen machines. He was an artisan and was employing an artisan's tools, and in my opinion the six machines which were in use in his shop were artisan's tools within the meaning of s. 60 (1) (b), Civil P. C. I accordingly allow this application with costs in both Courts. The order of the Court below is set aside and the objection is allowed.

S. Application allowed.

(1) A I R 1923 Nag. 289; 65 Ind. Cas. 416; 19 N L R 22.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Appeal No. 164 of 1939
July 30, 1940
KING J.

NARASIMHULU NAIDU—APPELLANT

versus

PEMMATI NAGA REDDY—RESPONDENT

Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886)—A, bidder at auction of toddy shop entering into partnership agreement with R after date of auction but before issue of license—Agreement held illegal.

A, a bidder at an auction of a toddy shop entered into an agreement with R after the date of the bid at auction but before the date of the issue of license, the terms of which were that, A, should bear one-half of the expenses of running the business and that the sale proceeds should be divided between A and R. The duties of R were confined to the supervision of the procuring of toddy from the trees :

Held, that by the constitution of this partnership there was transfer to R of the privilege of selling toddy and such an agreement being illegal could not be enforced. 155 Ind. Cas. 544 (1), relied on, 162 Ind. Cas. 266 (3), dissented from.

A. against the order of the Sub-Judge, Chittoor, dated February 11, 1939.

Messrs. A. Viswanatha Ayyar and K. Sundaresan, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. A. Seshadri Ayyangar, for the Respondent.

Judgment.—The appellant in this appeal was the licensee of the toddy shop at Minnal for the year beginning October 1, 1932. The auction at which defendant's bid was accepted was on August 8, 1932. On August 31, appellant entered into an agreement with the respondent which is embodied in Ex. A. This is a brief document called a "partition" and apart from a penalty clause with which I am not now concerned, its terms are that appellant should bear one-half of the expenses of running the business and that the sale proceeds should be divided between appellant and respondent every month. Respondent alleging that appellant had not paid him his half share of the profits, filed a suit for accounts. Appellant contended, amongst other things, that the agreement was illegal and could not therefore be enforced. The District Munsif of Sholinghur accepted this contention ; the Subordinate Judge of Chittoor rejected it and remanded the suit for disposal after taking accounts. Against that order of remand the present appeal has been filed.

The decision of the appeal depends upon the determination of the question whether the privilege of the supply and sale of toddy has or has not been transferred by the appellant. Such a transfer is admittedly prohibited by the terms of the license.

The learned Subordinate Judge holds that there is no such transfer on two grounds : (i) because appellant and respondent did not enter into any partnership : and (ii) because their agreement was anterior to the actual issue of the license. It is difficult to understand how the Subordinate Judge arrived at the first of these conclusions. The issues framed by the District Munsif assume that the relation between appellant and respondent was a partnership. They certainly agreed in the words of the definition (Contract Act, s. 239) to "combine their property, labour or skill" in the business and to "share its profits." I find that the agreement constituted appellant and respondent partners.

The question then arises whether by the constitution of this partnership there was any transfer of the privilege of selling toddy in this particular shop. The Subordinate Judge holds in effect that that privilege comes into existence only with the grant of the license and therefore on the date of the agreement there was nothing to transfer. It is argued for the appellant on the other hand that the privilege was acquired as soon as appellant's bid was accepted. If that be so, it is clear that appellant has transferred that privilege to the partnership. Though the issue was not perhaps raised in this direct form it seems to me that the decision of the Full Bench in Ramanaidu v. Seetharamayya (1), is conclusive on this point in favour of the appellant. That was a case of a partnership constituted after the date of the auction and before the date of the issue of license. The judgment sets out these dates on p. 733* and states :

"The money was therefore lent to the partnership after defendant No 1 had become the successful bidder at the auction and was the person in whose name the license would be issued"

Again on page 734* it is stated :

"The partnership was formed after defendant No. 1 had become the successful bidder. The license would therefore be issued in his name."

These passages seem to me to show that the learned Judges in that case took it for granted that the issue of a license was something following automatically upon the acceptance of a bid and that it is the acceptance of the bid which confers the privilege. The decision, I think, can be explained on no other ground. The learned Subordinate Judge, however, has preferred to rely upon two later decisions each that of a Single Judge. The first of these, Satyala Sanyasi v. Bhogavalli Sanyasi (2), is obviously of no assistance to the respondent. That is a clear case of a partnership formed before the auction and in giving his decision Venkatasubba Rao J., expressly distinguishes the Full Bench ruling by quoting the words, "the partnership was formed after defendant No 1 had become the successful bidder." The second case is reported in Rangasami Pillai v. Narayanasami Naicken (3), and this certainly does support the Subordinate Judge's judgment. But this is only because in my opinion, and with all respect to him, the learned Judge who decided it has not correctly stated what the Full Bench decided. In Rangasami Pillai v. Narayanasami Naicken (3), no dates are given, but it is stated that the partnership was formed "at least a month before the actual grant of license." On p. 692* the learned Judge says :

"If a case is authority for what it decides, the Full Bench decision is only an authority for the proposition that where a partnership is entered into subsequent to the grant of license it would be illegal....."

I am entirely unable to see how such an appreciation of the Full Bench decision can be formed when the Full Bench after setting out the dates, declares to be illegal a partnership formed before the grant of a license. I am accordingly of opinion that the facts of this case are covered by the Full Bench decision and that the formation of the partnership was a transfer. One final argument is however urged for the respondent and that is that what was transferred was not the privilege of supply and sale of toddy because respondent's duties in the partnership were confined to the supervision of the procuring of toddy from the trees and had nothing to do with the actual process of selling it. I am unable to accept any such narrow interpretation of the words "privilege of supply and sale." The privilege or right which was conferred upon appellant by the Govt. was that of carrying on the whole business of selling toddy, and in that business the procuring of toddy from trees is obviously a necessary part. The agreement contains no clause to the effect that respondent was prohibited from controlling in any way

(1) 58 M 727; 155 Ind. Cas. 544; A I R 1935 Mad. 440; 68 M L J 570; (1935) M W N 343; 41 L W 521; 7 R M 583 (S B).

(2) 69 M L J 490; 158 Ind. Cas. 1055; 69 M L J 490; A I R 1935 Mad. 895; (1935) M W N 935; 8 R M 417; 42 L W 840

(3) 70 M L J 691; 162 Ind. Cas. 866; A I R 1936 Mad. 557; (1936) M W N 397; 8 R M 971; 44 L W 271.

*Pages of 56 Mad.—[Ed.]

*Page of 70 M L J—[Ed.]

the operation and methods of sale—and from the legal point of view, appellant, his partner, is also his agent in the business which he personally carries on on behalf of the partnership. It is argued further that the reasons for the prohibition of transfer are in no way affected by the agreement in this case. It is not for me to speculate upon those reasons. It is enough to recognize that transfer is in fact prohibited, and to hold, as I do hold, that the partnership in this case amounts to such a transfer. This appeal must therefore be allowed, and the decree of the District Munsif restored and respondent's suit be dismissed with costs throughout. Leave refused.

N.-S. Appeal allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT

First Appeal No. 368 of 1938
February 14, 1940

DALIP SINGH AND SALE, JJ.

Mst QAISAR JAHAN BEGAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER DELHI PROVINCE AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS

Punjab Court of Wards Act (II of 1903), s. 13—Joint proprietor, if can sue Court of Wards for partition of his share in joint property—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 69—Court of Wards paying off creditors of deceased Muhammadan from his pensions and jagirs—Partition suit by some of deceased's heirs not entitled to pensions and jagirs—Heirs if bound to re-imburse Court of Wards to the extent of amount paid

The Punjab Court of Wards Act does not expressly bar the right of a joint proprietor to bring a suit for partition of his share in joint property. It may be that the Court of Wards is entitled to take possession of the property of a joint proprietor along with a ward of the Court of Wards; it may be that they can execute leases of such property, but there is nothing in the Act which specifically bars the right of the co-proprietor to bring a suit for partition which is a statutory right conferred on him by the Partition Act and there is no reason either in law or in equity, that the Court of Wards Act contemplated that the joint proprietor should not bring such a suit to partition his share and thereby avoid the need of superintendence of his property by the Court of Wards. [p. 831, col. 2.]

The Court of Wards assumed superintendence of the deceased Muhammadan's property and paid off his creditors from out of his pensions and jagirs. The heirs who instituted the suit for partition of their shares were held not entitled to the pensions and jagirs:

Held, that the payments made by the Court of Wards could not be taken advantage of by the heirs who were bound to recoup the Court of Wards to the extent of the payments made by it and the fact that the pensions and the jagirs did not belong to the Court of Wards was a question entirely between it and the head of the deceased's family appointed by the Govt. Dakhina Mohun v. Saraday Mohan (2), relied on.

Messrs Mohammad Din Jan and M. A. Majid Khan, for the Appellant.

Messrs. M. Sleem, Advocate-General, Suraj Narain and Bishen Narain, for Respondents Nos. 1 to 4

Dalip Singh, J—Mirza Suraya Jah was the admitted head of the family claiming descent from the old Moghul Emperors of Delhi He was possessed of considerable movable and immovable property and in addition had various kinds of pension, called political and compensatory respectively amounting to Rs. 15,508 annually. He owed a debt of Rs. 70,000 to the Secretary of State for India and to discharge this debt he had executed a mortgage deed which is printed in Regular First Appeal No. 109 of 1936 Aloni Parshad v. Court of Wards (1) at pp. 126 to 129 of the printed paper book. In that mortgage deed there was a clause that the Secretary of State would not bring the property to sale so long as the mortgagor allowed the Secretary of State to deduct a certain amount from the pensions that were payable to the said mortgagor. Mirza Suraya Jah died on February 8, 1913, and left behind him five heirs; (1) his widow Shams-ul-Zamani Begam who died in 1919, (2) another widow Munir-ul Zamani Begam who is defendant No. 3 in the present suit, (3 and 4) two daughters by Begam Munir-ul Zamani Begam, namely Malka Jahan Begam who died in 1918 and Badshah Jahan Begam who is defendant No. 2 in the present suit and (5) a son Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah through another wife Rifaqat Begam. The legitimacy of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah was challenged on the death of his father Mirza Suraya Jah. The Local Govt. ordered him to establish his claim in a Civil Court. During the interval a compassionate allowance of Rs. 100 was to be paid to him. The Court of Wards was instructed to take over the estate of Mirza Suraya Jah and the usual notification followed which is dated May 5, 1913, and printed at p. 70 of Vol. 1. In Ex. D-3, a letter of the Chief Commissioner of Delhi, printed at pp. 70-71 of the same volume, it was directed that the question of appointing a head of the family should remain in abeyance until the Civil Courts had pronounced as to the claims of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah to be the legitimate son of Mirza Suraya Jah The letter went on to state that:

(1) A I R 1938 Lah. 23; 181 Ind. Cas. 728; 11 R L. 873.

"The whole pension and jagir left by Mirza Suraya Jha should in the meanwhile remain at the disposal of the Court of Wards in order to pay off the debts incurred by the deceased grantee".

Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah brought a suit on January 26, 1920 for possession by partition of his share of the property left by Mirza Suraya Jah of which he claimed 14/32 or 7/16 and also to the pensions and jagirs of Mirza Suraya Jah. This suit was decided on May 10, 1925, and it was held that Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah was the legitimate son of Mirza Suraya Jha. As regards the pensions and jagirs the Court held it had no jurisdiction to decide the point but qua the property, movable and immovable, left by Mirza Suraya Jha, the Court declared the share of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah to be 14/32 as claimed by him. The Court of Wards assumed superintendence of the share of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah on May 5, 1913, as appears from Ex D-5 at p. 72 of the printed paper book. Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah died on September 17, 1925 Various execution applications of the partition decree appear to have been made by Begam Qaisar Jahan Begam, the widow of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah, and his daughter Begam Nemur Jahan Begam, plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 in the present suit. The execution applications were resisted on various grounds, one being that as the Court of Wards had assumed superintendence of the share of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah as a joint proprietor along with the other wards, there was nothing left to execute. The trial Court upheld this plea of the Court of Wards but, in the High Court, it was decided against the Court of Wards and it was held that the statutory right of partition vesting in the co-sharer of joint property was not abrogated by the property coming under the superintendence of the Court of Wards: see pp. 65 to 67 of the printed paper book. It was, therefore, held on December 10, 1929, that the present plaintiffs were entitled to apply for execution of their decree. It is not very clear what happened afterwards but probably the explanation furnished by the learned Counsel for the respondents is correct that, in order to finance his suit, Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah had entered into an agreement with some person named Alopi Parshad to give him 3/16ths of the property to which he was entitled if his claim to be the legitimate son succeeded. After the death of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah, this person had brought a suit which went up to the Privy Council and which was finally decreed in Alopi Parshad's favour. By reason of the pendency of this suit, it appears that the plaintiffs were not over anxious to execute this decree for partition which they had obtained as they were to partition 3/16ths of the property with Alopi Parshad.

The present suit was instituted by the plaintiffs and called itself a suit for administration, partition and rendition of accounts. The suit was brought on October 28, 1937. The written statement of the defendant Court of Wards, the main contesting defendant, is at pp. 9 and 10 of the printed paper book. Various pleas were raised in that which do not now concern us, but finally the trial Court granted a preliminary decree for partition of the property left by Mirza Suraya Jah and Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah to the present plaintiffs. As held in previous litigations, the Court decided that it could not go into the question of accounts so far as the pensions and jagirs were concerned. It granted the right to administration and separation of the share of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah and the right to take accounts of the property left by Mirza Suraya Jah in the same manner in which it would have been done if a suit had been brought for the administration of Mirza Suraya Jha's estate. The Court however, noted that the heirs of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah could not take any advantage of any payment made by the Court of Wards out of the pensions and jagirs as these heirs of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah were held not to be entitled to the pensions and jagirs. A preliminary decree was ordered to be drawn up in the terms of form No. 17, Appx. D, for administration by next of kin. The plaintiffs have brought the present appeal from that decision. They have raised various points but these were not pressed and finally only two points remain for decision by this Court. The contention of the learned Counsel for the appellants was that by reason of the directions of the Govt. embodied in Ex. D 3 to which reference has already been made, the pension payable after the death of Mirza Suraya Jah, i. e., from 1913 onwards, was to be used for discharging the debts of Mirza Suraya Jah. Those debts had been discharged and therefore the present plaintiffs were entitled to get the property left by Mirza Suraya Jah without any reference to the incumbrances created by Mirza Suraya Jah which had been discharged by the payments made out of the pensions and jagirs.

On the other hand, the learned Counsel for the respondents contended that the present plaintiffs had no right to those pensions and jagirs and that the moment the Govt. had appointed a head of the family which they did in 1931 appointing Mirza Khair-ud-Din Khurshid Jah to be the head of the family, the pensions and jagirs vested in him, the claim of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah and of his heirs having been rejected by the Govt. Therefore, if the Court of Wards had paid any moneys from 1914 onwards to discharge the debts of Mirza Suraya Jah, including the mortgage created in favour of the Secretary of State, they had done so in order to preserve the property for the benefit of the heirs. Therefore if the heirs of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah required partition of the property they could not do so unless they recouped the Court of Wards for the money spent in preserving the property on their behalf from the attack of other creditors, including the Secretary of State for India. For this proposition, the learned Advocate-General has relied on Dakhina Mohun v. Saroday Mohan (2) at p. 148, and there is no doubt that, as a general proposition, the proposition of law which he contends is correct. For instance, if A sues B for partition and B claims that he has discharged the mortgage debt of the entire estate, B is entitled to demand from A that, before A gets partition, A should recoup B for the proportionate share of the mortgage which had been paid off by B alone.

The only point that the learned Counsel for the appellant could urge in reply was that this money did not belong to the Court of Wards at all but, as rightly pointed out by the Advocate-General, that is a question entirely between the Court of Wards and Mirza Khair ud Din Khurshid Jah, now the admitted head of the family, and as between the appellants and the Court of Wards, the Court of Wards is entitled to say that partition should be subject to their rights of recoupment and therefore the trial Court was right in holding that the heirs of Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah cannot take any advantage of payments made by the Court of Wards out of the pensions and jagirs. What the effect of that finding may be would be left to the final decree and the taking of accounts, but it will be subject to the remarks made above.

The next point that arose was on the cross-objections of the respondents who claimed that no suit for partition lay at all. The learned Advocate-General contended that the decision of the High Court in the previous case was not res judicata because that was only as to the right to execute a decree for partition already obtained. The present partition suit was obviously based on a different cause of action and the decision being one purely on a point of law could not be res judicata in a subsequent suit. The learned Counsel for the appellant on the other hand contended that the decision was res judicata for, though the cause of action might be different, the subject-matter was the same, namely the right to partition the same property between the same parties or their legal representatives and therefore the decision was res judicata. It is unnecessary to decide this point because it seems to me on the merits that the contention of the learned Advocate-General is not correct. The learned Advocate-General relied on s 13, Court of Wards Act, for the purpose of contending that when superintendence of the property of a joint proprietor or any person had been assumed by the Court of Wards then the property of that person vested in the Court of Wards and had continued to be so vested until there was a divestiture by reason of the provisions of the Act or as otherwise provided in due course of law. It appears to me however that the reasoning in the previous judgment is correct that the Court of Wards Act does not expressly bar the right of a joint proprietor to bring a suit for partition of his share in joint property. It may be that the Court of Wards is entitled to take possession of the property of a joint proprietor along with a ward of the Court of Wards; it may be that they can execute leases of such property, but there is nothing in the Act which specifically bars the right of the co-proprietor to bring a suit for partition which is a statutory right conferred on him by the Partition Act and I see no reason, either in law or in equity, that the Court of Wards Act contemplated that the joint proprietor should not bring such a suit to partition his share and thereby avoid the need of superintendence of his property by the Court of Wards. I would therefore hold that this contention fails. The result is that the appeal of the plaintiffs fails and is dismissed with costs. Similarly, the cross-objections fail and are dismissed with costs.

(2) 21 C. 142, (148); 20 I A 160; 6 Sar. 366 (P C.).

Sale, J.—I agree.

D. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Appeal No. 150 of 1939
August 14, 1940
KING, J.

RAJU MUDALI—APPELLANT
versus
CHINNARAJU NAIDU AND OTHERS
—RESPONDENTS

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 9, O XLIII, r. 1 (k)—Appeal, if lies from order refusing to set aside abatement of appeal.

The use of the word "suit" in cl. (k) of r 1, O. XLIII, Civil P C, does not exclude the word "appeal." The expression "refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit" is merely a compendious way of referring to the provisions of O. XXII, r. 9. An appeal, therefore, lies from an order under O. XXII, r. 9 refusing to set aside abatement of appeal. 121 Ind. Cas. 564 (1), dissented from.

A. against an order of the District Court, North Arcot, dated September 12, 1938.

Mr. A. C. Sampath Ayyangar, for the Appellant.

Mr. Ch. Raghava Rao, for the Respondents.

Judgment.—This is an appeal filed under O. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (k), Civil P. C., against an order of the learned District Judge of North Arcot refusing to set aside the abatement of A. S. No. 214 of 1936. The appellant is the legal representative of the appellant who was on record in A. S. No. 214 of 1936. He applied to be impleaded and to be allowed to continue the appeal at a time when more than 90 days had elapsed since the death of his predecessor in interest. The reasons for his application were that he was a sepoy undergoing service at Jubbulpore, that he attempted to obtain leave from his commanding officer for the purpose of coming to Vellore and attending to this question of coming on record in the appeal, that the commanding officer refused to grant him leave and that when he eventually granted him leave on receipt of a letter from the Village Munsif, 90 days had expired. The learned District Judge refused to allow the petition on the ground that it was not necessary for the appellant to have obtained the attestation of his commanding officer in Jubbulpore to his affidavit and that he could easily have attended to this matter in the ordinary course of the post. There is no other material available, no affidavit from the commanding officer himself which in the circumstances of the case could hardly be expected, nor any affidavit from the Advocate who represented the appellant or the appellant's predecessor-in-interest.

The learned Advocate for the respondents takes the preliminary objection before me that no appeal lies under O. XLIII, r. (1) (k) and in support of that position cites the case reported in Akkas Mia v. Abdul Aziz (1). That authority certainly supports his view, but on the other hand there are cases in which the Patna High Court has interpreted the clause in O. XLIII, in a different way. It seems to me quite clear on an examination of both O. XXII and O. XLIII, that I should follow the view of the Patna High Court. Order XXII, r. 9 in terms relates only to a suit. It begins: "Where a suit abates,.....no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action." But r. 11 of O. XXII runs as follows: "In the application of this order to appeals, so far as may be, the word 'plaintiff' shall be held to include an appellant,...and the word 'suit' an appeal," and there is no dispute before me that an order that an appeal has abated can be set aside under O. XXII, r. 9 as interpreted by r. 11. Order XLIII, r. 1 (k) reads as follows "an appeal shall lie from an order under s. 9 or O XXII, refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit." It is argued in support of the preliminary objection that the use of the word "suit" in cl. (k) must necessarily exclude the word "appeal." I am unable to accept that argument. It seems to me that the expression "refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit" is merely a compendious way of referring to the provisions of r. 9. As already stated, r. 11 of O. XXII, makes r. 9 applicable to appeals. It would be contrary to all rules of logical interpretation, it seems to me, if the word "suit" in cl. (k) of O. XLIII, r. 1 is to bear a different meaning to what it bears in O. XXII, r. 9. I accordingly overrule the preliminary objection and hold that this appeal does lie.

(1) A I R 1929 Cal. 532; 121 Ind. Cas. 564; 49 C L J 538; 33 C W N 881; Ind. Rul. (1930) Cal. 148.

On the merits of the appeal I think the order of the learned District Judge was not one in which he has rightly exercised his discretion. It may well be that if the appellant had been more familiar with legal procedure or if it were shown that he had been in correspondence with his Advocate during this period, he might have taken other steps to bring himself on record in time. But what he states in his affidavit seems to me to show that he has conducted himself with reasonable diligence in this matter. He has done what one might normally have expected a soldier serving in a foreign province to do. He states that he has prepared an affidavit and that his commanding officer would not sign it. This matter of course has not actually been proved, but it seems to me that it would never have been stated if it were not true, and once the commanding officer had refused to sign the affidavit, one could hardly have expected the appellant to have sought out any other public official in a distant place like Jubbulpore. Although the appellant does not state explicitly that in his mind the only practicable way of bringing himself on record was to come to Vellore and there prepare the necessary affidavit and take the necessary steps, I think it is a reasonable inference from a perusal of the affidavit as a whole that that was the impression which existed in his mind, an impression which in my opinion is not in all the circumstances of this case an unreasonable one. I would, therefore, set aside the order of the learned District Judge and the abatement of the appeal and allow the appellant to be brought on record as the legal representative of the appellant in that appeal and order that the appeal be duly heard and disposed of according to law. In the circumstances of this case I think the fairest order in regard to costs is that each party should bear his own costs throughout.

N.-S. Order accordingly.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

Election Petition

April 29 1940

McNAIR, J.

MOHAMAD HOSSAIN—PETITIONER

versus

MD. RAFFIQUE AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Calcutta Municipal Act (III of 1923 as amended in 1939), ss. 27 (2), 30, 46, 47—Rules under s. 30, r. 14 (1) (iii)—More than one election agent is not permissible—In first nomination paper candidate appointing F as his agent — In subsequent nomination paper he appointing himself as election agent—Previous appointment not revoked—Rejection of all nomination papers held justified—Grounds set up in s. 47 not established—Court, if can declare election void — Petition under ss. 46 and 47 —Returning Officer, if necessary party.

The Calcutta Municipal Act, contemplates a single election agent. More than one election agent is not permissible.

The candidate delivered to the returning officer two nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in writing stating that he had appointed F as his election agent. On a subsequent date he delivered to the returning officer six more nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in which he appointed himself as his election agent without making any attempt to revoke the previous nomination of F as his election agent. There was a scrutiny by the returning officer and he then rejected all the nomination papers on the ground that they contained declarations of more than one election agent. On the construction of r. 14, it was argued that the nomination papers or each of them were valid and that there was no justification for rejecting a valid nomination paper because on comparison with another nomination paper the returning officer discovered that more than one election agent had been appointed It was argued that the returning officer was bound to take each nomination paper as a separate entity and come to his decision on that paper

Held, that the returning officer had no power to decide which was the election agent whom the candidate wanted to appoint, but the candidate had power under s 33 to revoke either of the appointments and had he done so no fault would apparently have been found with the nomination But the nomination and the declaration are both contained in Form I and they are considered as a single unit and if the returning officer was of opinion that the candidate had in his nomination papers failed to comply with the provision of the Act which provides that only one election agent shall be appointed he was justified in rejecting the nomination papers.

Section 46 sets out the grounds on which an application may be made to the Court and s. 47 sets out the grounds on which the election of the returned candidate may be declared void, and unless the grounds set out in s 47 are established the Court is not empowered to declare the election void.

The returning officer need not be made a party to an application under ss. 46 and 47 for getting an election declared void.

Sir, A. K. Roy, (Advocate-General) and Mr. S. C. Roy, for the Petitioner.

Messrs. S. M. Bose and H. N. Sanyal, for the Respondents.

Order.—The petitioner in this application was a candidate from the Muhammad in constituency of Colcotolla No 8 for which there are two seats. The petitioner's nomination was rejected by the returning officer and three other candidates who are made parties to this petition withdrew their candidature, and in the result Mohammad Raffique and Dr. Sayed Zaffar Ahmad were declared elected and their names were published in the Calcutta Gazette. The petitioner contends that the result of the election has been materially affected by the improper rejection of his nomination papers and/or by reason of irregularity in respect of the nomination papers and/or by non-compliance with the provisions of the Act. These submissions which appear in his petition are based on ss. 46 and 47, Cal. Municipal Act, as amended. Two questions arise on this petition: first, as to the validity of the nomination papers which were rejected and secondly, whether the returning officer's decision can be questioned under ss. 46 and 47, Municipal Act. On February 23, 1940 the petitioner delivered to the returning officer two nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in writing stating that the petitioner had appointed Mr. Fazal Ahmed as his election agent. On February 26, 1940 the petitioner delivered to the returning officer six more nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in which he appointed himself as his election agent and on February 27, he delivered five more nomination papers again in each appointing himself by a declaration as his election agent.

There is no question that the nomination papers were within time and it is also clear that in the first two nomination papers Mr. Fazal Ahmad was appointed the petitioner's election agent and in the subsequent nomination papers the petitioner appointed himself. It is noteworthy that in the subequent nomination papers in which the petitioner appointed himself as the nomination agent he did not attempt to revoke the previous nomination of Mr. Fazal Ahmad as his election agent. There was a scrutiny on March 4, by the returning officer and he then rejected all the nomination papers. But on one of the nomination papers containing the declaration that Mr. Fazal Ahmad is the petitioner's election agent the endorsement of the returning officer is as follows: "Rejected as the candidate has appointed himself as his election agent in serial Nos. 11, 12, 13 and some other nomination papers." Similarly, in the other nomination papers, an endorsement has been made giving as the reason for the rejection that another election agent had been nominated in other papers.

With regard to the present election the Provincial Govt. under s. 44, Cal. Municipal Act, is empowered by order to authorize any matter or thing to be done which appears to them necessary for the proper preparation or publication of the first electoral rolls or holding of the elections. That order was issued by the Provincial Govt. and published in the Calcutta Gazette on August 4, 1939. The order substitutes new rules for the rules which previously existed and were issued under s. 30, Municipal Act, for the conduct of elections. During the argument the provisions of this order have been referred to as rules and I shall so refer to them in this judgment. Turning first to the sections of the Act s. 27 sub-s. (2) provides that on or before the date on which a candidate is nominated the candidate shall make in writing and sign a declaration appointing either himself or some other person who is not disqualified to be his election agent. Section 3, sub-s. (29) of the Act defines election agent as the person appointed under s. 27, sub-s. (2) by a candidate as his agent for an election. Section 33 provides that the appointment of an election agent whether the election agent appointed be the candidate himself or not may only be revoked in writing signed by the candidate and lodged with the officer receiving nominations and shall operate from the date on which it is so lodged. From these sections it is clear that the Act contemplates a single election agent and indeed it has not been seriously argued that more than one election agent is permissible. Rule 4 of the Govt. order provides that nominations should be made by means of a nomination paper in Form I annexed to the order and r. 5 provides that each candidate shall deliver to the returning officer a nomination paper completed in Form I. Rule 7 provides that every nomination paper delivered under para. 5 (to which I have referred as r. 5) shall be accompanied by a declaration in writing subscribed by the candidate in the manner laid down in sub-s. (2) of s. 27 of the Act. Sub-s. (2) of s. 27 refers to the declaration appointing an election agent. By r. 10, the returning officer appoints an hour and place for the scrutiny of nomination and r. 14 which is largely relied on by the petitioner refers to the scrutiny of nominations by the returning officer. Rule 14, sub r. (1) provides that the returning officer shall examine nomination papers and decide all objections and empowers him to refuse any nomination on certain grounds. Rule 14 (1) (iii) contains the relevant ground viz., and r. 14, sub-r. (3), so far as it is relevant, provides that nothing contained in clause (iii) or r. 14 (b) shall be deemed to authorize the refusal of the nomination of any candidate on the ground of any irregularity in respect of the nomination paper, if the candidate has been duly nominated by means of another nomination paper in respect of which no irregularity has been committed. Rule 15 provides that the returning officer shall endorse on each nomination paper his decision and if the nomination paper be rejected a brief statement of the reason for such rejection. Now it is clear that the returning officer has rejected these nominations on the ground that they contained declarations of more than one election agent. I have already stated that it is not contested that only one election agent is permissible But on the construction of r. 14 it is argued that the nomination papers or each of them were valid and that there was no justification for rejecting a valid nomination paper because on comparison with another nomination paper the returning officer discovered that more than one election agent had been appointed. It is argued that the returning officer is bound to take each nomination paper as separate entity and come to his decision on that paper and it is further argued that this construction is supported by sub-r. (3) of r. 14.

"that there has been any failure to comply with any of the provisions of the Act or of this order relating to the nomination of candidates"

The returning officer was, in my opinion justified in rejecting these nomniation papers. It is admitted on behalf of the successful candidates that the nomination papers were in order. But it is argued and in my opinion rightly that the returning officer was bound to reject them under r. 14 (1) (iii) because there has been a failure to comply with the provisions of the Act. Section 27 of the Act provides that in each nomination paper the candidate shall sign a declaration appointing either himself or some other person to be his election agent and on looking at the nomination papers the returning officer was made aware that the candidate had attempted to appoint not either himself or some other person but both himself and some other person. The returning officer had no power to decide which was the election agent whom the candidate wanted to appoint, but the candidate had power under s. 33 to revoke either of the appointments and had he done so no fault would apparently have been found with the nomination. But the nomination and the declaration are both contained in Form I and they are considered as a single unit and if the returning officer is of opinion that the candidate has in his nomination papers failed to comply with the provision of the Act which provides that only one election agent shall be appointed he justifide in rejecting the nomination papers. Rule 14, sub-r. (3), is not applicable if each of the nomination papers was valid, and there was no irregularity as contemplated by that sub-rule. But the rejection was for failure to comply with the Act. In support of this view reference has been made to an earlier case which is to be found in Vol. I of Hammond's Report of Indian Election Cases, 1920. The facts in that case are not very clear but apparently each of the respondents filed documents purporting to appoint in one case 26 persons and in the other 18 persons as election agents. The rule there was similar to the rule which is now under contemplation and it was pointed out that unless the view which was taken by the returning officer in this case prevailed it would be possible for the candidate to appoint a number of persons as his election agents when the Act contemplated only a single election agent.

The next point which arises is whether the decision of the returning officer can be questioned on this motion, I have already pointed out in a previous election petition the difficulty of construing ss. 46 and 47 of the Act, but I held there that s. 46 sets out the grounds on which an application may be made to the Court and s. 47 sets out the grounds on which the election of the returned candidate may be declared void, and unless the grounds set out in s. 47 are established the Court is not empowered to declare the election void. The relevant provision of s. 47 is sub-s. (1) (c) on which reliance has been placed here but in my view none of the grounds set out in s. 47 (1) (c) have been contravened and for that reason the decision of the returning officer cannot in any event be questioned. The returning officer has been made a party to this application but in my view he is not a party who should have been joined. He is dismissed from the application and the petitioner must pay his costs. The application is dismissed with costs of all parties appearing.

D. Application dismissed.

RANGOON HIGH COURT

First Appeal No. 37 of 1940
July 4, 1940
DUNKLEY AND BLAGDEN, JJ.
DR. THA MYA—APPELLANT.
versus
MA KIN PU AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS

Burmese Buddhist Law—Maintenance—Suit by wife for—Arrears for period before suit, if can be granted—Law in Burma—Child, if can sue its parents for maintenance—Cause of action—Wife's suit—Husband subsequent to suit taking another wife—This fact, if can form part of wife's cause of action—Difference between English Law and Buddhist Law on wife's right to maintenance—Husband taking second wife—Amount of maintenance to which first wife is entitled—Child's maintenance, if charge on husband's income—Marriage—Dissolution by desertion and a year's absence—Absence of communication—Husband and wife—Cruelty—Onus—Nature of proof—Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898), s. 13 (3)—Expression, according to justice, equity and good conscience", meaning of

In suit by a Buddhist wife against her husband for maintenance, the Court has no jurisdiction to order payment of arrears of maintenance for the period before suit commenced. 82 Ind. Cas 799 (1), relied on. [p. 837, col 1]

In Burma a wife may sue her husband, but a child as such may not sue his parents, for maintenance. Where the circumstances are such that the wife is morally bound to support a child or children that fact may, and should, be taken into account in assessing the quantum of maintenance to be paid to the wife, but she and she alone has a cause of action. [p. 838, col 1]

Where subsequent to the wife's suit for maintenance, the husband has taken a second wife, this cannot, whatever its legal effect, form part of the wife's cause of action in the suit, as a premature suit is incurable by subsequent events Clayton v. Le Roy (6) and 177 Ind Cas 63 (7), referred to.

In Buddhist Law, the spouses are for no purpose one person but of their after-acquired property they are tenants in common The wife's interest in that property is a vested interest in the sense that its existence is indefeasible, but as to its quantum it is highly contingent since this may be affected in various ways It depends for example, on whether the after acquired property is acquired by pure good luck or by the exertions of the spouses jointly or by those of the husband alone and also on the number of subsequent wives the husband may take. The material term to be implied is in reality (unlike that implied by English Law) collateral to the main contract of marriage It is to the effect that the husband shall be the manager of the after-acquired property and shall apply it during the subsistence of the marriage (as to income first in maintaining his wife or wives, his children, and himself, and secondly in adding to the common capital, for which he or his estate will be accountable to each wife or her estate when her marriage terminates The Buddhist husband is therefore under a positive legal duty to maintain his wife, but the nature of the implied term from which that duty arises makes it in one respect more onerous than the corresponding duty of an English husband. The latter when sued for maintenance has a good defence if he pleads and proves that before action brought the wife deserted him without just cause, that being a breach of the contract of marriage going to its root But no marital offence by the wife can take away during the subsistence of the marriage her proprietary rights which, though precarious as regards amount, vested indefeasibly at the moment she married. In other words, the Buddhist husband is sued not qua husband but qua manager, and no wrong done to him in the former capacity can benefit him in the latter. [p. 839, cols. 1 & 2.]

It is essential to dissolution by desertion and a year's absence that during that year there should be absolutely no communication between the spouses [p. 839, col. 1.]

There can be such a thing as mental cruelty but it should be possible to point to some definite words or actions as constituting it. A charge of matrimonial cruelty is a serious matter none the less serious when it is made against a medical man and it is for the party who makes such a charge to prove it if it is denied. If he or she fails to prove it, a Court of law is bound to presume that it is unfounded, mere failure to control a daughter of 17—often no easy task—cannot either alone or in conjunction with anything else amount to cruelty to her step-mother. [p. 840, cols. 1 & 2]

In Burmese Buddhist Law, the general rule is that wife is entitled by way of maintenance to an amount which is one-third of the income acquired by the exertions of her monogamous husband. But when the husband takes a second wife the amount of maintenance to which the first wife is entitled, is reduced, to one sixth of his income and the costs of maintaining children is first charge on the income.

The phrase "according to justice, equity and good conscience" generally speaking, means English Law if applicable to the society and circumstances of Burma. Waghela Rajsanji v. Shekh Masludin (2), relied on.

F. A. against the decree of the District Court, Insein, dated February 10, 1940.

Mr. U E Maung (1), for the Appellant.

Mr. N. K. Bhatacharyya, for the Respondents.

Blagden, J—This is an appeal by the defendant in a suit for maintenance commenced in the District Court of Insein. There is also a cross-objection by each respondent-plaintiff. Respondent-plaintiff No. 1 on April 27, 1939 presented to that Court a petition for leave to sue in forma pauperis Her then proposed plaint lodged with the petition prayed for Rs. 200 monthly from the date of the suit for maintenance of herself and Rs 50 for the maintenance and support of her minor son. Pending a decision on the petition, respondent No 1 filed a proposed amended plaint making the infant son a co-plaintiff suing by herself as next friend. Leave was given to sue in forma pauperis on July 7, 1939 (on which date, accordingly, the proposed plaint became an effective plaint and the suit must be held to have commenced), and to amend the plaint on October 3, 1939. Judgment was given on February 10, 1940 and an order passed in favour of the adult plaintiff for Rs. 100 a month and of the infant plaintiff for Rs. 40 a month as from July 6, 1939. The appellant contends (amongst other things) that both sums are excessive and the respondents that neither is adequate. The latter also take a minor point, viz., that the order should have been ante-dated to April 27, 1939. For the reasons already given this contention is erroneous there being no jurisdiction to order payment of arrears of maintenance for the period before suit commenced. Ma Saw Nwe v. U Aung Soe (1).

The first point argued before us concerned the claim of the infant plaintiff which, it was contended by the appellant, is bad in law. This contention is, in my opinion, well founded. I cannot conceive any reasonable system of law which allows children, as such, to take civil proceedings to compel their parents to maintain them. The logical consequences of such a state of things are palpably absurd. If a child in infancy has a civil right to be maintained in idleness by those responsible for its existence, at what age does it lose that right? No such age has been fixed either by the common law or by statute, and therefore if the right ever exists it is never lost. The whole structure of civilized society depends on (amongst other things) people doing work, which is seldom in itself a pleasure. But in a free country the forces which impel people (other than convicts) to do work are economic and not legal. The existence of any such right would therefore mean that orphans, and only orphans, would have any incentive to do any work. Consequently, all that has to be done would have to be done by the eldest living generation in each family—generally speaking, by middle-aged people themselves made incompetent to do it not only by their age but also by a youth of enervating sloth during which they in their time had battened in blissful indolence on their unfortunate parents. If such had ever been the law, the civilized world would have plunged into chaos long before it in fact did. Nor is authority lacking to disprove the existence of any such right. A suit by a child against its father for maintenance is not mentioned in s. 13 (1), Burma Laws Act. Therefore the question (unlike that of a wife's maintenance, which is a part of the law of marriage) does not fall to be determined by Buddhist Law but, by sub-s. (3) of that section and must be decided "according to justice, equity and good conscience". This, generally speaking, means English Law if applicable to the society and circumstances of this country: Waghela Rajsanji v. Shekh Masludin (2) at p. 561.

Now, the English Law on the point is perfectly clear. Parents or persons in loco parentis who let their infant children starve or who run away leaving them chargeable on the parish are liable to criminal prosecution. The Parish (now the Public Assistance Committee) which relieves the necessities of poor persons may in certain cases recover its expenses from their more affluent relatives (including parents) under what used to be called the Poor Law. But a direct action by a child as such for maintenance against its parent is not only unheard of but contrary to the dicta on the subject of Lawrence, J. in Cooper v. Martin (3) at p. 84 and of Cockburn, C. J., in Bagley v. Forder (4) the latter, it is true, formed part of a dissenting judgment but the point of difference between the learned Chief Justice and his brethren does not affect the present question. Neither of these dicta has ever been doubted, and they were recognized as good law by Salter, J., in Coldingham Parish Council v. Smith (5). Moreover, these three cases are cited in the Hailsham edition of Halsbury's "Laws of England" Vol. 17, Title Infants —Children' para. 1393, in support of the proposition that "except under the operation of the Poor Law there is no actual legal obligation on a father or mother to maintain a child, unless the neglect to do so would bring the case within the criminal law"

The title 'Infants and Children' has the high authority of Sir Boyd Merriman, now President of the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court in England. Against the appellant's case, which both in principle and in authority is in my opinion overwhelming, reliance on behalf of the infant respondent is placed on a passage in U E Maung's work and a note in May Oung's leading cases, Edn. 2, p. 53. As to the former, the argument of Counsel who relies on the published opinion of his adversary is always piquant, but if U E Maung did mean to express an opinion inconsistent with his present case he is not irrevocably committed to it and would be the first to admit that the opinion he express-

(1) 1939 Rang. 527; 182 Ind. Cas. 799; A I R 1939 Rang. 223; 12 R Rang. 28.

(2) 11 B 551 (561); 14 I A 89; 11 Ind. Jur. 315; 5 Sar. 16 (P C).

(3) 4 East 76 (84).

(4) (1842-43) 3 Q B 559.

(5) (1918) 2 K B 90; 87 L J K B 816; 118 L T 817; 82 J P 170; 16 L G R 376; 26 Cox. C C 260.

ed may be erroneous. I do not think that Mr. Bhattacharya's ingenious attempt to "hoist him with his own petard" should succeed. As to the later, the passage cited runs thus :

"Under Buddhist Law, it is part of the law of marriage that a man must maintain and support his wife and children. Hence, a civil action to enforce this duty will lie."

No authority is cited for it, and it is not said who is the proper plaintiff. It is unthinkable that both the child and its mother should be entitled to bring the suggested suit. It must be one or the other. A passage a few lines lower down reads :

"Even for future maintenance it is doubtful whether a decree can be given against a man where the wife has sufficient means of her own, though it may be argued that she has every right to expect support from him, since his obligation to maintain her is an essential incident of marriage. But, as regards children, a suit for maintenance by the mother even if she herself be wealthy is reasonable, except where the couple have been divorced and the father has given them up to her."

Given that in the contemplated circumstances the mother can sue, it follows that the child cannot, and this passage is therefore against the infant respondent. In any event, as I have said, Buddhist Law is inapplicable. Therefore, in my opinion, the true view of the law of this country is that a wife may sue her husband, but a child as such may not sue his parents, for maintenance. Where, as here, the circumstances are such that the wife is morally bound to support a child or children that fact may, and should be taken into account in assessing the quantum of maintenance to be paid to the wife, but she and she alone has a cause of action. The appeal against the judgment in favour of the infant plaintiff must therefore be allowed and his suit dismissed. As to the appeal against the judgment in favour of the adult plaintiff, her plaint, as I have said became effective on July 6, 1939. It set out that the parties were Burmese Buddhists and intermarried on July 21, 1937 when the adult plaintiff was a spinster and the defendant a widower with four children and that there was issue of the marriage one son (the infant plaintiff) born on April 27, 1938 and since June 26, 1938 in the sole custody of the adult plaintiff. All these facts the defendant by his written statement admitted.

The plaint then, with a fine disregard for the rules of pleading, set out, at considerable length, the main evidence which the adult plaintiff proposed to adduce, before alleging (which it did with a remarkable lack of proper particulars) the material facts which the plaintiff hoped thereby to prove, namely, separation of the spouses, justification for it, and neglect to maintain. The matrimonial offences of the defendant relied on as justifying the adult plaintiff's living apart were cruelty and the taking by the defendant of a second wife without the adult plaintiff's consent. The plaint averred the means of the defendant to be in the adult plaintiff's estimate Rs. 1,000 a month, made a wholly unnecessary submission as to what the adult plaintiff's legal rights were; and concluded with formal averments and a prayer which I have already mentioned. The main body of the pleading consisted of a precis of correspondence between the defendant and the plaintiff's father, the former demanding of the latter money by threatening in default of payment to return the adult plaintiff to him, and the latter stoutly refusing either to part with his money or to receive back his daughter. The defendant's lack of affection for the adult plaintiff, avowed in this correspondence, might have been some evidence corroborative of the adult plaintiff if and when she ultimately (as she did) gave evidence of cruelty. In no other way were these letters in the least material to the adult plaintiff's case and why they were all pleaded passes my comprehension. The defendant by his amended written statement filed on October 12, 1939 was almost equally discursive. He rightly demurred to the claim of the infant plaintiff and he admitted the allegations as to the religion and marriage of the parties, their previous status, the birth of their child, their de facto separation, and child's subsequent custody.

He admitted, subject to reference, the correspondence pleaded and averred that his letters therein contained were written with the plaintiff's prior approval. He denied the allegations of cruelty, and pleaded his intended evidence about this at considerable length. He also pleaded a divorce by consent on June 26, 1938: alternatively, desertion without just cause by the adult plaintiff on that date, and a consequent divorce (he should have said dissolution of marriage) on June 26, 1939: and in the further alternative he alleged that these parties were at all material times living apart by mutual consent. He admits having taken a wife subsequently to June 26, 1938, though it appeared before us that this event only took place after suit commenced. This may therefore be, and I think it is, a material factor in the defendant's favour on the question of amount. But as it took place after suit commenced it could not, whatever its legal effect, form part of the adult plaintiff's cause of action in this suit, since a premature suit is incurable by subsequent events: see Clayton v. Le Roy (6) and Smith v. Mrs. Hextonstall (7). The defendant further pleads that he offered the adult plaintiff Rs. 20 a month as maintenance for the infant, that it was refused, and that it was adequate. He denies the allegations as to his income and (after following his wife's bad example by inserting a short treatise on the law applicable to the case) concludes with a general traverse. On these pleadings nine issues were framed and after a trial lasting some seven days judgment was delivered on February 10, 1940. As I have already dealt with the question on which I differ from the learned District Judge (that of liability to the infant plaintiff) and as I agree with him (in the result) on the main question (that of liability to the adult plaintiff) I do not think I need deal in detail with those issues or that judgment. As it seems to me, there is, on those facts which are not in dispute, a complete answer to the defendant's case on the main question.

This arises from the difference between the nature of a wife's right to maintenance under the English and under the Buddhist Law. Both, I apprehend arise from a term implied by law in marriage. The English Law implies a term that the husband shall choose the social standard to which the household shall aspire and shall during the subsistence of that marriage maintain his wife, regard being had to her own means of reaching it, at the standard he has selected, out of his own pocket. This implied term goes to the very root of marriage, considered as a contract. The effect of the Buddhist Law is probably in nine cases out of ten much the same, but the principle on which it proceeds is radically different. In Buddhist Law, the spouses are for no purpose one person but of their after-acquired property they are tenants in common. The wife's interest in that property is vested interest in the sense that its existence is indefeasible, but as to its quantum it is highly contingent, since this may be affected in various ways. It depends, for example, on whether the after acquired property is acquired by pure good luck or by the exertions of the spouses jointly or by those of the husband alone and also on the number of subsequent wives the husband may take. The material term to be implied is in reality (unlike that implied by English Law) collateral to the main contract of marriage. It is to the effect that the husband shall be the manager of the after acquired property and shall apply it during the subsistence of the marriage (as to income) first in maintaining his wife or wives, his children, and himself, and secondly in adding to the common capital, for which he or his estate will be accountable to each wife or her estate when her marriage terminates. The Buddhist husband is therefore under a positive legal duty to maintain his wife, Ma Saw Nwe v. U Aung Soe (1), but the nature of the implied term from which that duty arises makes it in one respect more onerous than the corresponding duty of an English husband.

The latter when sued for maintenance has a good defence if he pleads and proves that before action was brought the wife deserted him without just cause, that being a breach of the contract of marriage going to its root. But no marital offence by the wife can take away during the subsistence of the marriage her proprietary rights which, though precarious as regards amount, vested indefeasibly at the moment she married. In other words, the Buddhist husband is sued not qua husband but qua manager, and no wrong done to him in the former capacity can benefit him in the latter. From this it follows that the only valid pleas here pleaded by the appellant are those directed to showing that before suit brought his marriage to the adult respondent had been determined either (a) by mutual consent or (b) by desertion and a year's absence. As to the former his own evidence as to what took place on June 26, 1938 both as pleaded in para. 5 of his written statement and as deposed at p. 100 reversed is inconsistent with any such consent. As to the latter, it is essential to dissolution by desertion and a year's absence that during that year there should be absolutely no communication between the spouses. Here it is common ground that there was such communication. Therefore, the marriage was at the date the suit was commenced, and indeed is still, subsisting. The appellant is therefore liable to pay maintenance to the adult respondent, and the only remaining question is one of amount. But before dealing with that, one thing must be said, in fairness to the appellant. The adult respondent's case as regards cruelty consisted of three parts. Firstly, there was the pleaded correspondence of December 1937. It is obvious that she was contemporaneously aware of this correspondence. One would have thought, this being so that she would have written entreating her father to relent from the attitude that she would "get into trouble" if she came home, and to receive her back; that is, at least, if in December 1937 her husband's treatment of her amounted to cruelty. The probable explanation of the fact that she did not do so is that the defendant's version of the facts about his correspondence is true, and if it be true the adult plaintiff's evidence as a whole comes under grave suspicion. I do not understand why the learned Judge said "I do not think that any serious notice can be taken of the defendant's explanation." Secondly, the adult plaintiff gave a lot of rather nebulous evidence which induced the learned Judge to find that the defedent "adopted such an offensive and bitter attitude towards the plaintiff that made it impossible for the plaintiff to continue to live with him and at the same time to enjoy peace of mind."

(6) (1911) 2 K B 1031; 81 L J K B 49; 105 L T 430; 75 J P 521; 27 T L R 479.

(7) 1938 Rang. 6; 177 Ind. Cas. 63; A I R 1938 Rang. 134; 11 R Rang. 95.

That there can be such a thing as mental cruelty no one will deny, but it should be possible to point to some definite words or actions as constituting it, and if there were such conduct by the defendant as to have the effect found by the learned Judge it must surely have been conduct capable of being described a little more precisely than as "an offensive and bitter attitude." How, I ask, could any man meet a charge so vaguely expressed? It does seem that the learned Judge has (without any clear evidence that the appellant took the side of his daughter, his mother, or his sister, or instigated them or any of them to be unpleasant to his wife) saddled the defendant with responsibility for the quarrels which undoubtedly did take place between these ladies and the adult respondent. Consequently, he has, I think, regarded those quarrels as being an ingredient in the defendant's alleged cruelty. This is, of course, quite wrong. I have little doubt that the real source of the trouble in this case was too many women in one house, especially as the adult plaintiff was quite young enough to be the defendant's eldest daughter's sister. But whatever the rights and wrong of the resulting and almost inevitable squabbles mere failure to control a daughter of 17—often no easy task—cannot either alone or in conjunction with anything else amount to cruelty to her step-mother. Thirdly, the adult respondent deposed to three acts of physical violence about which her evidence was almost wholly uncorroborated and which she never pleaded or, it seems, mentioned to a living soul before she entered the witness-box. The learned Judge did not accept her evidence as satisfactory proof of these assaults, and, for my part, I go a step further and say flatly that I do not believe it. But the learned Judge said this:

"It does not necessarily follow that the plaintiff's allegations are not true though they may be said not to have been proved."

In my opinion this was a most unjudicial and improper observation. A charge of matrimonial cruelty is a serious matter none the less serious when it is made against a medical man and it is for the party who makes such a charge to prove it if it is denied. If he or she fails to prove it, a Court of law is bound to presume that it is unfounded, and I cannot too strongly deprecate an observation from the Bench which casts an unpleasant innuendo at a party merely for failure to discharge a burden which does not rest on him. In my considered opinion, the issue of cruelty in this suit should have been answered in favour of the appellant, and I think it unfortunate that for the reasons already given it is not strictly necessary for us to decide this question. With regard to amount a wife in England is as a general rule allowed by way of maintenance the amount necessary to bring her own income up to one-third of the parties' combined incomes. By a pure, but curious, coincidence one-third is the quantum of her interest in Burmese Buddhist Law in property acquired by the exertions of a monogamous husband. In the present case, there is no property not so acquired, the only income out of which the adult respondent can be paid being the professional earnings of the appellant. The only evidence as to their amount is that of the appellant himself who says that he earns Rs. 740 a month in salary etc, plus a negligible sum in private practice. If it were shown that a particular couple either did in fact live well below their income, or should reasonably have done so, one would be inclined to give the wife less than one-third of such income, leaving a balance to accumulate as capital and to be accounted for at the determination of the marriage. But in the circumstances of this case, if there were no other wife, I think it would be reasonable to give the respondent about one-third. By her cross-objection the adult respondent limits the amount she claims to Rs. 150. Apart from the appellant's having now taken another wife the claim to Rs. 150 would have been very moderate indeed since one-third of Rs. 740 is Rs. 246-10-8, and in English Law the new wife would, I think, have been regarded as a mere encumbrancer subsequent to the adult respondent. But as, in Burmese Buddhist Law, the appellant was within his rights in taking her to wife provided he maintains the adult respondent, her marriage to the appellant reduces the expectant share of the adult respondent from one-third to one-sixth and U E Maung contends that we should not give the wife any more than one-sixth of the income or she will in effect have overdrawn her capital account when her marriage is dissolved.

This argument however ignores the costs of maintaining the infant respondent. The costs of maintaining children must, I think, be a first charge on income in this sense that if a married couple do not acquire any accretions of capital but succeed in saving out of income, so that there is something to divide when their marriage is dissolved, that divisible surplus is the residue left not after starving but after feeding the issue of the marriage. Rupees 20 is, I think, rather too little to allow as the cost of maintaining the child and Rs. 40 too much. I would propose to split the difference and call it Rs. 30, and deduct this sum from the appellant's income which leaves Rs. 710. One-sixth of this is Rs. 118-5-4. I would then propose (as the adult plaintiff has the child to provide for(to add to this figure Rs. 30 which I first deducted which gives Rs. 148-5-4. As the child grows older he will cost more than he now does and, therefore, I should feel justified in giving the adult respondent the round sum claimed by her cross-objection, viz., Rs. 150, though it is a little more than that to which I think she is mathematically entitled as matters now stand. Respondent No. 1 has succeeded on her cross-objection while the appellant has succeeded as against the infant respondent. Strictly speaking he has failed on the main point, but that which I suppose was an important object in his appeal—namely to rid himself of the stigma of cruelty—he has obtained. That charge in my view should never have been made.

The appeal against respondent No. 2 is therefore allowed and the suit of respondent No. 2 is dismissed. The appeal as against respondent No. 1 fails, and is dismissed. The cross-objection of respondent No. 2 is dismissed. The cross-objection of respondent No. 1 is allowed, and the appellant is ordered to pay maintenance to her at the rate of Rs. 150 per month from July 6, 1939, and the decree of the District Court will be varied accordingly. As regards costs, the decree of the District Court in regard to the costs of the suit, including the order that the defendant-appellant shall pay the court-fees which would have been paid if respondent No. 1 had not been permitted to sue in forma pauperis will stand. The parties will respectively bear their own costs of this appeal and the cross-objections, but respondent No. 1 is ordered to pay the court-fees on the cross-objection, both in regard to her own cross-objection and also to the cross-objection on behalf of the infant respondent, which would have been paid if the cross-objections had not been permitted to be filed in forma pauperis.

Dunkley, J—A claim by a wife for maintenance is clearly a question regarding marriage, and therefore when the parties are Buddhists the Buddhist Law must form the rule of decision by reason of the provisions of s. 13 (1), Burma Laws Act, and it is for this reason that the suit of respondent No. 1 against the appellant for her maintenance is sustainable, as I have held in Ma Saw Nwe v. U Aung Soe (1). But a claim by a child against its father for maintenances is not a question regarding either succession, inheritance, marriage, caste or any religious usage or institution, and therefore sub-s. (1) of s. 13, Burma Laws Act, has no application to such a suit; but in accordance with sub-s. (3), if there is no statutory law dealing with the matter, the decision must be according to justice, equity and good conscience. The only statutory provision dealing with the matter is s. 488, Criminal P. C., which provides for an order by a Magistrate after a summary enquiry and does not give a right of suit. As my learned brother has pointed out, the phrase "justice, equity and good consicence" means the English Common Law, so far as it can be applicable in this country, and under the English Common Law a child cannot bring an action against its parents for its maintenance, and on this ground the suit of respondent No. 2 was bound to fail. I agree with my learned brother that the charges of cruelty by respondent No. 1 against the appellant ought never to have been made and I am in entire agreement with his observations in regard thereto. I also agree that the rate of maintenance allowance to be granted to respondent No. 1 should be enhanced to Rs. 150 per mensem. I agree with his order as to the costs of the suit and this appeal.

D. Order accordingly.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

Appeals Nos. 203 of 1938 and 5 of 1939

November 24, 1939

R. C. MITTER AND LODGE, JJ.

RAJENDRA KISHORE BASU ROY AND OTHERS—DECREE HOLDERS—APPELLANTS

versus

Kumar PROMOTHA NATH ROY AND OTHERS—JUDGMENT-DEBTORS—RESPONDENTS

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151—Ambiguous decree of first Court affirmed by High Court—Subsequent removal of ambiguity by reviewing its own judgment—Decree not embodying directions in final judgment passed on review—Decree, if can be brought into conformity with final judgment—High Court, power of, to order necessary amendment.

High Court affirmed an ambiguous decree of the Court of first instance but by reviewing its own judgment, subsequently removed the ambiguity. But the judgment which was final between the parties passed on review contained the directions which had not been embodied in the decree;

Held, that there was no bar in subsequently bringing the decree into conformity with the final judgment where the rights of third parties had not been intervened. The High Court could, if necessary, itself order the aforesaid amendment of the decree.

As. from the appellate orders of the Additional District Judge Second Court, Dacca, dated August 23, 1938.

Dr. Basak, Messrs. H. K. Das, Radhikaranjan Guha, Satyendra Kishore Ghose and Ramendra Chandra Roy (in No. 203), and A. C. Gupta and Priya Nath Dutt (in No. 5), for the Appellants.

Messrs. A. C. Gupta and Priya Nath Dutt (in No. 203) and Dr. Basak, Messrs. H. K. Das, Radhikaranjan Guha, Satyendra Kishore Ghose and Mihir Mohan Chatterjee, (in No. 5), for the Respondents.

Judgment.—Appeal No. 203 has been preferred by the decree-holders and No. 5 by the judgment-debtors. They relate to the execution of a decree passed in Suit No. 65 of 1911 which was subsequently numbered as 40 of 1912. The question involved in these appeals relates to the extent of land to which the decree-holders are entitled to get joint possession. There were many proceedings between the parties since the decree had been passed some of these have bearing on the contentions raised before us by the learned Advocates of the parties. It is therefore necessary to recite some facts. The Behar zamindars are many in number. In 1911 they instituted five suits in respect of the self-same land. All the Behar zamindars were not plaintiffs in the same suit, but some of them were plaintiffs and the rest pro forma defendants. The principal defendants were many in number. We are concerned in this appeal only with defendants Nos. 112 to 114 and with the decree passed in Suit No. 40 of 1912. For brevity's sake the said defendants are called Raja brothers in these appeals. The other suits filed by the other Behar zamindars in 1911 were Nos. 198, 199, 91 and 90 of 1911 which were subsequently numbered Nos. 9, 52, 42 and 45 respectively. Some time after the institution of these five suits which were tried analogously, a Commissioner was appointed for local investigation. At the time of the local investigation the plaintiffs in these suits pointed out to him the disputed land. The Commissioner in his map has shown the disputed land as shown to him as bounded by the yellow lines. A good portion of the land so pointed out to the Commissioner was outside the plaint as originally filed. A portion of it which was not in the original plaint, was found in the possession of the Raja brothers who were not parties defendants to the suit as originally filed. They were later on added as parties defendants, being defendants Nos. 112 to 114, and by two petitions filed in Court by the plaintiffs dated September 13, and December 9, 1915 this additional land which was shown to the Commissioner at the time of the local investigation, as being part of the disputed land, was asked to be included in the plaint. The amendments were allowed on December 17, 1915 and on December 23, 1915 the Court of first instance pronounced its judgment.

At the time of the local investigation, the Commissioner was asked to rely on the case map plot No. 1 (pratham khanda) of a map which has been marked Ex. 101. He has indicated the first plot of the said map by red lines. He has also indicated certain Mouzas in plot No. 1 of the said map, Ex. 101, with the dotted lines. This map, Ex. 101, in which two plots are indicated as pratham khanda and dwitiya khanda is a part of Ex. 108, a compromise decree passed in the year 1892 in a suit between the predecessors-in-interest of the plaintiffs in the said five suits, and the predecessors-in-interest of the Raja brothers who were added as defendants, not only in Suit No. 40 but also in the remaining four suits. From the judgment of the first Court, it appears that the plaintiffs based their claim to the portion of the disputed land which is the subject-matter of the appeals which we have to deal with, on the title given to them by the compromise decree of 1892, namely Ex. 108 of which the map Ex. 101 is a part. The judgment of the first Court in favour of the plaintiffs proceeds upon Ex. 108, so far as this part of the case is concerned. By Ex. 108 the plaintiffs' predecessors were not given title to the whole of the pratham khanda of the map Ex. 101, but only to portions thereof. Plot No. 1 of the said map Ex. 101 covers the following Mouzas, namely, Naogaon, Karpara, Birlapur, Hatarbhog and Duttogaon. The plaintiffs' predecessors were given title to the whole of Hatarbhog, and Dattagaon, and a portion, nearly one-half of Karpara and Birlapur which are within the red line indicated in the said map: and the predecessors of the Raja brothers, sixteen anna of Naogaon and the rest of Karpara and Birlapur outside the said line. In the decree, however, which was drawn by the Court of first instance the plaintiffs of suit No. 40 were given possession of :

"the lands to the south of plot No. 4 of Suit No. 9 of 1912, that is to the south of the attached char lands within plot No 2 according to the amended plaint of the suit, which fall within the ambit of the map Ex. 101."

Similar decrees were passed in favour of the plaintiffs of the remaining four suits which we have mentioned above. As three of the other suits were valued at over Rs. 5,000 the Raja brothers preferred three first appeals to this Court, namely No. 282 of 1916, No. 5 of 1917 and No. 23 of 1917. As Suit No. 40 of 1912 was valued at less than Rs. 5,000 an appeal was preferred by the Raja brothers against the decree of the trial Court to the District Judge. The learned Judge allowed the said appeal and dismissed that suit. Two second appeals were preferred to this Court against the decree of the learned District Judge. We are concered with the second Appeal No. 164 of 1919 which was an appeal preferred to this Court by the plaintiffs in the said suit. The said second appeals and the three first appeals were heard analogously by a Division Bench of this Court and the judgment was pronounced on September 1, 1920. The effect of the judgment, in so far as it is material for our present purpose, is that the Raja brothers were given three months' time to file an additional written statement, apparently on the ground, that the Court of first instance had allowed amendment of the plaint after the hearing and shortly before the delivery of judgment. It was said that if the Raja brothers availed of the opportunity of filing an additional written statement, a supplementary decree would be passed by the Court of first instance. But if they did not, in that case the decree passed by the Court of first instance would stand. No additional written statement was filed by the Raja brothers, with the result that the decree as passed by the Court of first instance stood confirmed. That is the final decree passed in the suit between the parties. Some time afterwards, applications for Receiver were filed by the Raja brothers in this Court, in the three first appeals and also in Second Appeal No. 164 of 1919, and four review rules were issued, namely, 2-F to 4-F and 2-S of 1921. The first three rules related to the three first appeals and the last mentioned rule to the second appeal. The three rules 2-F to 4-F were heard together and were made absolute. The order passed in the rules is dated April 11, 1922. The material portion of the said order is as follows :

"And further that subject to the defence we have mentioned, the plaintiffs are further entitled to all lands within their estate or decreed to them by the consent decree of 1892, up to the southern red line in the Commissioner's map which represents the corresponding line in the map connected with the consent decree of 1892."

This Court directed that the decrees in the first appeals should be prepared by including the aforesaid direction. In the review rule No. 2-S of 1921, it was stated that it was not necessary to amend the judgment pronounced in the second appeal inasmuch as in the said judgment it was stated that the judgment in the second appeal would follow the judgment passed in the first appeals, and inasmuch as the judgment of the first appeals would now embody what was stated in the order passed in the review rules in connection with the first appeals, the portion which was added to the judgment, as a result of the review applications, would necessarily be incorporated in the judgment of the second appeal. In the decree, however, of the second appeal which was signed on July 3, 1922, that portion of the review order which we have quoted above, and which was incorporated in the judgment of the second appeal was not recited but the decree drawn up by this Court simply said that if the Raja brothers did not avail of the opportunity given to them, of filing an additional written statement, the decree of the first Court as passed in Suit No. 40 would stand. After the final judgment and the decree passed by this Court execution proceedings for enforcing the decree passed in Suit No. 40 were started. It is not necessary for us to detail the whole course of the execution proceedings; but there are three orders, one passed by the Court of first instance and two by this Court, which are relevant. The order passed by the Court of first instance is Order No. 130 dated January 24, 1927, and the two orders passed by this Court are dated August 20, 1935 and January 13, 1937 passed respectively in Appeals from Appellate Orders Nos. 224 of 1935 and 319 of 1936. We shall have to deal with the effect of these orders later on because one part of the argument of Dr. Basak who appears for the decree-holders, is based on these three orders.

As we have stated above, the present appeal relate to the question as to what land the decree-holders are entitled to take joint possession of in execution of the decree passed in suit No. 40. We have stated before that the map Ex. 101 consists of two portions described as pratham khanda and dwitiya khanda. The decree-holders' contention is that they are entitled to joint possession in respect of their share, of all the lands south of plot No. 4 in suit No. 9 which are included in both the khandas of map, Ex. 101. That is the extreme contention of the decree-holders. Alternatively, they say that they are entitled to joint possession in their share, of all the lands included in the pratham khanda of Ex. 101, that is to say, they are not only entitled to joint possession of all the lands of Hatarbhog and Dattagaon, but also of all the lands of Karpara, Birlapur and Naogaon.

The contentions of the judgment-debtors, the Raja brothers, are: (1) that the decree-holders cannot go beyond the southern yellow line depicted by the Commissioner in the case map, and (2) that they are not entitled to all the lands up to the sourthern yellow line, but only of such portions thereof as fall within the pratham khanda of map, Ex. 101, and even then they are not entitled to the whole of the said portion, but only to so much as was decreed to their predecessor-in-interest in 1892 by the compromise decree, Ex. 108, of which the map Ex. 101 is a part. The contention therefore of the judgment-debtors in effect is that the decree-holders can only get joint possession of so much of the lands which were decreed in favour of their predecessors in 1892 by Ex. 108 which fall within the yellow lines of the case map, the lands within the yellow line of the case map being the subject-matter of the dispute according to the final amendment of the plaint. The Court of first instance did not accept in full either the contention of the decree-holders or of the judgment-debtors. It held that the decree-holders could not get possession of any land to the south of the southern yellow line of the case map, but they were entitled to the whole of the lands which fall within the red line in the case map prepared by the amin, so far as they are covered by the lands included within the yellow line. There were appeals filed both by the decree holders and the judgment-debtors in the Court of the District Judge. The learned District Judge held that the decree holders' claim to possession was not limited by the southern yellow line of the case map, but they could get possession of lands which fell within the red line depicted in the case map. In this respect the learned District Judge accepted the decree-holders' contention. Against this portion of the order, the judgment-debtors have preferred appeal No. 5 of 1939. The learned District Judge further held that the decree-holders were not entitled to all the lands which fall within the said red line but only to such portions of the same which fell within the red dotted lines which had been decreed to their predecessors-in-interest by the compromise decree of 1892, that is to say, the decree-holders were entitled to get the whole of Hatarbhog and Dattagaon and only half of Karpara and Birlapur which fall within the red unbroken lines. From this part of the order the decree-holders preferred Appeal No. 203 of 1938.

We shall deal with both these appeals together. Dr. Basak who appears for the decree-holders says: (1) that his clients are entitled to get joint possession of all the lands which fell within the ambit of map Ex. 101, that is to say all the lands to the south of plot No. 4 of suit No. 9 of 1912, which are covered by both the khandas of map Ex. 101 ; and (2) that at any rate his clients are entitled to joint possession of all the lands to the south of the said plot No. 4 which are covered by the red lines depicted in the case map by the Commissioner ; by the case map we mean the map prepared in the suit, that is to say, his clients are entitled to joint possession not only of what has been given to them by the learned District Judge, but also of Mouza Naogaon and the rest of Karpara and Birlapur. Mr. Gupta who appears for the judgment-debtors contends that in this respect the learned District Judge is right, that is to say, the decree-holders are entiled to joint possession of so much of the first plot (pratham khanda) which had been decreed to them in 1892 by Ex. 108. In support of his appeal he contends further that any portion covered by the red line which goes beyond and are to the south of the southern yellow line in the case map must be excluded from these proceedings, because those portions of the land were not the subject-matter of the suit. We shall now deal with the merits of the respective contentions. Dr. Basak bases his contention on two grounds. He says, firstly, that the question cannot now be re-opened because the matter had been settled between the parties at a previous stage of the execution proceedings by order No. 130, dated January 24, 1927, and the two orders passed by this Court on August 20, 1935 and January 13, 1937. He further contends that at any rate that is the meaning of the decree which was passed in the suit. We shall first of all examine Dr. Basak's contentions.

It appears from the record that objections were preferred to the execution of the decree by the Raja brothers before the Subordinate Judge. Some of those objections were dealt with by the learned Subordinate Judge by order No. 130, dated January 24, 1927. One of those objections related to the question as to whether the decree-holders were entitled to joint possession after evicting the Raja brothers, or they were entitled to joint possession with the Raja brothers. The final decree directed eviction of the Raja brothers; but the contention of the Raja brothers was that by reason of subsequent events they could not be evicted from the land inasmuch as after the decree they had purchased the shares of some of the decree holders. This question has been dealt with in order No. 130. The Court gave effect to the contention of the Raja brothers and held that in spite of the directions in the decree, the decree-holders were only entitled to joint possession with the Raja brothers, that is to say they could not get joint possession with their other co-sharers after evicting the Raja brothers. In this order there is the following passage :

"As regards the other objections I find that the decree-holders have got a decree for joint possession in the lands to the south of plot No. 4 of suit No. 9, and covered by map Ex. 101, i. e., to the second portion of the decretal lands after evicting the judgment-debtors 112 to 114."

The first portion of the decretal land was the land which had been attached by the Collector under s. 146, Criminal P. C. In this land the Raja brothers are not at all interested, and in respect of this land the decree-holders only got a declaration of title, their claim for possession being dismissed. The learned Judge again went on to say as follows : "But the order about evicting the said judgment debtors is incapable of execution." After discussing the matter, he came to the conclusion that the decree-holders could only get joint possession and they could not evict the Raja brothers. In the order passed in Miscellaneous Appeal No. 224 of 1935, this Court directed the Subordinate Judge to appoint a Commissioner to ascertain at the locality the decretal land as determined by the executing Court by order No. 130, dated January 24, 1927, and to deliver possession of the said land to the decree-holders in accordance with the provisions of O. XXI, r. 35 (2), Civil P. C. After this order was passed by this Court, the learned Subordinate Judge before appointing a Commissioner wanted to interpret order No. 130. Against the order of the learned Subordinate Judge which had been affirmed by the learned District Judge on appeal, Miscellaneous Appeal No. 319 of 1936 was filed, and there was an alternative application in revision.

After dealing with the preliminary question, as to whether an appeal lay, or not, this Court said that it could, at any rate, interfere in revision and it went on to deal with the merits of the controversy. This Court directed the learned Subordinate Judge to appoint a Commissioner at once to demarcate the decretal land in the locality without at that stage interpreting order No. 130. Then there was a direction, that if there was any dispute in course of demarcation between the parties as regards the extent and position of the decretal land, the learned Subordinate Judge was to determine those questions, after the Commissioner had submitted his map and report. In our judgment the combined effect of order No. 130 and of the two orders of this Court which we have recited above is this: that the question as to whether the decree holders were entitled to get possession of any portion of the land which fell within the red line of the case map but was beyond the southern yellow line thereof, was final between the parties, that is to say, it is not open to the judgment-debtors now to say that the decree-holders can only get possession of such land which falls within the southern yellow line. But the question as to whether the decree-holders are entitled to the whole of the said block of land which falls within the red line or only to a portion thereof was left for determination by the learned Subordinate Judge after the Commissioner had submitted his map and report. That, in our judgment, is the effect of the last order of this Court dated January 13, 1937 passed in Miscellaneous Appeal No. 319 of 1936. That is indicated by directing the learned Subordinate Judge, not only to determine the dispute as to the position of the decretal land but also the dispute as regards the extent of the disputed land. We cannot therefore give effect to Dr. Basak's contention that his clients are entitled to the whole of the block of land which falls within the red line, on the ground that the matter had been finally adjudicated between the parties at a previous stage of the execution proceedings. The reasons which we have given for disposing of Dr. Basak's contention also dispose of the point raised by Mr. Gupta in his Miscellaneous Appeal No. 5 of 1939.

It is therefore open to us to enter into the merits of the question, and for the purpose of seeing whether the contention raised by Dr. Basak is correct or not, we have to look into the decree. The decree-holders cannot claim any portion of the land which falls to the south of plot No. 4 but which falls within the dwitiya khanda of Ex. 101. At the time when the amin went to the locality for local investigation before the trial he was asked to plot only the prathama khanda of Ex. 101 in the locality which he did. The plaintiffs never attempted to have the second khanda of Ex. 101 located on the case map. These facts have been pointed out by both the Courts below and they indicate clearly that the second khanda of Ex. 101 was never the subject-matter of the dispute. The two amendment petitions of the plaintiffs filed on September 13, 1915 and December 9, 1915 which had been allowed by the Court on December 17, 1915 indicate clearly that the plaintiffs claimed title to and possession of only that portion which they had pointed out to the amin at the time of the local investigation, namely the land which was enclosed by the amin in the case map, by the yellow lines. The land so enclosed by the yellow lines covers a good portion of the first khanda or portion of the map, Ex. 101. It does not cover any portion of the second khanda of Ex. 101 which is to the south of the first khanda. We cannot therefore give effect to the first contention of Dr. Basak, namely that his clients are entitled to the lands to the south of plot No. 4, which are also covered by the second khanda of Ex. 101.

There remains the question as to whether the decree-holders are entitled to joint possession of all the lands included in the first khanda of Ex. 101 as ploted on the case map. To us it seems that the decree as drawn up by the Court of first instance and which was affirmed by this Court is ambiguous The words, 'within the ambit of the map, Ex. 101' used in the decree raise the ambiguity. It is therefore necessary to look to the terms of the judgment of the Court of first instance. Even if there had not been any proceeding in review in this Court, the meaning of the decree as made by the Court of first instance which was affirmed by this Court, read along with the judgment is clear. It is this: that the plaintiffs were given a decree only to such portion of the first khanda of Ex. 101, in respect of which their predecessors were given a decree in 1892 by Ex. 103, because the whole judgment on the basis of which the decree was passed proceeds on the footing, so far as this part of the case was concerned, that the plaintiffs were entitled to that portion of the land in suit because of the title acquired by their predecessors-in-interest by the compromise decree, Ex. 103. Whatever ambiguity there was in this decree (which was confirmed by this Court) has been removed by the order passed on review by this Court on April 11, 1922. That order clearly states that the decree-holders would be entitled to possession up to the southern red line plotted in the Commissioner's map, that is to say, in the case map prepared by the amin at the time of the suit which had been decreed to their predecessors-in-interest by the consent decree of 1892. Even if it was not possible to hold that the decree by itself was not ambiguous, and a reference to the judgment was not legitimate, the order passed on review on April 11, 1922 which is the final judgment between the parties, defines exactly the rights of the decree-holders, and even if the directions contained in the said judgment passed on review, had not been embodied in the decree, there would have been no bar in bringing the decree into conformity with the final judgment, inasmuch as the rights of third parties have not been intervened. If it were necessary, we would have directed an amendment of the final decree passed by this Court so as to bring it in conformity with the judgment passed on review. But as we have already said, that even without this amendment, the view we have taken follows from the construction of the decree taken along with the judgment. The result is that we dismiss both the appeals. As both sides have failed to substantiate their contentions we make no order as to costs.

D. Appeals dismissed.

SIND CHIEF COURT

Suit No. 188 of 1939
May 22, 1940
TYABJI, J.

ASMABAI D/o Haji AHMAD MIRZA—PLAINTIFF
versus
UMER MAHOMED SIDIK MIRZA—DEFENDANT

Muslim Dissolution of Marriages Act (VIII of 1939), s. 2 (viii) (f), (a), (ii) — Grounds for dissolution of marriage—Wife separating from husband due to ill treatment—No effort on husbands part to treat wife as wife or according to injunctions of Quran — Case falls under s 2 (viii) (f) — Wife forced to live with parents for 12 years due to husband's ill treatment—No society of husband—Husband's conduct, whether cruelty — Payment of maintenance on Magistrate's order for some months during two years prior to suit —Wife, if debarred from relying on s. 2 (ii) in respect of earlier period of ten years.

It is of course only a very gross failure to render to a wife her just rights that could be considered by a Court as a ground for dissolution. But where there has never after the separation been any real intention on the part of the husband or positive effort made by him to treat his wife as a wife at all, much less to treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran, or even on a footing which having regard to human imperfections and to the circumstances of the husband could be condoned as an honest effort in that direction, the case falls within the purview of s. 2 (viii) (f), Muslim Dissolution of Marriage Act [p. 851, col. 1.]

The wife was forced to live away from her husband for about 12 years on account of his ill treatment. The return to husband meant submission to conditions impossible to a self-respecting woman. Her life thus was made miserable. She was compelled to do without the society of her husband and she could not marry any other person. She was forced to live with her parents, a degrading position, and be a burden upon her parents. In pursuance of the Magistrates' order, however, the husband had been paying maintenance allowance to her for some months during two years preceding the suit by the wife for the dissolution of the marriage :

Held, that the payment of maintenance during two years preceding the suit did not debar the wife from relying on s 2 (ii) of the Act in respect of the earlier period of ten years as a good ground for the dissolution of her marriage. [p. 849, col. 1.]

Held, further that it was reasonable in the circumstances of the case to say that the husband was making her life miserable by cruelty of conduct within the meaning of s. 2 viii) (a). The fact that she could by resorting to distress warrants obtain from her unwilling husband Rs. 7-8-0 per month—a sum wholly insufficient for maintaining her in any comfort was not enough to relieve her of her misery. [p. 849, col. 2.]

Mr. Jethanand L. Nain, for the Plaintiff.
Mr. Pribhdas for Mr. K. H. Nagrani, for the Respondent.

Judgment.—The plaintiff Asmabai was married to the defendant Umar about 15 years ago, in 1925. Her suit is for a dissolution of her marriage with the defendant, on the grounds, first, that the defendant had neglected or failed to provide for her maintenance for a period of two years, secondly that the defendant had made her life miserable by cruelty of conduct, and thirdly that having more than one wife the defendant did not treat the plaintiff equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran. It is claimed that these are valid grounds for a dissolution of a Mulsim marriage under the Dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act, VIII of 1939: cf s. 2, subcls. (ii), (viii) a) and (viii) (f) of the Act. The plaintiff, the defendant Umar, and one Ramzan have given evidence in this case. There can be no doubt with regard to the principal facts in this case. The plaintiff was married somewhere about 1925 when she was about 18 years of age. The defendant is a first cousin of the plaintiff. After the marriage the defendant and the plaintiff lived together for about one month, after which the plaintiff left the defendant's house and went back to her parents. It is quite clear from the evidence in the case, although the defendant Umar and his witness Ramzan do not admit it, that the plaintiff's father and the defendant's father who are brothers, have not been on good terms and were not on good terms at the time of the marriage. The plaintiff states that while she was living with her husband there were constant quarrels between her and her husband and her husband's relations. She states that the defendant and others in her husband's house used to speak disparagingly of her father and when she intervened on behalf of her father there were quarrels, that she was frequently beaten, and that it was after a period of such continued ill-treatment that she was one day driven out of the house by her husband and her husband's relations. She was on that account unwilling to go back to her husband. Efforts were then made by other parties to bring about a reconciliation, and the plaintiff was induced to live again with the defendant. But she had to leave him again after a few days. Thereafter the plaintiff has continued to live with her parents and according to the plaintiff the defendant did not ever wish or seek to take her back again. Admittedly nothing was paid to the plaintiff by way of maintenance or otherwise by the defendant who soon married a second wife.

In 1928 the plaintiff filed a suit in this Court, being suit No. 58 of 1928, against the defendant for maintenance. A certified copy of the judgment in that case dated September 20, 1929 has been filed and is Ex. 6. One of the issues in that case was: "Did the defendant desert the plaintiff and neglect to maintain her?" and the finding on this issue was that he had neglected to maintain her. The learned Judge in that case (Barlee, A. J. C) held that the plaintiff had been ill-treated; to some extent as he said, and stated that he would, if he could have done so under the law, have ordered past maintenance to be paid to the plaintiff, but he held that the law did not permit him to do so. He however did not consider that under the circumstances of the case the plaintiff was entitled to get a decree for future maintenance. Some six years later (at the end of 1935 or in 1936) an application was made by the plaintiff in the Court of the Additional City Magistrate of Karachi for an order against the defendant for payment of a monthly allowance under s. 488, Criminal P. C. The Magistrate had to consider the question whether the plaintiff was entitled to any order under s. 488 as the plaintiff admittedly was not living with the defendant, and it became necessary for him to consider whether the plaintiff had just or sufficient grounds for refusing to live with the defendant. After a lengthy inquiry, he held it to be clearly proved that the defendant had neglected to maintain the applicant for many years, and accepting the plaintiff's allegations of ill-treatment to be true he held that the plaintiff had sufficient grounds for refusing to live with the defendant, and on February 28, 1936 passed an order ordering the defendant to pay Rs 10 every month to the plaintiff by way of a monthly allowance.

This order was challenged by the defendant who filed a revision application against it which was rejected by this Court in its High Court jurisdiction on May 5, 1936. Ex. 8 is a certified copy of the High Court's order from which it is clear that the High Court did not accept the defendant's contention that the plaintiff ought to go back to the defendant and was of the opinion that it would be wrong to interfere with the order of the Magistrate and force the plaintiff back to conditions to which no self-respecting woman should be compelled to submit. The plaintiff states, and I have no doubt truly, that even after these orders the defendant has not been regularly paying the sum ordered to be paid under s. 488, Criminal P. C, and that on no less than twelve occasions the plaintiff had been forced to apply to the Magistrate for a distress warrant, and it was only after such distress warrants had been issued that she was able to obtain the payments. It is also clear that the defendant has been making applications for a reduction of the amount ordered to be paid by him, which has since been reduced to Rs. 7-8-0, for this of course he cannot in any way be blamed.

Having regard to these circumstances, and to the attitude of the parties and the allegations made by them in the proceedings above referred to, and the evidence given by the three witnesses who have been examined before me in this suit, I have no doubt that the plaintiff's allegation that she was ill-treated by the defendant and that it was on that account that she could not live with the defendant is true. It appears that this ill-treatment had a good deal to do with the fact that the father of the plaintiff and the father of the defendant were on very bad terms. It is quite impossible to accept the evidence of the defendant and of his witness Ramzan who have now stated that there was no ill-feeling of any kind between the two families, that there was never any question at all of any ill-treatment of the plaintiff by the defendant, that the defendant and plaintiff in fact lived very happily together after their marriage, and that even the parents of the defendant and the plaintiff had always been on very good terms, but that after the plaintiff, about a month after her marriage, left the defendant's house with the permission of the defendant in order to spend the Idd with her parents, the plaintiff's parents without any reason whatever which these witnesses knew of or could assign therefor refused to allow the plaintiff to go back to the defendant and insisted very perversely, that the defendant should instead go and live with them. It is perfectly clear that this is a false story put up for the purposes of this case, which is wholly absurd under the circumstances of this case.

Now with regard to the first ground urged by the plaintiff, it has been admitted by the defendant that nothing by way of maintenance or otherwise was paid by him to the plaintiff after the plaintiff left him, admittedly some time in or about 1925, until after February 28, 1936, when the order was made by the Magistrate. It is therefore clear that during this period of about 10 years the defendant did wholly neglect and fail to provide for the plaintiff's maintenance. It is true that after the order made by the Magistrate in 1936, certain payments have been made by the defendant to the plaintiff under the orders of the Court, and it cannot therefore be said that during the two years immediately preceding the suit the defendant had not paid anything towards the plaintiff's maintenance, but I do not think that in the circumstances of this case the plaintiff is thereby debarred from relying on s. 2 (ii) of the Act in respect of the earlier period as a good ground for the dissolution of her marriage. I also think that the plaintiff has succeeded on the second ground, that is in showing that the defendant has made her life miserable by cruelty of conduct within the meaning of those words in s. 2 (viii) (a). The language of s. 2 (viii) (a) is :

"2. A woman married under Muslim law shall be entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on any one or more of the following grounds, namely :

(viii) That the husband treats her with cruelty that is to say, (a), habitually assaults her or makes her life miserable by cruelty of conduct even if such conduct does not amount to physical ill-treatment."

As the plaintiff has now for many years past been living away from the defendant, it is not alleged and it cannot be said that he now habitually assaults her and there is no question of any present physical ill-treatment. But the plaintiff has been forced to live away from her husband on account of his past ill-treatment and her life is undoubtedly being made miserable by reason of the fact that a return to her husband's house is out of the question as it must mean submitting to conditions impossible to a self respecting woman. She is compelled to do without the society of her husband and cannot marry any other person. She is forced to the degrading position of having to live with and be a burden upon her parents. The fact that she can by resorting to distress warrants obtain from her unwilling husband Rs. 7-8-0 per month—a sum wholly insufficient for maintaining her in any comfort is not enough to relieve her of her misery. I think it is reasonable in these circumstances to say that the defendant is making her life miserable by cruelty of conduct and as stated before, in my opinion, the plaintiff has also succeeded on this ground.

The third ground relied upon is that mentioned in s. 2 (viii) (f) of the Act, that is to say the cruelty of the defendant in that having more than one wife he did not treat the plaintiff equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran.

It is admitted that the defendant married a second wife about 10 or 12 years ago, that is soon after the defendant and the plaintiff separated. It does not appear to me that the defendant ever had any intention or made any bona fide effort to induce the plaintiff to live with him, or to offer to her a home which she could reasonably be expected to accept, and to render to her the rights which it is incumbent upon a Muslim husband to render to his wife.

According to the Quran and to all Muslim texts, a Muslim wife has rights corresponding to those of her husband and in no way less than those of the husband, in the fulfilment by the husband and the wife of their respective marital duties towards each other. As is stated in verse II, 228 of the Quran : "And they (the wives) have rights similar to those (of their husbands) against them as regards just treatment." As is so often insisted upon in the Quran, it is incumbent upon a Muslim husband to treat his wife or wives with "husn-e-muashirat" which means such kindly behaviour as is recognized as good by all. For example in verses IV, 19 it is enjoined : Wa ashiru hunna bil maaroof" which literally means "and behave with them (your wives) in such a manner as is accepted as good and kind by all."

Not only is the Muslim husband bound to treat his wife "bil maaroof" with kindness and consideration, but the wife is, by virtue of the very subsistance of the marriage state, entitled as of right to her just share in the society and companionship of her husband. Under Muslim law this right could be enforced by an order from a Judge: cf. Baillie I, 190. A man could be directed to be attentive to his wife and to occupy the same apartment with her at times though no exact times have been prescribed: Baillie I, 189. According to Shiah texts every wife is at least entitled to the exclusive companionship of her husband for one out of every four nights: Baillie II, 83. All texts agree that it is incumbent for a husband to spend a reasonable amount of time with each of his wives in an apartment exclusively allotted to her.

Where a husband has more than one wife strict equality "adl-fil-qismut" must be observed by the husband among the wives; for, it is only on the condition that the husband will do so that the Quran permits marriage with more than one wife. In verse IV, 3 of the Quran it is said:

"....Then marry such women as seem good to you, two and three and four; but if you fear that you will not act with justice (between them) then marry only one.....Thus it is more likely that you will not deviate into injustice."

The Arabic word which has been rendered by the word "justice" is "adl" and all Muslim jurists agree that what is made incumbent upon every Muslim marrying more than one wife by this verse is "adl-fil-qismut", that is an equality in the sharing of such things as the time spent with his wives, the expenses incurred by him on his wives, and his outward general behaviour towards his wives. The word "adl" in this context is not it is generally agreed, to be construed as meaning "adl-fil-qul" or "adl-fil-qule shain" that is absolute equality in all respects, and does not include "adl fil mohabat" or equality in respect of the inner love of a man for his wives which the Quran itself regards as impossible. For, in verse IV 129 where the word "aal" is used in its more complete and absolute sense, meaning "adl-fil-qul" and including "adl fil mohabat," the Quran says:

"And it is not within your power to act with (complete) justice (adl) between wives even though you may most desire it; but be not disinclined (from any one of them) with a total disinclination so that you leave her as it were in suspense".

Muslim commentators of all schools agree that while it is imcumbent on every husband to treat all his wives with strict equality in all matters covered by the term "adl fil qismut," which means for example that a husband cannot spend more time with or spend more money upon or show an open preference in his general behaviour in favour of any one of his wives it is sufficient in respect of actual coition if he does not entirely neglect any particular wife. Intentional total neglect in respect of coition which amounts to a suspension of the marriage is clearly prohibited. So Baillie relying on Sunni texts says (Part I 189):

"And when he has two wives who are free women, he must be just and equal in dividing his attentions among them. What is required of him in this respect is justice and equality in matters that are within his power, and living with them for society and acquaintanceship, not in matters that are beyond his control such as love and matrimonial intercourse... . ...

And with regard to wives equality must be observed between the old and the new, the virgin and the suyyib, the healthy and the sick, even the paralytic and the insane if not dangerous the woman in her course and one who is purified from them, the pregnant woman, and one in an interval of pregnancy, the young girl unfit for matrimonial converse the pilgrim and the wife under eela, or zihar."

and relying Shiah on texts says (Part II, 83-85):

Kismut, or a partition of his time amongst his wives is a duty which is incumbent on a husband, whether he be free or a slave, and even though he should be impotent or an eunuch;.....

If a man be married to one wife she has a right to one night out of every four and the other three are at his own disposal to sleep where he pleases. If he has two wives they are entitled to two nights, and if he has three they are entitled to three while he has a right to dispose of the excess in each case up to four, as he pleases. If he has the full cmplement of four wives, each one of them has a right to a night in her turn, and he cannot absent himself from the proper partner of that night without a just pretext or being on a journey, or her permission..... ...

What is incumbent on a man in respect of partition is merely to spend his time with the wife to whom it is due, and does not extend to coition.....

Equality among wives should be observed in respect of maintenance, general behaviour, and coition."

With reference to last extract he adds in a note that in respect of coition equality is proper but not an incumbent duty. How far this "Husn-e-muashirat" and "adl-fi-qismut" are to be observed, is clear from the fact that even after friction and dissensions have arisen, and a husband has pronounced one or two divorces against a wife, the Quran enjoins in verse II, 229 and again in verse II, 231 that even in such circumstances the wife in question should either be retained "be maaroof" that is in the approved kindly manner or should be generously allowed to go away (i.e., be completely divorced) with kindness "be maaroof" and "be eshan"), and that she should not be retained to her injury. It is on these verses that in Muslim States the Kazi's powers to insist that a husband should either render to a wife her just rights or divorce her were based. The Hadis, saying of the Prophet are full of exhortations to his people to treat woman kindly and to render to them all their just rights. The position of a wife in her husband's hous is stated in one of his most often quoted sayings:

"Every one of you is a ruler, and every one shall be questioned about his subjects; the Amir (King) is a ruler, and the man is a ruler over the people of his house and the woman is a ruler over the house of her husband and his children, so every one of you is a ruler and every one shall be questioned about his subject.'

In his famous farewell address at the Hajatul Widaa shortly before his death speaking with the knowledge that he would not be able to address his people again the Prophet said:

"Oh my people; You have certain rights over your wives and so have your wives over you. They are the trust of Allah in your hands so you must treat them with all kindness."

This is the position in the Quran and the Shariat and expresses the ideal that has to be aimed at. It is of course only a very gross failure to render to a wife her just rights that could be considered by a Court as a ground for dissolution. But in this case as is clear from what has been stated before, there has never after the separation in 1925 been any real intention on the part of the defendant or positive effort made by the defendant to treat the plaintiff as a wife at all, much less to treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran, or even on a footing which having regard to human imperfections and to the circumstances of the defendant could be condoned as an honest effort in that direction. The plaintiff therefore succeeds on this ground also. I am therefore of the opinion that this is a case where in the contemplation of Act VIII of 1939 good grounds exist for a dissolution and the plaintiff will accordingly have a decree as prayed with costs.

D. Suit decreed.

PATNA HIGH COURT

Appeal from Appellate Decree No. 148 of 1940

January 24, 1941

AGARWALA, J.

DHANNA MUNDA AND ANOTHER— APPELLANTS

versus

Mst. KOSILA BANIAN— RESPONDENT

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908), ss. 46 (6) (before amendment of 1938), 46 (4) (a) (as amended in 1938)—Plaintiff making transfer to defendant to whom transfer could not validly be made under s. 46 (6)—If estopped subsequently from challenging validity of transfer—S. 46 (4) (a), whether restrospective—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 65—Applicability—Essentials

The plaintiff is not estopped from challenging the validity of the transfer by showing that the defendants were not persons to whom a transfer of a part of the holding could be validly made according to the provisions of the Act as they stood at the time of the transfer, even if the plaintiff had obtained sanction of the Deputy Commissioner on making false representation to him. It is especially so when the defendants were aware that they could not accept the transfer. Dhanu Pathak v. Sona Koeri (1), distinguished [p. 852, col. 1.]

There is nothing in the language of s. 46 (4) (a) Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act to show that it has retrospective effect Neither expressly nor by necessary implication does it lead to the conclusion that it was the intention of the legislature to validate transfers which under the former law were invalid when they were made. [p. 853, col. 1.]

Section 65 Contract Act cannot be held to apply to a case of a contract void as being contrary to the statute law which the parties must be presumed to have known at the time when they entered into the contract. The section has no application when the object of the agreement is illegal to the knowledge of both parties at the time when it was made. [ibid.]

[Case-law discussed.]

A. from a decision of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Hazaribagh, dated December 20, 1939.

Messrs. S. M. Mullick and K. K. Banerji, for the Appellants.

Mr. B. C. De, for the Respondent.

Judgment—This is an appeal by the defendants and arises out of a suit to recover 1.25 acres of land which formed a part of the raiyati holding of the plaintiff. The plaintiff executed a sale deed in favour of the defendants in respect of this land on September 21, 1930, for a consideration of Rs. 500. She alleged that the transfer was merely a benami one and that the consideration never passed. She also claimed to recover the land on the ground that the transfer offended the provisions of s. 46 of the Chota Nagpur Ten. Act as it stood before its amendment in 1938. The Courts below have found that the sale was not a benami one and that the plaintiff in fact received the consideration for it. The trial Court held that the plaintiff was estopped from challenging the sale. The appellate Court has held that the plaintiff is entitled to recover the property in dispute.

It is necessary to refer to the provisions of the Chota Nagpur Ten. Act as they stood prior to the amendment of 1938. Section 46 (1) declared that no transfer by a raiyat of his right in his holding or any portion thereof by sale should be valid to any extent. Sub-section (3) provided that no transfer in contravention of sub-s. (1) should be registered, or should be in any way recognised as valid by any Court, whether in the exercise of civil, criminal or revenue jurisdiction. In 1920 sub-s. (6) was inserted in s. 46 of the Act. This new sub-section provided;

"The Local Govt. may by rules declare that any specified class or classes of transfer (not being transfer by an aboriginal raiyat to a non-aboriginal transferee) in contravention of sub-s. (1) may be validly made by a raiyat of such tribe, caste, group or community, or section thereof, of such class, in such area or areas, and subject to such restrictions in respect of the person by whom and the person to whom the transfer may be made, sanction of any officer or other authority, quantity of land or proportion of the holding transferred, as may be specified; and thereupon nothing in sub ss. (1), (3) and (4) shall affect the validity of any such transfer so made by such raiyat after the date of publication of the rules in the Gazette or such later date as may be prescribed."

In pursuance of this new sub-section the Local Govt. issued notification No. 126-IIT-4C/38-R dated October 7, 1938. Paragraph 2 of that notification is as follows:

"A transfer of his (i. e. raiyats') entire holding, or, with the Deputy Commissioner's consent of part of his holding, may be made by a raiyat to another person who is of the same tribe or caste as himself and resides in the same village or an adjoining village belonging to the same landlord, or, with the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner, to any person without limitation of residence, who is closely related to the transferor raiyat".

It may be mentioned that the plaintiff is a non-aboriginal raiyat and that the defendants are aboriginals. The effect of the notification, therefore, was to validate a transfer of a part of the raiyat's holding to a person of the same tribe or caste as the transferor or to a person closely related to the transferor, in either case the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner being essential. In the present case the plaintiff obtained the sanction of the Deputy-Commissioner to the sale to the defendants although the defendants are neither members of the same tribe or caste as the plaintiff, and are not related to her. It has been contended as it was contended in the Courts below, that the plaintiff is estopped from challenging this transfer. It cannot, however, be said that the defendants were misled by any representation made to them by the plaintiff, for, they knew that they were not of that category of persons to whom the Deputy Commissioner was empowered by the notification to sanction the transfer of a part of the holding. It may be presumed that the plaintiff did make a false representation to the Deputy Commissioner and that as a result of that false representation the Deputy Commissioner sanctioned the transfer; but that representation was neither made to the defendants nor, if it had been made, could it have been believed by them as it was within their knowledge that the representation was false. Reference was made to the decision of this Court in Dhanu Pathak v. Sona Koeri (1). The facts of that case were that a raiyat representing himself to be a tenure-holder, granted a permanent lease and subsequently sued to eject the lessee on the ground that the latter was merely an under-raiyat. It was held that the plaintiff was estopped from proving that his real status was that of a raiyat and not that of a tenure holder. In that case not only did the lessor make a false representation as to his status but the lessee believed that representation and on the strength of that representation entered into the contract with the lessor. The facts of that case are entirely different from the facts of this case. In my opinion the plaintiff is not estopped from challenging the validity of the transfer by shewing that the defendants were not persons to whom a transfer of a part of the holding could be validly made.

In 1938 the Chota Nagpur Ten. Act was amended. The present s. 46 (4) (a) permits an occupancy raiyat, who is not an aboriginal, to transfer his right in his holding or any portion of it to any person who is resident within the local limits of the Police Station area within which the holding is situate by sale, exchange, gift, will, mortgage or lease. It has been contended that this provision operates retrospectively to validate the transfer in favour of the defendants. In my opinion, there is nothing in the language of that sub-section to justify this contention. Neither expressly nor by necessary implication does it lead to the conclusion that it was the intention of the legislature to validate transfers which under the former law were invalid when they were made.

(1) 17 P L T 380.

The next point is with regard to the consideration for the sale. The defendants claim that they are entitled to recover the five hundred rupees which they paid to the plaintiff for the transfer. They base their claim on s. 65 of the Contract Act. That section provides :

"When an agreement is discovered to be void, or when a contract becomes void, any person who has received any advantage under such agreement or contract is bound to restore it, or to make compensation for it, to the person from whom he received it".

If this section means what has been contended for on behalf of the defendants-appellant, it is clear that the door will be left wide open for evading the provisions of statutes like the Chota Nagpur Ten. Act which have been enacted to prevent or restrict transfers of raiyati land. The scope of s. 65 has been explained in Ledu Coachman v. Hiralal Bose (2) (at p. 122) where it was said :

"The case before us is however, not that of an agreement 'discovered' to be or 'becoming' void. The agreement is void on the face of it and it was void ab initio, while the words of the section can only be aptly applied in such cases as that of an agreement which is subsequently found to be void on account of some latent defect or of circumstances unknown at the date of the agreement or of an agreement which is afterwards made void by circumstances which supervene".

In this view of the law the section cannot be held to apply to a case of a contract void as being contrary to the statute law which the parties must be presumed to have known at the time when they entered into the contract. In Nathu Khan v. Sewak Koeri (3) it was held that the section has no application when the object of the agreement is illegal to the knowledge of both parties at the time when it was made. On behalf of the appellants, however, reference was made to the cases which I shall now mention. The first is Dwijendra Mohan Sarma v. Manorama Dasi, (4). This was a case of a conveyance by the guardian of a minor without the previous sanction of the District Judge as required by the Guardians and Wards Act. Section 30 of the Guardians and Wards Act makes such a transaction voidable and not void and the distinction between the consequences of void and voidable contracts was the basis of the decision in that case as in the case of The Eastern Mortgage and Agency Co. Ltd. v. Rebati Kumar Ray (5) which was the next case relied on by the appellants. The next case relied on by the appellants is Barohan Upadhya v. Uttamgir (6). This was a case to which the provisions of the Agra Ten. Act of 1901 applies. Section 21 of that provides :

"Where the interest of a tenant is not transferable, he shall not be competent to transfer his holding or any portion thereof otherwise than by sub-lease as hereinafter provided."

An occupancy raiyat mortgaged his holding and put the mortgagee in possession but subsequently sued to recover possession on the ground that the mortgage was void under the provisions of the Agra Ten. Act. It was held that he was not entitled to recover possession unless he restored to the mortgagee the mortgage money received by him. That decision appears to be in conflict with the decisions in Ladu Coachman v. Hiralal Bose (2) and Nathu Khan v. Sewak Koeri (3). The case on which the appellants most strongly rely is that of Harnath Kunwar v. Indar Bahadur Singh (7). There a Hindu who had a mere spes successionis purported to transfer his interest for a consideration of Rs. 25,000. After the death of the transferee the latter's widow sued to recover possession of the property. The Privy Council held that the agreement was void from its inception because its subject-matter was incapable of being bound in the manner stipulated. Their Lordships went on to state :

"Though this aspect of the case has not been satisfactorily presented or developed in the pleadings and the proceedings before the lower Courts, their Lordships think there are materials on the record from which it may be fairly inferred in the peculiar circumstances of this case that there was a misapprehension as to the private rights of Inder Singh in the villages which he purported to sell by the instrument of January 2, 1880, and that the true nature of these rights was not discovered by the plaintiff or Rachpal Singh earlier than the time at which his demand for possession was resisted.....".

In the result their Lordships held that

(2) 43 C 115 (122); 29 Ind. Cas. 625; 21 C L J 537; 19 C W N 919.
(3) 15 C W N 408; 9 Ind. Cas. 161.
(4) 49 C 911; 70 Ind. Cas. 990; A I R 1922 Cal 150; 36 C L J 326; 28 C W N 57.
(5) 3 C L J 260.
(6) 33 A 779; 12 Ind Cas 112; 8 A L J 931.
(7) 45 A 179; 71 Ind. Cas. 629 9 O L J 652; A I R 1922 P C 403; 5 P L T 281; 5 P L R 237; 44 M L J 489; 50 I A 69; 37 C L J 346; 27 C W N 949; 26 O C 223; 18 L W 383; 33 M L T 216; 9 O & A L R 270 (P C).

the plaintiff, though not entitled to recover possession of the villages, was entitled to recover compensation and in assessing the compensation their Lordships included the sum of Rs. 25,000 paid to Inder Singh. As I understand this decision, their Lordships held that the contract was based on mutual mistake of the parties as to the true nature of the rights of Inder Singh. It was clearly not a case where both parties were aware of the illegality of the contract at the time of its inception. The case is, therefore, distinguishable from the case of Nathu Khan v. Sewak Koeri (3) in which it was held that s. 65 does not apply where the object of the agreement was known to be illegal to both the parties at the time it was made. In my opinion, the facts of this case with regard to this matter are indistinguishable from the facts of that case and I would, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs.

Leave to appeal under the Letters Patent is granted.

S. Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Second Appeal No. 23 of 1938
December 5, 1940
BAJPAI AND DAR, JJ.

SITARAM BABURAM—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
SITARAM LALMAN THROUGH TULSI RAM—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 20—Appropriation of payments — Payment without instruction —Appropriation of, to save limitation—Account books maintained on katauti system—Entry of payment by debtor on credit side—If can be treated as part payment of principal.

Under s. 20, Lim. Act, in the absence of definite instructions by the debtor the creditor can appropriate payments made by the debtor. In the case of interest, if it is attempted to save limitation, the instructions must be by the debtor and the payment must be of interest as such, but in the case of principal, if the debtor has given no instructions, the creditor can appropriate it, if he so chooses, towards principal and can save limitation provided time has not run out at the time of appropriation, and provided acknowledgment of payment appears in the handwriting of or on a writing signed by the person making the payment. The execution of a sarkhat by the debtor in the creditor's books of account maintained on katauti system, on the credit side, amounts to a part payment of principal within the meaning of s. 20 167 Ind. Cas. 233 (1), relied on, 159 Ind. Cas. 387 (2), explained.

S. A. from the decision of the Civil Judge, Shahjahanpur, dated September 21, 1937.

Messrs. N. P. Asthana, B. N. Sahai and N. C. Sen, for the Appellant.

Messrs. L. N. Gupta and S. N. A. Jafri, for the Respondent.

Bajpai, J.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff firm Sita Ram Babu Ram through Babu Ram. This firm instituted a suit against another firm Sita Ram Lalman through Tulsi Ram for the recovery of a certain sum of money based on a sarkhat dated October 19, 1933. The trial Court after giving relief on the question of interest to the defendant under the Agri. Relief Act decreed the plaintiff's suit for Rs. 2,651-8-0. This decree was upset in appeal by the lower Appellate Court on a finding that the plaintiff's suit was barred by time. The sarkhat contains the following entries on the debit side :

Rs. 1,958-1-0 : October 19, 1933 ;
Rs. 100-0-0 : October 21, 1933 ;
Rs. 50-0-0 : November 19, 1933 ;
and on the credit side the entries are :
Rs. 100-0-0 : November 21, 1933 ;
Rs. 50-0-0 : June 6, 1934."

The suit was instituted on December 14, 1936, and unless the credit entry of June 6, 1934, can be invoked in aid by the plaintiff the suit would be barred by time. The credit entries, of which mention has been made by us so far, we might make clear, are entries of payments said to have been made by the debtor to the creditor. It is clear that this entry of Rs. 50 must either be towards interest as such or towards part payment of principal, the part payment appearing in the handwriting of the debtor. It is nobody's case, and in any event it has not been proved that this entry is of interest as such. The only question that remains for consideration is whether this payment can be treated as payment of principal. Although there is some doubt in the mind of the lower Court about the last entries in the sarkhat, the finding of the learned Munsif has been accepted by the Civil Judge. It is not quite clear as to what the learned Judge meant by saying that he was doubtful about the last entries, whether he doubted their genuineness or what—but the fact remains that in the end he accepts the finding of the learned Munsif who of course had accepted the genuineness of the entire sarkhat. The learned Judge observed as follows :

"The creditor wants to save the limitation by arbitrarily treating the payment of Rs. 50 as part payment of principal and the amount of interest is also intact. I am therefore of opinion that the payment of Rs. 50 in this case cannot be treated as part payment of principal."

Learned Counsel for the plaintiff-appellant has argued that the materials on the record were sufficient to come to a definite finding on the question of this last payment as indeed the trial Court had done and the lower Appellate Court has wrongly assumed that the only thing which was on the record was a statement in the plaint that the payment was appropriated towards principal. There can be no doubt that the law is that in the absence of definite instructions by the debtor the creditor can appropriate payments made by the debtor. In the case of interest, if it is attempted to save limitation, the instructions must be by the debtor and the payment must be of interest as such, but in the case of principal, if the debtor has given no instructions, the creditor can appropriate it, if he so chooses, towards principal and can save limitation provided time has not run out at the time of appropriation, and provided acknowledgment of payment appears in the handwriting of or on a writing signed by the person making the payment. Their Lordships of the Privy Council in Rama Shah v. Lal Chand (1), at p. 647 say :

"While not of opinion that it need be shown that the creditors' appropriation has within the time limited been communicated to the debtor they are unable to regard the language of the section as satisfied unless within the prescribed period the creditor has in exercise of his right done something which treats the payment as made on account of principal. To evidence a definite appropriation to the principal debt made by the creditor within the period prescribed the manner in which the payment has been dealt with by the creditor in his own books of account will ordinarily be sufficient."

The lower Appellate Court relied upon the Full Bench decision of this Court in Udeyapal Singh v. Lakshmi Chand (2), in which case it was held by the majority that where money is paid by a debtor without specifying whether the payment is towards interest or towards principal, leaving it to the option of the creditor to apprepriate as he likes, and the creditor appropriates it towards interest, there is neither a payment of interest as such nor a part payment of the principal within the meaning of s. 20, Lim. Act. This case has been approved of by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Rama Shah v. Lal Chand (1), mentioned just now, but it has been made clear that a creditor has the right to appropriate a payment by the debtor without instructions towards principal if he so likes, but if the creditor wants to save limitation the appropriation must have been made within the period of limitation, and the fact that the appropriation has been made within the period of limitation can appear from the account books of the plaintiff. The learned Munsif has taken great pains to show that the account books of the plaintiff in connection with debts advanced to debtors are maintained on what is called the katauti system. In Rama Shah v. Lal Chand (1), their Lordships of the Privy Council explained the katauti system at p. 649*. They say in the katauti system,

"interest is calculated on both sides of the account at the same rate so that to any sum paid by the defendant is added interest thereon before deduction is made from the total sum shown to be due for principal and interest upon each loan."

From the judgment of the trial Court, we find that when the sarkhat for Rs. 1,958-1-0 was executed, the prior accounts were adjusted on the katauti system. The learned Munsif has taken pains to show that year after year interest was calculated both on the credit and on the debit side and a balance struck and the balance was the outstanding due from the debtor. It is true that he has not pursued the matter further after the execution of the sarkhat, but, as we pointed out before, after an entry of Rs. 1,958-1-0 on the debit side, there are two more entries on the debit side and there are just two entries on the credit side and the trial Court did not go into the account books of the plaintiff after October 19, 1933, to find out whether the katauti system was maintained or not. There is however the evidence of the plaintiff to the effect that such a system was maintained and there is a presumption in favour of continuity of the same system of accounting. Nothing has been shown by the defendant either in the Court below or before us from which we can infer that the katauti system was not maintained and the balance was not struck year after year or in any event prior to the expiry of the period of limitation.

We therefore hold the view that the sum of Rs. 50 was appropriated towards principal, before the period of limitation had expired, by the plaintiff and the plaintiff was entitled to invoke it in his aid in order to extend limitation. We agree with the view taken by the trial Court. No other point was argued on either side by anybody, and we therefore allow this appeal, set aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court and restore that of the Court of first instance. As regards costs of the lower Appellate Court and of this Court under the peculiar circumstances of this case we direct the parties to bear their own costs. The defendant will be allowed to pay the decretal amount by six monthly instalments of Rs. 300 each. The first instalment will fall due on March 15, 1941.

(1) (1940) A L J 639 (647); 187 Ind. Cas. 233; 1940 O W N 315; 12 R P C 149; 6 B R 535; 51 L W 578; A I R 1940 P C 63; (1940) 1 M L J 895; 1940 O L R 230; 44 C W N 625; 42 P L R 32c; (1940) Kar. (P C) 134 Sup.; 71 C L J 444; (1940) M W N 620; 4z Bom. L R 640; I L R (1940) Lah. 470; 67 I A 160 (P C).

(2) (1935) A L J 1029; 159 Ind. Cas. 387; A I R 1935 All. 946; 1935 A L R 1107; 58 A 261; 8 R A 428 (F B).

*Page of (1940) A. L. J.—[Ed.]

S. Appeal allowed.

PATNA HIGH COURT

Appeal from Original Decree No. 106 of 1938

March 18, 1941

MEREDITH AND SHEARER, JJ.

KASHI NATH SINGH—DEFENDANT —APPELLANT

versus

DULHIN GULZARI KUER—PLAINTIFF —RESPONDENT

Succession Act (XXXIX of 1925), s. 283—Person claiming adversely to testator or disputing his right to deal with property—Whether can be deemed to claim interest in estate of deceased within meaning of s. 283—Application for probate—Probate Court cannot decide whether property dealt with by testator in fact belonged to him.

A person who claims outside and independently of a will or claims adversely to the testator and disputes his right to deal with the property, can in no sense be deemed to claim an interest in the estate of the deceased within the meaning of s. 283 of the Succession Act and he is not, therefore, entitled to oppose the grants of probate or letters of administration. 20 Ind. Cas. 342 (3), relied on, 190 Ind. Cas. 362 (1) and Nobeen Chunder Sil v. Bhobosoonduri Dabee (2), distinguished. [p. 858, col. 2.]

In an application for probate of a will or for the grant of letters of administration with a copy of the will annexed, the sole question that arises is whether or not the will is a true one. It is not open to the probate Court to decide whether or not the property with which a testator has purported to deal, in fact belonged to him. Birj Nath De v. Chandra Mohan Banerji (4), referred to. [p. 858, col. 2; p. 859, col. 1.]

A. from the decision of the Additional District Judge of Shahabad, dated April 5, 1938.

Messrs. D. N. Varma and Kanhaiyaji, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. Rahman, for the Respondent.

Shearer, J.—This is an appeal against a decree of the Additional District Judge of Shahabad, granting letteres of administration with a copy annexed thereto of the will of one Mst. Barta Kuar, who died on or about July 18, 1929. The will, which was an unregistered will, was executed about a week prior to her death. By it Mst. Barta Kuar bequeathed the whole of her property to her great-grandson, Ram Chander Singh, who was then a child of two or three. At the time when the will was executed there were other relations of Mst. Barta Kuar living, namely, a son, Charitar Singh, a daughter Mst. Rajwanti Kuar and her son, Sobhnath Singh and a great grandson, Radha Mohan Singh. The sole legatee, Ram Chander Singh, is the son of Radha Mohan Singh and the respondent, Dulhin Gulzaro Kuar. In the will Mst. Barta Kuar explained why she had decided to bequeath her property to the child, Ram Chander Singh, instead of to any of these persons. At the end of the will there was also a specification of the property which the testatrix purported to dispose of. It consisted of a house in the town of Arrah together with an orchard and some kasht land and an interest in each of two revenue paying estates. On January 2, 1930, that is, within less than six months of Mst. Barta Kuar's death, an application was made to the Collector of Shahabad asking that the name of the sole legatee, Ram Chander Singh, should be entered in register D instead of that Mst. Barta Kuar, as a co-proprietor in the two revenue paying estates. This application was successful. Shortly afterwards, on August 4, 1930, an application was made to the Municipality asking that the name of Ram Chander Singh should similarly be entered in the Municipal Registers as the owner of the house. The house was, however, not recorded in the name of Mst. Barta Kuar, but in the name of her son, Ram Chariter Singh. The proceedings in the Municipality were for some reason or other unduly protracted, and ultimately the application was rejected. Nothing more was done in the matter of the estate of Mst. Barta Kuar until 1935. The appellant, Kashi Nath Singh, in that year instituted a suit against Ram Chariter Singh, and in execution of the decree which he obtained attached the house which, as I have just said, was in the Municipal Registers recorded in his name and not in the name of his mother, Mst. Barta Kuar. The attachment was effected on September 20, 1935, and on the same day Mst. Gulzaro Kuar, the mother of Ram Chander Singh, applied for the grant of letters of administration. In the interval, it should be said, Ram Chander Singh had died. The application for the grant of letters of administration was opposed by Kashi Nath Singh, who apparently assumed that he was entitled to oppose it as he had attached the house which was one of the properties which the will purported to bequeath to Ram Chander Singh. The will is a document covering some four or five pages and the thumb impression of Mst. Barta Kuar is on the first of these pages only and not on any of the subsequent pages. Moreover, there do not appear on the will the signature or initials of the Deputy Collector who dealt with the application made under the Land Regis. Act or of the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the Municipality, nor is there on the back of the will the impression of the seal of any Court or office. It is somewhat curious that the thumb-impression of the testatrix, should not have been taken on each page of the will and that, if it was filed in the Court of the Land Registration Deputy Collector, or in the Municipal office, no seal should ever have been put on it. Relying on these circumstances the contention put forward on behalf of the objector, Kashi Nath Singh, was that the will, which was propounded by Mst. Gulzaro Kuar, was not the document which Mst. Barta Kuar had executed. The document which Mst. Barta Kuar had executed was, it was contended, a deed of gift. The first page of this document had, it was suggested, been retained, and the remaining pages had been removed and other substituted in order to convert the document from a deed of gift into a will. In endeavouring to support this theory reliance was mainly placed on the circumstances to which I have just referred and on the evidence of Babu Bimla Sahai, a Pleader, who was a member of the sub-committee which dealt with the application made to the Municipality. Babu Bimla Sahai expressed the opinion that the document which had been filed in the Municipal office must have been an unregistered deed of gift, and could not have been a will. In saying so Babu Bimla Sahai relied on the reasons which were given by himself and the other two members of the sub-committee for rejecting the application for mutation. The deduction does not, in my opinion, necessarily follow, and it is significant that Babu Bimla Sahai was unable to say positively that the will was not the document with which the sub-committee had had to deal in 1931. Moreover, in cross-examination Babu Bimla Sahai was forced into an admission that he had been briefed to appear in certain litigation by the objector Kashi Nath Singh. Mr. D. N. Varma, for the appellant, has also relied on the language used in the application made to the municipality. It is true that the document was there described as a deed of gift. It was also, however, described as a will. In fact, in one passage in the application there occurs the curious expression "deed of gift—will", the words "bakhsishnama" and "wasiatnama" both being used. It is also significant that although in the application to the municipality the document was somewhat loosely described, the expression used in the application to the Land Registration Deputy Collector, which had been made some-time previously, was wasiatnama or will. Although the will does not bear the impression of any seal, nor the signature of the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the Municipality, or of the Deputy Collector, it bears endorsements by the record-keeper and by another clerk of the municipality. Both these gentlemen were put into the witness box by the plaintiff and they said that the endorsements on the back of the will were made by them and that the will was the document with which the sub-committee of the municipality had had to deal. It has not been disputed that the thumb-impression on the will is the thumb-impression of Mst. Barta Kuar, and it must, therefore, be assumed that during her last illness Mst. Barta Kuar did in fact execute a document, the object of which was to ensure that certain property would devolve on her great-great-grandson, Ramchander Singh, I cannot see any very good reason why the advisers of Mst. Barta Kuar, one of whom was Mohammad Zaki, a Pleader's clerk should have wrongly advised her to execute a deed of gift instead of a will. Also having regard to what is contained in the application which was made on January 3, 1930, to the Land Registration Deputy Collector, it is clear that the document then relied on was a will, and not a deed of gift. In my view, there is no good reason to suppose that the suggestion put forward on behalf of the objector that the will which was propounded by Mst. Gulzaro Kuar was not the document which Mst. Barta Kuar in fact executed, is a tenable one. That being so, the only other question that arises is whether or not the will was validly executed. The will was drawn up by Mohammad Zaki (P. W. No. 1), who, as I have already said, is a Pleader's clerk. It was signed on behalf of Mst. Barta Kuar by her son, Ram Chariter Singh, and was attested by him and by five other persons. Three of these persons, namely, Gharbharan Ram (P. W. No. 3), Kailash Singh (P. W. No. 4) and Ratan Singh (P. W. No. 6) were called to say that Mohammad Zaki wrote the will at the request of Mst. Barta Kuar and that at the time when she executed the will Mst. Barta Kuar, though suffering from asthma, was otherwise in a perfectly sound state of health and was fully aware of what she was doing. Sobh Nath Singh (P. W. No. 5), who is the grandson of Mst. Barta Kuar, also came forward to say that he had been present when the will was executed. The learned Additional District Judge had the advantage of hearing these persons give their evidence, and he was apparently satisfied that they were witnesses of truth. As I have already said, it seems quite certain that this will was in fact the document which Mst. Barta Kuar executed. There is thus no good reason to distrust the evidence of the various persons who were called to speak to the circumstances under which it came into existence. The lower Court was, in my opinion, entirely justified in coming to the conclusion that the will was duly executed and in directing that letters of administration should issue to the proponent, Mst. Gulzaro Kuar.

As I have already said, the reason why the appellant, Kashi Nath Singh, came to object to the grant of letters of administration was that in execution of a decree which he had obtained against Ram Chariter Singh, the son of the testatrix, Mst. Barta Muar, he had attached the house and kasht land which was described in the will as the self-acquired property of Mst. Barta Kuar. It is a matter of surprise that his right to appear and oppose the grant of letters of administration as a person claiming to have an interest in the estate of the deceased within the meaning of these words as they occur in s. 283 of the Indian Succession Act should have been accepted as it was. Mr. D. N. Varma in attempting to justify the intervention of his client referred to certain observations in a recent decision of this Court in In the goods of the estate of Mrs. Elsie Augusta Black (1). The observation in question is this:

"A creditor, who has attached a portion of the estate might possibly be a person who had an interest in the estate but a mere creditor without even a decree can hardly be said to have an interest in the estate".

(1) 7 B R 9; 190 Ind. Cas. 362; 13 R P 186; A I R 1941 Pat. 151; 20 Pat. 75.

Mr. D. N. Varma also referred to Bhobosoonduri Dabee, Nobeen Chunder Sil v. Bhobosoonduri Dabee (2). In that case two brothers shortly after the death of their father, had borrowed money and by way of security had given a mortgage over certain property which admittedly belonged to their father. Some time after this mortgage bond was executed, a will was propounded by their mother. Under that will their mother was to take a life-interest in the estate of their father, any interest which they themselves were to take was postponed. If the will was a valid will, the result was that the mortgages which they had executed were not valid. In the circumstances it was held that the mortgagees were entitled to intervene and oppose the grant of probate as they were persons interested in the estate of the testator. These decisions, it is obvious, are of no assistance to the present appellant, Kashi Nath Singh. Kashi Nath Singh is not a creditor of the testatrix, but a creditor of her son Ram Chariter Singh. So far from its being admitted that the property disposed of by the will is the property of the testatrix, the contention is that it belongs to her son, Ram Chariter Singh and is therefore liable to be taken in execution of the decree which Kashi Nath Singh has obtained against Ram Chariter Singh. In Gopal Chandra Bose v. Ashutosh Bose, 20 Ind. Cas. 342 (3) it was pointed not that a person who claims outside and independently of a will or claims adversely to the testator and disputes his right to deal with the property, can in no sense be deemed to claim an interest in the estate of the deceased within the meaning of s. 283 of the Indian Succession Act. That was a case in which the daughter of a Hindu had executed a will disposing of property which she claimed to have inherited from her father and the contention put forward on behalf of the objector was that she had really taken no more than a life-interest in the estate and was, therefore, not competent to dispose of it by will. The reasoning, it is obvious, applies a fortiori to the present case. In the written statement, which was put in by Kashi Nath Singh, there occurs this:

"The properties mentioned in schedule A never belonged to Mst. Barta Kuar nor did she ever get possession over them rather the properties belonged to Chariter Singh and they have all along been in his possession."

In an application for probate of a will or for the grant of letters of administration with a copy of the will annexed the sole question that arises is whether or not the will is a true one. It is not open to the probate Court to decide whether or not the property with which a testator has purported to deal, in fact belonged to him. In Birj Nath De v. Chandra Mohan Banerji (4) Sir John Edge said this :

(2) 6 C 460.
(3) 20 Ind. Cas. 342.

"It has been contended that where an application for probate of a will is contested and it is alleged that the property dealt with by the will was not of the testator or was not property over which the testator had a power of testamentary disposal, it is the duty of the Court to try an issue raising this question. All we can say is that it would be exceedingly inconvenient if Courts in this country had to try such issues A Court could never be quite sure that it had got the proper parties before it. It would be difficult always to be sure that there was not collusion in the case. It is much safer in the interests of the public that issues as to the title to property should be decided when the issues are raised in a regular suit, and not on an application for a grant of probate."

It is true that the learned Additional District Judge realised perfectly well that it would have been improper for him to decide whether or not the house and the orchard and kasht land described in the will actually belonged to Mst. Barta Kuar and not to her son, Ram Chariter Singh. It is, however, a pity that he did not also recognize that for more or less the same reasons as made this improper Kashi Nath Singh was not a person interested in the estate of the testatrix and as such entitled to oppose the grant. The result of permitting persons in such a position as Kashi Nath Singh was to appear and contest the grant of probate or letters of administration may be very inconvenient and troublesome to the propcnents of a will who are thereby put to the expense of proving it in solemn form when it might otherwise be proved in common form.

I would dismiss this appeal with costs.

Meredith, J.—I agree.

S. Appeal dismissed.

(4) 19 A 458; A W N 1897, 106.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT
Full Bench

Third Criminal Sessions, 1939 Case No. 4
November 15, 1940
BEAUMONT, C. J.,
N. J. WADIA AND SEN, JJ.
EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR
versus
DAWOOD HASHAM—ACCUSED

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 289, 298, 299—Discretion conferred by s. 289—Judicial exercise of—Duties of Judge and jury—Question whether there is evidence to go before jury is one of law, to be decided by Judge—Evidence if believed by jury leading to conviction—Judge must leave case to jury—Defects in evidence to be brought to attention of jury—Evidence even if believed by jury not sufficient to justify conviction—Judge is bound to hold that there is no evidence to be placed before jury—He must withdraw case from jury and direct them to return verdict of not guilty.

Section 289, Criminal P. C., provides that if the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, it may, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. That section confers in terms a discretion on the Judge, but it is a discretion which must be exercised judicially. Where the Judge is satisfied that there is no evidence to go to the jury, he must in his discretion withdraw the case from the jury, or in other words, direct them to return a verdict of not guilty, because all questions of law have to be decided by the Judge, and the question whether there is any evidence to go before the jury is a question of law. The jury have to decide all questions as to the reliability of the evidence, and it is for them to determine which view of the facts is true. The Judge may consider that the evidence led for the prosecution is very weak, that there are discrepancies in it, that it is of a type usually found to be unreliable, and that the story is inherently improbable. All such defects he ought to bring to the attention of the jury, but if the evidence is such that if it is believed by the jury, it must lead to a conviction, then the Judge is bound to leave the question to the jury, because it is for them to decide whether the evidence is to be believed or not. But if the Judge comes to the conclusion that, assuming that the jury believes the whole of the evidence placed before them, in law they cannot convict the accused, then he is bound to hold that there is no evidence to be placed before the jury, and he is bound to direct them in law to return a verdict of not guilty.

Messrs. P. P. Khambatta and N. K. Pettigara (Public Prosecutor), for the Crown.

Mr. A. C. Beynon, for Accused Nos. 2 and 3.

Beaumont, C. J.—This case comes before the Court on a certificate of the Advocate-General given under cl. 26 of the Letters Patent. He considers that the question, whether the learned Judge should have withdrawn the case from the jury on the ground that there was no evidence to go to the jury, is a question of law which requires to be considered by this Court. The case in question was tried by Lokur, J. and a special jury, and in it three accused were charged with murder and abetment of murder. The actual murder was charged against accused No. 1, and abetment of murder against accused Nos. 2 and 3.

The material facts, which the jury accepted, appear sufficiently from the certificate of the Advocate-General. The murdered man, Husain Aiman, and his son Noor Mahemed were living in a house in Bhisti Moholla, and on January 22, 1939, about 11 P. M., Noor Mahomed was returning to his house, when he was abused by accused Nos 1, 2 and 3 and a man named Hasham who were sitting on the otla of a house near to his house. A quarrel ensued and a fight started between Noor Mahomed and accused No. 2, and at that stage Hussein, the father of Noor Mahomed, came up and separated the contestants, and either Hasham or accused No. 3 shouted, "Seize Hussein, do not let him go." Thereupon accused Nos. 2 and 3 caught hold of the deceased Hussein. Hussein when caught, was facing the otla and accused No. 3 was facing Hussein. Whilst Hussein was being held by accused Nos. 2 and 3, he shouted to his son Noor Mahomed "Dawood, (that is accused No. 1) has a knife in his hand, run away." Then Noor Mahomed ran away. Thereupon accused No. 1 jumped down from the otla and stabbed Hussein through the heart, and killed him. Accused No. 1 was found guilty of murder by the jury and was sentenced to be hanged, and no question about his guilt arises.

Accused Nos. 2 and3 were found guilty of abetment of murder and were sentenced by the learned Judge to transportation for life, and the question before us is whether there was any evidence to go to the jury that they were guilty of abetment. Now, the law, I think, is free from doubt. Section 289, Criminal P. C., provides that if the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, it may, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. That section confers in terms a discretion on the Judge, but it is a discretion which must be exercised judicially, and when one considers the respective functions of the Judge and jury in a trial by jury—functions which are prescribed in ss. 298 and 299—it is quite clear that where the Judge is satisfied that there is no evidence to go to the jury, he must in his discretion withdraw the case from the jury, or in other words, direct them to return a verdict of not guilty. That is clear, because all questions of law have to be decided by the Judge, and the question whether there is any evidence to go before the jury is a question of law. The jury have to decide all questions as to the reliability of the evidence, and it is for them to determine which view of the facts is true. The Judge may consider that the evidence led for the prosecution is very weak, that there are discrepancies in it, that it is of a type usually found to be unreliable, and that the story is inherently improbable. All such defects he ought to bring to the attention of the jury; but if the evidence is such that if it is believed by the jury, it must lead to a conviction, then the Judge is bound to leave the question to the jury, because it is for them to decide whether the evidence is to be believed or not. But if the Judge comes to the conclusion that, assuming that the jury believes the whole of the evidence placed before them, in law they cannot convict the accused, then he is bound to hold that there is no evidence to be placed before the jury, and he is bound to direct them in law to return a verdict of not guilty.

Now, the question is, on which side of the line this case comes. Is it a case of no evidence which can justify a conviction, or is it a case of weak evidence which the jury nevertheless would be entitled to accept? Nobody suggests that the evidence against accused Nos. 2 and 3 is of a convincing character. The learned Judge gave a very full and fair summing-up, indeed so full is the summing up that both sides have agreed that it is not necessary to have a transcript of the evidence, because the learned Judge has correctly summarized all the material evidence, The bulk of his charge is, of course, directed to the case against accused No. 1, with which we are not concerned, but in the early part of his summing-up he explains to the jury accurately the nature of abetment. He points out that under s. 107, I. P. C., abetment may be of three characters, either by instigation, or by conspiracy, or by aiding, or assisting and then, at a later stage of his summing up, he deals with the case against accused Nos. 2 and 3 specifically. There was no evidence that accused Nos. 2 and 3 had instigated accused No. 1 to stab Hussein, but the learned Judge discusses the two other aspects of abetment—active assistance, and previous conspiracy. He points out that as against accused Nos. 2 and 3 there is no evidence at all that they took any active part in the actual stabbing. He also points out that the whole incident took place in a few minutes and that it is not alleged that accused No. 1 shouted out that Hussein should be stabbed. He points out further that if accused Nos. 2 and 3 were looking away from the otla, they could not expect that accused No. 1 would immediately come down from the otla and stab Hussein. He says that abetment requires that the persons abetting must intend to facilitate the commission of the offence. Then he says :

"If accused No. 2 and 3 did not seize Hussein intending that he should be stabbed by accused No. 1, then they cannot be said to have abetted the commission of the offence by accused No. 1. It was pointed out to you in the course of the arguments that as accused Nos 2 and 3 were holding Hussein, they could not see what accused No. 1 was doing as their backs were turned towards him. If accused Nos.1 had shouted to accused Nos. 2 and 3, 'Seize Hussein, I am coming to stab him,' then they might perhaps have let him go or prevented accused No 1 from stabbing him. There is no evidence to show that accused Nos. 2 and 3 had their attention directed towards accused No. 1. Unless you assume that there must have been a conspiracy beforehand and in pursuance of that conspiracy accused Nos. 2 and 3 caught hold of Hussein you cannot say that accused Nos. 2 and 3 abetted the commission of the crime."

So that the learned Judge seems definitsly to express the view that unless the jury found abetment by means of previous conspiracy, there was no evidence of abetment; there was no evidence, that is to say, of actually aiding in the commission of the murder. Then the learned Judge goes on to discuss the evidence relating to previous conspiracy. He says :

"It is admitted that accused Nos. 2 and 3 did not speak to accused No. 1, nor did accused No. 1 say anything to accused Nos. 2 and 3 or to the deceased before he stabbed the deceased. It was done all of a sudden."

Then he says :

"Accused Nos 2 and 3 themselves did not know why they were called upon to seize the deceased. It may be that Hasham wanted merely to detain Hussein. Hussein had gone there as a peacemaker to settle the quarrel between accused No. 2 and Noor Mahomed. Noor Mahomed ran away and then Hasham or some one from the crowd may have thought of keeping Hussein in order to settle the dispute once for all. In these circumstances unless there was a previous conspiracy that Hussein should be seized and stabbed, it would be difficult for you to hold accused Nos. 2 and 3 guilty of abetment. But the presence of Hussein there was accidental. It is therefore to my mind clear that on the evidence accused Nos. 2 and 3 cannot be held to have conspired with accused No. 1 for stabbing the deceased Hussein."

So that the learned Judge has really held that there was no evidence of abetment by active assistance or previous conspiracy, and there was no suggestion of abetment by instigation. I think therefore that if the learned Judge's attention had been drawn to s. 289, Criminal P. C., he would have held that there was no evidence to go to the jury. Unfortunately, his attention was not directed to that section, and he left the case to the jury, and, no doubt, much to his surprise and regret, the jury brought in a unanimous verdit of guilty against accused Nos. 2 and 3. It is argued by Mr. Khambatta for the Crown that in point of fact there was evidence, weak perhaps, but still evidence fit to be left to the jury. The evidence has not been transcribed, and, as I have said, we are judging from the summing up of the learned Judge. To my mind, the learned Judge has ruled upon the question, which it was for him to rule upon, and he has in fact held in his summing-up that there was no evidence against accused Nos. 2 and 3 of abetment, and is that it so, as a matter of law he was bound to withdraw the case from the jury. There is no material before us which would justify our differing from the learned Judge on his view of the law. The error arises from the fact that, having decided the question of law, and held that there was no evidence to go to the jury, he did not adopt the correct course and direct the jury that in law they were bound to return a verdict of not guilty. I think therefore that we must set aside the verdict of the jury as against accused Nos. 2 and 3. Of course, they might undoubtedly have been held guilty of assault under s. 352. and theref re they have not much to complain of, if they have spent some time in prison. We set aside the verdict and sentence as against accused Nos. 2 and 3 and direct that they be acquitted and set at liberty.

N. J. Wadia, J.—I agree and have nothing to add.

Sen, J.—I agree.

S. Order accordingly.

PATNA HIGH COURT
Special Bench
Civil Reference No. 2 of 1940
January 20, 1941
HARRIES, C. J., FAZL ALI AND AGARWALA, JJ.
In re RAMSWARUP LAL, A MUKHTAR
CHAPRA

Legal practitioner—Professional misconduct—Gross negligence—Judgment-debtor filing satisfaction petition with forged signature alleged to be of decree-holder's son, acknowledging satisfaction—Mukhtar endorsing identification of decree-holder on being told by judgment-debtor that person brought by him was decree-holder—Decree-holder alleged to be illiterate—Judgment-debtor known to mukhtar for 15 years -Mukhtar not making investigation nor taking precaution of obtaining thumb impression of alleged decree-holder but acting merely on judgment-debtor's assurance that he would obtain such thumb-impression—Mukhtar not acting for his or judgment-debtor's benefit—Mukhtar's act held, grossly careless and negligent—Serious notice of his conduct without imposing punishment of suspension held sufficient in the circumstances

In execution case a satisfaction petition was filed purporting to be by the decree-holder. On the petition was a signature alleged to be that of the decree-holder's son, acknowledging satisfaction and also an endorsement of identification of the decree-holder, by the mukhtar. Subsequently this petition was found to be a forged one and the judgment-debtor was found guilty of presenting a forged petition of satisfaction. Proceedings were started against the mukhtar under the Legal Practitioners

Act. In answer to the charge the mukhtar stated that the judgment-debtor a sadhu, had been known to him for fifteen years; that the latter came to him and showed him a man who he said was the decree-holder and asked him (the mukhtar) to identify him as such; that he was shown the petition of satisfaction which had already been completed, and he identified the person shown to him as the decree-holder. It was said that the decree-holder was illiterate and could not sign and another person signed who purported to be decree-holder's son. The mukhtar did not take the precaution of taking the thumb-impression of the person who was said to be the decree-holder on the mere assurance of the judgment-debtor that he would take his thumb-impression :

Held, that the frankness of the mukhtar in admitting that he made no further investigation while identifying the decree-holder and that he had acted merely upon the assurance of the judgment-debtor, must be considered as a point in his favour. Although cases of mukhtars identifying improperly must be regarded severely ; yet in the present case the Court could take a more lenient view because of the mukhtar's past record and because there was no suggestion that the mukhtar acted as he did for gain or in order to benefit the judgment-debtor in the case. He did not appear to have had any dishonest motive, though, in the circumstances, he was grossly careless and negligent Although the Court must take serious notice of his conduct yet in the circumstances the Court did not think that it was necessary to impose any punishment by way of suspension.

C. Ref. made by the District Judge Saran, dated April 29, 1940.

The Advocate-General, in support of Reference.

Messrs. Hareshwar Prasad Sinha and R. K. Chaudhuri, against the Reference.

Harries, C. J.—This is a reference by the learned District Judge of Saran in a matter relating to the conduct of one Ramswarup Lal, a mukhtar. It appears that in Execution Case No. 535 of 1939 a satisfaction petition was filed before the learned Munsif on July 7, 1939, purporting to be by the decree-holder, Ramdhari Tiwari. On the petition was a signature alleged to be that of Ramdhari's son, Sheonandan Tiwari, acknowledging satisfaction and also an endorsement of identification of the decree-holder, Ramdhari, Tiwari, by the mukhtar Ramswarup Lal. On July 18, 1939, however, the decree-holder, Ramdhari Tiwari, filed a petition in Court alleging that the so-called satisfaction petition with Sheonandan's signature thereon was a forged one and that he had not received payment of any amount in satisfaction of the decree. I may observe that proceedings were commenced and inquiry made, and in due course the judgment-debtor, Dinanath Missir, was found guilty of presenting a forged petition of satisfaction. As a result of the inquiries made by the learned Munsif before the criminal case was instituted, he was satisfied that the mukhtar, Ramswarup Lal, had been guilty of conduct which might well be an offence under the Legal Practitioners Act. Notice was served upon Ramswarup Lal to show cause why proceedings under that Act should not be instituted against him and in due course the learned Munsif heard evidence. The matter now comes before us on a reference from the learned District Judge of Saran. In his view the mukhtar was guilty of gross negligence, and his conduct in identifying the so-called decree-holder was grossly improper. In the view of the learned District Judge the mukhtar is guilty of gross professional misconduct, and the matter has been referred to this Court for orders.

Ramswarup Lal's answer to the charge is this. He says that the judgment-debtor Dinanath Missir, a sadhu, had been known to him for fifteen years, The latter came to him and showed him a man who he said was Ramdhari Tiwari and asked the mukhtar to identify him as such. He was shown the petition of satisfaction which had already been completed, and the mukhtar identified the person shown to him as Ramdhari Tiwari, the decree-holder. It was said that Ramdhari was illiterate and could not sign and another person signed who purported to be Ramdhari Tiwari's son, Sheonandan. The mukhtar did not take the precaution of taking the thumb-impression of the person who was said to be Ramdhari Tiwari. As I have stated earlier, the real Ramdhari Tiwari informed the Court on July 18 that the petition of satisfaction was a forgery and that has since been held to be so by the criminal Courts. The question arises whether the part played by the Mukhtar Ramswarup Lal in this case amounts to gross professional misconduct deserving of punishment. On the mukhtar's own showing he did not know Ramdhari Tiwari, yet he identified a man as Ramdhari Tiwari merely because the judgment-debtor whom he knew said that the man was Ramdhari Tiwari. He made no other inquiry of any kind, and all that can be urged in his favour is that the judgment-debtor was a man known to the mukhtar for fifteen years or so. It is urged that the mukhtar was justified in accepting Dinanath Missir's statement that the man whom he was to identify was Ramdhari Tiwari ; but in my judgment a mukhtar who is asked to identify has no right to identify a person merely because the party asking him to identify tells him that a particular person is the person whom he is identifying. The very fact that it was the judgment-debtor who told the mukhtar the person whom he was asked to identify was the decree-holder should have put the mukhtar on his guard. The petition which was about to be filed was a petition of satisfaction, and the mukhtar should have taken care to satisfy himself that the person who posed as the decree-holder was in fact the decree-holder. The only information given to the mukhtar was given by a highly interested party, namely the judgment-debtor himself. Further, the mukhtar did not insist on the person who posed as the decree-holder affixing his thumb-impression on the petition, and his only excuse for this is that the judgment-debtor assured him that he would take Ramdhari Tiwari's thumb-impression.

The mukhtar Ramswarup Lal has been in practice for some 23 years, and it is clear from the judgment of the learned Munsif in the criminal case against Dinanath Misser that the mukhtar has for many years been regarded as a most respectable member of his profession. Further, the mukhtar in this case has not attempted to deny his want of care. In evidence in the criminal case he stated frankly that he had identified the man as Ramdhari Tiwari merely because he was told so by Dinanath Missir. He has in short frankly admitted that he made no further investigation and that he had acted merely upon the assurance of the judgment-debtor. His frankness in the matter must be considered as a point in his favour. Further, there is nothing to suggest that this mukhtar is in the habit of identifying all and sundry without taking due precautions. This appears to be an isolated case in which the mukhtar acted improperly.

There can be no doubt that in the circumstances of this case the mukhtar should never have identified the man shown to him as Ramdhari Tiwari. His doing so without any inquiry and without an information beyond the bare statement of the judment-debtor was conduct which this Court can never countenance. The mukhtar made no attempt whatsoever to satisfy himself from any independent source that the man was Ramdhari Tiwari and he ought never to have acted upon the mere statement of the judgment-debtor who was a highly interested party in the filing of the petition of satisfaction. This Court has stated time and again that cases of mukhtars identifying improperly must be regarded severely ; but in the present case the Court can take a more lenient view because of the mukhtar's past record and because there is no suggestion that the mukhtar acted as he did for gain or in order to benefit the judgment-debtor in the case. The mukhtar does not appear to have had any dishonest motive, though, in the circumstances, he was grossly careless and negligent. We must take serious notice of his conduct but in the circumstances the Court does not think that it is necessary to impose any punishment by way of suspension. The mukhtar must take care in the future that he makes no identification such as the one now in question. In all the circumstances, I would discharge this reference, but I would order the mukhtar to pay the costs of these proceedings which I would assess at four gold mohurs. This sum must be deposited in Court within three months from to-day failing which the case will be listed before this Bench for orders.

Fazl Ali, J.—I agree.

Agarwala, J.—I agree.

S. Reference discharged.

OUDH CHIEF COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 18 of 1938 |
March 7, 1941

BENNETT, J.

RISHI KESH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS

versus

BRIJ MOHAN LAL PLAINTIFF—OPPOSITE-PARTY

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 118 — Presumption under— Promissory note—Distinction, if can be drawn between admission and proof of execution—Execution held proved and presumption under s. 118 applied.

Section 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act provides that until the contrary is proved it shall be presumed that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration. No distinction is drawn in that section between admission of execution and proof of execution, and it is immaterial whether execution is admitted or is proved. In either case the presumption can be made.

Where the suit was between the sons of the parties to the promissory note and the defence was based on ignorance of the execution and not on any definite knowledge that the promissory note had not been executed by the father of the defendants who were minors represented by their real uncle and one of the plaintiff's witnesses deposed that he knew the handwriting and signature of the executant and that the note was executed by the defendant's father and although the defendants could have produced evidence to disprove execution of the promissory note they did not do so:

Held, that the Court was justified in the circumstances to hold that the evidence of the plaintiff's witness was sufficient to prove the execution of the document, and the presumption provided by s. 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, therefore, applied. 146 Ind. Cas. 709 (1), 149 Ind. Cas. 605 (2) and 167 Ind. Cas. 819 (3), distinguished.

C. R App. of the order of the Civil Judge (as Judge of Small Cause Court), Hardoi, dated November 11, 1937.

Mr. K. N. Tandon, for the Applicant.

Mr. B. K. Dhaon, for the Opposite Party

Order.—This is an application in revision under s. 25 of the Small Cause Courts Act. A suit was brought by a minor named Brij Mohan Lal against two other minors, Rishi Kesh and Brij Behari on the basis of a promissory note which purported to have been executed by one Babu Ram, father of Rishi Kesh and Brij Behari, in favour of Kashi Nath, father of Brij Mohan Lal.

The defence was a denial that the document had been executed by Babu Ram but the defendants made it clear in their additional pleas that this denial was based on ignorance of the execution and not on any definite knowledge that the promissory note had not been executed by Babu Ram. There was no suggestion that the writing or signature had been forged. The minor defendants, it should be noted, were under the guardianship of an uncle named Pirthi Pal, who appears to have been brother of Babu Ram as he is described as their real uncle.

The lower Court considered that the promissory note had been proved by the evidence of a witness named Darbari Lal who deposed that he was in a position to recognise the signature and handwriting of Babu Ram because the latter had written several deeds for him. He further deposed that the promissory note and also the receipt (Exs. 1 and 2) "appear to be scribed by Babu Ram and bear his signature." It would seem from this that the witness intended to say that he thought the writing was Babu Ram's writing and that he was confident that the signatures were those of Babu Ram. It is, however, not quite clear whether he intended to draw any such distinction between the actual writing of the promissory note and the signature.

It is submitted in this application in revision that the evidence of Darbari Lal is insufficient to prove execution and further that the suit should not have been decreed in the absence of evidence to show that there was consideration for the promissory note.

In support of these contentions I have referred to three cases, Nando v. Dulara (A. I. R. 1933 Oudh, 394 (1)) (1), Bishambar Das v. Ismail (A. I. R. 1933 Lah. 1029) (2) and Anumolu Narayana Rao v. Ghattaraju Venkatappayya (A. I. R. 1937 Mad. 182) (3).

In the Oudh case the plaintiff brought a suit on the basis of a promissory note purporting to have been executed by the defendant and the defendant denied having borrowed any money from the plaintiff. It was held by Nanavutty, J. that it was for the plaintiff to prove not only the execution of the promissory note but also the passing of consideration.

It will be observed that in this case the suit was between the alleged principals to the transaction and there was a definite denial by the defendant that he had borrowed the money. In the present case the suit is between the sons of the parties to the promissory note and the defence is based on absence of knowledge.

In the Lahore case the suit appears to have been brought by the party in whose favour the promissory note was alleged to have been executed, and the defendants were the sons of the deceased executant. The sons denied execution by their father. It was not alleged that the document had been written by the deceased executant, but only that it bore his thumb mark. It was held that in these circumstances it was necessary that the plaintiff should prove by clear, cogent and reliable evidence that the thumb impression on the document was really that of the deceased executant.

It is clear, therefore, that the facts in the Lahore case were different from the facts in the present case.

In the Madras case it was said that in a suit on a promissory note purporting to have been executed by the father of the defendant, the burden of proof is not the same in respect of the claim against his sons as that applicable to the claim against the father. The burden of proof was held to lie on the plaintiff to prove the debt like any other debt.

(1) A I R 1933 Oudh 394 (1); 146 Ind. Cas. 709; 1 O W N 839; 6 R O 175 (1); 1934 O L R 24.

(2) A I R 1933 Lah. 1029; 149 Ind. Cas. 605; 6 R L 721.

(3) A I R 1937 Mad. 182; 167 Ind. Cas. 819; (1936) M W N 1167; 44 L W 784; 9 R M 478; (1937) 1 M L J 513; I L R (1937) Mad. 299.

Another case was referred to, namely Yankasawmy v. Sitaram, (156 Ind. Cas. 256) (4), in which the Rangoon High Court held that where there was a denial by the defendant that he had promised to pay the sum to the plaintiff, the burden of proof of the loan lay on the latter.

If the evidence of Darbari Lal is accepted as sufficient to prove the execution of the document by Babu Ram, the question remains whether it was also necessary for the plaintiff to prove consideration for its execution. No evidence was produced by either side on this point, presumably because neither party had an knowledge of the alleged transaction. Section 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act provides that until the contrary is proved it shall be presumed that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration. Learned Counsel for the applicant contends, on the basis of the cases cited that where a promissory note is denied, it is not sufficient that it should be proved: it is also necessary that consideration for it should be proved. I find it difficult to accept this contention because it is not supported by s. 118. No distinction is drawn in that section between admission of execution and proof of execution, and I should have thought that it was immaterial whether execution was admitted or was proved. In either case I should have thought that the presumption referred to could be made.

In the present case, although neither party may have had any knowledge of the circumstances of the loan, it would certainly appear that the defendant could have produced evidence to disprove execution of the promissory note by Babu Ram, if actually it was a forgery. Presumably Pirthipal, who represented the minors, was acquainted with Babu Ram's handwriting and signature, and had the document been forged, we might have expected Pirthipal himself to have gone into the witness box and to have said so. He did not do this. There was no express denial of the writing and signature and no request for expert examination of the writing and signature. I do not consider in these circumstances that it would be justifiable to hold that the lower Court was not warranted in accepting the evidence of Darbari Lal as sufficient to prove the execution of the document, and in my opinion once the document is proved the presumption provided by s. 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act applies.

I find, therefore, no good ground for interference and I dismiss the application with costs.

S. Application dismissed.

(4) 156 Ind. Cas. 256; A I R 1935 Rang. 130; 7 R Rang. 388.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 4901 of 1940

April 11, 1940

LEACH, C. J. AND KRISHNASWAMI AYYANGAR, J.

A L. S. P. P. L. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR BY AGENT NARAYANAN CHETTIAR—PETITIONER,

versus

MUTHUSWAMI GOUNDAN—RESPONDENT

Government of India Act, 1935, (25 and 26 Geo. V Ch 42), s 205 (1)—Effect of s. 205 (1) in respect of appeal to Federal Court—Dismissal of revision application by Single Judge of High Court is final order—Such order certifying that matter involves substantial question of law involving interpretation of Government of India Act—Appeal to Federal Court, if competent—S 111-A, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), whether bar—Civil Procedure Code Act V of 1908), s. 111-A, O. XLV, r. 17 Proviso (a)—Object of s. 111-A—Construction of Proviso (a) to O. XLV r. 17.

The effect of s 205 (1), Govt. of India Act is that where a High Court has certified that a judgment, decree or final order passed by it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act, the dissatisfied party has the right of appeal to the Federal Court. If the case involves the amount of Rs 10,000 or more and otherwise complies with the conditions regarding appeals to His Majesty in Council under the Code of Civil P C, then the Federal Court is empowered to hear and decide all the questions arising in the appeal. If the Federal Court were not empowered to deal with all the questions in such a case it would mean that there would be an appeal to the Federal Court on the question of interpretation of the statute and an appeal to the Privy Council on the other points in the case.

An order passed by a Single Judge of the High Court dismissing an application for revision, is a final order of the High Court. Hence when such order certifies that the appeal involved a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, an appeal to the Federal Court is competent and s. 111-A, Civil P. C., is no bar to such appeal

The object of s. 111-A, Civil P. C, is to bring the Civil P. C., into line with s. 205, Govt of India Act. The two provisos make it perfectly clear that nothing in the Code shall be read as affecting the right given to a party to appeal to the Federal Court under sub-s (1) of s. 205 when the High Court has passed a final judgment, decree or order and has certified that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act is involved.

The addition of the words to r. 3 of O. XLV, Civil P. C., effected by proviso (a) to r. 17 makes it quite clear that it is unnecessary for the Court to consider in a petition filed in compliance with O. XLV, r. 2 the question whether there is a substantial question of law involved as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, 1935.

C. Misc. P. for leave to appeal to Federal Court against the judgment and order of the High Court, in C. R. P. No. 825 of 1939, dated May 2, 1939.

Messrs. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar and P. S. Sarangapani Iyengar, for the Petitioner.

Messrs. B. K. B. Naidu and R. Muthialuswami, for the Respondent.

Leach, C. J.—This is an application for leave to appeal to the Federal Court from an order of Wadsworth, J. which involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, 1935. The application is opposed and it is necessary to set out the course of events preceding the order of the learned Judge and to examine the provisions of the Act and the amendments which have been made to the Civil P. C. by the Govt. of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937. On November 21, 1934 the petitioner obtained a money decree for Rs. 7,569-0-9 with the interest and costs against the respondent in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Coimbatore. At that time the Mad. Agri, Relief Act had not been placed on the statute book. It came into force however on March 22, 1938 and in accordance with its provisions the judgment-debtor applied for an order scaling down the decretal amount. His application was granted and as the result of the investigation it was found that taking into account the scaling down provisions the debt had been completely discharged. Consequently, the judgment-debtor applied to the Subordinate Judge for an order directing full satisfaction to be recorded and this application was granted. The petitioner then applied to this Court to revise the Subordinate Judge's order on the ground that the Mad. Agri. Relief Act was ultra vires the powers of the Provincial Legislature and to set aside the order for scaling down and the order directing satisfaction to be recorded.

The application for revision came before Wadsworth, J. on May 2, 1939. By that time the question of the validity of the Mad. Ari. Relief Act had been considered by a Full Bench of this Court in Nagaratnam v. Seshayya (1). The Full Bench held that the Act was intra vires the powers of the Provincial Legislature. As he was bound to do in the circumstances Wadsworth, J. dismissed the revision petition, but as it involved an important question as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, 1935, he granted a certificate under s. 205 (1) of the Act. It is in respect of that order of dismissal that the petitioner wishes to appeal to the Federal Court. The respondent says there is no appeal from the order of a single Judge of a High Court and in this connexion relies on the provisions of s. 111 (a), Civil P. C. An examination of that section fails to reveal any support for the argument. Section 205 (1), Govt. of India Act, reads as follows:

"An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in British India, if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any order in Council made thereunder and it shall be the duty of every High Court in British India to consider in every case whether or not any such question is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly.

(2) Where such a certificate is given, any party in the case may appeal to the Federal Court on the ground that any such question as aforesaid has been wrongly decided, and on any ground on which that party could have appealed without special leave to His Majesty in Council if no such certificate had been given, and, with the leave of the Federal Court, on any other ground, and no direct appeal shall lie to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave."

The effect of this section is this. Where a High Court has certified that a judgment, decree or final order passed by it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act, the dissatisfied party has the right of appeal to the Federal Court. If the case involves the amount of Rs. 10,000 or more and otherwise complies with the conditions regarding appeals to His Majesty in Council under the Civil P. C. then the Federal Court is empowerd to hear and decide all the questions arising in the appeal. If the Federal Court were not empowered to deal with all the questions in such a case it would mean that there would be an appeal to the Federal Court on the question of interpretation of the statute and an appeal to the Privy Council on the other points in the case. It will be observed that the section also provides that the Federal Court can itself give special leave on other points. By the Govt. of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937, two additions were made to the Civil P. C. The first is the insertion of s. 111-A which reads as follows:

"Where a certificate has been given under s. 205

(1) I L R (1939) Mad. 151; 180 Ind. Cas. 994; A I R 1939 Mad. 361; (1939) 1 M L J 272; (1939) M W N 192 (2); 49 L W 257; 11 R M 760 (F B).

(1), Govt. of India Act, 1935 the three last preceding sections shall apply in relation to appeals to His Majesty in Council, and accordingly references to His Majesty shall be construed as references to the Federal Court:

propvided that

(a) so much of the said sections as delimits the cases in which an appeal will lie shall be construed as delimiting the cases in which an appeal will lie without the leave of the Federal Court otherwise than on the ground that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the said act, or any order in Council made thereunder, has been wrongly decided;

(b) in determining under cl. (c) of s. 109 whether the case is a fit one for appeal, and under s. 110, whether the appeal involves a substantial question of law, any question of law as to the interpretation of the said act, or any order in Council made thereunder, shall be left out of account."

The object of this section is to bring the Civil P. C. into line with . 205, Govt. of India Act. The two provisos make it perfectly clear that nothing in the Code shall be read as affecting the right given to a party to appeal to the Federal Code under sub-s. (1) of s. 205 when the High Court has passed a final judgment, decree or order and has certified that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act is involved. The provisos to s. 111-A have been expressed in very compact language, but when it is followed there is no doubt left as to its effect. The second addition is to O. XLV, Civil P. C. An additional rule has been here inserted, r. 17, and it reads as follows:

"Where a certificate has been given under s. 205 (1), Govt. of India Act, 1935, the provisions of this order shall apply in relation to appeals to the Federal Court as they apply in relation to appeals to His Majesty in Council and references in this order to His Majesty in Council and to any order of His Majesty in Council shall be construed as references to the Federal Court and the rules of the Federal Court. Provided that

(a) Rule 3 of this order shall have effect as if at the end of sub-r. (1) thereof there were inserted the words 'apart from any question of law as to the intepretation of the Govt. of India Act, 1935, or any order in Council made thereunder.'

(b) Where the only ground of appeal stated in the petition is that any question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act. 1935 or any order in Council made thereunder has been wrongly decided, the petition need not pray for such a certificate as is mentioned in r. 3, and the like proceedings shall be had thereon as if such a certificate had been given except that no security shall be required for the costs of the respondent."

Rule 3, as it stood before the amendment, provided that every petition for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council should state the grounds of appeal and pray for a certificate either that, as regards amount or value and nature, the case fulfils the requirements of s. 110, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. The addition of the words to r. 3 effected by proviso (a) makes it quite clear that it is unnecessary for the Court to consider in a petition filed in compliance with O. XLV, r. 2 the question whether there is a substantial question of law involved as to the interpretaion of the Govt. of India Act, 1935. That matter has already been dealt with under s. 205 (1) by the High Court on the passing of its judgment, decree or final order. Proviso (b) emphasizes that it is unecessary for the petitioner to apply for a certificate or for the Court to grant one. The order of Wadsworth, J. was a final order of this Court. Clause 15, Letters Patent, prohibits an appeal from an order passed by the Court in the exercise of its revisional powers. The learned Judge considered whether the matter involved a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, 1935, and he has certified that his order does involve such a question. No other question is involved and therefore this appeal must be admitted.

N.-S. Appeal admitted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

First Appeal No. 212 of 1939
December 20, 1940
MOHAMMAD ISMAIL, J.
GANGA KUER—APPELLANT
versus
SUKHJIT SINGH AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS

U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (XXV of 1934), ss. 9, 13—Rejection of written statement filed beyond time prescribed—Court-fee payable on appeal from such order is under Sch. II, Art. 11, Court Fees Act (VII of 1870).

The rejection of a written statement beyond the time prescribed by the Act cannot have the force of a decree of a Civil Court. It is only when an order is passed under s. 14, U. P Encum. Estates Act that the order becomes a decree. The creditor who is aggrieved by an order of the Special Judge rejecting his written statement filed beyond the prescribed time is entitled to appeal on payment of court-fee payable under Art. 11, Sch. II, Court Fees Act. 179 Ind. Cas. 45 (1) (1), relied on; 173 Ind. Cas. 353 (2), distinguished.

F. A. from an order of the District Judge, Farrukhabad, dated August 10, 1939.

Mr. Shabd Saran, for the Appellant.

Judgment.—This is an appeal from an order of the learned District Judge, Farrukhabad. The respondent, Sukajit Singh and several other persons made an application under s. 4, Encum. Estates Act, which was forwarded in due course to the Special Judge. The Special Judge in pursuance of the direction laid down in s. 9 of the Act, called upon all persons having claims in respect of private debts, both decreed and undecreed against the person or the property of the landlord to present to the Special Judge within three months from the date of the publication of the notice, written statements of their claims The appellant presented her claim after the expiry of time allowed by law. The written statement was therefore rejected. The appellant then preferred an appeal to the Court of the District Judge and preliminary objection was raised that the memorandum of appeal was not properly stamped. The learned District Judge upheld the objection and decided that an ad valorem court-fee should have been paid The appellant has now come up to this Court in appeal. It is argued by him that the order of the Court below is erroneous and that the order of the Special Judge declining to accept his written statement was only an order which did not have the force of a decree and therefore the court-fee was payable in accordance with Art. 11, Sch. II. Under s 13 of the Act, every claim decreed or undecreed against the landlord unless made within the time and in the manner required by the Act is deemed for all purposes and on all occasions to have been duly discharged. If the order of the Court below is maintained, the claim of the appellant would be deemed to have been satisfied. If however the claim of the appellant had been within time, and had been adjudicated upon, the final order of the Court would have had the force of a decree of a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction: vide s. 14 of the Act.

The Encum. Estates Act has laid down a special procedure which has to be followed by all creditors who have any claims against the landlord who has made an application under s. 4 and whose case has been forwarded to the Special Judge under s. 6. The rejection of a written statement beyond the time prescribed by the Act cannot have the force of a decree of a Civil Court. It is only when an order is passed under s. 14 that the order becomes a decree. In my opinion, the creditor who is aggrieved by an order of the Special Judge rejecting his written statement is entitled to appeal on payment of court fee payable under Art. 11, Sch. II. Unless and until the Act specifically declares such an order to have the force of a decree there is no reason why a higher court-fee should be demanded. This view was taken by a Bench of the Oudh Court in Sukkhu v. Nand Bahadur Singh (1). The decision of the Full Bench in Jagdish Pratap Bahadur Singh v. Udai Pratap Bahadur Singh (2) had no application to the facts of this case because in that case the Special Judge had passed an order under s. 14 of the Act and the appeal was against that order which had the force of a decree. The attention of the learned District Judge was drawn to the Oudh case but he declined to follow it although he agreed that the facts of that case were similar to those of this case.

The analogy given by the learned District Judge appears to me to be inappropriate. If a claim is filed on the basis of a time-barred debt and an objection is taken about limitation and the trial Court frames a preliminary issue on the point of limitation and dismisses the suit holding the claim to be time-barred, the appeal from the decision of the trial Court no doubt will have to bear full court fee stamp calculated on the valuation of the appeal. But in such a case the decision of the Court will be a decree. The orders of the Special Judge however have been given the force of a decree of a competent Court by virtue of the provisions of the Encum. Estates Act. The order passed under s. 14 therefore is to be treated as a decree. There is no such provision however with regard to an order coming within the purview of s. 13 of the Act. In my opinion, the order of the Court below is erroneous. I accordingly hold that the court-fee paid on the memorandum of appeal is sufficient. For the reasons given above I allow the appeal, set aside the order of the Court below and remand the appeal to the learned District Judge to be registered under its original number and decided according to law. No one appears on behalf of the respondents. I therefore allow no costs.

S. Appeal allowed.

(1) 1938 O W N 1221; 179 Ind. Cas. 45 (1); 1938 O L R 552 (1); 11 R O 152 (1); A I R 1939 Oudh 43; 1938 R D 927; 14 Luck 344

(2) (1937) A L J 1373; 173 Ind. Cas. 353; A I R 1938 All. 97; 1938 O W N 88; 1938 R D 142; 1938 A L R 125; 10 R A 478; I L R (1938) All. 230 (F B).

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Letters Patent Appeal No. 94 of 1938
December 11, 1939
LEACH, C. J AND KRISHNASWAMI AYYANGAR, J.
MADHAVI AMMA—APPELLANT
versus
NAGAPPAN NAYAR—RESPONDENT

Marumakkattayam Act (XXII of 1933), ss 43, 38 —Application for registration of tarwad under s 43, pending—Tavazhi, if can file partition suit—Rule of Hindu Law as to partition, whether applies to tarwad—Partition suit—Other members, if precluded from applying for registration—Doctrine of lis pendens, applicability of.

Chapters VI and VII of the Act stand apart and there is nothing in any of the sections of these two chapters which suggests that a tavazhi is precluded from filing a suit under s 38 for partition because there happens to be pending an application for registration under s. 43. The ordinary rule of Hindu Law that the filing of a partition suit involves the automatic severance of the joint status applies to a tarwad and hence the filing of a suit under s. 38 puts an end to the right of other members of the tarwad to apply for registration under s. 43. The doctrine of lis pendens obviously can have no application here. There is a right to partition given in Chap. VI and there is nothing in Chap. VII which prevents that right being exercised while the tarwad remains unregistered. 160 Ind. Cas. 594 (1), referred to.

L. P. A. against the judgment of the High Court, reported in 182 Ind. Cas. 75.

Mr. B Sitarama Rao, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Ch. Raghava Rao and M. Chinnappa Nayar, for the Respondent.

Leach, C. J—The parties are members of a Marumakkattayam tavazhi. On August 15, 1933 certain members of the tarwad, representing a two-thirds majority, applied to the Collector for the registration of the tarwad as impartible under s. 43 of the Marumakkattayam Act, XXII of 1933. As required by the statute, notice of the application was served upon respondent No 1, who on October 23, 1933 filed a suit in the Court of the District Munsif of Alatur for partition of the tarwad under the provisions of s. 38 of the Act. Notwithstanding the suit, the registration application was proceeded with and resulted in the Collector passing an order on January 15, 1934 for the registration of the tarwad as impartible. The District Munsif held that the registration of the tarwad had the effect of defeating the suit and accordingly he dismissed it. The respondent then appealed to the District Court of South Malabar. The District Judge held that the registration of the tarwad did not affect the respondent's right to bring the suit and he remanded it to the trial Court to be dealt with on the merits. The defendants then appealed to this Court. This appeal was heard by King, J., who concurred in the decision of the District Judge. The present appeal is from the judgment of King, J.

Section 38 of the Act states that any tavazhi represented by the majority of its major members may claim to take its share of all the properties of the tarwad over which it has power of disposal, and separate from the tarwad, provided that no tavazhi shall claim to be divided from the tarwad during the lifetime of an ancestress common to the tavazhi and to any other tavazhi or tavazhis of the tarwad, except with the consent of the ancestress, if she is a member of the tarwad. There is an explanation to the section which says that for the purposes of Chap. VI (which deals with the right of partition) a male member of a tarwad or a female member without any living child or descendant in the female line, shall be deemed to be a tavazhi if he or she has no living female ascendant who is a member of the tarwad. The respondent has no living female ascendant and he himself constitutes a tavazhi. Therefore he had the right to institute the suit for the partition of the tarwad. Sub-s. (1) of s. 43 allows two-thirds of the major members of a tarwad to present a petition to the Collector for the registration of the tarwad as impartible. Sub-s. (3) states that if after giving notice to all the major members of the tarwad and making such enquiry as he deems fit, the Collector is satisfied that not less than two-thirds of the major members of the tarwad have signed the petition with their free consent and desire the registration of the tarwad as impartible, he shall register the tarwad as impartible. Section 43 is embodied in Chap. VII which deals exclusively with impartible tarwads. Chapters VI and VII stand apart and there is nothing in any of the sections of these two chapters which suggests that a tavazhi is precluded from filing a suit for partition because there happens to be pending an application for registration under Chap. VII.

If the ordinary rule of Hindu Law that the filing of a partition suit involves the automatic severance of the joint status applies, it is clear that there would be no power in the Collector to register a tarwad as impartible, once a suit for partition has been filed. It is not contested that the ordinary rule of Hindu Law does apply. In fact it was so held in Kunchi Amma v. Minakshi

Amma (1). This being the position, the filing of the suit on October 23, 1933 put an end to the right of the other members of the tarwad to apply for registration under s. 43 and the Collector had no power to order registration. His order of January 15, 1934 must be regarded as being null and void. Mr. Sitarama Rao has suggested that the doctrine of lis pendens applies and that, inasmuch as the application under s. 43 was filed first, the suit was incompetent. The doctrine of lis pendens obviously can have no application here. There is a right to partition given in Chap. VI and there is nothing in Chap. VII which prevents that right being exercised while the tarwad remains unregistered. We consider that the decision under appeal is correct. The appeal will be dismissed with costs in favour of respondent No. 1.

M.-S. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 160 Ind. Cas. 594; A I R 1936 Mad. 155; 59 M 693; 70 M L J 114; (1936) M W N 27; 43 L W 111; 8 R M 670.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 228 of 1939
November 28, 1940
MULLA, J.

DISTRICT BOARD, DEHRA DUN —PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT
versus
BABU RAM—DEFENDANT
—OPPOSITE PARTY

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Art. 120—Suit by District Board for realising tax on circumstances and property, is governed by Art. 120.

A suit brought by the District Board for realizing a certain amount as tax on circumstances and property, is not really a suit for recovery of money but for the recovery of a liability under a particular statute and does not fall within the purview of Arts. 37 to 115, Lim. Act, but is governed by Art. 120. President, Municipal Commission, Guntur v. Srikakulapu Padmarazu (1) and 167 Ind. Cas. 490 (2), relied on.

C. R. App. against the decree of the Small Cause Court, Dehra Dun, dated April 5, 1939.

Mr. Raj Bahadar Jaini, for the Applicant.

Order.—These are two applications in revision by the District Board, Dehra Dun, which raise the same question of law for consideration. In each case the District Board brought a suit for realising a certain amount as tax on circumstances and property for the period 1934 35. The suit in each case was brought more than three years after the date on which the tax was payable. Both suits have been dismissed by the same learned Small Cause Court Judge on the ground that they being suits for recovery of money were subject to the three years' rule of limitation and were consequently barred by time. The only question for consideration in these cases is whether this view of the law of limitation taken by the learned Small Cause Court Judge is correct. Having considered the relevant provisions of the Lim. Act, I am clearly of the opinion that the learned Small Cause Court Judge was wrong in holding that the three years, rule of limitation applied to these suits. They are not really suits for recovery of money but for the recovey of a liability under a particular statute. The suits to which the three years rule of limitation is applicable are set out in Arts. 37 to 115, Lim. Act. The suits in question obviously do not fall within the purview of any one of these articles. It is thus clear that they are governed by Art. 120 which provides for suits for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in the schedule to the Lim. Act. The learned Judge was therefore wrong in applying the three years' rule of limitation and dismissing the suits as time-barred. This view of the law of limitation is fully supported by the judgment of the Madras Hight Court in President, Municipal Commission, Guntur v. Srikakulupu Padmarazu (1). The same principle has been affirmed by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court in Rajah of Vizianagram v. Thammanna (2). The relevant portion of the judgment in the Full Bench case runs as follows:

"The other question dealt with in the judgment of the District Munsif is one of limitation. He has held the suits to be barred in respect of certain items on the footing that such a suit is governed by the three years, rule of limitation. We see no warrant for applying the three years rule. The suit is not one for rent nor is it based on any contract express or implied. It is to enforce a liability created by statute."

The suit in which these observations were made by the Full Bench was brought under s. 88, Madras Local Boards Act, for the recovery of a cess. The result, therefore, is that I allow these applications in revision and setting aside the decrees of the Court below decree the suit in each case with costs in both Courts.

S. Application allowed.

(1) 3 M 124.
(2) A I R 1937 Mad. 217; 167 Ind. Cas. 490; 45 L W 74; (1937) M W N 7; (1937) 1 M L J 91; 9 R M 462; I L R (1937) Mad. 498 (F B).

PESHAWAR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT

Appeal No. 33/12 of 1939

October 19, 1940

ALMOND, J. C. AND MIR AHMED, J.

Mst. MOTAI AND ANOTHER—PETITIONERS

versus

LT. COL. SIR MOHD. AKBAR KHAN CHIEF OF HOTI AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Mortgage—Redemption suit—Value for jurisdiction—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 107, O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (u)—Unsuccessful litigant in lower Court cannot be allowed to patch up weak parts in case and fill up omissions—Property mortgaged for Rs. 8—Equity of redemption sold for Rs. 25,000—Redemption suit—First Appellate Court's order of remand—Second appeal, if competent.

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage of immovable property the value for jurisdiction is the amount of money which is found to be due on the mortgage. The market value of the property mortgaged can on no account be ever the value for jurisdiction in a redemption suit. 96 Ind. Cas. 890 (1), relied on. 105 Ind. Cas. 412 (2), not followed.

The provisions of s. 107, Civil P. C., as elucidated by O. XLI, r. 23 are clearly not intended to allow a litigant, who has been unsuccessful in the lower Court to patch up the weak part of the case and fill up omissions in the Court of Appeal. 132 Ind. Cas. 721, (3) relied on.

Where the mortgagor mortgaged his immovable property for Rs. 8 and subsequently sold the equity of redemption for Rs. 25,000, in a suit for redemption by the purchaser:

Held, that a second appeal being competent under s. 31 (1) (b), N.-W. F. P. Courts Regulation, the first Appellate Court's order of remand was appealable under O. XLIII, r. 1 (u), Civil P. C.

A. against the order of the District Judge, Peshawar, dated January 17, 1939.

Qazi Mohd. Aslam, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Hukum Chand, Peer Bakhsh and Ghulam Mohd. for Respondents Nos. 1, 2, 4, 7, 8 and 6, respectively.

Respondents Nos. 3, 8 and 9 in person.

Mir Ahmed, J.—6 kanals 5 marlas of land situated in Mahal Mardan and represented by Khasra Nos. 1545 and 1546 were originally owned by one Burhanuddin. In the records of 1885-86 the land is shown as mortgaged to one Fazal Shah for Rs. 8. Fazal Shah died and the land was then shown in the records in the names of his four widows. Three of the widows transferred their mortgagee rights to one Sherdil. Burhanuddin, the owner, also died. His sons Mohiyuddin and Rahmanuddin sold the equity of redemption to the Nawab Sahib of Hoti for Rs. 25,000. Sherdil died as well. His son Shah Sawar transferred the mortgagee rights in a portion of the land to several persons who will be referred to in this judgment as "transferees".

The Nawab Sahib of Hoti has filed this suit for possession by redemption of the land originally owned by Burhanuddin on payment of Rs. 8. He impleaded Mst. Motai, widow of Fazal Shah, Shah Sawar, son of Sherdil, and the "transferees." The suit was resisted inter alia on the ground that it was not within time. The trial Judge pointed out that the suit was filed on August 27, 1936, that the plaintiff had to prove that the mortgage was effected on or after August 27 1876, that the plaintiff could only prove that the mortgage was mentioned in the records of 1885-86, and that he therefore failed to prove that the mortgage was effected on or after August 27, 1876 and not before it. He therefore held that the suit was time-barred and dismissed it. He did not adjudicate on the other issues. An appeal was preferred to the District Court at Peshawar. At the time of the hearing the plaintiff's Counsel produced before the District Judge a copy of a mutation by which Burhanuddin obtained a piece of land from a widow by inheritance in 1883-84. The learned Counsel asked the Judge that the case should be remanded and he should be allowed to search the land records in order to find out if there was any other information in those records with regard to this case. The appellate Judge admitted the document produced by Counsel and directed that it should be placed on the original file. He remanded the case under O. XLI, r. 23, Civil P. C., to enable the plaintiff to produce land records in his favour. He directed that the issue regarding limitation and the other issues in the case should all be again taken into consideration in the light of the fresh evidence produced. The transferees have presented an appeal to this Court, and Mst. Motai, the surviving widow of Fazal Shah, and Shah Sawar, the son of Sherdil, have jointly instituted another appeal against the same order. They have in both appeals asked for the setting aside of the order of remand. This judgment will cover both cases.

Two preliminary points arose for decision in these appeals. Firstly, whether the trial Judge had pecuniary jurisdiction to hear the case. The property was sold for Rs. 25,000 although the mortgage money secured was Rs. 8. It was suggested that the value for jurisdiction should have been Rs. 25,000 and not Rs. 8 and that the trial Judge who was Sub-Judge, fourth class, could not therefore hear the case. Secondly, whether a further appeal lay. The value for jurisdiction was only Rs 8 and the same value was adopted in the Court of Appeal. The single Judge of this Court who heard the case, referred the appeals to a Bench. Two rulings were cited before us on the question of valuation. They are Jaswant Ram v. Moti Ram (1) and Ma Hla Saing v. Ma Su We (2). The Lahore High Court has held in Jaswant Ram v. Moti Ram (1) that "in a suit for the redemption of immovable property the value for purposes of jurisdiction is the amount found by the Court to be the value of the mortgagee's charge on the property and not the amount alleged by the plaintiff to be due to the mortgagee."

The Rangoon High Court has on the other hand laid down in Ma Hla Saing v. Ma Su We (2) that the market value of the property should be the criterion. We have consulted other authorities also which the learned Counsel did not care to produce. We find that the Allahabad, Madras and Nagpur High Courts have held that the value for jurisdiction in a redemption suit should be the amount of the principal debt secured, and that the Bombay and Calcutta High Courts have laid down that the value should be the amount due on the mortgage. Section 7 (ix), Court Fees Act, governs the court-fee payable in redemption suits. It is to the following effect :

"In suits against a mortgagee for the recovery of the property mortgaged.....according to the principal money expressed to be secured by the instrument of mortgage."

Section 8, Suits Valuation Act, is as under :

"Where in suits other than those referred to in the Court Fees Act, 1870, s. 7, paras. V. VI and IX and para. X. cl. (d) Court fees are payable ad valorem under the Court Fees Act, 1870 the value as determinable for the computation of court-fees and the value for purposes of jurisdiction shall be the same."

It will be observed that in s. 8, Suits Valuation Act, the Legislature deliberately excluded suits under s. 7 (ix), Court Fees Act, from the category of these cases in which the value for the purposes of jurisdiction was directed to be the same as that for court-fee. A scrutiny of the Suits Valuation Act shows that no provision has been made in that Act for the valuation of redemption suits for purposes of jurisdiction. In redemption suits the court-fee has to be paid on the principal money secured. But there are other amounts besides the principal debt which have also to be paid to the mortgagee before a mortgagor gets back his property. One of them is interest. It may be due to this that the matter of valuation for jurisdiction was left to the Court to decide on the data which is placed before it in the form of a complete list of charges which the mortgagor has to pay before redemption is decreed. In the alternative it may be a lacuna in law. Whatever may be the cause we think that the Lahore view which is supported by the views of the Bombay and Calcutta High Courts is sound. We hold therefore that the value for jurisdiction is the amount of money which is found to be due on the mortgage. We may observe with due respect that the view of the Rangoon High Court is not correct. The market value of the property mortgaged could on no account be ever the value for jurisdiction in redemption suit. The property under mortgage is split into two bundles of rights. One bundle of rights is called the "equity of redemption" and the other bundle of rights is called the "mortgagee rights." There is no controversy in redemption suits about the "equity of redemption." The controversy is about the "mortgagee rights". So, to say that the two bundles together go to form the subject-matter of the suit and their price is the value for jurisdiction does not appear to be correct. In this particular case the sum of Rs. 8 is the only amount payable on the footing of the mortgage. We consequently find that the value for jurisdiction is Rs, 8 and the trial Judge (Sub-Judge fourth class) has jurisdiction to decide the case. Next we proceed to discuss the question of further appeal. Section 31 of the N. W. F. P. Courts Regulation contains rules regarding further appeals. We reproduce it verbatim below :

" 31 (1). A further appeal shall lie to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner in any of the following cases from an appellate decree of a District Court on any ground which would be a good ground of appeal if the decree had been passed in an original suit, namely :

(a) in a small cause or unclassed suit,

(i) if the value of the suit is one thousand rupees, or upwards, or the decree involves directly some claim to, or question respecting property of like value, and the decree of the District Court varies or reverses otherwise than as to costs the decree of the Court below, or

(ii) if the value of the suit is two thousand five hundred rupees or upwards, or the decree of the District Court involves directly some claim to, or question respecting property of like value;

(b) in a land suit,

(i) if the value of the suit is two hundred and fifty rupees or upwards, or the decree involves directly some claim to or question respecting property of like value, and the decree of the District Court varies or reverses otherwise than as to costs the decree of the Court below or

(1) A I R 1926 Lah. 376; 96 Ind. Cas. 890; 7 L 570; 27 P L R 605; 9 Lah. L J 68; 2 Lah. Cas. 306 (F B).

(2) A I R 1927 Rang. 304; 105 Ind. Cas. 412; 5 R 499.

(ii) if the value of the suit is one thousand rupees or upwards or the decree of the District Court involves directly some claim to or question respecting property of like value.

(2) The provisions of O. XLI, Civil P. C, 1908, other than r. 35 of the said order shall apply as far as may be to further appeals under this section and to the execution of decrees passed on such appeals."

Clause (b) allows a further appeal in a land suit if the value of the suit is Rs. 250 or upwards or if the decree involves directly some claim to, or question respecting property of like value that is to say Rs. 250 or upwards. In this case the decree involves a question respecting property of the value of Rs. 25,000 for if the suit is time-barred the Nawab of Hoti will lose the equity of redemption which he has purchased for that amount. It follows that a further appeal would have been competent to this Court if the District Judge had finally decided the case. Under O. XLIII, r. 1 (u), Civil P. C. therefore an appeal is competent from the order of remand to this Court. We hold accordingly. Now we have to see whether the lower appellate Judge was right in remanding the case. Curiously, we do not find the document produced by the plaintiff with his memorandum of appeal either on the appellate file or on the file of the original Court. We could not trace it. However, we had the benefit of seeing a copy of it which was in the possession of the learned Counsel for the plaintiff. The document produced has no relevency whats ever in this case. The net result of the remand is therefore to allow the plaintiff to fish out evidence in order to prove his case and make up the lacuna which at the present moment exists. Their Lordships of the Privy Council have not approved of this method in the ruling reported in Parsotim Thakur v. Lal Mohar Thakur (3). The portion of the headnote which is apposite may be reproduced as follows:

"The provisions of s. 107 as elucidated by O. XLI, r. 23 are clearly not intended to allow a litigant, who has been unsuccessful in the lower Court, to patch up the week part of of the case and fill up commissions in the Court of Appeal."

We are therefore of opinion that the order of remand was not justified. We accept the appeals to this extent that we set aside the order of remand. We send back the case to the lower appellate Judge with the direction that he should now proceed to decide the case on merits. The costs will abide the result, Pleader's fee Rs. 32.

D. Order accordingly

(3) A I R 1931 P C 143; 132 Ind. Cas. 721; 10 Pat. 654; 58 I A 254; 33 Bom. L R 1015; (1931) A L J 513; 35 C W N 786; Ind. Rul. (1931) P C 209, 34 L W 76; 54 C L J 1; 12 P L T 683; (1931) M W N 929; 61 M L J 489 (P C).

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

Criminal Appeal No. 31 of 1940

December 4, 1940

MOHAMMAD ISMAIL AND HAMILTON, JJ.

EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR

versus

NANUA—RESPONDENT

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 25, 27, 8—Statement and act, difference—Accused taking in his hands certain articles and handing them over—Whether amounts to statement or confession—Applicability of s. 8 to such case—Criminal Procedure Code Act V of 1898), s. 164—Maker of statement not warned by Magistrate—Defect, if cured by s 29, Evidence Act (I of 1872)—Criminal trial—Confession—Part of confession relied on by Court—Other part proved to be false—Such part can be discarded.

The difference between a statement and an act is clear. A statement must consist of words, be they spoken, be they written, or be they spelled out, as would be done by a mute person who spells out words on his fingers, and even words would not always be statements, as for instance, if a person recited the numbers from 1 to 10, if one considers a statement in the sense used in s 162, Criminal P. C. Acts however exclude words and cannot be translated into words. It cannot be held therefore that the fact that in the case the accused by taking in his hands certain articles and handing them over, made a statement much less can it be said that he made a statement which amounts to a confession within the meaning of s. 25, Evi. Act To such a case of s. 8, Evi. Act, applies. 188 Ind Cas. 561 (3), explained. 52 Ind. Cas. 601 (5) and 152 Ind. Cas. 473 (6), dissented from. [p 876, col. 2.]

Where a Magistrate has not before recording a confession explained to the person making it that he was not bound to make a confession and that if he did so it may be used as evidence against him, and thus has not complied fully with s. 164, Criminal P. C., the defect is not fatal in view of s. 29, Evi. Act. 178 Ind. Cas. 694 (1) and 137 Ind. Cas. 863 (2), relied on. [p. 875, col. 1.]

If any part of a confession is relied upon by a Court and there is no evidence to disprove another part of it the whole confession must be accepted by the Court, but this is not the case when part of it is proved false by other evidence. In such a case the Court is entitled to rely on one part disregarding at the same time the other. [ibid.]

The Govt. Advocate, for the Crown.

Mr. J. Swarup, for the Respondent.

Judgment—This is an appeal by the Provincial Govt. against the acquittal of Nanua who was tried for the murder of Mst. Shyama said to have been committed on October 12, 1939 between Maupur and Bhaupur villages, District Aligarh. Mst. Shyama lived in Maupur village which is less than half a mile from Bhaupur where the appellant resides, and during the day on October 12 she had gone to Bhaupur wearing some silver and gold ornaments and carrying a scale and weights and similar things as she used to do a little business in the neighbourhood of Maupur. She did not return after dark, and P. W. Raghubir, her nephew, with whom she lived, became anxious and went to look for her. At about 10-30 P. M., her corpse was found in a well which lay between Maupur and Bhaupur. The medical evidence shows that she had a contused wound on the bridge of the nose which had fractured the nasal bone, an incised wound on the left nostril, a punctured wound on the left cheek and four broken ribs on the right side of the chest and three broken ribs on the left side of the chest. Death was due, in the opinion of the Civil Surgeon, to asphyxia and shock as the result of the injuries to the ribs and to her face. On the next morning at 7-30, Raghubir reported the occurrence saying that Mst. Shyama was greatly troubled with asthma and it appeared that she had committed suicide by throwing herself into the well. The Civil Surgeon when examined in the Court of the committing Magistrate stated that the fracture of the ribs was caused before death and could have resulted from a fall in a well, but death was due to asphyxia caused either by pressure on the chest or on the mouth or nose. She did not die from drowning, so that she was dead before she got into the well and the incised and punctured wounds on the face could not have been caused by a fall.

Taking all the injuries together, it appears to us that the fracture of the ribs was due to the murderer kneeling on her chest while he was causing asphyxia. We may here add that her ornaments and the scale and other things which she was carrying were pointed out by the appellant and this fact also disproves the possibility of Mst. Shyama having committed suicide. Reghubir, the nephew, Mst. Sharbati, an aunt of the deceased, and Mst. Tirbeni, her daughter, who all lived in the same house, prove that the appellant owed very small sum of money to the deceased. Mst. Tirbeni puts the debt at Re. 1 but the other two witnesses say he owed Rs. 2, and this is also the statement of P. W. Genda of Maupur who at 4-30 saw the appellant and the deceased near a tree quarrelling about that debt. Mst. Shyama according to him was demanding Rs. 2 and abusing the accused who promised to pay the money in two or three days. Considering that Mst. Tirbeni disagrees with three witnesses as to the amount owed we prefer the evidence of the greater number of witnesses especially as Genda is not connected with either side and his evidence is therefore not suspicious on the ground of partiality or for the matter of that on any other ground.

The next and very important witness is Genga Sahai of the village of the appellant. He says that in the evening he saw the deceased leaving his village with the accused following her, which we only take to mean that he was walking in the same direction a few paces behind her. This was the last time that the deceased was seen alive and seeing how near Bhapur and Maupur villages are it must have been only a few minutes before she was murdered. Ganga Sahai is an independent witness of the village of the appellant who has no reason whatsoever to give false evidence againt the appellant and we accept his statement as true. Sub-Inspector Harmohan Singh, who was absent when the report of the finding of the corpse was made, took up the investigation on the 14th and arrested the appellant on that day. The appellant took him and witnesses Ganga Ram, Maqsud Ahmad, Nand Ram and Sundar Lad to a place 45 paces from his house and dug out silver ornaments and two eight-anna pieces of the deceased and handed them over. He then took the same persons to a sugarcane field where he picked up a bundle containing the balance, chadras, weights and other things which the deceased had with her at the time of the occurrence and handed them over. These two places are far one from the other, one being north of the village and the other being south of it. A dhoti which the appellant was wearing was taken from him and sent to the chemical examiner, and the dhoti was found to have a number of small blood stains, none being larger than half an inch. There were seven such places on the dhoti. The dhoti was sent to the imperial serologist, but somehow or other his report was not placed on the record, as it should have been, and there is no evidence therefore that the blood was human blood.

The appellant was sent up before a Magistrate and made a statement to the effect that he was standing in a field when Mst. Shyama was returning from Bhaupur to Maupur and she demanded money from him. He answered that he had not got the money then but would pay the following day and she became ready to beat him with shoes whereupon he struck her on the nose with his fist, so that she died, and he threw her dead body into the well where it was recovered, after removing her ornaments. If this purports to be a confession of murder it is difficult to say, for the appellant may have intended to allege that the death of the woman from his giving her a blow with fist on the nose was an accident and his offence would be only one of causing hurt. In any case we must find that the manner in which she met her death is not correctly described in the confession for the doctor's evidence makes it clear that the woman died from asphyxia and not from a blow on the nose. If any part a confession is relied upon by a Court and there is no evidence to disprove another part of it the whole confession must be accepted by the Court, but this is not the case when part of it is proved false by other evidence, as is the case here. We are entitled therefore to rely on the statement against the appellant disregarding at the same time statement as to how Mst. Shyama died.

It has however been urged by the learned Counsel for the accused that this confession is inadmissible because the Magistrate who recorded the confession did not comply with s. 164 (3), Criminal P. C., which lays down that a Magistrate shall before recording a confession explain to the person making it that he is not bound to make a confession and that if he does so it may be used as evidence against him. As the Magistrate did not give this warning he has not entered in the certificate either that he gave such a warning. The Magistrate was examined but he has not been able to state that he certainly gave such a warning and we therefore must take it that he forgot to do so. Section 29, Evi. Act, however lays down that if a confession is otherwise relevant it does not become irrelevant because the maker of it was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession and that evidence of it might be given against him. We are of opinion that although the Magistrate did not comply fully with s. 164, Criminal P. C., the defect is not fatal in view of s. 29, Evi. Act, and our view is supported by Emperor v. Lal Singh (1) and also by Vellamoonji Goundan In re (2) The learned Counsel for the appellant has also urged that the handing over of ornaments and other articles by the appellant amounts to a statement which is inadmissible in view of a Full Bench decision of this Court reported in Baldeo v. Emperor (3). The question referred to the Full Bench there was as follows :

"What portion, if any, of the statement to the effect that the knife with which he and Baldeo and Lakhan had murdered Maharaj Singh was at his house under a heap of pyal alleged to have been made by the appellant Tirmal to the Sub-Inspector of Police, Rafiq Ahmad, is admissible in evidence under s. 27, Evi. Act ?"

The decision of the Full Bench was that in view of the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Pakala Narayana Swami v. King-Emperor (4) no part of the statement was admissible. It is clear however that this decision was about a statement as opposed to an act, and here we have to consider whether an act and a statement stand on the same footing. For this the learned Counsel has relied on Hira Gobar v. Emperor (5) and on Turab v. Emperor(6), which followed it. This latter decision quotes the relvant portion of the Bombay judgment. In the Bombay case, Shah, J. observed as follows :

"In my opinion the evidence taken as a whole shows that it is evidence of a confession of the accused in the presence of a Police Officer. It is true that in terms it purports to establish that accused No. 1 pointed out the house and the various places connected with the offence and it is contended that it is really evidence of the conduct of the accused, and that therefore it is admissible under s 8, Evi Act. It is clear from the evidence that the real significance of the conduct arises out of the statements made by the accused at the time, and that the conduct, apart from the statements made either expressly or impliedly by gestures by the accused, has very little value. The meaning that was conveyed to the witnesses by what is contended to be the conduct of the accused and not his statements was really conveyed by the statements made at the time when he pointed out the various places. Such statements would clearly be inadmissible under ss. 25 and 26, Evi. Act, as they were made to the Police Officer or to the complainant in the presence of the Police Officer. It is common ground that no fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of the information furnished by the accused and that s. 27, Evi. Act, does not apply. I am unable to accept the contention urged by the learned Govt. Pleader that this evidence, which is substantially evidence of the confession of the accused in the presence of a Police Officer, can be admitted

(1) (1938) A L J 943; 178 Ind. Cas. 694; A I R 1938 All. 625; I L R (1938) All. 875; 40 Cr. L J 132; 1939 A L R 881; 11 R A 327.

(2) A I R 1932 Mad. 431; 137 Ind. Cas. 863; 62 M L J 559; 35 L W 542; (1932) M W N 449; Ind. Rul. (1932) Mad. 459; 33 Cr. L J 526, (1932) Cr. Cas. 412; 55 M 711.

(3) (1940) A L J 241; 188 Ind. Cas. 562; A I R 1940 All. 263; 41 Cr. L J 627; 13 R A 48; I L R (1940) All. 396 (F B).

(4) (1939) A L J 298; 180 Ind. Cas. 1; A I R 1939 P C 47; 1939 O L R 134; (1939) M W N 185; 40 Cr L J 364; 11 R P C 166; 1939 O W N 282; 20 P L T 265; 49 L W 349; 43 C W N 473; 41 Bom. L R 428; 41 P L R 272; 69 C L J 273; (1939) 1 M L J 756; 18 Pat. 234; 66 I A 66; I L R (1939) Kar. P C 123 (P C).

(5) A I R 1919 Bom. 162; 52 Ind. Cas. 601; 20 Cr. L J 681; 21 Bom. L R 724.

(6) A I R 1935 Oudh 1; 152 Ind. Cas. 473; 11 O W N 1383; 7 R O 235; 36 Cr. L J 166; (1935) Cr. Cas. 11; 10 Luck 281.

as evidence of conduct, apart from the accompanying statements, under s. 8."

While Heaton, J. stated :

"As regards the other item, I entirely agree with my learned brother that in this case what the appellant was doing was that he was making a confession to a Police Officer. But the confession comprised not merely words, but gestures, and what is sought to be done is, while not proving the words, to prove gestures and further to prove all that is necessary to give significance to those gestures. But I quite agree that gestures are just as much a part of a confession as are the words used. So that item of evidence also must be discarded."

With all respect to the learned Judges who decided those two cases we are unable to share their views. Section 25, Evi. Act, runs as follows : "No confession made to a Police Officer shall be proved as against the person accused of any offence," and s. 27 runs as follows :

"Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a Police Officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

In those cases the confession was found to be inadmissible apparently under s. 25, Evi. Act, because it was made to a Police Officer and, in the circumstances of those cases, s. 27 did not come into play, and not because the statements made to the Police Officer was inadmissible in evidence for the reasons given in the Full Bench decision of this Court to which we have referred. With all respect to the learned Judges who decided the Bombay and the Oudh cases we have difficulty in agreeing that the pointing out of property amounts to a confession. In Emperor v. Misri (7), a distinction was drawn between ss. 24 and 27, Evi. Act, which deal with confessions and s. 8, for with reference to s. 27 we find the following words :

"The section does not profess to and does not deal with evidence as to the conduct or acts of the accused, which is admissible under s. 8 or any of the preceding sections of the Evi. Act and is subject to no limitation so long as it is relevant.

Also in Rafique-ud-din Ahmad v. Emperor (8) the following words occur :

"Nextly, as regards production of articles, the evidence is relevant as evidence of conduct under s. 8, Evi. Act. Under that section statements accompanying or explaining conduct are also relevant as part of the conduct itself."

It appears to us from this that a distinction was drawn by the learned Judges between "acts" and "statements." The pointing out of a place whence property is recovered may denote nothing more than that the person pointing out the place is of opinion that something will or may be found there. A person may point out a place from which something is eventually recovered even if he does not actually himself know that there is something there, and we cannot in each and every case presume that because a person points to a certain place he knows it for a fact that a certain thing will be recovered there, nor can we presume that he himself put the property there or that he put the property there because he had committed a crime with respect to that property. We may perhaps say that his pointing out a place is an admission that he believes that it may lead to the discovery of something which may have some connection with some crime, but no more. For instance, a person may point out a place because someone has told him that something has been buried there. The person who has received that information may be entirely innocent even if the information was given to him by a person who was guilty. In s. 8, Evi. Act, which deals with the relevancy of the conduct of any party, Expln. I draws a clear distinction between statements and acts. The explanation reads as follows :

"The word 'conduct' in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts than statements ; but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act."

"Conduct" may in certain circumstances include statements as well as acts, but in doing so it still retains the difference between an act and a statement. The difference between a statement and an act is in our opinion clear. A statement must consist of words, be they spoken, be they written, or be they spelled out, as would be done by a mute person who spells out words on his fingers, and we are inclined to think that even words would not always be statements, as for instance, if a person recited the numbers from 1 to 10, if one considers a statement in the sense used in s. 162, Criminal P. C. Acts however exclude words and in our opinion cannot be translated into words. For instance, if a person points out a place it is impossible to say whether had he spoken he would have said "look there" or "dig there" or "you will find there. . ." or "I have buried there . . ." or "I have committed such and such a crime." We are unable to hold therefore that the fact that in the present case the appellant, by taking in his hands certain articles and handing them over, made a statement much less can we find that he made a statement which amounts to a confession. If he also stated anything whatsoever we do not know what he stated, for none of the witnesses who have given evidence about this say that the appellant made any statement whatsoever. We come to the conclusion therefore that the Full Bench decision of this Court which refers to statements only has no application in the present case and that s. 8, Evi. Act, applies. From the fact that the appellant went to two different places and that from each of those he took into his possession property that was with the deceased at the time of her murder and handed it over we infer that he knew that those articles were in those two places.

(7) 31 A 592; 3 Ind. Cas. 26; 10 Cr. L J 212; 6 A L J 839 (F B).

(8) 62 C 572; 155 Ind. Cas. 687; A I R 1935 Cal. 184; 39 C W N 368; (1935) Cr. Cas. 241; 36 Cr. L J 808; 7 R C 606 (F B).

We next have to consider whether that knowledge was due to the appellant having committed a crime or is compatible with his innocence. The two places were at a distance of some furlongs from the scene of the murder and at a considerable distance one from the other. We cannot but come to the conclusion that they were put in those places by the person who committed the crime, and we can exclude the possibility that it was some person other than the appellant who having committed the murder took those articles and put them in those two places and that the appellant knew of the articles being there because he managed to follow the murderer and so came to know where the murderer had put them. One must not forget in this connection that the appellant was seen a few paces behind the deceased going in the same direction very near the scene of the occurrence just before the murder was committed. We have stated above that because the confession is not correct in every particular we are not forced to disregard it altogether. The learned Sessions Judge has acquitted the appellant on the ground that his impression was that the confession did not contain that ring of truth throughout which would entitle him to rely upon it in spite of the evidence of the recovery of the articles, that the recovery of the articles was not by itself sufficient to support a conviction and finally because he thought that the deceased may have been a woman of loose morals as alleged by the accused and might therefore have been murdered for this reason by a person other than the accused. This allegation of loose morals was not made by the accused until he made a statement in the Sessions Court and in view of the fact that Mst. Tirbeni, the daughter of the deceased Mst. Shyama, is 30 years of age, Mst. Shyama must have been about 50, so it was not probable that she was of loose morals at that age.

The learned Judge, however, thinks that because the "lahanga" of the deceased was found separate from her body and she was almost naked when the corpse was taken out of the well one could infer that suggestion of the accused was correct. We need only say here that the place where the murder was committed was about 40 paces from the well where the corpse was recovered and the "lahanga" was recovered ten paces from the well. Had she been found by someone in a compromising position that could only have been where the "lahanga" was found ten paces from the well and there would have been no blood 40 paces from the well. It appears to us that the "lahanga" fell off after the corpse had been dragged some distance away and head constable, Hashmuddin, who inspected the locality found marks of something having been dragged from the place 40 paces from the well right up to the well. We have therefore no difficulty in finding that the theory of the woman being of bad character and found by someone in a compromising position is entirely untenable. Taking the cumulative effect of all the evidence which we have described we come to the conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded in proving the guilt of the accused and we therefore setting aside the order of acquitted passed by the Sessions Judge allow the Govt. appeal, and finding the accused guilty of murder under s. 302, I. P. C., sentence him to death and order the sentence to be carried out according to law.

S. Appeal allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT

Criminal Revisions Nos. 1256, 1257, 1258, and 1299 of 1940

November 19, 1940

SKEMP, J.

SAFDAR ALI SHAH—CONVICT—PETITIONER

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 114 (b), 133, 25—Accomplice—Corroboration in material particulars—Nature of corroboration—Circumstantial corroboration, if sufficient—Admissions not amounting to confessions, whether excluded by s. 25.

It is firmly established both in England and in India that in practice an accomplice must be corroborated in material particulars before the accused can be convicted. The corroboration need not be direct evidence that the accused committed the crime; it is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connection with the crime.

Held, on facts that the statement of accomplice about the acceptance of the bribe by the Sub-Inspector of Police to hush up the murder, being circumstantially corroborated, the offence was proved. Rex v. Baskerville (2), Reg v. Mullins (3), 103 Ind. Cas. 49 (4) and 106 Ind. Cas. 721 (5), relied on.

Under s. 25, Evi. Act only confessions are excluded and not admissions not amounting to confessions.

The accused, a Police Sub-Inspector, made a confession to his subordinate that he had heard a rumour about the murder and that certain persons had approached him to get the matter hushed up and had forced upon him a certain amount;

Held, that the statement as to acceptance of bribe being confession was inadmissible under s. 25 but the statement as to rumour and approach of people to the accused to get the matter hushed up being admission was admissible.

C. Rs. from the order of the Sessions Judge, Gurdaspur, dated June 22, 1940.

Mian Abdul Aziz, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Karam Chand Jain, Public Prosecutor, Gurdaspur for the Advocate-General, for the Crown.

Order.—This judgment will dispose of Criminal Revisions Nos. 1256, 1257, 1258 and 1299 of 1940. They have arisen from cases in which the findings are as follows: In village Ghuman, Police Station Dera Baba Nanak District Gurdaspur, there lived five brothers named Santa Singh, Banta Singh, Fauja Singh, Saudagar Singh and Ujagar Singh. Of these brothers, Fauja Singh alone was married to a woman named Viro. On October 3, 1939, Santa Singh and Banta Singh quarrelled, either about cotton or about Mst. Viro, and Santa Singh killed Banta Singh, with a blow on the head with a dang. The family and their fellow villagers wished to hush up the affair and gave out that Banta Singh had died from natural causes. This came to the ears of Safdar Ali Shah, Assistant Sub-Inspector, Police Station, Dera Baba Nanak, who was temporarily in charge of the thana during the absence of his superior officer on casual leave, and he took a bribe of Rs. 85 through Chet Singh lambardar of Ghuman in order not to proceed with the case. The body of Banta Singh was than cremated in the presence of Police constables from Dera Baba Nanak. This came to the knowledge of head Constable Siraj Din on October 5, 1939, and on October 6 he reported the matter to the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Gurdaspur, Mr. Boudrie. Under Mr. Boudrie's orders the matter was investigated by the District Inspector, Sardar Ganga Singh, and a formal first report was made on October 10, Santa Singh was convicted under s. 304, I. P. C. for the homicide of his brother and sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment. He was also convicted under s. 201, I. P. C. for causing evidence of a crime to disappear and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment, Chet Singh lambardar, Mohammad Sharif and Ghulam Mohammad constables were convicted under s. 201, Safdar Ali Shah of abetment, and each sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment. Safdar Ali Shah was convicted under s. 161, I. P. C. for taking a bribe and sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment; Chet Singh was convicted under s. 162 for giving the bribe and under ss. 161/109 of abetting the taking and similarly sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisoment on each count.

On appeal the learned Sessions Judge, it is said following Nebti Mandal v. Emperor (1), acquitted Santa Singh of the charge under s. 304; he also acquitted Chet Singh under ss. 161/109 and 162. He acquitted Ghulam Mohammad constable but maintained the convictions of the others, that is, Chet Singh and Mohammad Sharif under s. 201; and Safdar Ali Shah under ss. 201/109 and s. 161. He reduced the sentences under ss. 201/109 to six months' rigorous imprisonment, maintaining that under s. 161, the sentences of Safdar Ali Shah to run concurrently. Safdar Ali Shah has presented a petition for revision against each of his convictions though Mian Abdul Aziz (petitions Nos. 1256 and 1257), Chet Singh through Mr. Maurice (No. 1299) and Mohammad Sharif constable through Mr. Wajid Ali Shah (No. 1258). The Crown was represented by Mr. Karam Chand Jain, the learned Public Prosecutor of Gurdaspur District.

As the learned Sessions Judge said, the first point to decide is whether Banta Singh died from natural causes or from violence. Of these the Sessions Judge did not rely on Mst. Viro nor does Crown Counsel; they both rely on Sain Ditta and Chanda Singh. Sain Ditta who the chaukidar of village Ghuman, said in cross-examination that he was maltreated in various ways by the Police. In particular he was kept at the thana until he agreed to make a statement as the Police wished. He said that the Inspector threatened to challan him if he did not give the true facts and then he changed his first statement which the lambardar and others had asked him to make. The trial Magistrate thought that the allegations against the Police made by Sain Ditta and some other witnesses were true, the Sessions Judge did not. Whether they are true or not Sain Ditta was either forced by the Police, to make a statement, or has deposed falsely against the Police, and either way he is not a reliable witness. I must therefore exclude his statement. Chanda Singh, by origin a carpenter of Ghuman, is now a mechanic or mechanical engineer engaged in business in district Jhang. He was staying in Ghuman and says that having heard of Banta Singh's death in a fight he went to see him and saw the head injury. Three days later, at the instance of the Assistant Sub-Inspector, he wrote a panchyatnama to the effect that Banta Singh had died of natural causes. This was signed or thumb marked by 36 persons. Fifteen or twenty days later, a constable came for him to Jhang and said that his brother Sundar Singh was being maltreated by the Police and would not be released until Chanda Singh came to Dera Baba Nanak. Accordingly he went and Sundar Singh did complain of maltratment. Sundar Singh has given evidence as a defence witness and stated that he was beaten, one of his teeth broken and that he was kept at the Police Station Dera Baba Nanak for seven days and told that he would not be released till Chanda Singh came.

(1) 19 Pat. 369; 190 Ind. Cas. 457; A I R 1940 Pat. 289; 41 Cr. L J 910; 7 B R 59; 13 R P 220; 22 P L T 98.

Chanda Singh has exaggerated. Admittedly, he has only three teeth in his upper jaw and three in the lower jaw and the other teeth "fell off long ago." It was the fourth tooth in the upper jaw which is broken. Clearly not much violence would be required and assuming it to be true that the Police molested Sundar Singh that is not in itself a strong reason for disbelieving Chanda Singh. On the other hand, there is a strong reason for believing Chanda Singh. His wife was ill in Ghuman and died shortly before the panchayatnama was written. When the Police sent for him he refused to come, but he was forced to come because he was the only literate man in the village. There are two medical witnesses, Chet Ram a retired compounder and Rattan Singh homeopath both of whom practice at Dera Baba Nanak. Chet Ram carries on a practice with a doctor Megh Raj. On October 3, 1939 about 5-30 P. M. Saudagar Singh (brother of Santa Singh and Banta Singh) and Chet Singh accused came to Chet Ram and told him they wished to take the doctor to Ghuman as one of their men had been hurt. Chet Ram said the doctor could not go as it was evening. At 6 o'clock the same evening the same two men went to Rattan Singh. On his enquiry they told him that 'the patient had got hurt with a dang blow from his brother, and had an injury on his head. Rattan Singh refused to go as he had no previous experience of head wounds and thought that it might be a Police case. There was also a dispute about the question of fee—Rattan Singh wanted Rs. 7, Saudagar Singh and Chet Singh offered him Rs. 4-8-0. In cross-examination on behalf of the accused it transpired that Dr. Rattan Singh had visied Ghuman twice or thrice during the last two years to see a woman of the carpenter class (apparently the wife of Chanda Singh). On each of those occasions he was taken to Ghuman by Saudagar Singh. That is obviously why Saudagar Singh and Chet Singh went to him on this occasion. No reason has been shown for not believing either of these witnesses.

There is also circumstantial evidence, The witnesses say that Banta Singh was laid on a bed with a quilt below him and a quilt on top of him. On October 10, 1939 a charpoy and two quilts were found in the joint house of the brothers in the presence of three witnesses which were proved by serological examination to be stained with human blood. In particular the bed was stained towards the head. This is strong circumstantial corroboration that Banta Singh was killed. So is the panchyatnama executed at the instance of Safdar Ali Shah. If Safdar Ali Shah were acting bona fide he only needed to report that he had inquired into the rumours about Banta Singh's death and found them unfounded. Secondly, if a panchyatnama were written at all why should he not write it himself instead of forcing a villager to do so? Clearly because Safdar Ali Shah wished it to appear that this document came from the villagers themselves. Relying on the statements of Chanda Singh, Chet Ram, Dr. Rattan Singh together with the bloodstained articles and the curious circumstances surrounding the panchayatnama I regard it as proved that Banta Singh died by violence.

The next point is the payment of the bribe. Sardar Shah, a Police constable, was sent from Dera Baba Nanak in company of one Kaka Ram alias Narindar Nath in a tonga to Ghuman to fetch Chet Singh, lambardar. At Dera Baba Nanak at Safdar Ali Shah's house Chet Singh paid Rs. 85 to Safdar Ali Shah. Narindar Nath says that late at night, on October 3, one Bela Singh, lambardar of the neighbouring village of Kotha, told him that Santa Singh had murdered Banta Singh with a dang and asked him to get the matter hushed up. Narindar Nath accompanied Chet Singh to the house of Safdar Ali Shah and during the night told him what had happened: Safdar Ali Shah asked for Rs. 500 and the matter was settled at Rs. 100. Narindar Nath then went back to Ghuman, leaving Chet Singh at Safdar Ali Shah's house. On October 5, Sardar Shah, constable, came for Narindar Nath and Safdar Ali Shah sent him to fetch Chet Singh. Chet Singh paid Rs. 85 in the presence of Narindar Nath and Sardar Shah to Safdar Ali Shah. The learned Sessions Judge did not rely on these witnesses because they were accomplices. He said:

"The learned Public Prosecutor has himself conceded what is evident from the tenor of Narindra Nath's evidence, namely that Narindra Nath is a tout; in other words, he is an accomplice of the appellant. Moreover, a perusal of his statement shows that it will be unsafe to rely upon him. Another witness to the payment of the bribe is Sardar Shah but, as held above, I also consider him to be an unreliable witness."

Above the learned Sessions Judge had said the evidence points to the conclusion that Sardar Shah was an accomplice of the appellants. I asked the learned Public Prosecutor what he meant by 'tout' and he admitted that the expression was unfortunate. There is no evidence whatever that Narindar Nath was a tout in the sense in which the word is usually understood, that is that he solicited the bribe on behalf of the Assistant Sub-Inspector. That both he and Sardar Shah were accomplices there is no manner of doubt. The Sessions Judge wrote as if he thought that an accomplice could not be believed; but the matter is not quite so simple as that. The statute law in this country is contained in s. 133, Evi. Act, which states:

"An accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person; and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice."

And in s. 114 (b) 'that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars.' It is now firmly established both in England and in this country that in practice an accomplice must be corroborated in material particulars before the accused can be convicted. The most authoritative case is Rex v. Baskerville (2) a judgment of the Court of appeal presided over by Lord Reading as Lord Chief Justice. Lord Reading quoted with approval the dictum of Mulla, J. in Reg. v. Mullins (3):

"Confirmation does not mean that there should be independent evidence of that which an accomplice, relates, or his testimony would be unnecessary. Confirmation might be circumstantial, e.g., where a prisoner was indicted for receiving stolen sheep and a quantity of mutton was found in his house corresponding in size with the stolen sheep."

The judgment said (p. 667*):

"The corroboration need not be direct evidence that the accused committed the crime; it is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connexion with the crime."

Rex v. Baskerville (2) has been repeatedly followed in India, e. g., Barkati v. Emperor (4) at p. 589 and Ram Prasad v. Emperor, 106 Ind. Cas. 721 (5). The learned Public Prosecutor drew my attention to Deonandan Pershad Singh v. Emperor (6) where a Police Officer had demanded and received a bribe and the principal witnesses were those who had paid the bribe. A Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that the circumstances were possibly such as to justify an exceptional treatment, i. e. to justify a conviction on their uncorroborated testimony:

"They are certainly such that a much slighter degree of corroboration is needed to establish their credit than would be the case if they were entirely voluntary accomplices in the offences which they speak to."

Having read the evidence of Narindar Nath and Sardar Shah, I believe it. Their stories are so detailed and so consistent that they bring conviction to the mind. In this case, of course, there is no question as to the identity of the accused. There is further corroboration in a promissory note Ex. P-10 whereby Ujagar Singh and

(2) (1916) 2 K B 658; 86 L J K B 28; 115 L T 453; 80 J P 446; 25 Cox C C 524; 60 S J 696.
(3) (1848) 3 Cox C C 526.
(4) A I R 1927 Lah. 581 (589); 103 Ind. Cas. 49; 28 Cr. L J 625; 8 A I Cr. R 273.
(5) 106 Ind. Cas. 721; A I R 1927 Oudh 369; 29 Cr. L J 129; 2 Luck. 631; 1 Luck. Cas. 339; 8 A I Cr. R 449
(6) 33 C 649; 3 Cr. L J 452; 10 C W N 669.

* Page of (1916) 2 K B—[Ed.]

Fauja Singh on October 4, the very day after their brother's death, borrowed Rs. 140 from Atma Singh. The promissory note significantly and unusually gives the object of the loan as the purchase of bullocks. It is unlikely that men would borrow money for the purchase of bullocks a day after their brother's death. Atma Singh was not called, but the execution of the promissory note and the payment of the money was proved by the scribe Budha Mal. In defence, it was proved that one bullock was bought for Rs. 28 for which a receipt was given. There was also evidence that another bullock was purchased for Rs. 80 there being no receipt; this evidence was disbelieved by both the Courts below and I have not been asked to believe it. Siraj Din, the moharrir, head constable at Dera Baba Nanak, was informed on October 5, by Ali Ahmad, constable, that two brothers had fought and one had killed the other with a dang. By Siraj Din's orders Ali Ahmed informed the Assistant Sub-Inspector, Safdar Ali Shah, who heard the story in Siraj Din's presence at the Police Station. Subsequently, Safdar Ali Shah sent for Siraj Din to his house and there told him that the information was correct and that the people had seen him at noon that day, forced Rs. 80 on him and asked him to hush the matter up. Siraj Din said that the matter could not be hushed up and recommended him to go to the Superintendent of Police or the Deputy Superintendent of Police. Safdar Ali Shah left the Police Station and went to Ghuman returning the following night, but recording his return at 9 A. M, the following morning. He wrote a report Ex. PP to the effect that Banta Singh had died of natural causes and there were no grounds for suspecting any body. At 7 A. M., on October 6, Siraj Din had an interview with Safdar Ali Shah who said he had settled the matter and brought written statements of the witnesses, Siraj Din determined to report the matter and obtaining leave to go to Batala actually reported to Mr. Boudrie at Gurdaspur. Mr. Boudrie instructed him to put the matter in writing and he made a written report, Ex. P. B, on the afternoon of October 6, which is admissible under s. 153, Evi. Act, to corroborate Siraj Din's evidence in Court. I see no reason for not believing Siraj Din. I particularly enquired from Mr. Abdul Aziz who argued the petition on behalf of Safdar Ali Shah that what motive Siraj Din had for deposing falsely; Mr Abdul Aziz had to reply that though allegations had been made as to enmity, nothing had been definitely proved.

Mr. Abdul Aziz, indeed, made a point that the confession to Siraj Din as to the receipt of Rs. 80 was inadmissible in evidence by virtue of s. 25, Evi. Act. This point, he said, had escaped the attention of all concerned in the lower Courts. This appears to be so and the reason is that the principle underlying s. 25, that the Police are supposed to obtain confessions by improper means, can hardly apply to a confession made by a superior in the force to his subordinate. But the words of the statute are plain and the confession is excluded—only the confession however and not admissions not amounting to a confession such as that Safdar Ali Shah had heard a rumour and that people had approached him and asked him to get the matter hushed up. I cannot rely on the confession in view of s. 25, Evi. Act: but I do rely on the admissions.

It is then proved that Banta Singh died by violence, but the Assistant Sub-Inspector went to the village, got a panchayatnama written on behalf of the villagers by a man whose wife had just died; and I believe the evidence of Narindar Nath and Sardar Shah that Chet Singh paid a bribe of Rs. 85 to Safdar Ali Shah. This is accomplice evidence but it is corroborated by the borrowing of Rs. 140 by Banta Singh's brothers on October 4, by the admissions of Safdar Ali Shah to Siraj Din and the immediate action taken by Siraj Din. I think the payment of the bribe to Safdar Ali Shah by Chet Singh is proved. Therefore Safdar Ali Shah is guilty under s. 161 and Chet Singh under s. 162 and ss. 161/109. But the learned Sessions Judge acquitted Chet Singh, there is no appeal by Govt. so I cannot interfere. As to the convictions under s. 201, the homicide was certainly hushed up and the body must have been burned. Chet Singh must have been a party to this and, in all probability, Safdar Ali Shah; but Sain Ditta is the only witness who gives direct evidence as to the burning of Banta Singh's body and as I am not relying upon him, the conviction of Muhammad Sharif cannot be maintained, nor can the convictions of Chet Singh and Safdar Ali Shah for abetment, which rest upon a moral certainty rather than upon legal evidence. The reasons why I have come to conclusions different from those of the learned Sessions Judge is that differing from him I do not rely upon Sain Ditta, whereas I do upon Narindar Nath and Sardar Shah. The final result is that the conviction of Safdar Ali Shah under s. 161, I. P. C. is maintained and of course the sentence. Safdar Ali Shah must surrender to his bail and serve out his term of imprisonment. The other petition for revision must be accepted and the bail bonds of the petitioners cancelled.

D. Order accordingly.

PRIVY COUNCIL

Appeal from the Allahabad High Court

December 4, 1940

LORD ATKIN, LORD THANKERTON AND SIR GEORGE RANKIN

Maharani HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

GAURI SHANKER TEWARI AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS

Hindu Law—Religious endowment — Dedication—Bathing ghat on banks of Ganges at Benares—Dedication, nature of—Partial or complete — Whether must be complete — Essentials for valid dedication—Prayag or Puthiya ghat at Benares — Nature of dedication —Plaintiff held owner of said ghat and could restrain defendants from using it for acting as ghatias without plaintiff's consent in exercise of profession of ghatias.

A bating ghat on the banks of the Ganges at Benares is a subject-matter to be considered upon the principles of the Hindu Law. If dedicated to such a purpose, land or other property would be dedicated to an object both religious and of public utility, just as much as is a dharamsala or a math, notwithstanding that it be not dedicated to any particular diety. But it cannot from this consideration be at once concluded that in any particular case there has been a dedication in the full sense of the Hindu Law which involves the complete cessation of ownership on the part of the founder and the vesting of the property in the religious institution or object. There may or may not be some presumption arising in respect of this, from particular circumstances of a given case, but, in the absence of a formal and express endowment evidenced by deed or declaration, the character of the dedication can only be determined on the basis of the history of the institution and the conduct of the founder and his heirs. That the dedication of property to religious or charitable uses may be complete or partial is as true under the Benares as under the Bengal School of Hindu Law. Partial dedication may take place not only where a mere charge is created in favour of an idol or other religious object but also "where the owner retained the property in himself but granted the community or part of the community and easement over it for certain specified purposes." [p. 884, col. 2; p. 885, col. 1]

There is the very broadest distinction between saying that the ownership of a person in a bathing ghat is not absolute because it is qualified by the public's right of user for purposes of bathing, and say that the person is not the owner at all, but a mere mutawalli in whom nothing vests because his predecessor had dedicated the ghat in the full sense of divesting himself completely of all interest therein. Dedication in the full sense known to the Hindu Law is a different matter. In the usual case of complete dedication made to an idol, for example, the property ceases altogether to belong to the donor and becomes vested in the idol as a juristic person. Complete relinquishment by the owner of his proprietary right is however by no means the only form of dedication known to the Hindu Law and is very different from anything that could ordinarily be inferred from the public user of a highway. From the standpoint of the Hindu Law it is not essential to a valid dedication that the legal title should pass from the owner nor is it inconsistent with an effectual dedication that the owner should continue to make any and all uses of the land which do not interfere with the uses for which it is dedicated. When the dedication is only partial the property in some parts of India might nonetheless in common parlance be described as devottar ; but whether it be charged with a sum of money for the worship of an idol or be subjected to a right of limited user on the part of the public, it would descend and be alienable in the ordinary way; the only difference being that it passes with the charge upon it. St. Mary Newington Vestry v. Jacobs (2), Harrison v. Rutland (Duke) (3) and Chairman of Howrah Municipality v. Khetra Krishna Mitra (4), referred to. [p. 885, col. 2.]

The river bank at Benares is a sacred and historic spot with a powerful claim to the regard of a pious Hindu ; but the practice of bathing in the Ganges is not in general so directly connected with the worship of a particular diety that nothing short of complete dedication would be appropriate for a public bathing ghat. The character of the use to be made of the bank does not require it. Nor does the public right of use for purposes of bathing take its origin as a rule from an immediate and express act of dedication: rather does it begin by acts of user which are acquiesced in by the owner of the property who in due course makes provision for the public needs as an act of charity or piety. It may well be doubted whether a complete abandonment of the owner's rights is at all usual in the case of public bathing ghats ; though it might be common enough in the case of banks dedicated to the public for bathing purposes : even then the ownership of the banks would be another matter :

Held, that the plaintiff was the owner of the Pryag or Puthiya ghat at Benares and permanent injunction could be granted to the plaintiff, restraining the defendants from frequenting the Prayag ghat, without the consent of the plaintiff or her successor-in-title, for the purpose of acting as ghatias thereon, and from sitting or squatting upon the same without such consent in the exercise of the profession or occupation of ghatias.

Messrs. C. S. Rewcastle, K. C. and C. Sidney Smith, for the Appellants.

Messrs. J. M. Parikh and P. V. Subba Row, for the Respondents.

Sir George Rankin.—The sanctity which Hindu thought and feeling attribute to the Ganges and the special veneration which its stream commands as it flows past the holy City of Benares (Kashi) are manifested by the temples and bathing ghats upon the banks. The efficacy of its waters to wash away every form of sin and pollution, is widely accepted doctrine among the orthodox and brings the Hindu pilgrim in large numbers seeking to acquire religious merit and advantage. According to evidence given in the present case "Mankarnika, Dasaswamedh, Panch Ganga, Assi and Barna are the panch tirthas of Kashi: one who comes to Kashi on pilgrimage has to visit all these five places." In this appeal their Lordships are concerned with a bathing ghat which is known as the Pryag or Puthiya ghat and which is covered by the name Dasaswamedh—the name of a mohalla of the City.

The suit was brought on February 15, 1929, in the Court of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Benares. The plaintiff was Maharani Hemanta Kumari Debi, widow of the last male owner of the Puthiya Raj estate. She claimed to be owner of the ghat. She will be referred to as "the plaintiff" notwithstanding that pending this appeal she has by relinquishment accelerated the interest of her husband's reversioners who have been joined with her as appellants to His Majesty in Council. She impleaded six sets of defendants, forteen persons in alleging that they belonged to a class of Brahmins known as ghatias and that they and their predecessors, had been allowed by the owners of the ghat to sit on different portions of it in order to gain a livelihood by receiving alms and gifts from pilgrim bathers. She complained that the defendants were abusing the permission granted to them, by altering the condition of the steps putting down platforms of earth and wood, erecting canopies and blocking up the free space to the detriment of the utility cleanliness and beauty of the ghat. She alleged that the defendants were mere squatters; that she had been willing to allow them to continue to sit on the ghat if they would execute written agreements for the proper conduct of the ghat; but that they had failed or refused so to do. She asked for relief in different forms—a declaration that she was the owner of the ghat and that the defendants had no right to sit on any portion of it; an order of ejectment of the defendants; an order for removal of the various obstructions put up by the defendants; and an injunction restraining the defendants "from using any portion of the said Pryag ghat as ghatias in any season of the year and from sitting and squatting over the same for the purposes of collecting dan dakshina from the bathers."

A number of written statements were filed The defendants numbered 2, 8 and 11 pleaded that they were mere servants of other defendants. The main defence as pleaded on behalf of the rest denied the plaintiff's proprietary right and set up that the ghatias were a community whose business and duty it was to assist bathers; that a ghat necessarily involved a right on the part of some members of this community to occupy portions of it by the use of seats or platforms of the kind known as chaukis or takhts; that this right was a form of property heritable and transferable by Hindu Law; that the defendants and their ancestors had been in occupation of definite sites on the ghat for hundreds of years; and that they had been guilty of no impropriety. They maintained that a right to occupy sites on the ghat by laying out chaukis and takhts had become vested in them by lost grant prescription or custom.

The learned trial Judge heard more than twenty witnesses and by his judgment (June 25, 1930) came to the conclusion that the plaintiff's ownership of the ghat was proved and that she had a right to sue as owner notwithstanding that the ghat was dedicated to the use of the public for purposes of bathing. He found that the ghatias do not belong to any particular class or community but are called ghatias because they sit on the ghats. He thought that there was nothing in any Shastra to show that their presence at the ghat is indispensable for the performance of religious ceremonies or that a bath in the Ganges would not yield any spiritual benefit unless accompanied by gifts to them. He found that in the case of the plaintiff's ghat and neighbouring ghats the ghatias had sat by leave and licence of the owners. He negatived the existence of any customary right in the defendants and found that at no time had any grant of any interest in the ghat been made to them. He further held that they could have no claim by prescription to an exclusive right to occupy any specific portion of a bathing ghat dedicated to the use of the public. In the result he found for the plaintiff, but, following a practice which is not to be commended, he contented himself with ordering "that the plaintiff's suit as prayed be decreed" without formally stating the terms of the various orders, declarations and injunctions which he was granting save by this reference to prayers in the plaint which might well have been improved by revision.

An appeal to the High Court was taken by a number of the defendants. On March 27, 1935, it came before a Division Bench, who, in referring it to a Full Bench, recorded an order mentioning that before them it was not in dispute that the plaintiff was owner of the ghat or that the defendants or their predecessors had sat on different portions of the ghat for generations; also that defendants did not claim any right by virtue of adverse possession but that they did claim a right of property in the ghat in respect of their long use of it for the purpose of assisting the bathers. A single judgment was given by the Full Bench (Sulaiman, C. J Bajpai and Ganga Nath, JJ.) on January 3, 1936. The learned Judges maintained the decree of the trial Judge in so far as it directed removal of railings, planks, canopies and other articles of obstruction but discharged the trial Judge's order of ejectment and the injunction granted by him to restrain the defendants from using the ghat as ghatias or sitting or squatting over the same. They discharged also the declaration made by the trial Judge that the plaintiff was owner of the ghat.

The plaintiff upon this appeal complains of these variations and asks that the decree of the trial Judge be restored.

In the view of the learned Judges of the Full Bench the right claimed by the defendants may be divided into two parts: (1) a right to exclusive possession over specific plots of land and to place platforms and canopies over them; (2) the right to minister to the needs of the bathing public and to receive alms and gifts for their services. As regards the first the Full Bench found some difficulty in appreciating the nature of the right claimed but they found that ghatias as members of a class have no customary right and that the individual defendants could have no right by custom to exclusive possession of any parts of the ghat. The claim to such a right by prescription or lost grant was also held to be bad. The Full Bench considered it to be proved that the takhts and canopies had been obstructions leaving little space for passage, injurious to the pavement and dangerous to the public using the ghat. In their Lordships' view, the reasons given by the learned Judges in their judgment fully justify their order for removal of the obstructions and their rejection of the defendants' claim to have acquired any rights in this ghat whether by custom, prescription or grant. The defendants have not appealed from the High Court's decree.

But the Full Bench set aside the trial Judge's decree of ejectment and the injunction granted by him on the ground that such relief would interfere with the right of "the bathing public" to take to the ghat persons who may help in the proper performance of "spiritual ablutions" and ceremonies. It would be inconvenient, in a suit not constituted for the purpose, that an attempt should be made to define with exactness the extent of the user which the public have as of right in this ghat. But if it be assumed that any bather may bring with him his own priest or his own friend to assist in ceremonial ablutions, this is not in their Lordships' view a valid reason for refusing to the plaintiff an order in ejectment together with a properly framed injunction. The defendants have been sitting on the ghat for the purpose of carrying on their occupation there and have claimed to be entitled to exclusive possession of parts of the ghat as a right of property. If the plaintiff's ownership and possession entitle her to relief, then, upon it appearing that the defendants have no such rights as they claim, she is as well entitled to an order that the defendants should remove themselves as to an order for removal of their canopies. They are not persons who come with bathers to the ghat but persons who cumber the ghat in order to intercept the bathers and who do so continuously habitually and as an occupation or profession. A right to stand, sit or squat on the ghat for the purposes of exercising the profession of ghatias may be acquired by consent of the plaintiff but as matters stand it is not the right of any of the defendants.

As the rights claimed by the defendants have not been established, it is not clear that they have anything to gain by disputing whether the plaintiff is owner of the ghat or is merely the hereditary superintendent of a religious endowment. In either case she would be entitled to maintain a suit in respect of the grievances complained of, and to obtain the same or similar relief. But as the plaintiff sued as owner and as the Full Bench appear to have held that she was a manager or mutawalli it is right to consider whether the trial Judge's declaration of the plaintiff's ownership was well founded.

A bathing ghat on the banks of the Ganges at Benares is a subject-matter to be considered upon the principles of the Hindu Law. If dedicated to such a purpose, land or other property would be dedicated to an object both religious and of public utility, just as much as is a dharamsala or a math, notwithstanding that it be not dedicated to any particular diety. But it cannot from this consideration be at once concluded that in any particular case there has been a dedication in the full sense of the Hindu Law which involves the complete cession of ownership on the part of the founder and the vesting of the property in the religious institution or object. There may or may not be some presumption arising in respect of this from particular circumstances of a given case, but, in the absence of a formal and express endowment evidenced by deed or declaration, the character of the dedication can only be determined on the basis of the history of the institution and the conduct of the founder and his heirs." That the dedication of property to religious or charitable uses may be complete or partial is as true under the Benares as under the Bengal School of Hindu Law. Partial dedication may take place not only where a mere charge is created in favour of an idol or other religious object but also as Mr. Mayne in his well-known work was careful to notice "where the owner retained the property in himself but granted the community or part of the community an easement over it for certain specified purposes" (Hindu Law and Usage 6th Ed, 1900, s. 438, p. 567). In Jaggamoni Dasi v. Nilmoni Ghosal (1), the plaintiff's ancestor had built a temple and bathing ghat, as well as a room and another ghat for use by persons at the point of death. The defendant having used the ghat for the landing of goods, Field, J. observed :—

"There is here no deed of endowment and no evidence has been taken as to the exact purpose and object of this so-called endowment. The first question which suggests itself is whether the plaintiff's father in building these temples, this antorjoli room and this ghat intended to give to the Hindu community a right of easement over the soil, or intended to transfer the ownership of the buildings as well as the ownership of the soil to such community. It by no means necessarily follows that, because the plaintiff's father erected this ghat and this antorjoli room, and allowed the Hindu community to use them for the purposes set out in the plaint, he intended to divest himself of the ownership of the soil, etc."

The judgment of the Full Bench in the present case is open to criticism in respect that it does not take due account of this distinction. Speaking of the tolls collected from shopkeepers on the ghat at festivals, the learned Judges, though noticing that no trustee or manager had ever been appointed and that the plaintiff and her predecessors had bought the land, built the masonry steps and had always looked after and repaired the ghat, say :—

"The ghat having been dedicated to the public, it is not conceivable that the plaintiff or her predecessors could have ever wished to appropriate its income to their private use, nor has the plaintiff made any attempt to show that its income was ever appropriated by her or her predecessors. It therefore appears that the plaintiff and her predecessors realised the income of the ghat and made repairs as a manager or mutwalli and not as absolute proprietor . . The plaintiff is not entitled to a declaration of an absolute proprietary title in the ghat, as the same has been dedicated to the public, and the plaintiff has only the right of reversion if ever the ghat ceases to be used as such."

Another passage deals with the right of the defendants as follows: –

"The ghat having been dedicated to the public the defendants could not have acquired any right under any grant or prescription which might interfere with or limit the right of the public. As already stated, there is no difference in principle between the dedication of a ghat to the public and the dedication of a high road."

Now there is the very broadest distinction between saying that the plaintiff's ownership is not absolute because it is qualified by the public's right of user for purposes of bathing, and saying that the plaintiff is not the owner at all, but a mere mutawalli in whom nothing vests because her predecessor had dedicated the ghat in the full sense of divesting himself completely of all interest therein. When in English Law the owner of land is said to have dedicated it for a highway it is not intended or implied that his right of ownership has been divested. On the contrary if any member of the public exceeds the permitted user a right of action in trespass arises to the dedicator or his successor in title by virtue of his ownership and possession. St. Mary Newington Vestry v. Jacobs (2) Harrison v. Rutland (Duke) (3). Dedication in the full sense known to the Hindu Law is a different matter, In the usual case ofcomplete dedication made to an idol, for example, the property ceases altogether to belong to the donor and becomes vested in the idol as a juristic person. Complete relinquishment by the owner of his proprietary right is however by no means the only form of dedication known to the Hindu Law and is very different from anything that could ordinarily be inferred from the public user of a highway. From the standpoint of the Hindu Law.

"It is not essential to a valid dedication that the legal title should pass from the owner nor is it inconsistent with an effectual dedication that the owner should continue to make any and all uses of the land which do not interfere with the uses for which it is dedicated."

(1) 9 C 75; 11 C L R 502; 7 Ind. Jur. 252.

(2) (1872) L R 7 Q B 47; 41 L J M C 72; 25 L T 300; 20 W R 249.

(3) (1893) 1 Q B 142; 62 L J Q B 117; 4 R 155; 68 L T 35; 41 W R 332.

Chairman of the Howrah Municipality v. Khetra Krishna Mitra (4), (per Mookerjee, J. at 348). When the dedication is only partial the property in some parts of India might none the less in common parlance be described as devottar; but whether it be charged with a sum of money for the worship of an idol or be subject to a right of limited user on the part of the public, it would descend and be alienable in the ordinary way- "the only difference being" as Mr. Mayne observes in the passage already referred to in this judgment "that it passes with the charge upon it." (Hindu Law, and Usage. 6th ed., 1900. sec. 438, p. 567.)

The conclusion of the Full Bench that the plaintiff had only the right of reversion if ever the ghat ceases to be used as such appears to have been drawn from the mere fact that the ghat was "dedicated to the public." But a review of the history of the ghat and the conduct of the plaintiff and her predecessors is required to determine whether the river bank at this spot was dedicated in such sense as to make an end of private ownership therein. The written statements of the defendants set up that

"the land on the bank of the holy River Ganges between the two confluents of Baruna and Assi rivulets in the city of Benares is waqf property from time immemorial the same having been dedicated to the Hindu community at large."

The exceeding sanctity of the river is not of itself a reason why a pious benefactor of the public should do more than provide access to its waters. Whether the question be limited to the ghat in suit or be enlarged by consideration of the evidence about neighbouring ghats, it seems to their Lordships that there is no substantial ground for holding that the plaintiff's predecessors or any of them had divested themselves of all property in this ghat and had accepted the position of having a mere right of management. No express dedication has been proved by production of a deed of endowment or otherwise. No manager has ever been appointed. Not one instance has been shown in which the plaintiff or any predecessor has purported to act as superintendent, sebait or mutawalli. On the contrary they have been treated as owners whenever by disrepair the ghat has attracted the attention of public authority. They have repaired and substantially improved the ghat at their own expense. They have closed it to bathers on proper occasions and have levied tolls on the keepers of shops at festivals. That their expenditure upon the ghat has exceeded their receipts and that they would not wish to make a profit from the tolls is probable enough but in no way tends to prove that they have parted with all right as owners of the soil. The evidence as to agreements taken from ghatias upon nearby ghats is strong to show that in them the proprietors have retained their rights of ownership notwithstanding that the ghats are public bathing places. The learned trial Judge very reasonably thought that the evidence was overwhelming to show the plaintiff's proprietary right and their Lordships though bearing well in mind that there was a bathing ghat at this spot before the purchase of the plaintiff's predecessor in 1814, think that there is little to support a contrary view. The river bank at Benares is a sacred and historic spot with a powerful claim to the regard of a pious Hindu but the practice of bathing in the Ganges is not in general so directly connected with the worship of a particular diety that nothing short of complete dedication would be appropriate for a public bathing ghat. The character of the use to be made of the bank does not require it. Nor does the public right of use for purposes of bathing take its origin as a rule from an immediate and express act of dedication; rather does it begin by acts of user which are acquiesced in by the owner of the property who in due course makes provision for the public needs as an act of charity or piety. It may well be doubted whether a complete abandonment of the owner's rights is at all usual in the case of public bathing ghats: though it might be common enough in the case of tanks dedicated to the public for bathing purposes: even then the ownership of the banks would be another matter.

Their Lordships are of opinion that the declaration made by the trial Judge as to the plaintiff's ownership as well as his order of ejectment against the defendants was correct. They think that the terms of the permanent injunction to be granted to the plaintiff should restain the defendants from frequenting the Payag ghat, without the consent of the plaintiff or her successor-in title, for the purpose of acting as ghatias thereon, and from sitting or squatting upon the same without such consent in the exercise of the profession or occupation of ghatias.

(4) 4 C L J 343 (348); 33 C 1290; 10 C W N 1044.

They will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be allowed, that the decree of the High Court dated January 3, 1936, be set aside and that the decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Benares dated June 25, 1930, be restored, with the variation mentioned as to the terms of the permanent injunction. The respondents will pay the costs of the plaintiff in the High Court and of the appellants in this appeal. The appellants must however, pay to the respondents the costs of the application to restore the appeal, which had been dismissed for non-prosecution, as directed by the Order in Council of July 25, 1939, and there must be a set-off as regards these costs.

S. Appeal allowed.

Solicitors for the Appellants:—Messrs. Douglas Grant and Dold.

Solicitors for the Respondents:—Messrs. Harold Shephard.

OUDH CHIEF COURT

Criminal Appeal No. 12 of 1941

March 7, 1941

GHULAM HASAN, J.

RAGHUBAR AND OTHERS—ACCUSED—APPELLANTS

versus

EMPEROR—COMPLAINANT—RESPONDENT

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 332—Ingredients of offence under—Constable assaulted while attempting to arrest accused without warrant or authority to do so—No offence under s. 332 — No allegation by constable that he proceeded under s. 54 (1), Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898)—S. 54 (1), Criminal Procedure Code does not apply.

In order to bring the case within the purview of s. 332, I. P. C., it is necessary to establish that the public servant was acting at the time of the assault as such public servant and in the particular matter discharging a duty imposed upon him as such public servant. A constable who had no warrant of arrest in his possession at the time of the assault, nor had he been entrusted with the duty of arresting the accused, cannot be said to have been acting in the discharge of his duty if he intended or wanted to arrest the accused. Where there is no allegation by the constable in his deposition that he proceeded under s. 54 (1), Criminal P. C., s. 54 (1), Criminal P. C., does not apply. Queen-Empress v. Dalip (1) and 138 Ind. Cas. 844 (3), relied on. 6 Ind. Cas. 7 (1) (2), referred to. [p. 888, col. 2; p. 889, cols. 1 & 2.]

Cr. A. against the order of the Assistant Sessions Judge of Sitapur, dated December 11, 1940.

Mr. S. D. Misra, for the Appellants.

Mr. H. N. Misra, for Appellants Nos. 2 to 6.

The Assistant Govt. Advocate, for the Crown.

Judgment.—Angne, Sumer, Jangali, Kumar and Maiku, Pasis of village Chaturaia Police Station Mahsoi, District Sitapur, have been convicted by the Assistant Sessions Judge of Sitapur under s. 147 of the I. P. C. and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment. They have also been convicted under s. 332 read with s. 149 of the I. P. C. for assaulting and causing hurt to Basdeo Lal, a constable of Thana Mahsoi, and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment; both sentences to run concurrently. Raghubar Pasi of the same village, who was tried along with the other appellants, and also found guilty under s. 147 and sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment. He was found guilty under s. 332 of the I. P. C. as well and since he is a registered member of Criminal Tribes and had certain convictions he was sentenced to seven years' rigorous imprisonment under s. 23 of the Criminal Tribes Act, both sentences to run concurrently.

According to the prosecution it appears that Jangali accused was suspected of an offence under s. 399 of the I. P. C. and was wanted by the Police. Two attempts were made by the Mahsoi Police to effect his arrest, one on June 23, 1940, and the other on June 30, 1940, but they were unsuccessful. On the latter date Basdeo constable, in whose beat village Chaturaia lies was deputed to execute the warrant against Jangali but was unsuccessful. Certain identification proceedings were to be held in connection with the same case under s. 399 of the I. P. C. on July 12, 1940. Basdeo constable was deputed on July 10, 1940, to effect service on seven witnesses of that case. Out of the seven witnesses to be served two of them, namely Ganga Sahai lived in Bilahri and Bhagwan Din lived in village Tatraia while the remaining five lived in village Chaturi. After leaving the Police Station the same day, namely on July 10, 1940 Basdeo constable proceeded to village Rampur and took Gobre brother of the chaukidar along with him the chaukidar being absent—to village Bilahri and served Ganga Sahai. From there he took one Nakkhar and proceeded to village Tatraia in order to effect service on Bhagwan Din but could not find him. Thereupon he proceeded to village Chaturi where he effected service on five persons already mentioned. Basdeo constable proceeded back to Tatraia along with the two persons, Nakkhar and Gobre, in order to make another attempt to effect service on Bhagwan Din. While the party was returning to village Chaturi and reached near the grove of Laltu Chamar, situate near village Tatraia, at about sunset the six appellants emerged from the grove and started belabouring the constable with lathis. The constable fell down and when a few persons from the neighbouring fields rushed up on hearing the cries, the six appellants fled away. After the assault the constable was removed to village Tatraia where he effected service on Bhagwan Din and then proceeded to village Ramshala in a cart and ultimately reached Police Station Mahsoi in the morning. He made the first information report (Ex. 1) and deposited his turban, kullah and shirt at the Police Station. The constable was examined by the Civil Surgeon on July 12, 1940. The constable had received ten injuries on various parts of his body and in the opinion of the Civil Surgeon, they had been caused by a blunt weapon like a lathi. The injuries were of a simple character.

The accused denied the charge.

The learned Assistant Sessions Judge relying upon the prosecution evidence found that all the six accused had used force in prosecution of the common object of assaulting the constable and were guilty of rioting under s. 147 of the I. P. C. and s. 332, I. P. C./149, I. P. C. The accused set up the plea of self-defence and produced some evidence in support of it but this was rightly rejected by the learned Assistant Sessions Judge.

The first question that falls to be determined is whether the prosecution has succeeded in establishing the offence under s. 332 of the I. P. C. against the accused.

Basdeo constable (P. W. No. 1) admits in his evidence that if the accused had not beaten him, he would have arrested Jangali accused as he was wanted in the s 399 case. P. W. No. 1 further states that when he reached the grove on seeing Jangali he asked his companions to come quietly with him as he would arrest Jangali.

P. W. No. 2 Gobre, his companion, states that "when we reached near the grove, we saw Jangali in the grove. The constable told me that he would arrest Jangali. Constable had a danda and we two were armed with lathis."

P. W. No. 3 Nakkhar, another companion, also states:—

"We saw Jangali and other accused coming out. The constable told us to arrest Jangali accused."

Similarly P. W. No. 10 Mata Din states that Basdeo told him that he had come to arrest Jangali and to effect service on witnesses.

A reference to the evidence of Abdul Hamid Khan, constable, (P. W. No. 8), shows that Basdeo constable was merely asked to effect service of bonds on witnesses and he was not given any warrant for arrest nor was he directed to effect any arrest.

The above evidence in my opinion is sufficient to show that as soon as Basdeo saw Jangali in the grove, he at once showed a determination to arrest Jangali accused but before he could do so he was evidently overpowered by the appellants. The learned Assistant Sessions Judge has not referred to this portion of the prosecution evidence in the judgment. He, however, states that "it is in the evidence of the constable that at the time of assault the accused persons were saying that they would beat him in a way so as to make him incapable of doing pairvi in s. 399 case. Under these circumstances it is reasonable to infer that the six accused assaulted the constable with the intention that he may be deterred from performing his duty as a public servant. In my opinion all the ingredients of s. 332 of the I. P. C. have been established."

This important fact, however, does not find a place in the first information report, which was given by the constable himself. Having considered the evidence carefully, I am satisfied that the prosecution has failed to establish the necessary ingredients of the offence under s. 332 of the I. P. C. Section 332 of the I. P. C. requires that the public servant must be acting in the discharge of his duty as such public servant at the time of the assault. To my mind it is quite clear from the evidence that Basdeo cannot be said to have been acting in the discharge of his duty if he intended or wanted to arrest Jangali when he was beaten. The constable had no warrant of arrest in his possession at the time of the assault, nor had he been entrusted with the duty of arresting Jangali at the time when the assault was made upon him. As a matter of fact he had been charged with the duty of serving notices on the witnesses in the various villages mentioned above. In order to bring the case within the purview of s. 332, it is necessary to establish that the public servant must be acting at the time as such public servant and in the particular matter discharging a duty imposed upon him as such public servant. In Queen-Empress v. Dalip (I. L. R. 18 All. 246) 1) it was held that the words "in the discharge of his duty as such public servant" in the earlier portion of s. 332 of the I. P. C. mean in the discharge of a duty imposed by law on such public servant in the particular case, and do not cover an act done by him in good faith under colour of his office. In this case a warrant issued by a Magistrate for the arrest of an accused under s. 114 of the Criminal P. C. was sent to a certain thana for execution. It was copied at the thana into a book kept for the purpose and made over to a particular constable for execution. After the departure of the constable it was discovered that the accused lived in a village other than that where he was supposed to be. The officer temporarily in charge of the thana made a copy from the book at the thana, endorsed on the back the names of certain other constables and having signed the endorsement, sent them with this paper to arrest the accused. The constables arrested the accused, but as they were returning with him in custody, some of the friends of the accused, aided by the accused himself, attacked them, rescued the accused and caused hurt to the Police. It was held that the Police Officers concerned in arresting the accused under the circumstances above described were not acting in the lawful discharge of their duty within the meaning of s. 332 of the I. P. C. so as to render the accused liable to conviction under that section; but, inasmuch as they were acting in good faith under the colour of their office, s. 99 of the I. P. C. applied and the accused and his associates might be properly convicted under ss. 147 and 323 of the I. P. C.

I am not aware whether the principle enunciated by Sir John Edge, C. J. and Mr. Justice Burkitt in the above decision has been departed from in any reported case. The above case was referred to In re Mahomed Yakoob (VII Madras Law Times Reports, 386 (1,) (2) and was distinguished on the facts.

Reference has been made by the learned Assistant Govt. Advocate to s. 54 and in particular upon the first, 3rd and 9th clauses of s. 54 of the Criminal P. C, and it has been argued that it was open to the constable to have arrested Jangali accused without a warrant by virtue of the powers conferred upon a Police Officer under this section. These clauses have clearly no application. The third clause applies to a case where the person has been proclaimed as an offender either under this Code or by order of the provincial Govt. As regards the 9th clause there is no case of requisition having been received from another Police Officer for the arrest of Jangali accused. As regards the first clause, it is perfectly clear from the evidence that Basdeo did not act under s. 54 of the Criminal P. C. He did not state that he wanted to arrest Jangali accused because he had been concerned in any cognizable offence or on account of the fact that a reasonable complaint had been made against him or credible information had been received by him, or any reasonable suspicion existed of Jangali having been concerned in any such cognizable offence. It appears that he did not act on account of the existence of any reasonable suspicion or belief in his mind against Jangali accused about his having been concerned in any cognizable offence. Since the constable had failed to effect the arrest of Jangali accused on a previous occasion he presumably purported to have acted under cover of the old warrant which admittedly was not in his possession. In any case it cannot be said from the facts of the present case that Basdeo acted suo motu in exercise of his powers under s. 54 of the Criminal P. C. In Kartik Chandra Maity v. Emperor (A. I. R. 1932 Patna, 171) (3) it was held that :

"If a constable in effecting an arrest specifies a certain power which proves to be wanting, resistence to him or escape from his custody constitutes no offence. Where the constable purports to act under a warrant which is found to be invalid, and where there is no allegation by the constable in his deposition that he proceeded under s. 54 (1), s. 54 (1) does not apply."

It was further observed :

"To hold that s. 54 applies in such cases without any intimation to the accused, and without any allegation by the constable in his deposition that he proceeded under the section would be to nullify several salutary provisions contained in Part. B, Ch. VI, Criminal P. C. relating to the execution of warrants of arrest."

In this view of the matter the convictions of the appellants under s. 332-149 cannot be upheld and must be set aside.

(1) 18 A 246; A W N 1896, 48.
(2) 7 M L T 386 (1); 6 Ind. Cas. 7 (1); (1910) M W N 579.
(3) A I R 1932 Pat. 171; 138 Ind. Cas. 844; 13 P L T 135; (1932) Cr. Cas. 347; 33 Cr. L J 706; Ind. Rul. (1932) Pat. 190.

I am, however, of opinion that the assault on the constable was not justified and the appellants had no justification whatever to cause bodily injuries to him. The appellants are, therefore, punishable for the rioting which they committed with the common object of assaulting the constable and for further causing him bodily injuries. I maintain the convictions of the appellants under s. 147 of the I. P. C. but reduce their sentences to six months' rigorous imprisonment under that section. I further convict them under ss. 323-149 of the I. P. C. and six months' rigorous imprisonment is awarded to them under these sections. The sentences under the two sections shall run concurrently.

The learned Assistant Sessions Judge has distinguished the case of Raghubar from the other appellants on the ground that there was a previous conviction against him and that he was liable to the minimum punishment of seven years' rigorous imprisonment under s. 23 (1) (a) of the Criminal Tribes Act (VI of 1924). As I have acquitted Raghubar of the offence under s. 332 of the I. P. C. and convicted him of an offence under s. 323 only, s. 23 of the Criminal Tribes Act will no longer be applicable. Section 23 (1) (a) of the Criminal Tribes Act lays down :

"Whoever, being a member of any criminal tribe and having been convicted of any of the offences under the I. P. C. specified in Sch. I, is convicted of the same or of any other such offence shall, in the absence of special reasons to the contrary which shall be stated in the judgment of the Court, be punished,

(a) on a second conviction, with imprisonment for a term of not less than seven years....."

Raghubar was previously convicted twice under s. 457 and once under s. 379 of the I. P. C. His present conviction does not fall under any of those sections nor under any of the other offences enumerated in Sch. I appended to the Criminal Tribes Act.

The result, therefore, is that the appeal is partly allowed, the convictions of the appellants under s. 147 are maintained but the sentences are reduced to six months' rigorous imprisonment. The convictions under ss. 332-149 of the I. P. C. are set aside and the appellants are convicted in lieu thereof of an offence under ss. 323-149 of the I. P. C. and sentenced to a period of six months. The sentences under ss. 147 and 323 of the I. P. C. shall run concurrently. The conviction and sentence of Raghubar under s. 332 of the I. P. C. read with s. 23 of the Criminal Tribes Act are set aside.

S. Appeal partly allowed.

PRIVY COUNCIL

Appeal from the Patna High Court

December 2, 1910

LORD ATKIN, LORD THANKERTON AND SIR GEORGE RANKIN

THE JAGADAMBA LOAN CO., LTD.—APPELLANTS

versus

Raja SHIBA PRASAD SINGH AND OTHERS —RESPONDENTS

Lessor and lessee—Mortgage by lessee of lease-hold property—Privity of estate or privity of contract between mortgagee and lessor, if exists—Mortgagee entering into possession—Effect—Liability of mortgagee for rent and royalty due from lessor.

In case of a mortgage of a lease-hold property by the lessee the interest taken by the mortgagee is not an absolute interest and is not such as to render him liable for the burdens of the lease by reason of privity of estate. No privity of estate can result from entry into possession in the case of a person who has taken a transfer from the lessee of an interest which is not the whole interest in the term. There is no privity of contract between the lessor and the mortgagee in respect of the rent and lessee's covenants. If the lessee retains part of his original interest in the term the mortgagee cannot be liable to the lessor for the whole of the rent and covenants; and cannot without apportionment be liable for any part thereof, whether or not he enters into possession. The transferee of a partial interest in the term cannot be taken to have promised the lessor to discharge any part of the burdens of the lessee.

Hence the mortgagee of the lease-hold property is not liable to the lessor for the rents and royalties due by the lessor from the lessee. 179 Ind. Cas. 328 (1), referred to.

Mr. J. M. Pringle, for the Appellants.

Messrs. C. S. Rewcastle, K. C. and R. K. Handoo, for the Respondents.

Sir George Rankin.—The controversy in this case has reference to 650 bighas of coal land in Mouza Jinagara in the District of Manbhum in Bihar. In these, the appellants, the Jagadamba Loan Company, Limited, are mortgagees of certain lease-hold interests which were granted by the Jharia Raj as zemindar to one Charles Smith upon the terms of two kabulyats dated April 24, 1907. By one of these instruments Charles Smith took settlement of the surface rights for 999 years at an annual rent of Rs. 650: by the other the sub-soil rights were settled with him for the same period upon certain terms as to payment of royalty which need not here be set out. The rent for the surface rights was secured by a provision that

"the lease-hold land remains wholly hypothecated for the amount of rent and the amount of rent will be treated as the first charge."

As regards the sub-soil rights the provision was

"that for the amount of royalty the leasehold land and the machineries remain wholly hypothecated. If I make default in payment of the amount of royalty you will be competent to realise the same by selling the leasehold land."

The appellants' mortgage is dated February 4, 1920. It was executed by the leasee Charles Smith. It recited that several subleases had in the meantime been granted by him one being in favour of the Jinagara Coal Company, Limited. It provided that the appellants should from time to time make advances upon a cash credit loan account and that Charles Smith the mortgagor should repay the same with certain interest on February 4, 1923. Subject to a proviso for redemption it conveyed to the appellants all the estate and interest of the mortgagor including his right to rent and royalties from sub-leases. The mortgagor covenanted that during the subsistence of the security he would pay all rents, royalties, taxes, etc. and observe the covenants of the head leases. In case of the mortgagor's default in payment of the principal and interest when due the appellants were to be entitled to enter into possession of the mortgaged premises and receive the rents, issues and profits thereof, and in case of the mortgagor's default in payment of the rents, royalties or taxes due in respect of the lands the appellants were to be at liberty to enter into possession without being accountable as a mortgagee in possession.

It is agreed that the appellants eventually collected certain rents and profits from sub-lessees of Charles Smith and in this sense entered into possession; but the dates and other particulars of the appellant's action do not appear from the record submitted to the Board. It is not suggested that the appellants at any time paid rent to the Jharia Raj in respect of the leasehold interests in mortgage to them.

The suit out of which this appeal arises was brought in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Dhanbad on April 20, 1928. It was brought on behalf of the Raj as lessor against Charles Smith (the first defendant) as lessee and certain other parties as sub-lessees. The appellants were not originally impleaded: they were added as parties on January 4, 1929, but took no steps to contest the suit until after it had resulted in a sale as hereafter mentioned. The plaint claimed large sums as due to the Raj for rent and royalty in arrear in respect of the 650 bighas, prayed that an account of the raisings of coal should be had to ascertain the sums due for royalty, claimed that the arrears were a first charge on the leasehold properties, and asked for enforcement of the charge by sale. Certain accounts having been taken as directed by the trial Judge on June 14, 1929, a preliminary decree for sale was made on December 9, 1929, and a final decree on August 30, 1930. The sale took place on June 25, 1931. After setting off the sale proceeds against the amount due to the Raj, a large sum remained due and unpaid, and on June 23, 1934, application was made on behalf of the Raj under O. XXXIV, r. 6, of the Civil P. C. for a personal decree for the deficiency against the estate of Charles Smith the lessee (who had died pending suit), against one of his sub-lessees, and against the appellants. The deficiency was said to amount to a lac of rupees.

This claim was resisted by the appellants who lodged an objection dated July 28, 1934, maintaining that between themselves and the Raj as lessors there was neither privity of contract nor of estate.

The learned Subordinate Judge on December 6, 1934, upheld the objection and refused to make a personal decree against the appellants, but on appeal the High Court at Patna (Terrell, C. J. and Fazl Ali, J.) reversed his decision and passed a decree on February 18, 1938, against the appellants for the sums due to the Raj for rent and royalties in respect of the six years before suit.

From this decree an appeal has now been brought to His Majesty in Council. The appellants, as a new ground of objection in addition to those previously insisted on, have relied upon the fact that the plaintiffs agreed to exclude from the sale the interest of certain sub-lessees, and say that in any case the property which was included in the decree for sale was neither "the mortgaged property nor a sufficient part thereof" within the meaning of r. 5 (3) of O. XXXIV. Whether upon this new ground the appellants could resist a personal decree for the deficiency under r. 6, of that order, is, however, a question which their Lordships do not find it necessary to discuss or decide.

Since the decision of the High Court in this case, the position of a mortgagee of leaseholds has been considered by the Board in Ram Kinkar Banerjee v. Satya Charan Srimani (1). It was there held that in India even in the case of an English mortgage a legal interest remains in the mortgagor: hence the interest taken by the mortgagee is not an absolute interest and is not such as to render him liable for the burdens of the lease by reason of privity of estate. In that case, however, the mortgagees had not entered into possession of the properties mortgaged.

In the present case no question arises of novation by reason of the appellants having paid rent to the Raj or otherwise. Their Lordships have, however, to consider whether the appellants have become liable for the rents and royalities by reason of their entry into possession of the mortgaged property. They are not of opinion that privity of estate can result from entry into possession in the case of a person who has taken a transfer from the lessee of an interest which is not the whole interest in the term.

The High Court were of opinion that the appellants were liable by reason of privity of contract and in support of this view cited Dallas, C. J. in Williams v. Bosanquet (2).

"and even as to privity of contract, there is such privity also, for the contract of the lessor is with the lessee and his assigns, and the defendants here are the assigns of the lessee: it is, therefore, a contract between the lessor and the assignee, that is, in this case, between the plaintiff and the defendants."

Before relying upon this dictum it would be necessary to enquire whether the principle which it expresses has been accepted in the Law of England and how it consists with the doctrine, generally accepted, that the assignee's liability to the lessor can be brought to an end by his assigning the premises over to another. But in their Lordships' view the principle of the decision in Ram Kinkar Banerjee's case (1), (supra) is inconsistent with there being privity of contract between the lessor and the mortgagee in respect of the rent and lessee's covenants. If the lessee retains part of his original interest in the term the mortgagee cannot be liable to the lessor for the whole of the rent and covenants; and cannot without apportionment be liable for any part thereof, whether or not he enters into possession. The transferee of a partial interest in the term cannot be taken to have promised the lessor to discharge any part of the burdens of the lessee. It would be somewhat remarkable if the lease in Ram Kinkar's case (1), was not thought to be one in which "the contract is with the lessee and his assigns"; yet no suggestion is to be discovered to the effect that the mortgagees were liable by privity of contract. Their Lordships are of opinion that the principle of that decision is equally inconsistent with privity of contract as with privity of estate as a ground of claim against the mortgagee of leaseholds in such a case as the present.

They will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal be allowed, the decree of the High Court dated February 18, 1938, set aside and that of the Subordinate Judge dated December 6, 1934, restored. The first respondent will pay the appellants costs in the High Court and of this appeal.

S. Appeal allowed.

Solicitors for the Appellants:—Messrs. Hy. S. L. Polak & Co.

Solicitors for the Respondents.—Messrs. Douglas Grant & Dold.

(1) 66 I A 50; 179 Ind. Cas. 328; A I R 1939 P C 14; 43 C W N 281; 49 L W 229; 1939 O L R 46; 5 B R 255; 11 R P C 134; 1939 O W N 43, 1939 R D 144; (1939) 1 M L J 544; 69 C L J 254; I L R (1939) 1 Cal. 263; 41 Bom. L R 6.2; (1939) M W N 601 (P C).

(2) (1819) 1 Br. & B 238 (263); 3 Moore 500; 21 R R 585.

OUDH CHIEF COURT

Civil Revision Application No. 22 of 1941

February 19, 1941

BENNETT, J.

RAM PADARATH MISIR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS

versus

DATA DIN MISIR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—OPPOSITE PARTY

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIII, r. 1—Order allowing application to withdraw suit with liberty to bring fresh suit—Whether appealable—Revision, if lies—Omission to plead alternative case or implead party, if 'formal defects'—Failure to produce documents at proper time, whether "sufficient ground."

No appeal lies against an order allowing an application under r. 1 of O. XXIII, Civil P. C., for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh. An application in revision, however, lies against such an order where the Court has been guilty of material irregularity in passing the order. [p. 893, col. 1; p. 894, col. 2.]

[Case-law referred to.]

An omission to put forward an alternative case or to implead certain parties is not a formal defect. The failure to produce documents at the proper time is not a sufficient ground within the meaning of r. 1 of O. XXIII, Civil P. C, and in permitting the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh on these grounds the Court acts with material irregularity and its order can be revised. [p. 896, col. 1.]

C. R. App. of the order of the Civil Judge of Fyzabad, dated October 8, 1937.

Mr. Akhlaque Husain, for the Applicants.

Mr. Salik Ram, for the Respondents.

Order.—This is a second civil appeal against the judgment and decree passed by the learned Civil Judge of Fyzabad on October 8, 1937, setting aside a decree passed by the Munsif Havali, Fyzabad, on May 11, 1937.

The Munsif dismissed the suit. In first appeal the Civil Judge allowed the application of the plaintiffs under r. 1 of O. XXIII of the Civil P. C., for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue a fresh. The defendants, that is the present appellants, were given their costs. The reason for allowing the application is given in the following sentence of the Civil Judge's order :—

"In the interest of justice I allow the application as there seems formal defects in the plaint as alleged in the application."

The first question which arises is whether an appeal lies against this order. The learned Counsel for the appellants concedes that no appeal would ordinarily lie, but he points out that a decree was passed by the Civil Judge setting aside the decree passed by the Munsif and he explains that it was on this account that an appeal was preferred. It is asked in the memorandum of appeal that if a second appeal does not lie the appeal may be treated as an application for revision under s. 115 of the Civil P. C.

Learned Counsel for the respondents contends that an application in revision does not lie and he bases this contention mainly on two cases of the Allahabad High Court.

In Jhukku Lal v. Bisheshar Das, (I. L. R. 40 All 612) (1) it was held in somewhat similar circumstances (though permission to withdraw was given by the trial Court after the evidence had concluded in this case) that the Court had jurisdiction to grant leave to the plaintiffs to bring a fresh suit, and the fact that the Court may have exercised, and probably did exercise, a wrong discretion in granting the plaintiffs' application was not sufficient to bring the case within the purview of s. 115.

In Chandrika Lal v. Sami Nath, (I. L. R. 50 All. 835) (2) it was held that where a Court allowed a plaintiff to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh one upon the ground that he had not given formal proof of a document which was essential to his success, the Court was within its jurisdiction, and that the High Court should not interfere.

On the other hand the learned Counsel for the appellants has cited rulings both of the Allahabad and of other High Courts which show that in certain circumstances an application in revision lies.

In Rahmat Ullah v. Dharam Singh, (20 A. L. J. R. 90) (3) it was held by the Allahabad High Court in revision that where after remand of a suit by the Appellate Court, the plaintiff applied for permission to withdraw the suit "for some reasons and defects", with liberty to bring a fresh suit, but no reasons were assigned or defects specified, and the only order passed by the Court was "allowed" the Court had not exercised its jurisdiction as required by law, and the order was set aside.

Again in Raghubir Das v. Sital Prasad, (A. I. R. 1935 All. 740) (4) it was said that while the High Court is very reluctant to interfere in revision with orders passed under O. XXIII, r. 1, the reluctance has been in every case to interfere with the discretion of the Court. Where the Court has not observed the rule and has not had before it the considerations by which it ought to be guided it is certainly proper to exercise the revisional powers of the High Court.

In Bai Kashibai v. Shidapa Annapa (I L. R. 37 Bom 682) (5) after the case for both the plaintiff and the defendant had been closed and all their witnesses had been examined, the Court gave time to the plaintiff to adduce documents to counteract the effect of the documents already produced by the defendant. On the plaintiff's inability to adduce the documents on the appointed day, he applied for leave to withdraw from the suit with permission to file a fresh one on the same cause of action and the Court passed an order granting leave. It was held that the Court had acted with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction. The hearing had finished and it was improper to allow the plaintiff to try and produce documents to counteract the defendant's documents. The plaintiff's failure to produce the documents was not a sufficient ground to put the defendant

(1) 40 A 612; 46 Ind. Cas. 71; 16 A L J 495.
(2) 50 A 835; 115 Ind. Cas. 124; A I R 1929 All. 133; 26 A L J 774.
(3) 20 A L J 90; 64 Ind. Cas. 948; A I R 1922 All. 185 (1).
(4) A I R 1935 All. 740; 157 Ind. Cas. 673; (1935) A L J 983; 1935 A L R 851; A W R 1935, 924.
(5) 37 B 682; 21 Ind. Cas. 23; 15 Bom. L R 823.

to the trouble and annoyance of a fresh suit.

In Haridas Sadhu Khan v. Giridhari Sadhu Khan, (A. I. R. 1934 Cal. 59) (6) an order of Subordinate Judge was set aside where the provisions of O. XXIII, r. 1 had not been satisfied. In this case the defects alleged were that certain necessary parties were not impleaded and certain properties were not included in the claim. It was held that these were not formal defects and that there was no reason, therefore, why the suit should fail by reason of any formal defects, nor was there any other sufficient reason for a fresh suit.

In an earlier case of the Calcutta High Court Moti Lal Dutt v. Kali Das Bhattacharji, (A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 107) (7) it was said that the power given to the Court to give permission to withdraw a suit has to be governed by certain considerations, and if it appears that those considerations were not present, it must be held that the order was passed without jurisdiction in the sense that it had exercised its power in the wrong exercise of jurisdiction or at at any rate it was a material irregularity.

It was also said that permission should not ordinarily be given so as to cause much harassment to the opposite party. It should only be given when the Court is satisfied that the defect is not for any fault of the plaintiff but for discovery of certain facts which renders the suit in its present shape defective. After having lost a party cannot ordinarily be permitted to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit unless the Court is absolutely satisfied that the failure of the plaintiff was due to certain defects which were not known to him at the time of the institution or the trial of the suit. Although an order granting permission in circumstances which did not justify such permission is not an order totally without jurisdiction, it is not one which can be supported as it is vitiated by material irregularity.

Lastly it was held by this Court in Bidya Dhar v. Kapurthala Estate (A. I. R. 1935 Oudh 495) (8) that the failure of the plaintiff to produce documents at the proper time or any other default on his part in properly prosecuting the suit cannot be regarded as a sufficient ground within the meaning of O. XXIII, r. 1, and that where in the absence of sufficient grounds the Court allows a suit to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit, it acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction and its order is open to revision.

It will appear, therefore, that in certain circumstances an application in revision lies against an order passed by a Court under O. XXIII, r. 1 and that it is necessary to see whether the Court has been guilty of material irregularity in passing the order.

I come now to the facts of the present case. The suit was brought for possession of 7 biswas of land situated in village Sindhaura Mohal Pirthi Singh and for Rs. 5 by way of damages. It was alleged that the plaintiffs held a patta istimrar dated June 11, 1936, in respect of this land from Keshoraj Singh and Jagannath Singh, zamindar of the land, and that the defendants had cut and appropriated a babool tree therefrom and thereby dispossessed them.

The defendants contested the suit alleging that Keshoraj and Jagannath were not the owners of the land and had no right to lease it to the plaintiffs. They also contended that neither the lessor nor the lessee had ever been in possession of the land in suit and that the suit was time-barred. It was further contended that the former zamindar had given the land in suit along with other land under a shankalapa patta to the ancestors of the defendants and that consequently the tree in question belonged to them.

The following issues were framed:—

1. Were Keshoraj and Jagannath superior proprietors of the land in suit in 1936 and as such entitled to grant a patta istimrar to the plaintiffs?

2. Are Exs. 1 and 2 (patta and kabuliyat) genuine and valid?

(3) Have the plaintiffs been in possession of the land in suit within limitation?

4. Were plaintiffs owners of the tree in suit?

5. To what relief, if any, are the plaintiffs entitled?

The judgment of the Munsif shows that on the 1st issue the plaintiffs filed eleven documents, of which eight were filed to prove the title of Keshoraj and Jagannath in the land in suit. The khetauni of a partition which took place in 1890 showed that Pirthi Singh was the owner of Plot No. 1220 of the old settlement which contained the land in suit. On his death the property was mutated in the names of his sons Baij Nath Singh and Surajpal Singh by an order of September 7, 1892, and on the death of Surajpal Singh his half share was mutated in the name of Baij Nath Singh by an order dated September 7, 1900. It was further proved that on the death of Baijnath Singh the property was inherited by Mst. Brij Dei, widow of Surajpal Singh. The Munsif observed that Mst. Brij Dei was not the heir of Baij Nath Singh and had no right to inherit his property. Mutation was effected in her name on April 24, 1926. There was no plea or proof that she had completed title by adverse possession.

(6) A I R 1934 Cal. 59; 148 Ind. Cas. 111; 57 C L J 498; 6 R C 430.
(7) A I R 1931 Cal. 107; 130 Ind. Cas. 142; 34 C W N 912; Ind. Rul. (1931) Cal. 334.
(8) A I R 1935 Oudh 495; 158 Ind. Cas. 280; 1935 O W N 1066; 1935 O L R 568 (1); 8 R O 81.

It further appeared that Mst. Brij Dei had gifted one-third of the property to her grand son Jagannath Singh (son of her daughter) and that mutation had been effected thereon on July 21, 1932. The deed of gift was not, however, produced nor was the gift in favour of Jagannath Singh proved.

The remaining two-thirds of the property in the possession of Mst. Brij Dei was mutated in the name of another grand son Keshoraj (son of another daughter by an order dated September 24, 1935, on the basis of some iqrarnama which was not produced.

The Munsif observed that this was the only evidence to prove the title of Jagannath and Keshoraj in the property in suit. He remarked that it was evident that Mst. Brij Dei had no title in the property of Pirthi Singh and hence had no right to transfer it to Jagannath and Keshoraj. In any event the transfers alleged to have taken place in their favour had not been proved. Consequently in the Munsif's opinion the plaintiffs transferors had no title in the land in suit and no right to grant a patta to the plaintiffs.

On the second issue the Munsif found that it was not proved what property was transferred by Exs. 1 and 2.

On the third issue the Munsif found that the plaintiffs had not been in possession of the land, and on the fourth issue that they were not owners of the tree. Consequently he decided that they were not entitled to any relief.

In their appeal to the Civil Judge, which was preferred on July 7, 1937, the plaintiffs challenged all these findings and also contended that the trial Court should have held that Keshoraj and Jagannath had possessory title and could transfer their possession to the appellants.

On September 3, 1937, the plaintiffs applied to the Civil Judge for admission of certain additional documentary evidence in appeal. No order was passed on this application. It was not supported by an affidavit.

The appeal came up for hearing on October 8, 1937, and on this date the plaintiffs presented another application which must be taken to be an application under O. XXIII, r. 1 of the Civil P. C., although this rule is not referred to in it. The previous application of September 3, was not pressed.

In the application of October 8, it was said that certain defects had crept into the suit as a result of which the plaintiffs might be prejudiced as their claim had become defective and it was apprehended that it might be dismissed. Consequently they asked for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to institute a fresh suit.

The following defects were alleged:

(1) The objection about "possessory title" had not been taken.

(2) Keshoraj and Jagannath Singh had not been made parties.

(3) Certain necessary papers of which a list was given were not filed in the original Court.

The papers preferred to (3) where those to which the application of September 3, 1937, related, and it was because they were included in the application of October 8, 1937, that the previous application was not pressed.

Reference to the omission about possessory title in (1) was presumably made in view of the fact that one of the grounds of appeal was that the Court below should have held that Keshoraj and Jagannath had possessory title.

The question now for consideration is whether the lower Appellate Court was justified in granting permission under r. 1 of O. XXIII on account of these alleged defects. It is contended that it acted with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction by granting this permission, and that it failed to apply its mind properly to the provisions of O. XXIII, r. 1. It is clear that the defects alleged cannot properly be described as formal defects. If they are defects at all they are material defects. It has been argued that the lower Appellate Court might have been justified in granting permission on other grounds. But the order of the Civil Judge does not show that he took any other grounds into consideration. The application of October 8, 1937, indicates that the application was made in view of certain defects, and the Civil Judge apparently had these in mind when he spoke of "formal defects". He did not, however, say that he was satisfied that the suit must fail on this account.

It is clear from the first alleged defect that the plaintiffs wished to put forward an alternative case and clearly this defect was not of a formal nature. Nor was the omission to implead other parties. And it has been held both by the Bombay High Court and by this Court that the failure to produce documents at the proper time is not a sufficient ground within the meaning of r. 1 of O XXIII. For such defects the plaintiffs themselves were wholly responsible. It is not suggested that subsequent to the institution of the suit there was a discovery of any facts which rendered the suit defective.

It appears to me, therefore, that the Civil Judge must be held to have acted with material irregularity in permitting the plaintiffs to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh. I treat the appeal as an application in revision and allow it with costs, set aside the order of the lower Appellate Court and direct that the first appeal be disposed of by the Civil Judge according to law. The plaintiffs will be at liberty to press their application for admission of additional documentary evidence, on which no order has yet been passed, but I do not express any opinion on the question whether it should be allowed or not.

S. Application allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT

Civil Revision Petition No. 656 of 1939

August 19, 1940

WADSWORTH AND PATANJALI SASTRI, JJ.

V. S. SINGARACHARIAR—PETITIONER

versus

PAPPATHI AMMAL—RESPONDENT

Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act (IV of 1938), s. 3 (ii)—Holder of vendor's lien in land, if agriculturist.

The holder of a vendor's lien in agricultural land is qualified to be an agriculturist.

C. R. P. to revise order of the District Munsif, Trichinopoly, dated December 14, 1938

Messrs. K. S. Desikan and K. Raman, for the Petitioner.

Messrs. C. S. Rama Rao Sahib and A. Sundaram Ayyar, for the Respondent.

Order.—In view of our decision in C. R. P. No. 513 of 1939 Subburamiar v. Venkatachalapathi (1). that a simple mortgagee of agricultural land has a saleable interest therein sufficient to satisfy s. 3 (ii) (a), Mad. Act IV of 1938, it would seem to follow that the holder of a vendor's lien in agricultural land is equally qualified to be an agriculturist. But the trial Court has not gone fully into the question whether in fact the lien subsists. The transferee did not admit his liability to pay to his transferor, as the learned Judge seems to think, but to the plaintiff—the holder of the incumbrance over the right transferred. Whether or not the vendor's lien subsists will, in our opinion, depend largely on the circumstances of the transfer—for instance, if the transferee has the right to hold the unpaid money for the protection of his own interest against the incumbrances, there can hardly be a debt due to the transferor in respect of which the lien may be said to subsist. But this question can best be investigated by the trial Court in disposing of the pending application under s. 19. With these observations, the petition is dismissed with costs.

N.-S. Petition dismissed.

(1) A I R 1940 Mad. 941; 192 Ind Cas 100; (1940) 2 M L J 516; 52 L W 480; (1940) M W N 1006; 13 R M 534.

END OF VOLUME 193.

GENERAL INDEX

VOLUME 193—1941

REPORTS SECTION.

Abatement—Appeal. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 4 1

Accomplice. See Criminal trial 342
——— See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 114 (b) 878

Acknowledgment. See Muhammadan Law 161

Acts—General.

Act 1860—XLV. See Penal Code.
—— 1867—XXII. See Sarais Act.
—— 1869—IV. See Divorce Act.
—— 1870—VII. See Court Fees Act.
—— 1872—I. See Evidence Act.
—— 1872—IX See Contract Act.
—— 1873—X. See Oaths Act.
—— 1881—XXVI. See Negotiable Instruments Act.
—— 1882—II. See Trusts Act.
—— 1882—IV. See Transfer of Property Act.
—— 1882—XV. See Presidency Small Cause Courts Act.
—— 1887—I. See Specific Relief Act.
—— 1887—VII. See Suits Valuation Act.
—— 1887—IX See Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.
—— 1894—I. See Land Acquisition Act.
—— 1898—V. See Criminal Procedure Code.
—— 1899—II. See Stamp Act.
—— 1899—IX. See Arbitration Act.
—— 1908—V. See Civil Procedure Code.
—— 1908—IX. See Limitation Act.
—— 1908—XVI. See Registration Act.
—— 1909—III. See Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.
—— 1909—IV. See Whipping Act.
—— 1910—IX. See Electricity Act.
—— 1912—II. See Co-operative Societies Act.
—— 1913—II. See Official Trustees Act.
—— 1913—IV. See Mussalman Waqf Validating Act.
—— 1913—VII. See Companies Act.
—— 1914—VIII. See Motor Vehicles Act.
—— 1918—X. See Usurious Loans Act.
—— 1920—V. See Provincial Insolvency Act.
—— 1920—X. See Government Securities Act.
—— 1922—XI. See Income Tax Act.
—— 1923—VIII. See Workmen's Compensation Act.
—— 1925—XXXIX. See Succession Act.
—— 1932—IX. See Partnership Act.
—— 1933—XXII. See Marumakkattayam Act.
—— 1939—IV. See Motor Vehicles Act.
—— 1939—VII. See Money Lenders Act.
—— 1939—VIII. See Dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act.
—— 1939—XVIII. See Stayed Arrears of Rent (Remission) Act.

Acts—Bengal.

Act 1885—VIII. See Bengal Tenancy Act.
—— 1913—III. See Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act.
—— 1923—III. See Calcutta Municipal Act.
—— 1933—XXIII. See Murshidabad Estates Administration Act.
—— 1936—VII. See Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act.

Acts—Bihar.

—— 1885—VIII. See Bihar Tenancy Act.
—— 1938—III. See Bihar Money-lenders Act
—— 1939—VII. See Bihar Money-lenders' (Regulation of Transactions) Act.

Acts—Bihar and Orissa.

—— 1908—VI. See Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.
—— 1922—III. See Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act.
—— 1935—VI. See Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act.

Act—Bombay.

—— 1923—VI. See Bombay Local Boards Act.

Acts—Burma.

—— 1876—II. See Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act.
—— 1898—XIII. See Burma Laws Act.
—— 1922—VI. See Rangoon City Municipal Act.
—— 1922—XI. See Burma Courts Act.
—— 1935 See Government of Burma Act.

Acts—C. P.

—— 1917—II. See C. P. Land Revenue Act.
—— 1920—IV. See C. P. Local Self-Government Act.
—— 1920—V. See C. P. Village Panchayat Act.
—— 1922—II. See C. P. Municipalities Act.
—— 1931—XI. See C. P. Amendment Act.

Acts—Madras.

—— 1886—I. See Madras Abkari Act.
—— 1919—IV. See Madras City Municipal Act
—— 1920—V. See Madras District Municipalities Act
—— 1920—XIV. See Madras Local Boards Act
—— 1923—VIII. See Madras Survey and Boundaries Act.
—— 1927—II. See Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act
—— 1932—VI. See Madras Co-operative Societies Act.
—— 1936—XI. See Madras Debt Conciliation Act.
—— 1938—IV. See Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act

Acts.-N. W. F. P.

—— 1935—VI SEE N. W. F. P. MUSLIM PERSONAL LAW (SHARIAT) APPLICATION ACT
—— 1939—IV SEE N.-W. F. P. AGRICULTURISTS DEBTORS ACT

Acts—Punjab

—— 1902—I. SEE SIND SAGAR DOAB COLONISATION ACT.
—— 1903—II. SEE PUNJAB COURT OF WARDS ACT.
—— 1911—III. SEE PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1934—VII. SEE PUNJAB RELIEF OF INDEBTEDNESS ACT.

Act—U. P.

—— 1886—XXII. SEE OUDH RENT ACT.
—— 1901—III. SEE U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
—— 1916—II. SEE U. P. MUNICIPALITIES ACT.
—— 1920—VII. SEE AGRA ESTATES ACT.
—— 1926—III. SEE AGRA TENANCY ACT.
—— 1934—XXV. SEE U. P. ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT.
—— 1934—XXVII. SEE U. P. AGRICULTURISTS' RELIEF ACT.
—— 1937—IV. SEE U. P. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS (REVENUE COURTS) ACT.

Regulations.

Reg. 1825—XI. SEE BENGAL ALLUVION AND DILUVION REGULATION.
—— 1889—III. SEE UPPER BURMA LAND AND REVENUE REGULATION.

Statute.

Stat. 1935—(25 & 26 GEO. V, CH. 42). SEE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.

Administration bond—Nature of. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, Art 68 225

Administration suit—Co-sharers—Partition—One heir mortgaging his undivided share in entire joint estate, during pendency of suit—Subsequent partition—Other heirs, if take their allotted share free from encumbrance—Lis pendens.

Where one of two or more co-sharers mortgages his undivided share in some of the properties held jointly, the mortgagee takes the security subject to the right of the other co-sharers to enforce a partition and thereby to convert what was an undivided share of the whole into a defined portion held in severalty. Where, therefore, in the course of an administration suit for partition one of the heirs mortgages his undivided share in the whole of the joint estate, the other heirs take the allotted properties, in the absence of fraud, free from the mortgage, irrespective of the doctrine of lis pendens and the mortgagee can proceed only against the properties allotted to the mortgagor in substitution for his undivided share. DAW S. IN v. ARJANDAS Rang. 294

Adoption. SEE Burmese Buddhist Law 507
—— SEE Custom (Punjab) 522
—— SEE Hindu Law 298, 413

Adverse possession—Minor—Possession against, when becomes adverse.

Possession against minor does not become adverse until he attains majority. LALIT KUMAR DAS CHAUDHURY v. NOGENDRA LAL DAS Cal. 168

—— Mortgage—Property burdened with simple mortgage—Stranger entering into adverse possession—His adverse possession against mortgagee, when commences.

If a stranger enters into adverse possession of property burdened with a simple mortgage, then he only prescribes for the interest of the person entitled to immediate possession, that is to say, of the mortgagor. All that the mortgagor has is the right to redeem. Therefore all that the stranger gets is the right to redeem. He does not get a full title to the property, and as for the mortgagee, his right to possession does not accrue until he has obtained his decree for foreclosure, or in the case of sale, until he has purchased (if he happens to be the purchaser); therefore, adverse possession as against him does not commence until that date. UMAR HAJI KARIM v. BADRIDAS RAMRAI Nag. 306 —— Stranger entering subsequent to mortgage—Foreclosure suit without joining trespasser as party—Rights of trespasser and mortgagee—Procedure to be followed.

The mortgagee is not affected by anything done behind his back after his mortgage; therefore he is entitled to foreclose his mortgagor, (or bring the property to sale), without joining subsequent purchasers of the right to redeem, (or those in a lesser position such as trespassers whose title had not yet ripened), and by so doing he acquires substantial rights. On the other hand the purchaser of the mortgagor's rights, or the trespasser who has, or is on the way to ousting him and acquiring his rights, is also not without rights: and he is clearly not affected by a litigation to which he was not a party. The only way to do justice between these two conflicting rights is to adjust the equities. They are best adjusted by affording the purchaser, or the trespasser, (as the case may be), an opportunity to redeem that portion of the property in which he is interested on paying a proportionate part of the mortgage money. UMAR HAJI KARIM v. BADRIDAS RAMRAI Nag. 306

Age. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 35 419

Agra Estates Act (VII of 1920), Sch. II—Suit claiming maintenance against estate—Plea that estate was governed by Act and that plaintiff was not entitled to maintenance at rate higher than as provided in Sch II, not raised in trial Court—If can be raised in appeal.

Where in a suit claiming maintenance against an estate the defendant has not raised a plea that as the estate was governed by the Agra Estates Act and that the plaintiff under no circumstances was entitled to maintenance at a rate higher than Rs. 50 a month as provided in Sch. II, Estates Act, he cannot be allowed to raise such a plea in appeal if it results in a serious prejudice to the plaintiff. JAMUNA KUNWAR v. ARJUN SINGH All. 27

Agra Tenancy Act (III of 1926), s. 264. SEE Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, s. 271 All. 17 F B

—— s. 271—Issue submitted to Civil Court under s. 271—Application to Civil Court to refer issue to arbitration—Sch. II, Civil Procedure Code, if applies to such application.

The provisions of Sch. II, Civil P. C., clearly apply to applications in a suit. An application made to the Civil Court to whom the issue of proprietary title had been referred under s. 271 Agra Ten. Act praying that the issue be referred to Arbitration is an application in a suit and hence governed by Sch. II, Civil P. C. MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All. 17 F B

—— s. 271—Reference to Civil Court under s. 271 whether delegation of authority by Revenue Court—Revenue Court, if competent to pass decree on basis of Civil Court's judgment.

There is no delegation by the revenue Court under s. 271, Agra Ten. Act. The provisions in regard to reference of an issue to the Civil Court are mandatory The revenue Court has no discretion in the matter. In so far as this issue is concerned, the Civil Court is a Court of original jurisdiction, and in disposing of the issue that Court is not exercising an authority delegated by the Revenue Court. The Civil Court is in fact seised of the suit in which the issue referred to it under s. 271 arises and is therefore competent to refer the issue to arbitration under Sch. II, Civil P. C.

Agra Tenancy Act—concld.

Para. 16 (2) of Sch. II, Civil P. C., does not provide that the decree which is to follow upon the judgment must be the decree of the Court which granted the application to refer an issue to arbitration. Hence the Revenue Court is competent to pass a decree on the finding of the Civil Court on an issue submitted to it under s. 271 even though the finding is based on an award in arbitration. MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All. 17 F B

——— s. 271—S. 271, if requires personal decision by Court—Reference by Civil Court to arbitration—Decision based on award is decision of Court.

There is nothing in s. 271, Agra Ten. Act from which it can be inferred that the Legislature intended that the decision of the Civil Court should not proceed upon an arbitration award. Where there has been a reference to arbitration and the award has been accepted, the decision in the suit is the decision of the Court, notwithstanding the fact that the Judge himself is not the person who has decided the question in issue between the parties. The provisions of O. XX, Civil P. C., governing the delivery of judgments and the granting of decrees, etc. relate, just as clearly as s. 274, Agra Ten. Act, to judgments and decrees of the Court. The provisions of Sch. II, of the Code however are without doubt applicable to proceedings in the Courts and decisions based upon arbitration awards are decisions of the Courts. MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All. 17 F B ——— ss. 271, 264—Sch. II, Civil Procedure Code applies to proceedings under s. 271 in Civil Court by virtue of s. 141, Civil Procedure Code—Reference by Civil Court to arbitration, of issue referred to it under s. 271—Finding based on such award, validity—Reference to arbitration, if inconsistent with s. 271 within meaning of s. 264.

Section 141, Civil P. C., applies to all proceedings in any Court of civil jurisdiction and is not restricted to original proceedings. The proceedings in the Civil Court after the record has been sent to that Court by the revenue Court in accordance with s. 271, Agra Ten. Act, are undoubtedly proceedings in a Court of civil jurisdiction. Hence Sch. II, Civil P. C., applies to such proceedings by virtue of s. 141. Consequently the Civil Court has jurisdiction to refer the issue submitted to him under s 271, Agra Ten. Act, to arbitration and the finding based upon the award in the arbitration is a valid finding and the decree of the Revenue Court based upon such finding is perfectly legal. Reference to arbitration by the Civil Court of the issue submitted to it under s. 271 is not inconsistent with s 271, within the meaning of s. 264. MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All 17 F B

Alluvion and Diluvion—Accretion—Long possession—Inference as to title—Whether proof that title rested on reformation in situ and not on accretion.

Long possession would raise the inference of title to possession, but it would afford no basis for the further inference that that title rested on reformation in situ and not on accretion. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

Alluvion and Diluvion—concld.

——— Reformation in situ—Zamindar's admission in road cess return that certain land is reformation in situ lands comprised in his touzi, if conclusive as to nature of that land—Admission made with view to avoid assessment to further tax—Effect of admission.

Where a zemindar makes an admission in the road cess return that a certain land is reformation in situ of lands comprised in his touzi, the admission is almost conclusive as to the nature of that land. It has great weight unless neither explained away or shown to be wrong, but the weight of the admission is nullified, where it is proved that it was made with a view to avoid assessment to further cess. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578 Amendment.

SEE Mortgage 748
SEE Pleadings 193, 372 F B

Appeal—Abatement. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 4 1

——— Evidence—Additional evidence, when can be allowed. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O XLII, r. 27 (1) 129

——— Evidence—Question as to which set of witnesses to be believed—Finding of trial Court on question, value of.

Where the only question is, which set of witnesses is to be believed the findings of the trial Judge should not be lightly regarded on a mere calculation of probabilities by the Court of Appeal. RAJNANDINI v ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82 ——— Evidence—Question of fact depending on reliance to be placed on testimony of witnesses—Findings of trial Court, value of.

In a case involving a question of fact the decision of which depends on the reliance to be placed on the testimony of witnesses, the view of the Judge who tried the case and saw the witnesses is entitled to great weight. RAJNANDINI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82

——— Letters Patent—Finding of fact impugned by High Court in Letters Patent or second Appellate Court—It is not enough for High Court to say that it is not satisfied that matters of fact were proved—It must be satisfied that there was no sufficient evidence—Soundness of conclusions derived from findings of fact—High Court in Letters Patent Appeal, if can adjudicate upon—Finding of fact arrived at on evidence, interference with.

While considering a finding of fact arrived by the lower Appellate Court, it is necessary for the High Court in Letters Patent Appeal to distinguish between evidence which would be sufficient and evidence which the High Court itself might think satisfactory. It is not allowable for the High Court in second appeal, or in Letters Patent appeal to say merely that it is not satisfied that matters of fact were proved, within the meaning of s 3, Evi. Act; it should have to go further, in order to impugn the finding of fact of the first Appellate Court and say that there was no sufficient evidence. The High Court can adjudicate on the soundness of conclusions which have been derived from findings of fact On the other hand, if there is evidence upon which a finding of fact has been arrived at which could have been arrived at with propriety, function of the High Appeal—concld.

Court is at an end. DEOKALI PATTAH v. RAMDEVI Rang. 286

——— Letters Patent—Principles governing grant of leave, stated.

There are, at any rate, four cases in which leave to appeal under the Letters Patent should be given. First, in a case in which a question has arisen which is of general importance. In such case as that it is manifestly, in the public interest that a more authoritative decision should be given than is possible at the hands of a single Judge. And to this head might be added a case in which the matter involved is of altogether unusual private importance, either by reason of the magnitude of the material issues involved or for some other reason. Secondly, there are cases in which a question arises of very frequent occurrence. Such a case might arise where, on some new statute a point arises which will govern the rights and liabilities of a large number of people. An authoritative decision in a case like that is necessary to serve as a precedent for future cases. And, thirdly, there are those cases in which the existing authorities by which the Court is to be guided are either obscure or conflicting. In such a case as that it is to the public interest that all doubts should be dissolved and for that reason it is obviously proper to grant leave to appeal under the Letters Patent There is then a further case which arises and it is one in which greater difficulty arises. It is the case in which the Judge himself who decides the case feels a reasonable doubt as to the correctness of his own decision and thinks that for that reason it is just to the parties that a further appeal should be allowed. But it is a ground which should, be exercised with considerable care and in a proper case only and leave to appeal should not be granted too lightly. KALYAN DAS v. BRIJ KISHORE All. 495

Arbitration—Held on fact that Bank could not repudiate Pleader's authority to refer dispute to arbitration and that it was bound by the award

The local agent of the Bank had undoubtedly authority to engage a Pleader and to deliver a vakalatnama on behalf of the Bank. It was on the vakalatnama so delivered that the suit had been instituted in the name of the Bank. That vakalatnama contained a power given to the Pleader to enter into arbitration on behalf of the Bank. The Pleader himself moved the application for reference to arbitration and participated in the arbitration proceedings on behalf of the Bank :

Held, that the vakalatnama was not the vakalatnama of the agent but the vakalatnama of the Bank itself. The Bank was bound by the terms of that vakalatnama and although the agent might not have the power from the Bank to refer the matters in dispute to arbitration, the Pleader, on the basis of that vakalatnama had authority to apply for referring the matter to arbitration. Where the award was against the Bank, the Bank was not entitled to repudiate the authority of the Pleader for the purpose of nullifying the proceedings EAST BENGAL BANK, LTD. v. JOGESH CHANDRA BANERJEE Cal. 553 ——— Parties to reference and arbitrators aware of subject-matter of reference—Award made with respect to such subject-matter—Objection that application for reference did not specify matter of reference, if can be raised in second appeal.

Where in a case of a reference to arbitration by the Court, the parties as well as the arbitrators are well aware of the subject-matter of the reference and the arbitrators have passed an award with respect to that matter, an objection that the actual application for a reference to arbitration did not specify the matter to be arbitrated upon cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time is second appeal MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All. 17 F B

Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), applicability of. SEE Companies Act, 1913, s 152 553

——— s. 19—By contract in writing defendants selling certain goods of Japanese manufacture to plaintiff—After shipment of part of goods defendants asking for extension of time for shipping remaining goods due to outbreak of war—Plaintiff not accepting request—Defendant under terms of contract cancelling it and repudiating liability for damages—Plaintiff's suit for damages—Defendant relying on arbitration clause in contract applying for stay—Defendant held could apply for stay but held that under special circumstances it could not be granted.

Under a contract in writing the defendants sold certain piecegoods of Japanese manufacture to the plaintiff A part of the goods were shipped and accepted by the plaintiffs. Thereafter the defendants requested the plaintiff for an extension of time for shipping the rest of the goods due to outbreak of war. The plaintiff did not accept the request. The defendants thereupon informed the plaintiff that the contract stood cancelled as per terms of the contract and also repudiated his liability to pay any damages. The plaintiff instituted a suit for damages. Relying on the arbitration clause contained in the contract, the defendants applied for stay of suit under s. 19, Arbitration Act. It was contended on behalf of the plaintiff, that the defendant could not take up the position of cancelling the contract and at the same time invoke the arbitration clause in the contract:

Held, that by using the word "cancellation," the defendants meant no more than that owing to the events which had happened, they had been relieved of their liability to deliver the goods. They did not mean that the contract had come to an end for all purposes, as when a contract is rendered void by frustration. The defendants were not therefore deprived of their right to apply for, and obtain, an order for stay.

Held, also that one of the questions which the tribunal dealing with his matter would have to decide was whether the state of things then existing in the Far East was war within the meaning of the contract. It was by no means a simple question of law and was most unsuited for decision by laymen. Under the terms of the contract the defendants were entitled to have the matter referred to the decision of two Japanese merchants. If the defendants were to take that course, the decision would cause considerable embarrassment to the parties responsible for it. That was a special circumstance in this case which must be taken into consideration. Having regard therefore to the nature of this dispute, and to the terms of this particular arbitration clause, the Court ought to exercise its discretion against the defendants. TULARAM CHAMPALAL v. JEWANRAM GANGARAM Cal. 126

——— s. 19—Proceeding within the meaning of s. 19, when commences—Defendant supplied with copy of plaint—Grant of time by Court for filing written statement, whether step taken by defendant in proceedings.

Arbitration Act—concld.

Having regard to the provisions of O. V, r 2, Civil P C, the proceedings cannot be said to have commenced within the meaning of s. 19, Arbitration Act until the defendant has been supplied with a copy of the plaint. The fixing of time by the Court for filing a written statement when the defendant has been supplied with a copy of the plaint cannot, in any sense, be regarded as a step taken by the defendant in the proceedings inasmuch as time for filing written statement is necessarily given by the Court. PREM NATH-PRAN NATH v. AMBA PRASHAD Lah 167

Banker and customer—Money deposited with Bank by company as statutory obligation imposed by s. 282-B Companies Act (VII of 1913)—Liquidation of Bank Company, if entitled to priority over ordinary creditors.

The mere fact that the depositor is the trustee and the money deposited is trust money, does not affect the relation which the law creates between a Bank and an ordinary customer, namely, the relation of debtor and creditor. The legal effect of the notice to the Bank that the moneys deposited were trust moneys is only to cast a duty on the Bank not to participate in a breach of trust by the trustee. Consequently where money is deposited with the Bank by a company, as the result of the statutory obligation imposed upon the company by s 282-B (1), Companies Act, the company is not entitled to rank in the liquidation of the Bank in priority to the ordinary creditors. MANAGING DIRECTOR NAYAR MODERN BANK LTD. v. OFFICIAL LIQUIDATORS OF THE TRAVANCORE NATIONAL AND QUILON BANK LTD, Mad. 821

——Surety for customer for payments, made to latter under chit fund—Bank, if bound to disclose to surety its affairs regarding indebtedness of constituent.

Where a bank calls upon its customer to furnish surety with regard to the payment made under a chit fund, as such payment cannot be distinguished from any other obligation, it is for the surety to interrogate the debtor on the question of his indebtedness. Under such circumstances that the bank is not compelled to break the confidence of its constituents and disclose its affairs to the surety in respect of the former's indebtedness. KRISHNASWAMI AYYAR v. TRAVANCORE NATIONAL BANK, LTD. Mad. 332

Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act (VII of 1936) s. 8. SEE Civil Procedure Code 1908, s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90 451

——ss. 8, 35, 34—Application under s. 8—Execution proceedings relating to debt included in application, if automatically stayed even if no notice under s. 34 is issued.

The intention of the Legislature was to provide that all proceedings for the execution of decrees for debts included in an application under s. 8 should be automatically stayed as soon as the application was filed before a Board. In view of the language of s. 35 of the Act it is impossible to hold that it could have been the intention of the Legislature that a judgment-debtor should be deprived of a valuable right which had been conferred upon him by the Act by reason merely of some carelessness on the part of the Board, which might result in failure to issue the required notice under s. 34. TAMIZALI v. MD. NASARALI BHUIYA Cal. 451 ——ss. 25 (1) (c), 27 (1)—Under s. 25 (1) (c), subject to s. 27 (1), Board can order usufructuary mortgagee to restore possession to mortgagor.

Under s. 25 (1) (c), Ben. Agri. Debtors Act, the Board has jurisdiction to give directions subject to the provision of s. 27 (1) as to the manner in which the sum for which the debt had been settled should be paid. The intention of the Legislature in enacting s 27 (1) was merely to specify the extent to which a mortgage will continue to subsist after an award has been made. Subject to the provisions of this section, the Board have full authority to modify the terms of the original mortgage upon which the loan had been advanced.

Board has, therefore, jurisdiction to order the usufructuary mortgagee to restore possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagor and thus convert the usufructuary mortgage into a simple mortgage. The amount at which the mortgage debt is settled would however continue to be a charge under s. 27 on the mortgaged property until the terms of the settlement have been fulfilled. FAZLUR RAHMAN SARKAR v. ATAL BEHARY GHOSH Cal. 254

——s. 27 (1) SEE Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act, 1936, s. 25 (1) (c) 254

——s. 34. SEE Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act, 1936, s. 8 451

——s. 35. SEE Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act, 1936, s. 8. 451

Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Regulation (XI of 1825), s. 4—Accretions of land to patni tenure, whether become increment thereto under s. 4—Possession of increment—Patnidar's right to—Absence of offer by patnidar to pay additional rent for increment cannot deprive him of right conferred by s. 4.

Accretions of land to a patni tenure become an increment to the tenure under s. 4, Ben. Alluvion and Diluvion Regulation. The patnidar has the right to possess those lands and the semindars, have no right to possess in khas. The absence of an offer by the patnidars to pay additional rent for the increment to their tenure cannot take away the rights conferred on them by s. 4. There can be no question of forfeiture where the patnidars have never denied that the lands were accretions. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (III of 1913), ss. 3 (1), 7—In execution of its mortgage decree plaintiff purchasing property—Plaintiff's name mutated in Collectorate records—Certificate, proceedings for recovery of cess in respect of aforesaid property—Notices under s. 7 served—Report to certificate officer that property had already been sold to plaintiff—Notices on recorded proprietors (including plaintiff) served—Plaintiff's name included in sale proclamation—Held, that the plaintiff's name was added within meaning of s. 3 (1) that consequently certificate sale was binding on plaintiff.

Certain property had been purchased by the plaintiff Bank in execution of its mortgage decree and obtained possession. Thereafter the plaintiff applied for mutation in the Collectorate records and the mutation was ordered. In the meantime a certificate had been filed against the former proprietors of this property in respect of arrears of cess. After notices under s 7, Public Demands Recovery Act, had been served on the persons against whom the certificate was filed a report was made to the certificate officer to the effect that the property had already been sold to the plaintiff Bank. The case again came before the certificate officer who stated that the names of two more recorded proprietors had been supplied to him and he directed that notices should issue against them. Subsequently the usual sale proclamation was issued under r. 46 of the rules in Sch II, to the Act, and admittedly this proclamation contained the plaintiff's name:

Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act—concld.

Held, that in a case of this sort, to nullify the effect of a certificate sale, a very heavy onus would lie on the plaintiff to show that there had been a non-compliance with the requisite formalities required under the Public Demands Recovery Act, and that the plaintiff's name had not been added within the meaning of s. 3 (1) of the Act Having regard to the circumstances it was clear in this case that the plaintiff Bank had not discharged this onus. As the plaintiff's name actually appeared in the sale proclamation there was also a presumption to the effect that this sale proclamation was drawn up after notice to the plaintiff as required under r. 46 (2) contained in Sch. II, to the Act. AMIYA BIKASH DATTA v. MOHALUXMI BANK LTD. Cal. 48

——ss. 5, 35, 37—Jurisdiction of certificate officer, whether depends upon situation of property in respect of which demand arises or upon place where money is payable or demandable.

Whether certificate officer is a Collector or a Sub-Divisional Officer or some officer appointed by the Collector under s 3 (3) of the Act, he is a certificate officer of the district and not of any local area in the district; and he exercises jurisdiction in the district as implied in s. 5 and not merely in some local area in the district. The certificate officer referred to in s. 5 is the certificate officer of the place where the public demand is payable; for it is there that it is a demand at all. The jurisdiction of the certificate officer under s 5 does not therefore depend upon the situation of the property in respect of which the demand arises, but upon the place where the money is demandable or payable. If this place is within the district where the certificate officer holds office, the certificate officer has jurisdiction to receive the requisition and to make a certificate. SECRETARY OF STATE v. SADEK REZA Cal. 807

——s. 7. SEE Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, s. 3 (1) 48

——ss. 35, 37, 5—Cancellation of certificate on ground that it is not duly filed or question whether certificate is duly filed, whether excluded from jurisdiction of Civil Court.

Per Narsing Rau, J.—Cancellation of certificate on ground that the certificate has not been "duly filed" is not beyond the jurisdiction of the Civil Court under s. 35, Ben. Public Demands Recovery Act, Similarly under s. 37 the question whether the certificate has been duly filed under the Act is not excluded from the purview of the Civil Court, therefore the Civil Court can go into this question by virtue of the general provision in s. 9, Civil P. C. SECRETARY OF STATE v. SADEK REZA Cal 803

——s. 37. SEE Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, s 35 807

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885 as amended in 1938) s. 26-C. SEE Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended 38, s. 26-F. 530

——s. 26-F—Co sharer tenants exercising right of re-purchase under s. 26-F, whether should make other co-sharers parties to proceeding.

There is no provision in the Ben. Ten Act, which makes it necessary that the co-sharer tenant who seeks to exercise his right of re-purchase under s 26-F, of the new Act should make the other co-sharers parties to the proceeding. The provision of s 188 cannot be attracted to the present s. 26-F and, as such the non-joinder of the other co-sharer tenants would not in any way make the proceeding defective. GOBARDHAN BAR v. GUNADHAR BAR Cal. 530 ——ss. 26-F and 26-C—Right of pre-emption when accrues, whether at date of registration or at date of execution of deed of transfer.

It is perfectly true that the Amending Act of 1938 is not retrospective in its operation. It does not take away or impair any vested right that accrued under the old section and the rights which it creates could arise only in respect of transfers taking place after it came into force.

But the rights of pre-emption under both the Amending Act and the old Act accrue only at the date of registration of the deed of transfer and not at the date of its execution. Hence no question of the Amending Act being retrospective can arise. Sections 26-F and 26-C as amended read with ss. 26-F and 26-C of the old Beng. Ten Act make it clear, that the provisions of the new Act would be applicable in respect of transfers which were registered after the new Act came into force, whereas the old Act would apply to the cases where the document of transfer was registered at a time when the old Act was still in operation. GOBARDHAN BAR v. GUNADHAR BAR Cal 530 ——ss. 26 F, 26-C—Right of re-purchase under s. 26-F and pre-emption under Muhammadan Law, compared and distinguished from Roman Law.

The right of Shafa as recognized by the Muhammadan Law as well as the right of re-purchase created by s 26-F, Ben. Ten. Act, are not rights of pre-emption in the sense in which they were used by the Roman lawyers Pre-emption, according to Roman Law, connoted an obligation on the part of the intending vendor to sell preferentially to the pre-emptor, if he offered as good conditions as any intending vendee. The right of purchase that is created by s. 26-F, Ben. Ten. Act, like the right of pre-emption under the Muhammadan Law, attaches an obligation to a particular status which binds the purchaser from the person obliged to hand over the property purchased to the obligee on receiving the price paid by him for it with or without additional compensation The obligation can only arise when the property passes from the original owner to the purchaser. Under s. 26-C, Ben. Ten. Act, the transfer can only be made by registered document and title cannot possibly pass to the transferee till registration is effected. GOBARDHAN BAR v. GUNADHAR BAR Cal. 530

——s. 51—Scope—Written lease—Presumption of terms, if can be drawn under s. 51.

There cannot be scope for any presumption under s. 51, Ben. Ten. Act, of the terms of a lease in a case where there is a written lease setting forth the terms. In such a case therefore the tenant proving the rent paid in the previous years is not entitled to the presumption that it is the rent payable. ATUL KRISHNA BOSE v ZAHED MONDAL Cal. 635

Bihar Money-lenders Act (III of 1938), s 2 (f) "Loan"—Debt in question held not "loan" within meaning of section.

The arrangement between the parties who were co-sharers was that any collection which were due from the tenants should be divided by the common patwari half and half. The patwari, instead of sending half the amount to one of them made over all the amount to the other who thereafter became liable to pay the same to the former not as a loan but on account of the fact that the other had received the money from the patwari on trust for or for the use of the former;

Bihar Money-lenders Act—contd.

Held, that the debt was not a "loan" within the meaning of s. 2 (f), Bihar Money lenders Act and, therefore, the Act had no application to the case. ADIT NARAYAN SINGH v. BINAPANI Pat. 110

——— s 11 - Order determining instalments, whether appealable.

A decision under s. 47, Civil P. C., is not a decree within the meaning of s. 2 (2) unless it in some way finally determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy. An order determining instalments under s. 11, Bihar Money-lender's Act is not an order which conclusively determines the rights of the parties and consequently no appeal lies from such an order. DHANUKDHARI SINGH v. RAMRATAN SINGH Pat. 670 ——— ss. 13, 14—Application under s. 13—Matters required by section determined—Sale under s. 14—Fresh proclamation is essential — Previous waiver before application under s. 13, if gives jurisdiction to hold sale under s. 14, without fresh proclamation.

Section 14, Bihar Money-lenders' Act, makes it clear that after the property has been valued or such portion of it as is sufficient to satisfy the decree, a sale proclamation of the actual property to be sold must be drawn up, and in it must be stated the value of the property as determined by the Court under s 13. Whatever has happened earlier, once an application is made under s. 13, a fresh sale proclamation must be drawn up under s. 14 after the property actually to be sold has been decided upon and its value fixed. The waiver of a fresh sale proclamation in the earlier stages of the case, before an application under s. 13 was put in, cannot possibly be construed as a waiver of an entirely new sale proclamation which s 14 of the Act requires the sale without the issue of a new sale proclamation containing the matters set out in s 14, is without jurisdiction and must be set aside. GUNJARI MAHATANI v. NIL KAMAL PANDE Pat. 176

——— s 14. SEE Bihar Money-lenders' Act, 1938, s. 13 176

——— s. 15—Bihar Money-lenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act (VII of 1939), s. 11—Compromise decree under execution—Court's jurisdiction to decide whether judgment-debtor should be allowed to pay decree by instalments.

The judgment-debtor's application under the Bihar Money-lenders Act to be allowed to pay a compromise decree, obtained on August 12, 1936, by instalments was dismissed. The appeal was dismissed by the District Judge on the ground that after the passing of the decree under execution the lower Court had no power to allow the payment of the decretal amount by instalments:

Held, that whether judging by the old s. 15 of Act III of 1938 which was in force at the time the Subordinate Judge made his order, or by the present s. 11 of Act VII of 1939 which was in force on May 1, 1939, the date of the order passed by the District Judge, the Judge was wrong in coming to the conclusion that he had no jurisdiction to enter into the question whether the judgment-debtor should be relieved to the extent of being allowed to pay the decree by instalments JUGESHWARI PRASAD v. KAMALA PRASAD Pat. 224

——— s 16—Act coming into force before the conclusion of sale—No objection under s. 16 taken —Sale held—Objection under s 16 in application under O. XXI, r. 90, Civil Procedure Code cannot be allowed subsequently—Application under r. 90 *dismissed by lower Court—In appeal against dismissal objection under s.*16 cannot be allowed.

Bihar Money-lenders Act—concld.

Where before the sale was concluded, the Bihar Money lenders Act had come in force, and the Court could be asked to value, the property under s. 16 of the Act, but the Court was never asked to value, and no objection whatsoever was taken to the sale proceeding on the old proclamation of sale this point cannot be put forward before the Court because it was a ground that could have been put forward before the sale was concluded and therefore, not a ground which could be urged even for the admission of the application under O. XXI, r. 90. If the lower Court could not admit the judgment-debtor's application under O. XXI, r. 90, Civil P. C. on this allegation, he cannot raise it in appeal before the High Court CHANDRA SEKHAR DAR MISRA v. BHAGWAN DAS Pat. 124

Bihar Money-lenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act (VII of 1939), ss. 6, 8—Compound interest—Loan advanced before commencement of Act—Discretion of Court under s. 8 in respect of such interest—Discretion how to be exercised.

The Bihar Money-lender's Act which was intended to afford relief to the debtors prohibits compound interest only on loan advanced after the commencement of the Act (s. 6). There is no such prohibition with regard to loans advanced before the commencement of the Act. Section 8 of the Act, however, gives a discretion to the Court, in case of loan advanced before the commencement of the Act. Section 8 does not lay down any conditions under which the Court may exercise its powers but gives a wide discretion This discretion, however, cannot be exercised arbitrarily. MADHO PRASAD SINGH v. MUKUTDHARI SINGH Pat. 661

——— s 7—S. 7, concluding portion, construction of — Words "the loan", meaning of — Bond executed for past liability—Amount for which bond is executed, whether 'the amount of loan.'

The concluding portion of s 7, Bihar Money-lenders Act, 1939, makes it quite clear that two classes of cases are contemplated, (1) loan advanced and (2) loan based on a document. If the section was meant to limit the amount of interest in all cases to "the amount of loan advanced", the subsequent words "or, if the loan is based on a document the amount of loan mentioned in, or evidenced by such document" would be superfluous. The words 'the loan" in the passage 'if the loan is based on a document" mean with reference to the previous context, the loan in respect of which the suit is brought; and the word "loan" here must be understood as defined in s. 2, cl. (f). Clearly therefore, a bond executed for past liability constitutes a loan within the meaning of the Act. In the case of such a bond the amount for which it is executed is "the amount of loan" within the meaning of s. 7 of the Act No doubt the expression "the amount of loan mentioned in, or evidenced by such document" may suggest that to determine the amount of loan one must not go behind the document. But it could never have been the intention of the Legislature, while enacting s. 7, to override the provisions of the Contract Act or the Evi. Act. MADHO PRASAD SINGH v. MUKUTDHARI SINGH Pat 661

——— s. 8 SEE Bihar Money-lenders Act, 1939, s. 6. 661

——— s. 7. SEE Bihar Moneylenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act, 1939, s. 8 561

——— ss. 7, 9—S. 7 governs all provisions of Act.

The scheme of the Act is perfectly clear and shows that the provisions of s. 7 govern all the provisions of this Act, that is to say, in no case can a Court pass a decree for an amount of interest greater than the amount of the principal less any sum which has been paid or recovered on account of interest for the period preceding the institution of the suit. HANUMAN SINGH v. GAYA SINGH Pat. 381

Bihar Money-lenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act—contd.

——— ss. 8, 7—Mortgage for Rs. 960 at Re. 1-4-0 interest per mensem in 1928—Rs. 203 only paid in cash, balance set-off against previous mortgage of 1925 for Rs 486—Payment by mortgagor of Rs. 100 in 1929 and Rs. 800 in 1934 appropriated towards interest—Suit on mortgage—Payment appropriated towards interest held could not be used to reduce principal under s. 8—Mortgagee held entitled to decree for Rs. 689 only, which was total of advances made in 1925 and 1928—Plaintiff held not entitled to claim any further interest in suit.

The Bihar Money-lenders Act, was enacted for the protection of such debtors as needed some relief on account of their property or inability to pay their debts. That may be the reason why proviso to s. 8 excludes rom the operation of s. 8 such debtors as were able to pay their interest at the agreed rate and had already paid it.

The plaintiff brought a suit on the basis of a mortgage bond, executed by the defendant on August 11, 1928, to secure a loan of Rs. 960 which was to bear interest at the rate of Re. 1-4-0 per cent. per mensem, with yearly rests. Out of the sum of Rs. 960 a sum of Rs. 203 only was paid in cash and the balance was set-off against a previous debt which was due to the plaintiff under a mortgage bond executed in 1925 for a sum of Rs. 486. Sum of Rs. 100 had been paid by the defendant towards the dues under the bond in suit on June 25, 1929, and a further sum of Rs. 800 had been paid by him on September 30, 1934. The plaintiff, after giving credit as to these two amounts, claimed that a sum of Rs. 2,100 was still due to him;

Held, that as on the dates on which the sums of Rs. 100 and Rs. 800 respectively were paid by the defendant, the Bihar Money-lenders Act, was not in operation the creditor was entitled to charge interest at the bond rate on that date and the interest which was due to him on those dates was far in excess of the amounts actually paid. Under the law the creditor was entitled to appropriate these payments towards interest and after the appropriation had been made those amounts could not be used to reduce the principal under s. 8 according to the proviso to s. 8 of the Bihar Money-lenders Act The plaintiff was therefore entitled to a decree for a sum of Rs. 689 which was the total of the principal sums which were advanced by him 1925 and 1928 respectively. If interest was calculated at the rate of nine per cent. per annum. as it should be under s. 8 of the Act, the amount which was payable as interest on the total principal sums advanced by the plaintiff was much less than the sum of Rs 900 which had already been paid towards interest. That being so, the plaintiff was not entitled to claim any further interest in the suit. Section 7 of the Act was not applicable to the case JAGATMAYA KUMRI v. RAM BAHADUR PRASAD Pat. 561

——— s. 9—Concluding sentence of s. 9, meaning explained.

The concluding sentence of s. 9 means that where the Court has exercised the discretion under s 8 and reduced the rate of interest to 9 per cent, thereby relieving the debtor of all liability in respect of interest in excess of 9 per cent. per annum simple in the case of a secured loan or in excess of 12 per cent. per annum simple in the case of an unsecured loan, and if the limit provided by s 7 has not been reached and there is still an excess out of the amount left in deposit with the transferee of the equity of redemption then the mortgagee shall be entitled to recover that excess in addition to the amount which he may otherwise be entitled to recover, but always within the limit fixed by s. 7. HANUMAN SINGH v. GAYA SINGH Pat. 381 ——— ss. 9, 8—Court not exercising discretion under s. 8—S. 9, if comes into operation.

Section 9 only comes into operation where the Court exercises the discretion vested in it by s. 8. When the Court does not choose to re-open the transaction the provisions of s. 9 will never come into operation. HANUMAN SINGH v. GAYA SINGH Pat. 381

——— s. 11. SEE Bihar Money-lenders Act, 1938, s. 15 224

Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act (VI of 1935), ss. 44 (3) (a), 57 (2)—Award by Registrar—Liquidator taking proceedings on award—Plaintiff aggrieved—Suit by him without sanction of Registrar, maintainability.

Where the liquidator was empowered by s 44 (3) (a), Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act to take proceedings to execute the award, and the plaintiff, being aggrieved by the liquidator's action in taking such proceedings failed to apply to the Registrar to interfere with the liquidator's act or to grant leave for the institution of a suit under s. 57 (2) and he instituted a suit without asking the Registrar to exercise his powers of revision or to grant leave for the institution of the suit :

Held, that the suit must fail in the absence of the Registrar's sanction for its institution. LIQUIDATOR, NAWADAH BAZAR CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY v. DOMI RAM CHAUDHARY Pat. 142

Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act (III of 1922), ss. 53 (2) (b), 76—Sub-Divisional Magistrate, if can stay proceedings of Panchayat.

The only provision in the Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act enabling a Sub Divisional Magistrate to interfere with the proceeding of a Panchayat in criminal case, while the case is pending, is s. 53 (2) (b), which enables either the Sub-Divisional Magistrate or the District Magistrate to transfer the case. There is no other provision in the Act which enables a Sub-Divisional Magistrate to interfere with the proceedings of a Panchayat either by stay or otherwise. GONI MAHTON v EMPEROR Pat 491

——— s. 76—S. 345 (6), Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), applicability of, to Panchayat—Panchayat, whether bound to accept compromise entered into by parties.

Section 345 (6), Criminal P. C., does not apply to a Panchayat. Section 76, Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act is merely an enabling section and it does not mean that a Panchayat is bound to accept a compromise entered into by the parties. Where one of the parties resiles from the compromise it is clearly a proper case in which the Panchayat should not act on it. GONI MAHTON v. EMPEROR Pat. 491

Bihar Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 65—Mortgage suit—Defendant claiming priority being purchaser in execution of rent decree under s. 65—Mortgagor challenging—Objection of defendant not upheld on ground that he failed to get encumbrance annulled within time under s 167—Mortgage decree passed—Execution taken out—Defendant raising same objection that property can only be sold subject to his prior charge—Held, that though decision in suit was wrong, the objection could not be raised in execution.

Mortgagees instituted a suit for the sale of mortgaged property to realise their dues under the mortgage. One of the defendants, i. e., defendant No. 2 was also a purchaser in execution of a decree passed in a rent suit. The mortgagor plaintiff distinctly challenged the priority of defendant No. 2 by alleging that the latter's purchase was not in execution of a rent decree but of a money decree. Defendant No. 2 did take up the challenge and claimed priority conferred by s. 65, Bihar Ten. Act on the ground that the decree in execution of which he purchased was a rent decree, and he further alleged that he had taken steps under s. 167 of the Bihar Ten. Act to annul the plaintiff's encumbrances. Although the Court found that the decree in execution of which the defendant purchased was a rent decree it held that as the defendant had not annulled the mortgage encumbrances within a statutory period prescribed by the Ten. Act his holding was subject to the plaintiff's mortgage and accordingly the plaintiff was entitled to a mortgage decree against both the defendants. In the result a decree was passed directing the sale of the mortgaged property. When the decree-holders applied to execute this decree defendant) No. 2 raised an objection that the mortgaged property could be sold only subject to his prior charge:

Held, that the mere fact that a purchaser in execution of a rent decree had not availed himself of his statutory right to annul the encumbrances did not, in any way, affect the priority conferred on him by s. 65 of the Act.

Held, however, that the defendant No. 2 sought in the litigation which resulted in this decree (the fact that it was a wrong decision being irrelevant) to establish his priority and had failed to do so and that being the case he could not be allowed subsequenly to reagitate that question in the proceedings in execution of the decree. CENTRAL CO-OPERATIVE BANK v. KASHI SAHU Pat. 108

Bombay High Court (Original Side) Rules, rr. 534, 895—Discretion of Judge to direct taxation under r. 534—Dispute as to fact or terms of employment of solicitor, order of taxation, if can be refused—Client, whether can challenge his liability to pay under r. 895—Work done in mofussil—Bill can be taxed on original side—Work done on appellate side cannot be so taxed.

A Judge has discretion to direct attorneys' bills to be taxed under r. 534 and where a bill is taxed, the attorney can apply by summary process for payment under r. 895. The taxation of a bill does not determine the liability of the client to pay, and he is entitled to challenge his liability on a summons under r. 895 after taxation has taken place. When an application is made ex parte for a common form order for taxation, the Court may direct the solicitor to issue a summons, and may hear what the client has to say in the matter. If the Court thinks that there is a serious dispute as to the fact or terms of employment of the solicitor, the Court may refuse to make an order for taxation and leave the attorney to file a suit; and in that suit the solicitor's right to recover can be first determined, and the amount to be recovered can be determined subsequently by taxation. The Taxing Master is entitled to tax the bill of costs in relation to work done in the mofussil, on the original side scale but costs incurred on the appellate side of the High Court cannot be so taxed. CHUNILAL & KANGA v. WAMANRAO S. MANTRI Bom. 449

Bombay High Court (Original Side) Rules—concld.

Bombay Local Boards Act (VI of 1923 as amended by Act XIII of 1935), s. 136 (2)—Sub-overseer and chairman of works committee of Local Board taking false measurements and fraudulently obtaining money from Local Board by tendering bill with false measurements sheet signed and countersigned by first and second accused respectively—Acts of accused held protected by s. 136, Local Boards Act and s. 197 Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898).

A sub overseer of the Local Board was, according to the rules of his employment, bound to supervise the works, to take measurements and to enter them in a measurement book maintained for the purpose and also to report to the District Local Board through the works committee, the progress of the works in his charge and their measurements for the purpose of making payment to the contractor. The sub-overseer was obliged to sign the bill in authentication of the measurements given in it and the charges made. The duties of the Chairman of the works committee were to take measurements and, in the absence of a completion certificate, countersign the bills of the contractor and see that the payment is made without undue delay. Accused No. 1 who was an overseer of a Local Board and accused No. 2 who was an elected member of that Board and Chairman of the works committee, were prosecuted for offences of cheating and falsification of accounts on the allegation that they had dishonestly taken false measurements of certain work of repairs on the Road under their charge and fraudulently obtained from the president of the District Local Board certain amount by tendering a bill with the measurement sheet containing the false measurements attached to it duly signed by accused No. 1 and countersigned by accused No. 2:

Held, that the preferring of the bill was an official act and it did not make any difference that in the discharge of the official duty a fraudulent statement was inserted in the bill. Therefore, the act complained of, namely, the fraudulent and dishonest representation by means of the bill and measurement sheet, was protected under s 136, Bom. Local Boards Act. Accused No. 2, as the member was also entitled to protection under s. 197, Criminal P. C. VISHNU TATYABA NAIK v. EMPEROR Bom. 229

Bond. SEE Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 66 481 F B

Broker. SEE Contract Act, 1872, s 30 603

Burma Courts Act (XI of 1922), s. 7 (c)—Amendment of Act in 1932—Creation of Assistant District Court—Whether deprives District Court, which passed decree, of its jurisdiction to execute its decree not exceeding pecuniary limits of Assistant District Court's jurisdiction—Proper Court, which is.

Just because an inferior Court, (Assistant District Court) has been constituted under Burma Courts Amending Act, 1932, for the same local area after the passing of the decree, with jurisdiction to hear and determine suits or original proceedings of a certain value, the Court of a higher pecuniary jurisdiction

Burma Courts Act—concld.

(District Court) which passed the decree is not only not deprived of its jurisdiction to execute its decree which may not exceed the pecuniary limit of the new Court's (Assistant District Court) jurisdiction but is the proper Court which should execute the decree. P. L. S P. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. L. N. CHETTYAR FIRM Rang. 318

——— s. 7 (c)—"Original proceedings"—Meaning of.

The words "original proceeding" in s. 7 (c), Burma Courts Act are not used in contradistinction to "proceeding in appeal", and can only mean proceedings which initiate something, such as, for example, pauper applications. These words at all events cannot refer to execution proceedings which are merely a continuation of the proceedings in the suit which gave rise to them. P L. S P. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. L N. CHETTYAR FIRM Rang. 318

Burma Laws Act (XI of 1898), s. 13 (3)— Expression, according to justice, equity and good conscience", meaning of.

The phrase "according to justice, equity and good conscience" generally speaking, means English Law if applicable to the society and circumstances of Burma. TIA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836

Burmese Buddhist Law — Adoption — Adoptive parent if can give adoptive child in adoption to another—Adopted child minor— Consent of person on his behalf, if necessary.

Obiter.—An adoptive parent has the same right as a natural parent in regard to giving his adopted child in adoption to another. The adoptive parents step into the shoes of the natural parents, and as natural parents can give away their child in adoption, adoptive parents also may give away their keittima child in adoption to another person who takes the child with the intention that the child shall inherit to him and if the child is a minor no consent of any person on behalf of the child would be necessary to the validity of such a second adoption. And, just as the adoption from the natural parents has the effect of severing all the ties of the child with its natural family so such a second adoption would have the effect of bringing to an end the relationship between the child and his original adoptive parents. MA KYIN SEIN v. MAUNG KYIN HTAIK Rang. 507 ——— Adoption—Adoptive parent's unilateral act, if can terminate adoption.

The relationship between an adoptive parent and his adopted child cannot be terminated by the unilateral act (disclaimer) of the parent An adoptive parent has no power to disinherit his adopted child (except perhaps by giving him away in adoption), any more than a natural parent has such power in respect of his natural and lawful children. MA KYIN SEIN v. MAUNG KYIN HTAIK Rang. 507 ——— Adoption — Monk, if can adopt.

A Buddhist monk is vowed to a life of celibacy and poverty, and has cut himself off from all worldly ties. By reason of his vows he cannot have natural children and he can own no property. The notion that a person, bound by such vows, can adopt a child to take the place of natural children and inherit his non-existent estate is preposterous. Clearly a person who is precluded by his personal law from having natural children cannot adopt. MA KYIN SEIN v MAUNG KYIN HTAIK Rang. 507 ——— Maintenance — Difference between English Law and Buddhist Law on wife's right to maintenance.

In Buddhist Law, the spouses are for no purpose one person but of their after-acquired property they are tenants in common. The wife's interest in that property is a vested interest in the sense that its existence is indefeasible, but as to its quantum it is highly contingent, since this may be affected in various ways. It depends, for example, on whether the after acquired property is acquired by pure good luck or by the exertions of the spouses jointly or by those of the husband alone and also on the number of subsequent wives the husband may take. The material term to be implied is in reality unlike that implied by English Law) collateral to the main contract of marriage. It is to the effect that the husband shall be the manager of the after-acquired property and shall apply it during the subsistence of the marriage (as to income) first in maintaining his wife or wives, his children, and himself, and secondly in adding to the common capital, for which he or his estate will be accountable to each wife or her estate when her marriage terminates. The Buddhist husband is therefore under a positive legal duty to maintain his wife, but the nature of the implied term from which that duty arises makes it in one respect more onerous than the corresponding duty of an English husband. The latter when sued for maintenance has a good defence if he pleads and proves that before action brought the wife deserted him without just cause, that being a breach of the contract of marriage going to its root. But no marital offence by the wife can take away during the subsistence of the marriage her proprietary rights which, though precarious as regards amount, vested indefeasibly at the moment she married. In other words, the Buddhist husband is sued not qua husband but qua manager, and no wrong done to him in the former capacity can benefit him in the latter. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836

Burmese Buddhist Law—contd.

——— Maintenance—Husband taking second wife—Amount of maintenance to which first wife is entitled—Child's maintenance, if charge on husband's income.

In Burmese Buddhist Law, the general rule is that wife is entitled by way of maintenance to an amount which is one-third of the income acquired by the exertions of her monogamous husband. But when the husband takes a second wife the amount of maintenance to which the first wife is entitled, is reduced, to one-sixth of his income and the costs of maintaining children is first charge on the income. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836 ——— Maintenance — Law in Burma — Child, if can sue its parent for maintenance — Cause of action.

In Burma a wife may sue her husband, but a child as such may not sue his parents, for maintenance. Where, the circumstances are such that the wife is morally bound to support a child or children that fact may, and should, be taken into account in assessing the quantum of maintenance to be paid to the wife, but she and she alone has a cause of action. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836 ——— Maintenance—Suit by wife for—Arrears for period before suit, if can be granted.

In suit by a Buddhist wife against her husband for maintenance, the Court has no jurisdiction to order payment of arrears of maintenance for the period before suit commenced. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836 ——— Maintenance — Wife's suit — Husband subsequent to suit taking another wife—This fact, if can form part of wife's cause of action.

Where subsequent to the wife's suit for maintenance the husband has taken a second wife, this cannot, whatever its legal effect, form part of the wife's cause of action in the suit, as a premature suit is incurable by subsequent events. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836

Burmese Buddhist Law—concld.

——— Marriage —Dissolution by desertion and a year's absence—Absence of communication

It is essential to dissolution by desertion and a year's absence that during that year there should be absolutely no communication between the spouses. THA MYA v MA KIN PU Rang. 836 ——— Succession—Adoptive parents indicating by acts, desire to sever relation with their keittima child—Keittima child acquiescing in parents desire by living separately — He forfeits right to inheritance.

If the adoptive parents show by their acts that they desire to sever the relationship with their keittima child, and if the conduct of the child shows that he acquiesces in their wishes, as expressed by their acts, by living separately from them and not attempting to discharge filial duties, and by not asserting his rights as keittima child, even when it is in his own interests to do so, the presumption arises that he intends to break off the tie with his adoptive parents, and under such circumstances he forfeits his rights of inheritance. MA KYIN SEIN v. MAUNG KYIN HTAIK Rang. 507

C. P. Land Revenue Act (II of 1917), ss. 187, 188—Guardian of minor lambardar, whether can exercise powers of lambardar in relation to proprietary body.

The guardian of a minor cannot exercise the powers of a lambardar in relation to the proprietary body. The power of a lambardar to act through a guardian is nowhere recognized in the Land Revenue Act; the only provision for the exercise of the powers of a lambardar who is under a disability is through a duly appointed lambardar-gumashta. BRIJMOHANSINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75 ——— ss. 187 (3), 188 — Lambardar-gumashta's authority, extent of.

The phrase in sub-s. (3) of s. 187, C. P Land Revenue Act "the duties of the office" is sufficiently wide to cover both the phrases "the duties imposed" and "the powers conferred" in sub s. (1) of that section. The lambardar-gumashta's activities are not limited to the duties imposed under s. 188 (1) and he has authority to exercise any of the powers mentioned in sub s. (2). It is the same person who performs both the functions, whether he be a lambardar or a lambardar-gumashta appointed because of the lambardar's disability. The granting of leases is within those powers as much as is the collecting of rents or the acceptance of surrenders. BRIJMOHAN SINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75

——— —ss. 188 (1) (a)—Lambardar gumashta, if can collect that proportion of rent which would constitute revenue payable.

Sub-s. (1) (a) of s. 188, C. P. Land Revenue Act, does not empower the lambardar-gumashta to collect that proportion of the rents which would constitute the revenue payable. BRIJMOHANSINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75

——— s. 189—Proprietary interest in patti lost by lambardar-gumashta—Whether ground for his removal.

Section 189, C. P. Land Revenue Act is not mandatory but permissive, and if a lambardar-gumastha has been appointed who has a proprietary interest in the patti and subsequently loses that interest, it is open to the Deputy Commissioner to remove him on that ground. BRIJMOHANSINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75

——— s. 189—S. 189 (1) (d), applicability to sadar-lambardar.

A sadar-lambardar is also a lambardar and is not merely a channel for the payment of revenue from other lambardars, and consequently s. 189 (1) (d) can also apply to a sadar-lambardar. BRIJMOHAN SINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75

C. P. Local Self Government Act (IV of 1920), s. 23—Applicability of, to village panchayat.

Section 23 of the C. P. Local Self-Government Act has no application to the village panchayat. CHAMPALAL v. VILLAGE PANCHAYAT, SEMRI Nag. 609

C. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1922), s. 16 (3)—Period of nominated members extended till new body elected and began to function—New body only constituted subsequent to meeting in question—Failure to summon old nominated members qualified to act as corporators and summoning of new elected members not then so qualified, if renders meeting invalid.

The period of office of the nominated members of the Municipal Committee was extended till a new body was elected and began to function. The new elected body was to consist of nine elected, two nominated and two selected members. The nine elected members could not displace any nominated members of the old body for the reason that it was not possible to determine which elected member was a successor of which nominated member so as to attract the application of sub-s. 3 of s. 16. That new body was fully constituted subsequent to the meeting in question:

Held, that the failure to summon the old members who were qualified to act as corporators and summoning the new elected members who were then not so qualified rendered the proceedings of that meeting invalid and of no effect. ONKARSA v MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 23—Failure to summon member, whether invalidates meeting — Invalidity, if cured by his attendance.

Failure of the President to summon or non-receipt of summons does not invalidate a meeting but is capable of being regularized by the member's attendance at the meeting. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— ss 31 (2), 23—"Convene", meaning of—President assenting to call meeting—Whether deemed to have convened it—Assent, if can be inferred from his presence—Irregularity in convening, if cured by s. 23.

To convene means to call together or to assemble. When notices are sent to every member or circulated among the members by the Secretary, it must be presumed that it was with the consent of the Chairman, particularly when he attends the meeting. There is no law, rule or bye law laying down any special procedure to regulate the exercise of the President's power to convene meetings. If there is evidence of the President's assent to the calling of any meeting, he must be deemed to have convened the meeting. His assent is inferable from his presence at the meeting. Every meeting that is held must be presumed to have been convened by order of the President. Even on the assumption that there was any irregularity it cannot, in its nature, affect the validity of the meeting itself and is cured by s. 23 of the C. P. Municipalities Act. Strictly speaking, it is nothing more than an informality. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 66 (1) (b)—Tax on ginning and pressing of cotton, whether tax on income derived from trade and ultra vires.

C. P. Municipalities Act—concld.

The tax on ginning and pressing of cotton is not a tax on income derived from the trade but on the process of ginning and pressing. This tax does not seek to take anything out of the income and consequently is not ultra vires. ONKARSA v MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 67 — Omission in notification to specify date from which tax is to come into effect whether invalidates it—Tax must be deemed to come into force from date of notification—Presumptive force under s. 67 (8).

The order of the Local Govt. sanctioning the proposal to impose a tax is not a mere executive order but an order having the force of law from which the Municipality concerned derives its authority to impose the tax of a particular nature. It is in its nature a legislative order with all the force of law. The Notification itself is nothing but publication of the order. The rule of interpretation bearing on the question of commencement of statutes is that a statute takes effect from the first moment of the day on which it was passed unless another day is expressly named for the beginning of its operation. On this principle the order sanctioning the proposal to impose the tax and the rules relating to its assessment and collection would be deemed to come into force on the day on which they were notified in the Gazette. In any case the omission to specify the date cannot deprive the Notification itself of its presumptive force bearing on the proceedings relating to the imposition of the tax Under sub-s. 8 of s. 67 the Notification of the imposition of a tax is conclusive evidence that the tax has been imposed in accordance with the provisions of the Act. That serves to validate the entire proceeding relating to the imposition of the tax and precludes any objection to its regularity or legality. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 67 (1)—When intention of resolution is clear, it is futile to stress its inelegance.

There is a close connection between sub-ss. (1) and (2) of s. 67, C. P. Municipal Act. The integral part of a resolution contemplated in sub-s. (1) is not only the proposal to impose the tax which is implicit in the resolution but defining the class of persons or description of property proposed to be taxed, amount of tax to be imposed and the system of assessment to be adopted. When the intention is clearly apparent from the wording of the resolution it is futile to stress the mere inelegance of expression. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 67 (7)—Non-mention of s. 67 (7) in notification, if material.

The omission to mention sub s. 7 of s. 67, is not material because the Local Govt. cannot publish a Notification under any other provision except that one. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag 473

C. P. Village Panchayat Act (V of 1920), ss. 12 (1), 15 (1) (c)—Panchayat, if can control market—If can levy taxes on shops in market—Reference to District Council, if essential.

Section 12 of the C. P. Village Panchayat Act confers a discretionary power on panchayats to undertake the control and administration of certain matters specified in that section. That section does not expressly mention markets but there can be no doubt that holding of a market being a measure of public utility would be a matter falling under the head (1) of s. 12 (1). The contention that the village panchayat cannot undertake control of a market without reference to the District Council must fail for the reason that there is no mention of the District Council in that section and a Court of Law cannot insert that expression when it is not there.

C. P. Village Panchayat Act—contd.

The holding of a market is a measure of a public utility and as such the village panchayat can undertake control and administration of it and be responsible for the arrangement of conservancy and cleanliness and general maintenance of order in the market. Where the panchayat has assumed control of the market by a formal resolution, it has power to levy fees on persons exposing goods for sale in that market under s. 15 (1) (c) with the approval of the District Council. CHAMPALAL v VILLAGE PANCHAYAT, SEMRI Nag 609

Calcutta Municipal Act (III of 923 as amended in 939), ss. 27 (2), 30, 46, 47—Rules under s. 30, r. 14 (1) (iii)—More than one election agent is not permissible—In first nomination paper candidate appointing F as his agent —In subsequent nomination paper he appointing himself as election agent—Previous appointment not revoked—Rejection of all nomination papers held justified

The Calcutta Municipal Act, contemplates a single election agent. More than one election agent is not permissible.

The candidate delivered to the returning officer two nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in writing stating that he had appointed F as his election agent. On a subsequent date he delivered to the returning officer six more nomination papers each accompanied by a declaration in which he appointed himself as his election agent without making any attempt to revoke the previous nomination of F as his election agent There was a scrutiny by the returning officer and he then rejected all the nomination papers on the ground that they contained declarations of more than one election agent. On the construction of r. 14, it was argued that the nomination papers or each of them were valid and that there was no justification for rejecting a valid nomination paper because on comparison with another nomination paper the returning officer discovered that more than one election agent had been appointed. It was argued that the returning officer was bound to take each nomination paper as a separate entity and come to his decision on that paper:

Held, that the returning officer had no power to decide which was the election agent whom the candidate wanted to appoint, but the candidate had power under s 33 to revoke either of the appointments and had he done so no fault would apparently have been found with the nomination. But the nomination and the declaration are both contained in Form I and they are considered as a single unit and if the returning officer was of opinion that the candidate had in his nomination papers failed to comply with the provision of the Act which provides that only one election agent shall be appointed he was justified in rejecting the nomination papers. MOHAMAD HOSSAIN v. MD. REFIQUE Cal. 833

——— ss. 46, 47—Grounds set up in s. 47 not established—Court, if can declare election void.

Section 46 sets out the grounds on which an application may be made to the Court and s. 47 sets out the grounds on which the election of the returned candidate may be declared void, and unless the grounds set out in s. 47 are established the Court is not empowered to declare the election void. MOHAMAD HOSSAIN v. MD. REFFIQUE. Cal. 833 ——ss. 46, 47—High Court's special jurisdiction as Election Court—Right of parties must be found within statute.

Calcutta Municipal Act—contd.

High Court, sitting as an Election Court, exercises a special jurisdiction which is the creature of statute, and the rights of the parties must be found within the four corners of the statute and no right which is not so found can be imported. S. SHARAFUDDIN AHMED v. SHAMSUL HUQ Cal. 773 ——ss. 46, 47—Petition under ss. 46 and 47 — Returning Officer, if necessary party.

The returning officer need not be made a party to an application under ss. 46 and 47 for getting an election declared void. MOHAMAD HOSSAIN v. MD. RAFFIQUE Cal. 833

——ss. 46, 47—Right to recount is inseparably linked to claim to seat—Recount, when can be granted.

There is no doubt that the Calcutta Municipal Act does not contain any provision which enables an unsuccessful candidate to claim the seat. The procedure of scrutiny and recount is inseparably linked to the claim to the seat. It enables a Court to review the decision of the revising officer as to the admissibility of the ballot papers with the object of further enabling the Court, (as for instance under the provisions of s 39, Ben. Municipal Act), to declare the candidate who is found to have the greatest number of valid votes in his favour, to have been duly elected. Hence when the Legislature excluded from Cal. Municipal Act the right to claim the seat, it also excluded the right to a recount.

A recount, however, can only be granted in cases which are substantiated by specific instances and by reliable prima facie evidence and must be disallowed where it is claimed merely as a method of obtaining evidence in support of a number of serious charges of which no particulars have been given. S. SHARAFUDDIN AHMED v. SHAMSUL HUQ. Cal. 773 ——ss. 46 (1), 47—S. 46 (1), construction of—Two candidates to be elected to constituancy—Election of either challenged—Entire election must be held afresh—Both candidates, if necessary parties—Failure to implead one, if fatal.

Section 46 (1) must contemplate the challenge of the validity of an election whether it is an election of one person or of two persons, and where there are two candidates who would be elected to the constituency, if the challenge is made to either of the candidates, the result would be that the entire election in that constituency would have to be held afresh If that is so, it is obvious that both the candidates who may be affected by an election petition should be partie to it. Failure to implead one of them is a fatal omission. GIRISH CHANDRA GHOSH v. SUDHIR CHANDRA ROY CHAUDHURI Cal. 752

——s. 47.

SEE Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923 s. 27 833

SEE Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, s. 46 773

——s. 127—Tenant - Servants occupying house of master—Deductions made from pay for occupying house—Servant, if becomes tenant—Points material for decision.

The mere fact that a servant is paid less wages or some deductions are made from his pay for the benefit of being allowed to occupy a house of his master would not make him a tenant. In such a case the master would in law be taken to have possession. The relationship of master and servant is not however inconsistent with that of landlord and tenant. The question as to whether the master's house is a mere lodging provided for the servant or is left in occupation of the latter qua tenant must be answered by keeping in view not the form but the substance. If the servant's occupation of his master's house be ancillary to the performance of the duties which as servant he has engaged to perform, then his occupation would be considered as that of a servant, but if his occupation is not connected with his employment. he would be considered a tenant.

Calcutta Municipal Act—concld.

In deciding whether a person's occupation of certain premises is as a tenant or as a servant the material points for consideration are (a) whether a person is required to occupy the house in question for the performance of his services, or (b) did occupy it in order to their performance or (c) that it was conducive to that purpose more than any other house which he might have himself rented.

From the fact in the house the Commissioner sometimes holds meetings of public bodies of which he happens to be the chairman, though the meetings could have been as well held in his office it cannot be held that the case comes within the first head. It cannot be said that the Commissioner was required to occupy the house for the performance of his duties. He was not required to reside there, much less was his residence there ancillary and necessary to the performance of his duties.

In order that the case may fall within the propositions (b) and (c), the advantage must be shown to be decisive one and not merely slight. CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA v PROVINCE OF BENGAL. Cal. 457

——Sch II, Part I—Charge, contents of—Ballot paper already delivered to elector—Elector's right to vote challenged on ground of being impostor—Candidate not proved to have abetted procuring of ballot paper—No offence under Sch. II, Para. 1.

When the candidate charged with offence under Sch II, Para. 1, was absent when the elector applied for the ballot paper, and when the ballot paper had already been delivered to the elector under Para. 31 of the Govt. order, his right to vote was challenged on the ground of his being an impostor :

Held, that the candidate could not be said to have abetted the procuring of the ballot paper and hence no offence under Sch. II, Para. 1, was committed in the absence of proof that the candidate was aware that the alleged impostor was not the real person. GIRISH CHANDRA GHOSH v. SUDHIR CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURI Cal. 752

——Sch. II, Part I—Personation—Candidate must be shown to have knowingly persuaded impostor to obtain voting paper.

Schedule II, Part I, Para. 3, Cal. Municipal Act makes the offence of impersonation the procuring of an application by a person for a voting paper in the name of some other person. The offence of personation is complete when the person applies for a ballot paper. It must be established that the candidate knowingly persuaded the impostor to obtain a voting paper, that is the knowledge of the candidate is essential in order that a corrupt practice be proved against him. GIRISH CHANDRA GHOSH v. SUDHIR CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURI Cal. 752

Caste. SEE Hindu Law 82

Charge.

SEE Registration 740

SEE Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 100 290

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908) as amended in 1938—S. 46 (4) (a), whether retrospective.

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act—concld.

There is nothing in the language of s. 46 (4) (a), Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act to show that it has retrospective effect. Neither expressly nor by necessary implication does it lead to the conclusion that it was the intention of the legislature to validate transfers which under the former law were invalid when they were made. DHANNA MUNDA v. KOEILA BANIAN Pat. 851

——ss. 46 (6) (before amendment of 1938)—Plaintiff making transfer to defendant to whom transfer could not validly be made under s. 46 (6)—If estopped subsequently from challenging validity of transfer.

The plaintiff is not estopped from challenging the validity of the transfer by showing that the defendants were not persons to whom a transfer of a part of the holding could be validly made according to the provisions of the Act as they stood at the time of the transfer, even if the plaintiff had obtained sanction of the Deputy Commissioner on making false representation to him. It is especially so when the defendants were aware that they could not accept the transfer. DHANNA MUNDA v. KOEILA BANIAN Pat. 851

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 2 (2), 115, O. I, r. 10—Order of trial Court striking off some of defendants on ground that suit was not maintainable against them in absence of consent of Governor of Province under s. 270, Government of India Act—Whether decree—Revision, if lies.

Order of the trial Court striking off some of the defendants holding that the suit was not maintainable against them in the absence of consent of the Governor of the Province under s. 270 (1) of the Govt. of India Act, 1935, those defendants being the servants of the Crown, amounts to a decree within the meaning of s. 2 (2), Civil P. C., even if the Court erroneously refers to O. I, r. 10, as, between the parties the trial Court had finally decided that the plaintiff could get no relief in the suit against those defendants. Such an order is therefore appealable and no revision is maintainable under s. 115 as it is the practice of the High Court to abstain from interference in revision in favour of a party who has another remedy by way of appeal and has not availed himself of it. NAND KUMAR SINGH v. PASHUPATI GHOSH GHOSH. Pat. 276

——s. 2 (11)—Suit for specific performance of contract to alienate part of impartible estate against holder — Decree for compensation and not specific performance—Holder dying—In execution property attached in hands of his son—Son held legal representative.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract against the holder of an impartible estate who had contracted to alienate a part of the estate, a decree for compensation instead of specific performance was passed. After his death the estate devolved on his son as his successor and the estate in his hands was attached in execution of the decree :

Held, that the decree was passed against the deceased in his representative capacity and that his successor was his legal representative within the meaning of s. 2 (11), Civil P. C. RAO BHIMSINGH v. GANGARAM Nag. 598

——s. 2 (11), O. XXII, r. 3—Suit by plaintiff and mutawalli for declaration that certain property is waqf—Appeal from decree—Mutawalli dying—Plaintiff managing property of deceased and doing all his duties—Plaintiff held legal representative of deceased for purposes of appeal.

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

A decree was passed in a suit by the plaintiff and a mutawalli of a mosque for a declaration that the mosque was waqf and while the appeal was pending the mutawalli died. Since then the plaintiff had been managing the mosque and the properties and performing the same duties as the deceased was alleged to have performed during his lifetime :

Held, that the plaintiff could be treated as the legal representative of the deceased for the purpose of the appeal. KAMMON v. ALLAH BAKHSH Lah. 323

——s. 11. See also Res judicata 44

——s. 24. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XLVI, r. 1 242

——s. 34—Suit for arrears of maintenance—Widow leaving husband's house due to strained relations with adopted son, caused by herself—No demand for payment made in writing —No damages proved to have accrued, due to withholding of maintenance—If entitled to interest on arrears.

Where owing to strained relations between the widow and her husband's adopted son, the root cause of which was the widow herself, the widow left her husband's house and sued for maintenance, and no demand for payment of maintenance and no damages had been proved to have accrued to her because the maintenance was withheld :

Held, that the equitable jurisdiction of the Court could not be attracted in awarding interest to widow on arrears of maintenance inasmuch as she brought the trouble on herself. Nor could she claim interest under s. 73, Contract Act merely because the money was withheld. She was, however, entitled to interest pendente lite and future, under s. 34, Civil P. C. at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the date of the suit up till the date of realization. JAMUNA KUNWAR v. ARJUN SINGH All. 27

——s. 47—Decree-holder purchasing property—Sale confirmed—Judgment-debtor applying to have sale declared void—Civil Court alone can decide issue under s. 47—Issue cannot be decided by superior revenue Court.

The judgment-debtors moved the Court which passed the decree to have the sale declared void and not for setting aside the confirmation of the sale under O. XXI, Civil P. C., on the ground that it was a nullity.

Held, that the proceeding was one under s. 47, Civil P. C, as it related to execution of the decree and was one between the parties to the suit, the decree-holders being the purchasers. The Civil Court was the only authority to determine whether or not the execution sale held by the Collector was valid. That issue could not be decided by the superior revenue Courts. ZIBAL v. MUKA Nag 274

——s. 47—Validity of sale is question in execution—Sale held—Application under Bengal Agricultural Debtors' Act (VII of 1936), s. 8—Onus to prove that sale was illegal—Onus discharged—Effect.

The question as to the validity of the execution sale is clearly a matter which arises between the parties to the suit and relates to the execution of the decree and therefore falls within the purview of s. 47, Civil P. C. But when once an execution sale had been held there is a strong presumption to the effect that it was validly held by a Court which acted in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction. This being the case, the onus would lie heavily upon the applicant to show that the sale was in fact illegal on the ground that before the sale he had applied to the Debt Settlement Board for the settlement of his debts and had included in his application the debt in respect of which the execution proceedings had been taken, which resulted in the sale. On discharge of this onus, the Court would have no option but to set aside the sale even if it had received no notice under s. 34, Beng. Agri. Debtors Act. The result would therefore be that even if the debt had been extinguished by the sale it would revive after the sale had been set aside and the provisions of the Beng. Agri. Debtors Act would apply thereto. TAMIZALI v. MOHD. MASARALI BHUIYA. Cal. 451

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 89—Mortgagee purchasing property at auction sale in execution of mortgage decree—Application under O. XXI, r. 89 by prior purchaser of half of mortgaged property—Applicant, if becomes party to mortgage suit—Rejection of application—Subsequent suit for redemption by applicant, if barred.

Where the mortgaged property is sold in execution of the mortgage decree and an application under O. XXI, r. 89, Civil P. C, to have the sale set aside is made by the prior purchaser of half of the mortgaged property, the applicant does not become a party to the mortgage suit in which the decree was passed. The dispute between him and the mortgagee who himself is the auction purchaser cannot be deemed to be a dispute between the parties to the suit within the meaning of s. 47 and hence a suit by the applicant for redemption of half of the mortgaged property cannot be said to be barred by s. 47.

The rejection of the application under O. XXI, r. 89 does not bar the subsequent suit to redeem, for, the applicant did not by his application under r. 89 make himself a party to the suit in which he could have been impleaded. KHIALMAL CHOITHRAM PUNJABI v. POHUMAL CHOITHRYM PUNJABI Sind 247

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90—Plea not taken before sale should be regarded as waived—Rule does not apply to debtor applying under Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act (VII of 1936), s. 8.

The question of the illegality of the sale should be pleaded at the proper stage of the execution proceedings before the sale actually took place. Such a plea should be regarded as waived unless such plea is expressly taken before the sale. This plea of waiver does not, however, apply to the case of the judgment-debtor who has applied under s. 8, Beng. Agri. Debtors' Act. TAMIZALI v. MOHD. NASARALI BHUIYA. Cal. 451

——— s. 48—Court dismissing execution application on ground that case was old one and with intention of removing it from its list —Second application for same relief—Whether in continuation of old one.

Where an application for execution is dismissed by the Court not because of the decree-holder's default or negligence but on the ground that the case was an old one and the Court intended to remove it from its list, the second application made for similar relief must be regarded as continuation of the first one. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HAFIZABAD v. GOPAL DAS Lah. 334

——— s. 50. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 19 783

——— ss. 50, 99—Order of substitution by executing Court under s. 50 not affecting merits of case—No interference with, by Appellate Court by reason of s. 99.

When the Court to which the decree has been transferred for execution makes an order for substitution under s. 50, Civil P. C it is a matter of procedure and not of jurisdiction.

An Appellate Court cannot therefore interfere with that order by reason of s. 99, where the merits of the case are not affected by the irregularity. DEBENDRA NATH HALDAR v. G. A. ARATOON Pat. 245 ——— ss. 53, 2 (11)—Suit for specific performance —Decree for alternative remedy of compensation —S. 53, if applies.

Where a decree has been passed in a suit for specific performance for the alternative equitable remedy of compensation in lieu of specific performance, the decree may be regarded as creating a debt of record without its being a decree on a debt and consequently s. 53, Civil P. C., has no application. RAO BHIMSINGH v. GANGARAM Nag. 598

——— s. 60 (1)—Disposing power under s. 60 (1), limits of.

The reference to disposing power under s. 60 (1), Civil P. C., must be limited to the context, which is indicated by the words that follow:—"whether the sum be held in the name of the judgment-debtor or by another person in trust for him or on his behalf." BHAGWAN DASS RAM PRASAD v. SECRETARY OF STATE Pat. 360

——— s. 60 (1) (b)—Sewing machines in tailor's shop whether tools of artisan.

A tailor who uses a sewing machine is an artisan and the sewing machine is an artisan's tool. Section 60 (1) (b), Civil P. C., does not say that only such tools shall not be liable to attachment as are necessary for the maintenance of the artisan. Hence all the machines which were in use in the tailors shop at the time of the attachment are artisan's tools within the meaning of s. 60 (1) (b) and exempt from attachment. The fact that only one machine is sufficient for the tailor's maintenance or that he is working in another man's shop subsequent to attachment is no ground for refusing to release the machines from attachment. AHMAD SAYEED v. KANIZAK ZOHRA All. 826

——— s. 60 (1) (c)—Judgment-debtor not taking plea under s. 60 (1) (c)—Stranger if can raise such plea subsequent to sale.

Where a judgment-debtor does not object to the sale of the house on the ground of his being an agriculturist within the meaning of s. 60 (1) (c) and allows the house to be sold, it would be no longer open to him, much less to a stranger to raise the same objection in answer to a suit by the auction-purchaser for possession of the property purchased by him. SHEORAJ v. GANGA PRASAD Oudh 675

——— s. 60 (1) (c)—Party claiming benefit under, —Onus—"Agriculturist," meaning of.

A party claiming benefit of s. 60 (1) (c), Civil P. C., is bound to show that the person whose property was attached and sold was an agriculturist within the meaning of s. 60 (1) (c). The term "agriculturists" is used in cl. (c) in the sense of a person who is an agriculturist by profession, that is, a person whose main source of livelihood is cultivation. SHEORAJ v. GANGA PRASAD Oudh 675

——— s 60 (1) (c)—Sale of zemindari — Vendor's right to retain possession of house on subsequent acquisition of exproprietary right by vendor.

Where the ownership of the house or the materials thereof has passed to the auction-purchasers by virtue of the auction sale and the vendor has lost all interest therein from that date, the subsequent acquisition of exproprietary rights by the vendor cannot have the effect of reviving the ownership in favour of the vendor. SHEORAJ v. GANGA PRASAD Oudh 675

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

——— 60 (1) (l)—'Salary', meaning of.

There is nothing in cl. (i) of s. 60 (1), Civil P. C., to indicate that the salary mentioned there is the net salary. BHAGWAN DASS RAMPROSAD v. SECRETARY OF STATE Pat. 360

——— s. 60 (1) (l), (k) as amended in 1937, O. XXI, r. 48— Exemption of deposits in Provident Funds is separate from exemption in respect of salaries.

The exemption of deposits in provident funds under cl. (k), s. 60 (1), Civil P. C., is separate from the exemption in respect of salaries given by cl. (i), and the result would be that the recurring contributions of the judgment-debtor to the provident fund must, in working out the amount attachable, fall on that moiety of the excess of the salary over the first hundred rupees which is not already reserved for the judgment-debtor by cl. (i). BHAGWANDAS RAMPROSAD v. SECRETARY OF STATE Pat. 360 ——— ss. 63 and 73—Rateable distribution—Attachment under O. XXI, r. 48—Attachment, when complete—Assets received by Court of lower grade—Application under ss 63 and 73 to Court of higher grade — Application transferred to Court of lower grade where assets were received—Applicant whether entitled to rateable distribution from date of execution application or from date of application under ss. 63 and 73.

The attachment under O. XXI, r. 48, Civil P. C., becomes complete and effective as soon as the notice of the order issued by the Court is served upon the disbursing officer, who accepts it. Where the various executions against an officer are pending in the Court of Additional Small Causes and the applicant decree-holder applies under ss. 63 and 73, Civil P. C., to the Court of Small Causes and the application is sent to the Court of Additional Small Causes where the assets were received, the applicant decree-holder is entitled to rateable distribution from the date of her execution-application and not from the date of her application under ss. 63 and 73. It cannot be said that because the Office of the Accountant-General postpones the remission of the salary to a latter date there is no effective attachment. Section 73, Civil P. C. does not require the transfer of decrees to the Court where the process of realisation takes place as a condition precedent to an application under s. 63 of the Code and therefore a fortiori it is not necessary for the decree-holder seeking rateable distribution to apply for execution of his decree to the Court where the realisation takes place. If the process of realisation takes place in the Court of an inferior grade, it is the duty of such Court to send the sale proceeds to the superior Court which, under s. 63, Civil P. C., is the proper Court to distribute the assets. But where this is not done, it cannot deprive the decree-holder in the higher grade Court to his right to rateable distribution. DR. MRS ELSIE, C. GRIFFIN EDWARD v. WILLIAM AINSLIE CANNON HOWARD Oudh 38

——— ss. 64, Expl. 73 — Explanation to s 64, scope of—Court ordering execution application to be filed but mentioning that attachment should continue—No such order made on application for rateable distribution which was also filed — Decree-holder for rateable distribution, if can take advantage of order on execution application.

The Explanation to s. 64, Civil P. C., clearly indicates that applications for rateable distribution go hand in hand with the application for execution. Hence where the Judge orders execution petition to be filed but mentions in the order that the attachment shall continue but no separate order for the attachment to subsist is made on the application for rateable distribution which is also ordered to be filed as infructuous, the decree-holder can take advantage of the order regarding subsistence of attachment on the execution application. SOHAN LAL GULAB RAI v. FIRM MUHAMMAD DIN MUHAMMAD YUNIS Pesh. 712

——— s. 67 (2)—Rule under, promulgated by Coorg Local Government—Rule, if restrains execution of Coorg decree for money by sale of land when it is transferred for execution in British India.

The rule embodying the restriction upon sales of land in execution of decrees of Civil Courts, applies only to sales of land within the jurisdiction of the Local Govt. of Coorg. It cannot be read as restraining the execution of a Coorg decree for money by the sale of lands even when the decree has been transferred for execution in British India. KATACHIKANDI THIYYATHIKANDI ABDULLA KAKA v. KADUMANDRA K. MUTHANNA Mad. 46

——— ss. 68, 47—Decree transferred to Collector for execution — Jurisdiction of Court passing decree, if ousted—Application by judgment-debtor to Civil Court for payment of decree by instalments—Stay of proceedings before Collector ordered—Order not communicated and sale held—Sale and subsequent confirmation held invalid.

The transfer of a decree to the Collector does not oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Court in all matters. After such a transfer the judgment-debtor applied to the Court which passed the decree for payment of the decree by instalments under s. 11, C. P. Money-lenders Act. The Court entertained the application and ordered the stay of the proceedings before the Collector. But the stay order was not communicated to the Collector with the result that the Collector held the sale and confirmed it;

Held, that the order of the Civil Court must be construed as an order recalling the decree and the Collector ceased to have jurisdiction to sell or to confirm the sale after the Court passing the decree recalled it. Consequently, the power of the Collector to proceed with the case was suspended by virtue of the order made by the Court passing the decree.

Held, also that when the Civil Court exercised its authority and recalled the decree, its order recalling the decree by its own force deprived the power of the Collector to execute the decree and the Civil Court's order came into effect as soon as it was passed so as to suspend the Collector's power to proceed with the sale. ZIBAL v. MUKA Nag. 274

——— s. 73.

SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s 63. 38

SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 64 712

——— s 73—Decrees by A, B and C against D and his father E who became insolvent—In execution of A's decree Court allowing Official Receiver to sell entire property as Court agent within certain time and to pay D's share into Court—Property sold beyond period fixed—Execution petitions by B and C—Sale proceeds subsequently deposited into Court—B and C held entitled to rateable distribution.

A, B and C obtained decrees against D and his father E who became insolvent. On application of A for the execution of his decree, the Official Receiver was permitted by the Court to sell the entire property as an agent of the Court within certain time and deposit into Court the share of D who was non-insolvent. The property was however sold after the period fixed by the Court. B and C applied for execution of their decrees and subsequently the Official Receiver paid into Court D's share in the sale proceeds B and C applied for rateable distribution:

Held, that the receipt by the Official Receiver in contravention of the rules under which he should have been operating, could not by virtue of subsequent ratification of his irregular sale, be deemed to have been a receipt by the Court. It could not be said that there had been, at the time when these two execution petitions of B and C were filed, any receipt of these sale proceeds by the Court. All that had then happened was an unauthorized and irregular sale by the Official Receiver and an unauthorized receipt by the Official Receiver of the proceeds of that sale. There was nothing in the hands of the Court resulting from this sale and there was at the time when these execution petitions were filed no subsisting authority to the Official Receiver to sell. Hence the date of the receipt of the assets by the Court must be the date on which the money was actually paid by the Official Receiver into the Court. B and C were therefore entitled to rateable distribution.—V. S. A. R. M. ANNAMALAI CHETTIAR v. VELLAYAN CHETTIAR Mad. 536

———s. 80—Co-operative society in liquidation—Liquidator appointed under Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act (VI of 1935)—Plaintiff's suit against him claiming that he being agriculturist his house could not be attached—Notice under s. 80, if essential.

Section 80, Civil P. C., bars the institution of a suit unless notice has been given only when the suit is against a public officer and is in respect of any act done or purporting to be done by the public officer in his official capacity. The mere fact that the public officer concerned is a defendant in the suit is not sufficient to determine whether a notice is required under s. 80. For instance, when an Official Assignee or a Receiver is impleaded in a suit to realise a charge on the property of the insolvent which is vested in him, and no act or omission on the part of the Receiver is alleged, notice is not necessary where no relief is claimed against the liquidator of a co-operative society, the object of the plaintiff in the suit being to obtain a decision as to whether his house is liable to be attached. He being an agriculturist no notice under s. 80 is required, assuming that the liquidator appointed under the Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act is a public servant within the meaning of the section. LIQUIDATOR, NAWADAH BAZAR CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY v. DOMI RAM CHAUDHARY Pat. 142

———s. 92. SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) 641 F B

———s. 92—Suit by person calling himself trustee against defendant alleged to be trespasser for possession of waqf property and office of mutwalli by dispossession of defendant—Competency—S. 92, if bar.

Where an ordinary suit for ejectment is filed by a plaintiff who calls himself a trustee against a defendant who is alleged to be a trespasser, the plaintiff can ignore s. 92, Civil P. C., and can sue for possession of waqf property and of the office of mutwalli and amin of the waqf by dispossession of the defendant. DHARAM NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN All. 697

———s. 99. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 50 245

———s. 100—Lower Appellate Court agreeing with trial Court, if bound to take every sentence of trial Court judgment and say that it agrees with it.

There is no magic in any special formula of words, nor is the first Appellate Court bound to take every sentence of the trial Court's judgment and say in terms that he agrees with it as though he were a litigant dealing with all his opponent's pleadings. Where the lower Appellate Court while agreeing with the trial Court's finding of fact uses in a part of his judgment the phrase "it is not unreasonable to presume", with reference to lower Court's finding of fact, it means no more than that he was satisfied that the trial Court was right in the conclusion at which he arrived, or at least that he was unwilling to disturb it. Such a finding of fact is binding in second appeal. DEOKALI PATTAH v. RAMDEVI Rang. 286

———s. 102—Suit for refund of amount recovered as tax with prayer for declaration of plaintiff's non-liability—Second appeal does not lie.

A suit for refund of amount recovered as a tax with a prayer for declaration of plaintiff's non-liability to pay the tax, is a suit of Small Cause nature and hence no second appeal lies under s. 102, Civil P. C. BANSI LAL v. CHAIRMAN, TOWN AREA COMMITTEE, SAIDPUR All. 633

———s. 107, O. XLI, r. 23—Unsuccessful litigant in lower Court cannot be allowed to patch up weak parts in case and fill up omissions.

The provisions of s. 107, Civil P. C., as elucidated by O. XLI, r 23 are clearly not intended to allow a litigant, who has been unsuccessful in the lower Court to patch up the weak part of the case and fill up omissions in the Court of Appeal. MOTAI v. SIR AKBAR KHAN Pesh. 871

——— ss. 109, 110—Leave to appeal for raising for first time question before Privy Council, not raised in any Courts in India cannot be granted.

Where leave to appeal to the Privy Council is asked for, for the purpose of raising for the first time before the Privy Council a question which was not raised at any time while the litigation was pending in India, that is either in the trial Court or in the High Court, such leave cannot be granted. Haji MUHAMMAD SHADAK KOYI v. BURRA VENKATA KOMARAJU KOYI Mad. 353 ———ss. 109, 110—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12—Application for leave to appeal to Privy Council—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree and copy of judgment, if can be excluded in computing limitation.

Section 12 (3), Lim. Act, is to be read as enabling an applicant for leave to appeal, to exclude in computing the period of limitation for his application, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment on which it is founded. A party who seeks leave to appeal to the Privy Council is entitled, in computing the period of limitation prescribed for such an application, to have the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree and a copy of the judgment on which it is founded excluded in computing for purposes of limitation the period which has elapsed from the date of the judgment.

MR. H. HUNTER v. EHSAN HUSAIN Oudh 295

——— s. 110. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 109 292

——— s. 110, para. 2—Test laid down by, for granting leave—Decretal amount with interest amounting to less than Rs. 10,000—Property attached in execution value at Rs. 15,000 held to be waqf property not liable to attachment and sale—Leave to appeal, held could not be granted.

Paragraph 2 of s. 110, Civil P. C., is intended to extend the privilege given by the first paragraph only to cases where a claim regarding rights of Rs. 10,000 or upwards in value is involved indirectly, though not directly. The second paragraph means that the suit must, to satisfy its conditions, involve rights and claims to property which rights and claims are worth Rs. 10,000 and upwards, not that the rights affect properties whose value is Rs 10,000 and upwards.

Where therefore in execution of his decree a decree-holder attached certain property of the judgment-debtor valued at Rs. 15,000, for recovery of the decretal amount with interest amounting to Rs. 9,957-5-3, and an objection under s. 47, Civil P. C. that the property being waqf property was not liable to attachment and sale being successful applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council :

Held, that leave could not be granted as the test laid down by para. 2 of s 110, Civil P. C., had not been satisfied. SUDAMAN PRASAD v. MOHAMED ABDUL ALIM Oudh 639

———s. 111-A—Object of s. 111-A.

The object of s. 111-A, Civil P. C, is to bring the Civil P. C., into line with s 205, Govt. of India Act. The two provisos make it perfectly clear that nothing in the Code shall be read as affecting the right given to a party to appeal to the Federal Court under sub-s. (1) of s. 205 when the High Court has passed a final judgment, decree or order and has certified that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act is involved. A. L. S. P. P L. SUBRAMANIAN v. MUTHUSWAMI GOUNDAN Mad. 865

——— s. 115. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 2 (2) 276

——— s. 115. SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, s. 6 (4) 133

——— s. 115—Court taking erroneous view of law acts illegally in exercise of jurisdiction—Revision, if maintainable.

Where the Courts below have taken an erroneous view of the law with regard to a matter and have acted illegally in the exercise of their jurisdiction it is open to the High Court, to interfere in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under s. 115, Civil P. C. TAMIZALI v. MD. NASARALI BHUIYA Cal. 451

——— s. 115—Jurisdiction under, if can be exercised with reference to order under s. 45 (2) or order under s. 46, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (XXV of 1934).

The revisional jurisdiction vested in the High Court by s. 115, Civil P. C, can be exercised with reference to appellate orders, passed under sub-s. (2) of s 45, U. P. Encum. Estates Act or revisional orders, passed under s. 46 of the Act by a District Judge. ACHRAJ SINGH v. HARDWAR NATH All. 464 F B ——— s. 141, Sch. II—Sch II deals with procedure only—If covered by s. 141.

Schedule II, Civil P. C., is procedure and nothing else but procedure. The right to arbitrate is not conferred by Sch. II. This right is a common law-right which is part of the right of contract. Schedule II, merely provides for the manner in which after a suit has been instituted the right may be exercised. Schedule II, is therefore covered by s. 141. MAHA RAM v. HARBANS All. 17 F B

——— s. 144. SEE Execution sale 411

——— s. 144. SEE Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 181 387

——— s. 144—Proceedings against person not party to suit.

Proceedings under s. 144, Civil P. C, cannot be taken against a person who was not a party to the suit. UJAGAR SING v. LIKHA SINGH All. 387

——— s. 146, O. XXII, r. 10—A's suit for recovery of property decreed against B—During pendency of suit A's son S acquiring suit property by final partition decree—Appeal by B—S applying to be impleaded as respondent—Neither s. 146 nor O. XXII, r. 10 held applied.

A obtained a decree against B in a suit for the recovery of property. During the pendency of the suit A's son S acquired A's interest in suit property by a final partition decree. On an appeal by B against decree passed against him, S applied under O. XXII, r. 10 to be impleaded as supplemental respondent to the appeal:

Held, that s. 146, Civil P C., did not apply as S could not be regarded as claiming under A as he got the suit property by virtue of the partition decree and not by reason of any assignment or devolution from his father;

Held, further that O. XXII, r. 10, also did not apply as S acquired the property before the appeal and not during its pendency. S was therefore not entitled to be impleaded as respondent. RATNASABAPATHI PILLAI v. GOPALA IYER Mad. 637

——— s. 151—Ambiguous decree of first Court affirmed by High Court—Subsequent removal of ambiguity by reviewing its own judgment—Decree not embodying directions in final judgment passed on review—Decree, if can be brought into conformity with final judgment—High Court, power of, to order necessary amendment.

High Court affirmed an ambiguous decree of the Court of first instance but by reviewing its own judgment, subsequently removed the ambiguity. But the judgment which was final between the parties, passed on review contained the directions which had not been embodied in the decree;

Held, that there was no bar in subsequently bringing the decree into conformity with the final judgment where the rights of third parties had not been intervened. The High Court could, if necessary, itself order the aforesaid amendment of the decree. RAJENDRA KISHORE BASU ROY v. PROMOTHA NATH ROY Cal. 842

——— s. 151—Interim order—Suit for recovery of certain property alleged to be allotted to plaintiff under agreement—Defendant not admitting that plaintiff is entitled to such property—Court, if can pass interim order of maintenance.

There is no inherent power in a Court to act without findings, so that if a matter is asserted by the plaintiff and denied by the defendant, the Court cannot presume that the plaintiff's allegations are true and give some interim relief pending disposal of the suit. Where therefore a plaintiff brings a suit for certain property alleging it to have been allotted to him in accordance with certain agreement and the defendant does not admit that the plaintiff is entitled to the property claimed by him, the Court has no jurisdiction to pass an interim order of maintenance in favour of the plaintiff. YENUMALA LATCHANNA DORA VARU v. YENUMALA MALLU DORA VARU Mad 175

——— s. 151—Remedy provided by code not availed of by party—Inherent powers cannot be invoked.

A party who had an appropriate remedy under a specific provision of the Code but of which, however, he failed to avail himself, cannot be allowed to invoke the inherent powers of the Court S. RATNASABAPATHI PILLAI v. GOPALA IYER Mad. 637 ——— ss. 151, 152—Amendment—Lapse of time, if bar.

It is well-settled that lapse of time, however, considerable, is no bar to the correction of errors either under s. 151 or under s. 152 of the Civil P. C. SANWALAY RAI v. SANT RAI Oudh 727 ——— ss. 151, 152, 153—Case decided and decree satisfied — Power of Court to allow amendment subsequently.

Although after the case has been decided and the decree has been satisfied the Court becomes functus officio, yet it does not debar the Court in appropriate cases, to rectify an error which has crept into its record either by accident or by design. The only limitation upon the exercise of such a power by Court may be found in cases where third parties have acquired rights under the erroneous judgment in the interval. SANWALAY RAI v. SANT RAI Oudh 727

——— ss. 151, 152, 153—Redemption suit—Misdescription of property in plaint, judgment and decree—Mortgage amount paid in full—Mistake held could be treated as clerical one and plaint, judgment and decree could be amended

A mistake in the description of the mortgaged property, had crept into the plaint, judgment and decree of the redemption suit. The mortgagor, however, paid to the mortgagee the entire amount of the mortgage money, including the amount due on the further charge and obtained possession of the entire property. The mortgagee subsequently attempted to take advantage of the mistake. The mortgagor applied for amendment of the plaint, judgment and the decree under ss. 151, 152 and 153, Civil P. C.

Held, that under these circumstances the mistake could be treated as one of a clerical nature arising from an accidental slip or omission. The Court could therefore amend the plaint, judgment and the decree. SANWALHY RAI v. SANT RAI Oudh 727

——— s. 152—Decree of trial Court merging into decree of Appellate Court—Jurisdiction of trial Court to amend decree under s. 152 as to its order of costs.

In matters of amendment of the decree under s. 152, Civil P. C., the trial Court has ordinarily no jurisdiction left in cases where the decree of that Court has merged in the decree of the Appellate Court. The principle that notwithstanding the fact that the decree of the trial Court has merged in the decree of the Appellate Court, the former Court has power under s. 152 to make an amendment if the amendment is merely of a clerical or arithmetical mistake cannot be extended where amendment sought relates to costs and there is a dispute between the parties as regards the interpretation to be placed on the order of the trial Court in regard to proportionate costs, which cannot be said, to be a clerical or arithmetical mistake apparent on the face of the record. KHAIRATI KHAN v. MUNNEY KHAN Oudh 53

——— ss. 152, 153. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 151 727

——— O. I, r. 8—Suit by reversioner to restrain alienation by limited owner—Procedure under O. I, r. 8, if must be followed—Other reversioners, if necessary parties.

Order I, r. 8, Civil P. C., is applicable only when two conditions co-exist, viz.: (1) where the parties are numerous and (2) where one of such numerous parties desires to be considered as a representative of the others for the purposes of the suit. It has no application where the parties are not numerous as here, nor has it any application where a person is vested with a representative character by virtue of his status. Order I, r. 8, applies where a person does not normally represent any one else but seeks to be clothed with a representative capacity only for the purposes of the suit. There is, therefore, nothing to prevent a single reversioner from instituting a suit to restrain a limited owner from alienating property without having recourse to the provisions of O. I, r. 8, and without making the other reversioners parties even though there may be other reversioners entitled to, the same reliefs. MITTULAL SINGHANIA v. PURSOTOME DEBI BAGLA Cal. 193

——— O. I, r. 10. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 2 (2) 276

——— O. III, r. 1—Vakalatnama in Form IV prescribed by Sind Civil Courts Circulars, whether empowers Advocate to enter into compromise in the case, on behalf of, client—Specific authority for specific compromise necessity of.

A vakalatnama in Form IV prescribed by Sind Civil Courts Circulars authorising an Advocate or a Pleader to appear and act in a case does not give, him power to compromise the case on behalf of his client. Form IV does not warrant the vakalatnama to contain the power to compromise This power is inadequate to validate a compromise made by the Advocate or the Pleader. Specific authority for specific compromise is essential. HUSSAIN HABIBULLAH v. VALI MAHAMMAD Sind 45

——— O. III, r. 1, O XI, r. 1, Appendix Form No. 3, s. 115 (c)—Interrogatories—Defendant not entitled to answer personally — Defendant, if can answer it through recognised agent — Adjournment costs — Court, if can order, against party, on non-compliance—Court wrongly rejecting interrogatories — Interference in revision.

On the whole, O. III, r. 1, governs O. XI, r. 1. The former order is a general one and has general application. Therefore unless there is something specific to show that its provisions are not intended to apply to some act or appearance in some particular case, it ought to be applied.

In O. III, r. 1, the expression "except where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force" refers to laws other than the Code.

When a party to a suit is ordered to answer interrogatories, he is not bound in the absence of a special direction to that effect to answer personally, and he can answer through some recognised agent who knows the facts; that is to say, an affidavit need not be sworn to by the party himself but this can be done by a recognised agent. As a general rule it is salutory and wholesome that the defendant himself should be made to swear to what he says. But there will always be exceptions, and in any case as the Code allows an alternative a party cannot be penalised for following it, unless he has been expressly ordered to do the contrary.

Where by an order of the Court the interrogatories ought to have been answered in person within the ten days but they were not answered, it is within the competence of the Court to order adjournment cost against the person (defendant) though he had given a reasonable explanation as to why this was not done.

When the Code expressly gives a party a right to perform a certain act through a recognised agent and the Court has not directed him to perform it in person

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

the Court cannot arbitrarily reject that act and mulct the party in costs because he has chosen to do that which the Code expressly allows him to do. If the Court rejects the act, it is a material irregularity on a question of procedure and justifies interference in revision under s. 115 (c) K. C. MAJUMDAR v SURAJSINGH Nag. 707

——— O. VI, r. 15. SEE Patna High Court Rules, Chap. XIII, r. 10 12

——— O. VII, r. 10. SEE Civil Procedure Codd, 1908, O. XLVI, r. 1 242

——— O. VIII, r. 2. SEE Limitation Act, 1908, s. 361

——— O. VIII, r. 5—Contention that allegation needs no reply whether amounts to denial by necessary implication.

There is no denial by necessary implication of a fact alleged in a plaint when it is merely contended in the written statement that the allegation needs no reply. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang 114

——— O. IX. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XVII, rr. 2, 3 768

——— O. XI, r. 1. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. III, r. 1 707

——— O. XV, r 2. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O XVII, rr. 2, 3 768

——— O. XVI, r. 1—(Lahore amendment)—Court has discretion to allow examination of witness even if he is not mentioned in the list.

Rule 1 of O. XVI, Civil P. C, is a technical one and in the absence of any prejudice to either party the Court is not justified in refusing to examine the witnesses on the ground that they were not mentioned in the list. The rule gives the Court discretion to allow witnesses to be examined even if they are not mentioned in the list if it is satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for doing so. KARIM BAKHSH v. FIRM THAKUR DAS-RAM LAL Lah. 166

——— O. XVII, rr 2, 3, O XV, r. 2, O. IX—Discretion conferred by O. XVII, r. 2 to be exercised judicially — Court, when can pass order on merits under O. XVII, r. 2 or r. 3 —Case adjourned for production of evidence under O. XV, r. 3—Plaintiff not appearing on adjourned date—Order on merits cannot be passed—Case falls under O. XVII, r. 2 and not r. 3—Court must proceed under O. IX, r. 8 or grant adjournment.

The last words of r. 2 of O. XVII, Civil P C., confer a discretion, but it is a discretion which must be exercised judicially. A Judge, in exercising such discretion, may grant a further adjournment, or, if the circumstances justify such a course, he can pass an order on merits, but he must have material before him to justify that course. If there is no evidence before him, he cannot in the exercise of judicial discretion proceed to deal with the case on merits Hence where a case is adjourned under O. XV, r 3 for the production of evidence and the plaintiff fails to appear on the adjourned date, the Court is under O. XVII, r 2 bound to dispose of the matter under O. IX, r. 8, or else to grant an adjournment. The Court cannot dispose of the case on merits as in such a case there is no evidence before the Court to do so. Order XVII, r. 3, does not apply to such a case :

Held, that the case was dealt with on merits and appeal therefore lay.

Held, further that the case fell under r. 2 and not under r. 3 of O. XVII and as the Court had no material before it to justify a disposal on merits the order passed by it should be modified so as to fall under

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

O. IX. RUKMANSA JAJANSA HOSMANI v. SHANKARGOUDA BASANGOUDA LAKBYAL Bom 768

——— O. XXI, r. 15—Application by one decree-holder stating that other decree-holder will be produced at time of recovery of money—Application, if on behalf of both—Where other decree-holder is produced at time of payment of money, the payment is binding on him — Fact that payment was made out of Court is immaterial.

Rule 15 of O XXI, Civil P. C, does not require that any particular form of words should be used to express the undertaking required by cl. 1 of that Rule.

Where one of the two decree-holders make an execution application stating that the other decree-holder will be produced at the time of the recovery of the money the application must be held to be on behalf of the both. If that undertaking is observed, and if the other decree-holder produced when the money is paid, all necessary protection of his interest would be secured. It would make no difference if payment under these conditions is made out of Court ; and provided that the other decree-holder is produced at the time of any payment or adjustment and is aware that the payment or adjustment is made in satisfaction of the decree, the payment or adjustment would be binding upon him. WADERO SHAHBAZ KHAM WADERO FATEHKHAN v. KAKALMAL BUDHUMAL Sind 183

——— O. XXI, r. 15 (1) and (2)—Execution application by one of two, joint decree-holders — Adjustment binding on both decree-holders, if can be recorded where executing decree-holder proves express authority — Absence of authority —Provisions of O. XXI, r. 15 must be looked into.

In the case of an execution application by one of the joint decree-holders if express authority of the executing decree-holder to receive the decretal amount on behalf of all joint decree-holders is proved or if it is established that in fact all decree-holders have received their shares of the amount then an adjustment binding all decree-holders can and should be recorded. But when no express authority or receipt by other joint decree-holders has been established then the provisions of O. XXI, r. 15, Civil P. C., have to be looked to. WADERO SHAHBAZ-KHAN WADERO FATEHKHAN v. KAKALAL BUDHUMAL Sind 183

——— O. XXI, rr. 17, 57 — Rejection of application under r. 17—Application must be deemed not in accordance with law — Rejection whether dismissal under r. 57—Application not numbered as execution petition—Inference

When the Court exercises its power of "rejection" under r. 17, O. XXI, Civil P. C., the legal position is that no execution petition in accordance with law must be deemed to have been filed. This is made clear by cl. 2 of r. 17. There can therefore be no scope for the application of O XXI, r. 57. The circumstance that the application was not even numbered in the ordinary course as an execution petition clearly indicates that the executing Court had not decided to admit the execution petition at all, but merely rejected it in limine as not complying with the formal requirements of law. P. S. SATHAPPA CHETTIAR v. N. K. PR S PR. CHOCKALINGAM CHETTIAR Mad. 204

——— O. XXI, r. 19, s. 50—Suit against father and son — Plaintiff getting money decree against father—Son awarded decree for costs against plaintiff — Son's execution application against plaintiff dismissed on ground that sum due against him as legal representative of his deceased father was larger — No enquiry under s. 50 as to extent of assets in hands of son—Dismissal held illegal—O XXI, r. 19 held applicable.

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

Order XXI, r. 19, Civil P. C., applies even to a case of a claim by a defendant against a plaintiff personally and a claim by a plaintiff against the defendant as legal representative of another deceased defendant. The mere fact that there has to be some inquiry under the provisions of s 50, Civil P. C., as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of his legal representative, or that the sum may be limited by the provisions of s. 50, Civil P. C., does not remove a case out of the scope of r. 19 of O. XXI, Civil P. C.

The plaintiff in a suit against father and son obtained a money decree against the father. The son was awarded a decree for his costs. Applications for execution by the son were dismissed on the ground that the amount due to the plaintiff from the son as legal representative of his deceased father was longer. No enquiry, however, under s. 50 was made as to the extent of the deceased father's assets in the hands of the son:

Held, that the order of dismissal was illegal. The Court should have ordered an enquiry under s. 50. Then the sum recoverable by the plaintiff from the son would be set off against the sum recoverable by the son from the plaintiff within the meaning of O. XXI, r. 19 which applied to the case.

Held, also that the plaintiff could demand a set off and need not have filed his own execution application against the son as a legal representative of his deceased father of his money decree which the plaintiff held against the father inasmuch as the object of O. XXI, r. 19 was to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. SOBHOMAL THAOOMAL v. DULAHDINOMAL TILUSING Sind 783

——— O. XXI, r. 22—Notice under r. 22 signed by judgment-debtor—He cannot contend that he was unaware of the notice.

Where the judgment-debtor had signed the notice under O XXI, r. 22, Civil P. C., he cannot afterwards say that he was not aware of the notice. CHANDRA SEKAR DHAR v. BHAGWAN DAS Pat. 124

——— O. XXI, r. 35 (2)—Proceedings under—Failure to affix warrant or to proclaim by beat of drum whether fatal.

The conditions precedent for effecting delivery of possession under O. XXI r. 35 (2), Civil P. C., are the affixing of the warrant to the property and the beat of drum. The omission to take any one of these two steps is fatal to the proceedings and there is no delivery in law. RAMESHRI v. VAISHNO DITTI Pesh. 819

——— O. XXI, rr. 46, 47—Applicability—Stranger in possession of property in which judgment-debtor has share—R. 46, if applicable—Prohibitory order, if can be issued against stranger.

Where the judgment-debtor owns a share or interest in some property which is in the possession of a stranger, r 46 as well as r. 47 of O. XXI, Civil P. C, must come into operation so as to necessitate prohibitory orders being issued not only to the judgment-debtor but also to the stranger who is in possession of the property the judgment-debtor's share in which is intended to be attached. If, r. 46 were not to apply to such a case the result would be stultification of the attachment. While the judgment-debtor will have the prohibitory order served on him the property of which the transfer is forbidden will be sold with impunity by the person in whose possession it happens to be. That will defeat the very purpose of the attachment. Such a result could not be intended by the Legislature. GOVINDRAM JIWANRAM v. HARASAYA GANASAYA MARWADI Nag 788

——— O. XXI, r. 47. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 46 788

——— O XXI, r. 48. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s 63 38

——— O. XXI, r. 48—Attachment of salary of employees of Post and Telegraph—Procedure.

In cases of attachment of salaries of employees of Post and Telegraph department, it would be better for the Court in the interests of all concerned, to obtain on the application of the decree-holder the relevant materials from the Postmaster-General in order to work out the figures itself and then issue an attachment for a definite, specified amount, so that the parties and the Postmaster-General may be under no misapprehension. BHAGWAN DASS RAMPROSAD v. SECRETARY OF STATE Pat. 360

——— O XXI r. 57. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 17 204

——— O. XXI, r. 57—Application by Receiver under s 52, Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920)—Sale stopped and execution struck off by executing Court—Attachment, if ceases.

Where as a result of an application by the Official Receiver under s. 52, Prov. Insol. Act, the executing Court stops a sale in execution of a decree and strikes off the execution petition the dismissal cannot be said to be due to default of the decree-holder and hence the attachment of property before judgment does not cease. P S. A. R. A. K. ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR v OFFICIAL RECEIVER, COIMBATORE Mad. 138

——— O. XXI, r. 57—R. 57, applicability—Deals with case where on petition ultimately dismissed attachment has taken place.

In interpreting r. 57, O XXI, Civil P. C, it must be remembered that it deals in terms with a case where on the petition which is ultimately dismissed an attachment has taken place. In such a case the execution petition must ex hypothesi have been taken cognizance of an execution ordered and it is only at a later stage that it must be dismissed as contemplated by r. 57. The words of the rule must be applied with caution to cases in which the attachment has taken place before judgment or on a prior execution application. It is in this latter class of cases that the distinction between a "rejection" under r. 17 and a "dismissal" under r. 57 will become material. P. S. SATHAPPA CHETTIAR v. N. K. PR. S. PR. CHOKALINGAM Mad 204

——— O. XXI, r. 63—Suit under r. 63 for declaration of title and injunction restraining defendant from taking possession of suit property and preventing him from taking illegal action to plaintiff's detriment falls under Sch II, Art. 17 (1), Court Fees Act (VII of 1870).

A suit brought under O. XXI, r. 63, Civil P. C., by a claimant whose claim was rejected in proceedings under O. XXI, r. 58, for a declaration of his title and a permanent injunction restraining the defendant from taking delivery of possession of the suit property and preventing him from taking any illegal action to the detriment of the plaintiff, falls within the purview of Sch. II, Art. 17 (1), Court Fees Act and no ad valorem court-fee is necessary. UDAI CHAND LAL v. FIRM PANNALAL CHAMPALAL Pat. 78

——— O. XXI, rr. 17, 87—Application for re-sal can be made at any time within three years—Delay of eleven months cannot justify Court in rejecting decree-holder's application for payment of deficit.

The Civil P. C., contains no provision stating when the application for a re-sale shall be made, and therefore the decree-holder is entitled to make the application at any time within three years as Art. 181, Lim. Act, applies. Delay of eleven months does not justify the Court in rejecting the application for an order directing the payment of the amount of the deficit. SIVASUBRAMANIAM CHETTIAR v MURUGESA MUDALIAR Mad. 325

——— O. XXI, r. 85—Default by purchaser to pay balance—Sale becomes a nullity.

Whether the deposit made under r. 85, O XXI, Civil P. C., be forfeited or not, the purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property if he makes default of payment of the balance of the purchase money and the sale becomes a nullity. ANNAPURNA DASI v BAZLEY KARIM FAZLEY MOULA Cal 390

——— O. XXI, r. 89, s. 47—Application under O. XXI, r. 89, if falls under s. 47.

An application by a person interested under O. XXI, r. 89, does not fall under s 47, for there is now special provision for an appeal against such an order under O. XLIII, (1) (j), and the controversy on the question as to whether an appeal did or did not lay in the case of a dispute between the judgment-debtor and the auction-purchaser, is now set at rest. KHIALMAL CHOITHRAM PUNJABI v. POHUMAL CHOITHRAM PUNJABI Sind 247

——— O. XXI, r. 90. SEE Bihar Money-lenders Act, 1938, s. 16 124

——— O. XXI, r. 90—Sale, when can be set aside.

In order to entitle the jungment-debtor to have the sale held in execution of a decree against him, set aside, it is to be established that there had been some illegality or irregularity in the publication and conduct of the sale which had resulted in the property being sold at an inadequate price to the prejudice of the judgment-debtor. CHANDRA SEKHAR DHAR MISRA v. BHAGWAN DAS Pat. 124

——— O. XXI, r. 100. SEE Oaths Act, 1873 s. 11 591,

——— O. XXII, r. 4—Application under s. 4, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (XXV of 1934)—Some of creditors opposing—Application dismissed—Appeal—One of creditors respondents dying—Legal representatives not brought on record — Appeal, held abated as whole.

An application under s. 4, U. P. Encum. Estates Act was opposed by some of the creditors on the ground that the applicants were not "landlords" within the meaning of the Encum. Estates Act. The Special Judge upheld this objection and dismissed the application. During the pendency of the appeal one of the creditors who opposed the application and who was one of the respondents died and his legal representatives were not brought on record within limitation :

Held, that the interests of the creditors in defeating the application of the appellants were joint and indivisible and the interests of the deceased creditor could not be separated from those of the rest and the heirs of the deceased creditor were necessary parties. The appeal therefore abated as a whole as otherwise it would lead to conflicting and inconsistent decisions with regard to the same subject-matter. GHULAM ABBAS v. PRINCE SAFDAR JAH ZAHID ALI MIRZA Oudh 1 F B

——— O XXII, r. 4—Death of defendant during pendency of suit—Person brought on record not real legal representative of deceased defendant—Decree passed against such person — Whether binding on real legal representative — Conditions necessary for making such representation effective against true representative stated.

When a person who is impleaded in a suit as a legal representative of another, which he is not sufficiently represents the estate the result is that a decree passed against him in an assumed representative character is binding on the true representative though the latter was no party to the same. The conditions necessary for making such representation effective against the true representative are that the plaintiff must have acted bona fide, the decree obtained must be free from fraud or collusion, and the person wrongly impleaded must have been impleaded in a representative capacity and the decree must have been passed against him as representing the estate of the deceased; the plaintiff must have been ignorant of facts which operate to displace the title of the supposed legal representative and the person having the real title must not have intervened during the pendency of the suit.

Where in a suit for ejectment, on the death of the defendant, the plaintiff instead of bringing on record the deceased's daughter who was the real legal representative of the defendant, has brought on record the daughter's son without attempting to give any explanation of his act in not impleading the daughter of the deceased defendant, he cannot claim to have acted bona fide in this matter and the decree passed in his favour is not binding upon the daughter of the deceased defendant who is found in possession of the property in question and cannot be executed against her. KRISHNA VATI BABU v. GUNJARI Pat. 331

——— O. XXII, r. 4—One of respondents dying—His legal representatives not brought on record in time—Test whether appeal abates as whole, stated.

The question whether an appeal has or has not abated as a whole on the failure of the appellant to bring on record the legal representatives of one of the deceased respondents depends upon the nature and circumstances of each case. The test in such cases should be (1) whether the interests of the defendants in the suit are joint and indivisible so that the interest of the deceased cannot be separated from those of the rest and (2) whether in the event of the appeal being allowed as against the remaining respondents, there would or would not be two inconsistent and contradictory decrees in the same case with respect to the same subject-matter. GHULAM ABBAS v. PRINCE SAFDAR JAH ZAHID ALI MIRZA Oudh 1 F B

——— O. XXII, r. 9, O. XLIII, r. 1 (k)—Appeal, if lies from order refusing to set aside abatement of appeal.

The use of the word "suit" in cl. (k) of r 1, O. XLIII, Civil P. C, does not exclude the word "appeal," The expression "refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit" is merely a compendious way of referring to the provisions of O. XXII, r. 9. An appeal, therefore, lies from an order under O. XXII, r. 9 refusing to set aside abatement of appeal RAJU MUDALI v. CHINNARAJU NAIDU Mad. 832

——— O. XXII, r. 10. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 146 637

——— O. XXIII, r. 1—Appeal against dismissal of suit—Appellate Court after dismissal of appeal, if can allow plaintiff to withdraw suit with permission to file fresh one.

After dismissing an appeal preferred against the dismissal of a suit, the Appellate Court has no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with permission to file a fresh suit. LAL DEVI v. NATHU RAM Lah. 137

——— O. XXIII, r. 1—Order allowing application to withdraw suit with liberty to bring fresh suit—Whether appealable

No appeal lies against an order allowing an application under r. 1 of O. XXIII, Civil P. C, for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh. An application in revision, however, lies against such an order where the Court has been guilty of material irregularity in passing the order. RAM PADARATH MISIR v. DATA DIN MISIR Oudh 892

——— O. XXXII, r. 3 (C. P. Amenment). SEE Limitation 805

——— O. XXXII, r. 7 — Applicability to agreements made during execution proceedings.

Execution proceedings are a continuance of the suit, and O. XXXII, r. 7, Civil P. C., is applicable to an agreement or compromise made in the course of proceedings for the execution of the decree obtained in the suit. MA KALEMA v. MA KYAING Rang. 619

——— O. XXXII, r. 7—Minor seeking to avoid compromise voidable at his instance—Compromise must be declared void against all parties to compromise.

It is clear from the provisions of sub-r. (2) of r. 7, O. XXXII, that when a minor desires to avoid a compromise, which is voidable at his instance, it is voidable against all parties, and therefore must be declared void against all parties and not against some of them only. MA KALEMA v MA KAYING Rang. 619

——— O. XXXIII, r. 1—Omission to plead alternative case or implead party, if 'formal defects'—Failure to produce documents at proper time, whether "sufficient ground."

An omission to put forward an alternative case or to implead certain parties is not a formal defect. The failure to produce documents at the proper time is not a sufficient ground within the meaning of r. 1 of O. XXIII, Civil P. C, and in permitting the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh on these grounds the Court acts with material irregularity and its order can be revised. RAM PADARATH MISIR v. DATA DIN MISIR Oudh 892

——— O XXXIV. SEE Transfer of Property Act, 1882, r. 100 740

——— O. XXXIV, r. 1—Pusine mortgagee not impleaded in previous suit by prior mortgage, if can disregard decree made in previous suit.

A pusine mortgagee, who is not impleaded in a previous suit by the prior mortgagee, is entitled to disregard the decree made in the previous suit and to fall back upon the original mortgage only. UDAO DASS v GIRDHARI LAL Lah. 666

——— O. XXXIV, r. 6—Lessees of minerals hypothecating property to secure sums due by way of royalty—Suit for royalty against lessees and sub-lessees by sale of property—Decree passed—Sale not recovering full amount of royalty—Personal decree for balance, if can be passed against both the lessees and sub-lessees.

Where the lessees of minerals had hypothecated certain property to secure sums due by way of royalty, and the lessor in his suit asks that the amount due for royalty should be recovered by sale of the properties hypothecated and impleads the sub-lessees, a mortgage decree can be passed against the sub-lessees together with the lessees because they are interested in the property sought to be sold. But where the amount recovered by the sale does not prove sufficient, a personal decree under O. XXXIV, r. 6, Civil P. C. cannot be obtained against the sub-lessees merely because they are interested in the property. They were in no way personally liable to the plaintiff and, therefore, a personal decree cannot be passed against them. JOYRAM NARAYAN v SHIVA PRASAD SINGH Pat. 32

——— O. XXXIV, rr. 11, 2, 4—Mortgage suit—Interest up to date of preliminary decree—Interest for period subsequent to such date—Option given to Court.

Rule 11 of O. XXXIV, Civil P. C., must be read with rr. 2 and 4, O. XXXIV, r. 11 gives a discretion to the Court to allow interest up to the date fixed for redemption under the preliminary decree, and this interest is payable "on the principal amount found or declared due on the mortgage". This latter amount is obviously the amount found or declared due by the preliminary decree. Where the mortgage bond carries compound interest, the preliminary decree, according to the provisions of O. XXXIV, r. 2 and r. 4, shall allow compound interest from the date of the bond up to the date of that decree. The Court has no option to disallow interest at the contract rate up to the date of the preliminary decree, unless, of course, the rate of interest is found penal or excessive. For the period subsequent to the date of the preliminary decree, however, the Court has under O XXXIV, r. 11, the option either to allow or refuse interest. MADHO PRASAD SINGH v. MUKUTDHARI SINGH Pat. 661

——— O. XLI, r. 5. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O XLI, r. 6 109

——— O XLI, rr. 6, 5—Stay under O. XLI, r. 5 refused—Court, if justified in refusing jurisdiction under r. 6.

If an order has been made for sale and an application under O. XLI, r. 6, Civil P. C., has been made to the Court, the Court should stay the sale on suitable terms and the Court must consider what terms are suitable. The fact that the stay has been refused under O. XLI, r. 5 does not justify the Court in refusing to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it under O. XLI, r. 6. DHIRENDRA NATH ROY v. SAILAJ KUMAR BOSE Cal 109

——— O. XLI, r. 6 (2) — Appeal from mortgage decree directed only against interest decreed, pending—Executing Court, if can stay sale of mortgaged property on taking security from judgment-debtor.

An order passed by the executing Court under O. XLI, r. 6 (2), Civil P. C, in execution of a mortgage decree which is not separable, staying the sale of the mortgaged property pending disposal of the appeal directed only against the interest decreed by the trial Court, on condition that the judgment-debtor should furnish security for further interest, is not without jurisdiction and cannot be interfered with in revision. JUGAL PRASAD v. JADUBANS NARAYAN Pat. 592

——— O. XLI, rr. 23. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 107 871

——— O. XLI, r. 27 (1) (b)—Additional evidence—Appellate Court, when can allow.

Under O. XLI, r. 27 (1) (b) it is only where the Appellate Court "requires" (i e, finds it needful) that additional evidence can be admitted. It may be required to enable the Court to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, but in either case it must be the Court that requires it. The legitimate occasion for the exercise of this discretion is not whenever before the appeal is heard a party applies to adduce fresh evidence, but "when on examining the evidence as it stands, some inherent lacuna becomes apparent." Where there is no inherent lacuna or where the Court does not require it to pronounce the judgment, the additional evidence cannot be allowed. BALMUKUND RAM v. JANARDAN PRASAD NARAIN SINGH Pat. 129

Civil Procedure Code—contd.

——— O. XLIII, r. 1 (k). SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXV, r. 9 832

——— O. XLIII, r. 1 (u)—Property mortgaged for Rs. 8—Equity of redemption sold for Rs. 25,000—Redemption suit—First Appellate Court's order of remand—Second appeal, if competent.

Where the mortgagor mortgaged his immovable property for Rs. 8 and subsequently sold the equity of redemption for Rs. 25,000, in a suit for redemption by the purchaser:

Held, that a second appeal being competent under s. 31 (1) (b), N.-W. F. P. Courts Regulation, the first Appellate Court's order of remand was appealable under O. XLIII, r. 1 (u), Civil P. C. MOTAI v SIR MOHAMMAD AKBAR KHAN Pesh. 871

——— O. XLV, r. 17, Proviso (a)—Construction of Proviso (a) to O. XLV, r. 17.

The addition of the words to r 3 of O. XLV, Civil P. C., effected by proviso (a) to r. 17 makes it quite clear that it is unnecessary for the Court to consider in a petition filed in compliance with O. XLV, r. 2 the question whether there is a substantial question of law involved as to the interpretation of the Govt of India Act, 1935. A. L. S. P. P. L. SUBRAMANIAN v. MUTHUSWAMI GOUNDAN Mad. 865

——— O. XLVI, r. 1, O. VII, r. 10, s. 24—Suit valued at Rs. 205 filed in First Class Sub-Judge's Court allocated to joint First Class Sub-Judge—Case sent to Second Class Sub-Judge by District Judge's order—Latter allowing amendment—Suit becoming beyond his pecuniary jurisdiction and sent by him to First Class Court—Action reported to District Judge—District Judge informing grant of sanction—Reference by First Class Sub-Judge under O. XLVI, r. 1—Neither O. XLVI, r. 1, nor O. VII, r. 10 held applied—High Court held could transfer case under s. 24.

A suit for a declaration and injunction valued at Rs. 205 was instituted in the First Class Subordinate Judge's Court. According to the practice the case was allocated to the joint First Class Subordinate Judge for disposal. Subsequently, by order of the District Judge the case was sent to the Court of the extra joint Second Class Subordinate Judge, who was one of the subordinate Judges attached to the First Class Court. While the case was pending in the Court of the joint First Class Subordinate Judge, an application was made to amend the plaint by including additional properties in the list of suit properties and asking for partition. This application for amendment was granted by the Second Class Subordinate Judge after the case had been taken up by him. The result was that the suit became one beyond his pecuniary jurisdiction and so he sent the case to the First Class Court and reported the action taken by him to the District Judge. In a letter sent by the clerk of the Court of the District Judge by order of the District Judge, the First Class Subordinate Judge was informed that the sanction applied for, had been granted. When the case was taken up by the First Class Subordinate Judge, the defendants objected that he had no jurisdiction and that the only legal way of dealing with the case was that the Second Class Subordinate Judge should have returned the plaint for presentation to the First Class Subordinate Judge under O. VII, r. 10. The First Class Subordinate Judge doubted whether the District Judge had power to transfer the case under s. 24, Civil P. C., and also whether any order of transfer under that section had in fact been made. He submitted several questions for the opinion of the High Court under O. XLVI, r. 1:

Held, that O. XLVI, r. 1 had no application, nor did O. VII, r. 10 apply as the suit was properly instituted in the first instance.

Held, further that the High Court could properly take action under s. 24, of its own motion and in order to save difficulty and delay, transfer the suit to the First Class Court for disposal, since, the suit was properly filed in the First Class Court and the Second Class Subordinate Judge to whom it was transferred for disposal by administrative order had jurisdiction to entertain it and to deal with it up to the date of amendment. Hence there was no legal objection to the High Court passing an order under s. 24 transferring the case to the Court of the First Class Subordinate Judge.

[The High Court in this case passed an order under s. 24, Civil P. C., ex majore cautela, with drawing the suit from the Court of the extra joint Second Class Subordinate Judge and transferring it for trial to the First Class Subordinate Judge.] BABUBHAI VAMALCHAND KAGHRA v. HIRALAL VAMALCHAND KAGHRA Bom. 242

——— Sch. II.

SEE Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, s 271 17 F B
SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s 141 17 F B
SEE Companies Act, 1913, s. 152 553

——— ——— paras. 5, 17—Agreement for reference to arbitration—Persons to be arbitrators specified—Some of them refusing to act—Court, if can substitute other persons.

There is some difference between the procedure that is to be followed where the reference to arbitration is made in a pending suit and where there is a mere agreement for reference to arbitration which is sought to be filed in Court. In the latter case, the Court obviously cannot go beyond the terms of the agreement, and if it specifies the persons who are to be appointed arbitrators and makes no provision for the case where the arbitrators refuse to act, the Court cannot under para 5, Sch. II, Civil P. C., substitute in the place of the named arbitrators certain other persons TARA PRASAD BALIARSEY v BAIJNATH PRASAD BALIARSEY Pat. 756

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 73 — Strict construction — Burden to establish infringement of law is on prosecution—"Outside the office" in s. 73 (a), if mean outside premises—S. 73, object.

Section 73 of the Companies Act, being a penal provision has to be construed strictly, and therefore the burden is very strongly on the prosecution, to show that there really has been an infringement of the law and that in circumstances in the case a meaning must be given to the section which is not the literal one. By s. 73 the Legislature desired to make the company itself continually bring to the notice of those who dealt or might deal with it the fact that it was limited. The section has nothing to do with advertising the whereabouts of a company or affording facilities to members of the public in finding its place of business. The requirements of the Act would be satisfied by a board of the necessary conspicuousness and legibiliiy outside the office room inside the building in which it is situated. It cannot be held that when an office is situated within a compound the law requires the name of the company to be painted or affixed outside the compound as well as outside the office. The words "outside the office" in s. 73 (a) do not mean outside the premises. H. L. BATLIWALLA SONS & Co. LTD. v. EMPEROR Bom. 620

Companies Act—concld.

——— s. 152—Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), applicability of—Arbitration with Court's intervention and in which company is interested—Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), does not apply but is governed by Sch. II, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908).

The Arbitration Act, applies in a case falling within the scope of the Act even when the locus of the subject-matter was outside a presidency town, provided, one of the parties or both of them were companies registered under the Companies Act. The Preamble of the Act makes it clear that that Act has application only to arbitrations without the intervention of the Court. Where, therefore, a reference to arbitration, in which a company is interested, with the intervention of the Court is governed by Sch II, Civil P. C, relating to arbitrations with the intervention of the Court. The Arbitration Act has no application to such a case. EAST BENGAL BANK, LTD. v. JOGESH CHANDRA BANERJEE Cal. 523

——— s. 195. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 476 170

——— s. 229. SEE Companies Act, 1913, s. 230-A 818

——— ss. 230-A, 229—Winding-up of insolvent company—General law of insolvency, if applies—Application by customer of Bank after passing of compulsory winding up order, for rescinding contract with Bank and for damages — Applicant, if entitled to be heard.

The general law of insolvency applies to the winding-up of an insolvent company. A creditor in insolvency cannot in ordinary circumstances bring a suit against the Official Assignee. If he claims to be a creditor he must file a proof of his debt with the Official Assignee. If his claim is rejected, then he has the right of asking the Judge sitting in insolvency to reverse the Official Assignee's decision. Hence a customer of a Bank who has filed an application under s. 230-A, Companies Act, for an order rescinding the contract with the Bank and awarding him damages, subsequent to an order of compulsory winding-up of the Bank is passed, is entitled to be heard. If the Court then came to the conclusion that the contract had already been rescinded it would have no power to pass an order on the application and the appellant would have to be relegated to the ordinary procedure provided by the Act for proving any debt in the winding-up. The applicant cannot be relegated to the procedure of filing a suit unless he is heard. R. O. Bhide v. TRAVANCORE NATIONAL AND QUILON BANK LTD., (IN LIQUIDATION), Mad. 818

——— s. 282-B. SEE Banker and Customer 821

Company—Payment of gratuity to ex-servant — By-laws not providing for such payment — General Body, if can sanction it—Mere fact that Board of management is delegated power to frame by-laws, whether takes away General Body's power to sanction gratuity.

The payment of gratuity to an ex-servant is a matter only relating to the administration and management of the affairs of a company and so long as the General Body acts within the ambit of the Articles of Association, any act done by them in regard to the management of the company will be intra vires and not ultra vires. Even though the by-laws did not provide for payment of a gratuity because under the rules, the Board of Management could not grant it, still, it is always open to the General Body to sanction a gratuity which an officer according to the sense of the meeting of the General Body deserved. The fact that the board of management is delegated the power to frame by-laws does not take away the power of the general body to sanction any payment of gratuity in exceptional cases which have not been provided by the by-laws as framed by the board of management. This power is always vested in the General Body and by the mere fact of delegation, it cannot be taken away. R. K. PRESANNA VENKATESA RAO v. TRICHINOPOLY DISTRICT CO-OPERATIVE CENTRAL BANK, LTD. Mad. 89

Company—concld.

Confession.

SEE Criminal trial 14, 284, 873

SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 30 14, 465

——— Co-accused—Confession by co-accused if can be made basis of conviction.

The very existence of s. 30, Evi. Act postulates that the confession of the co-accused may be used in cases where the evidence afforded—and some such evidence there must be—lacks the requisite volume and certainty to insure conviction. ABDUL GAFOOR, In re Nag. 265 ———Retracted confession—Value and use of—Self-inculpatory confession—How far can be acted upon.

The retraction of a confession may throw doubt either on the truth of it or on the fact that it was voluntarily made, but it certainly does not follow because a confession is retracted that it was either untrue or involuntary, and the truth or voluntariness of a confession operates equally—where such a confession is self-inculpatory in respect of the person who made it and the person implicated therein. Merely because these confessions have been retracted in the Court of Session, it cannot be said that they were involuntarily made. The motive for making a self-inculpatory confession is the very simple one of an expectation of leniency in the matter of sentence, and where a number of people are jointly tried and some have made confession to a Magistrate before the trial and some have not, it is again not unnatural that persons who have made confessions should retract them under pressure and persuation by their fellows who have not confessed.

No doubt when a confession is retracted and the truth of it denied, the person retracting has lied on one occasion or the other, and although in the case where the retractions are merely in respect of the voluntariness of the statements and there is no express denial of the fact that the confessions were true in substance, it must be presumed that if these accused had been asked by the Magistrate, as they should have been, whether the confessions were false in substance or no, they would have replied in the affirmative. This does not, absolve the Court from examining the question whether the confessions are in fact true or not and, if true, whether they can be taken into consideration along with the other evidence.

Retracted confessions must be used with caution, but when it is possible to come to the conclusion that the confessions cannot be otherwise than true, they may be taken into consideration in connection with the evidence appearing in the case, whether they are retracted or no. ABDUL GAFOOR, In re. Nag. 265

Consent decree. SEE Decree 217 F B

Construction. SEE Lease. 407

Contempt—Contempt of Court—Essence of offence—Insolvency application by L against N containing statements defamatory of N—Complaint by N against L under s. 500, Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), to vindicate his character and integrity—N held not guilty of contempt of Court.

It is of great importance to the administration of justice that it should be allowed to take an unfettered course and not be sullied and besmirched in any manner. The essence of an offence of contempt of Court lies in the fact that the person complained of has done something which might have the effect of prejudicing the fair trial of a pending case.

L applied to the Insolvency Court praying that N should be adjudged insolvent and in this application made certain statements defamatory of N. N instituted a complaint against L under s. 500, I. P. C., in order to vindicate his character and integrity;

Held, that N was not guilty of contempt of Court, as nothing was done by N from which it could be gathered that if L withdrew the allegations which he had made against N's character in the insolvency proceedings N would drop the complaint which he had preferred under s. 500, I P. C.

Held, also that threat by N before the institution of the insolvency proceedings that if L filed insolvency proceedings against N, he would file a complaint for defamation against L amounted only to a warning so that an unguarded action may not be taken and did not amount to contempt of Court. RADHEY LAL v. NIRANJAN NATH All. 260

Contempt of Court. SEE Contempt 260

Contract—Minor—Minor entering into contract representing to be major—If estopped from proving his minority at date of contract.

Where a minor misrepresents his age and claims to be a major, and enters into a contract he is not estopped from proving that he was really a minor on the date of the contract. TIKKI LAL v. KOMALCHAND Nag. 178

———Pakka adatya—Forward contract—Held, that suit by constituent against pakka adatya was for unpaid claim and fell within bye-law 38 of the East India Cotton Association.

There was an initial sale of 200 bales of cotton by the defendant who was pakka adatya, for the plaintiff and a contract note dated November 6, 1939, was sent by the defendant to the plaintiff and signed by the plaintiff. Thereafter, owing to fluctuations in the market, the defendant demanded margin money but the plaintiff failed to pay the same. Thereupon the defendant closed the transaction on February 3, 1940. On receipt of intimation thereof the plaintiff repudiated this closing transaction. The defendant thereupon offered to resell, if the margin, as demanded, was paid. To that there was no reply. The defendant thereupon sent a contract note with his letter of February 6, 1940, to the plaintiff. The plaintiff retained the same. On March 19, 1940, the plaintiff sent a telegram to the defendant as follows: "Kindly settle 200 bales cotton; vide your contract note C 694 purchasing market price to-day wire settlement." The defendants sent a reply intimating that the purchase had already been effected on February 3, under contract No. 15.3 which was already sent and there was no outstanding business Contract note No. C. 694 was the contract dated November 6, 1939. The plaintiff then filed a suit to recover the amount due to them on the footing of the difference between the price noted in the contract, dated November 6, 1939, and the current price in the market on March 19, 1940:

Held, that the suit was in respect of an unpaid claim in relation to the contract dated November 6, 1939, and clearly fell within the words of bye-law 38 as of the East India Cotton Association, Ltd., subject to which the contract note dated November 6, 1939, was accepted by the plaintiff. SUKHANANAN RAMDHIN v. MANIKLAL KANHIALAL FIRM. Bom. 779 ————Public policy—Marriage performed outside British India to evade provisions of Sarda Act, whether opposed to public policy—Contribution towards such marriage if can be recovered in execution of decree.

The power of the Court to decline to enforce contracts and other instruments on grounds of public policy is a power which should be confined within the limits laid down by authority. Clearly the Court would not enforce a contract and presumably would not enforce a decree if the enforcement implied the approbation by the Court of an act which was contrary to law. But I see no reason why the Court should refuse to enforce a payment under a decree because the object for which a payment is made is contrary to the law of British India when that object was actually performed in a State where it was perfectly legal. A marriage, therefore, performed outside British India in order to evade the provisions of what is popularly known as the Sarda Act, is not one opposed to public policy and contribution towards it can be recovered in execution of a decree. CHADALAVADA ANAND ARAMAYYA v. CHADALAVADA SUBBAYYA Mad. 112

————Sale of goods—Vendee paying earnest money but committing default—Earnest money, if can be recovered—Contract falling through vendee's default—If can claim balance of purchase money paid excluding earnest—Vendor's right to set-off claim for damages suffered by him—What vendor must prove.

Even in respect of sale of goods it is customary in India to receive sums of money by way of deposit or earnest and such sums are forfeited when default is committed by the vendee.

Where a contract for sale of goods has failed through default of the vendee, he is entitled to recover the balance of the purchase money paid by him (excluding the earnest money) and the vendors can only resist the claim by seeking to set off against the said sum any damages which they might have incurred by reason of the vendee's non-performance of the contract. But before they substantiate their claim they should prove their readiness and willingness to perform their part of the contract and that they were in a position to perform the contract on the date fixed for its performance. SANAM NARAYANAMURTHI v. MANAPALLI NAGESWARA RAO Mad. 751.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 2 (d). SEE Contract Act, 1872, s. 126 51

——— ss 23 and 30. SEE Insurance 155

——— s. 25—Promise to pay portion of barred debt —If can be sued for whole debt.

If a person promises to pay a portion of a barred debt, he can only be sued for that portion alone and not for the whole debt. PULIYATH GOVINDA NAIR v. PARBMALATHIL ACHUTHAN NAIR Mad. 339

——— s. 25—Words "by the person to be charged therewith", scope of — Whether limited to person who was indebted from beginning.

The words "by the person to be charged therewith" in s. 25, Contract Act, are wide enough to cover the case of a person who agrees to become liable for the payment of a debt due by another and need not be limited to the person who was indebted from the beginning. PULIYATH GOVINDA NAIR v. PAREKALATHIL ACHUTHAN NAIR Mad. 399

——— s. 25 (3)—Agreement by A to release B's brother from liability which is enforceable at time of agreement is good consideration for new agreement between A and B.

An agreement by the plaintiff to release the defendant's brother from liability if it was legally enforceable at the time when the agreement was reached is quite a good consideration for the new agreement between the parties to the suit. But if the plaintiff's claim against the defendant's brother was barred by limitation on the date on which this agreement was arrived at and the contract was not reduced to writing as required by s. 25 (3), Contract Act, it would remain unenforceable. PULIYATH GOVINDA NAIR v. PAREKALATHIL ACHUTHAN NAIR Mad. 399

——— s. 25 (3)—Promise referred to in s. 25 (3) must be express.

The promise referred to in s. 25, sub-cl. (3) of the Contract Act must be an express one and cannot be held to be sufficient if the intention to pay is unexpressed and has to be gathered from a number of circumstances. In other words there must be a distinct promise to pay before the document can be said to fall within the provisions of this section. PULIYATH GOVINDA NAIR v. PAREKALATHIL ACHUTHAN NAIR Mad. 399

——— s. 30—Broker acting for customer—Customer gambling — Whether can set up plea of gaming and wagering against broker's claim.

Where a broker acts on behalf of his customer and the customer gambles the customer cannot set up a plea of gaming and wagering against the broker's claim. GOALDAS DAGA v. MANICKLAL BAITY Cal. 603

——— s. 60—Principal and surety — Option exercised by creditor — Appropriation of repayments in principal's independent account—Surety if can claim benefits.

Where a creditor has exercised his option under s. 60, Contract Act and has appropriated the repayments in the account which he had with the principal debtor independently of the contract of guarantee, the surety cannot in law raise any objection to this appropriation and is not entitled to the benefit thereof. KUCKREJA LTD. v. SAID ALAM Lah. 206

——— s. 65—Applicability—Essentials.

Section 65 Contract Act cannot be held to apply to a case of a contract void as being contrary to the statute law which the parties must be presumed to have known at the time when they entered into the contract. The section has no application when the object of the agreement is illegal to the knowledge of both parties at the time when it was made. DHANNA MUNDA v. KOSILA BANIAN Pat. 851

——— ss. 65, 68—Cash payment made under contract with minor, if can be recovered.

A contract with a minor being void ab initio no cash payment made under such a contract is recoverable from him. TIKKI LAL v. KOMALCHAND Nag. 187

——— s. 68—Funds advanced to Hindu male minor for his own marriage do not fall under s. 68 and cannot be recovered from minor's property —Funds supplied to minor for minor female's marriage can, however, be recovered from his ancestral property.

Advancing of funds to a male Hindu minor for meeting his own marriage expenses is not supplying him with necessaries suited to his condition in life within the meaning of s. 68 of the Contract Act, and a person advancing such funds is not entitled to be reimbursed from the property of such a minor. The Hindu Law does not enjoin the marriage of a Hindu male before the age of majority. The case of Hindu females is, however, different. If funds are supplied to a minor owning ancestral property, for the marriage of a minor female in the family the person who supplies may be able to get himself reimbursed from the estate of the minor. TIKKI LAL v KOMALCHAND Nag. 178

——— s. 69—Court of Wards paying off creditors of deceased Muhammadan from his pensions and jagirs—Partition suit by some of deceased's heirs not entitled to pensions and jagirs—Heirs if bound to re-imburse Court of Wards to the extent of amount paid

The Court of Wards assumed superintendence of the deceased Muhammadan's property and paid off his creditors from out of his pensions and jagirs. The heirs who instituted the suit for partition of their shares were held not entitled to the pensions and jagirs:

Held, that the payments made by the Court of Wards could not be taken advantage of by the heirs who were bound to recoup the Court of Wards to the extent of the payments made by it and the fact that the pensions and the jagirs did not belong to the Court of Wards was a question entirely between it and the head of the deceased's family appointed by the Govt. QAISAR JAHAN BEGAM v. DEPUTY COMMISSIONER DELHI PROVINCE Lah. 829

——— s. 72—Tax paid under misapprehension as to liability for it—If can be recovered back.

A person who makes payment under a mistake of law cannot recover it back again. Hence, a person who makes a payment of tax under a misapprehension as to his liability to do so cannot recover it in a Court of Law, either under s. 72, Contract Act or under equitable principles. VEMURI RAMJEE RAO v. MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MASULIPATAM Mad. 559

——— ss. 126, 134, 2 (d)—Relative of judgment-debtor offering cheque to decree-holder in satisfaction of his claim—Relative, if surety, if can take advantage of s. 134 — Consideration for the transaction—Liability of relative.

Where a decree-holder has attached his judgment-debtor's property and a relative of the judgment-debtor offers a cheque to the decree holder in satisfaction of his claim, the relative is not a surety for the judgment-debtor and if he stops payment of the cheque, the decree-holder has an independent cause of action against the relative and the relative cannot take advantage of s. 134 Contract Act.

And where the relative pays certain amount in satisfaction of the decree-holder's claim against the judgment-debtor, the consideration for the payment consists in the decree-holder not insisting on attachment of the judgment-debtor's property. If therefore the relative withholds the payment, he is liable to the decree-holder. KARM DIN NAWAB DIN v ANANT RAM LALA HUKUM CHAND Pesh. 51

——— s. 134. SEE Contract Act, 1872, s 126 51

——— — s. 134 SEE Contract Act, 1872, s. 137 344

——— ss. 37, 134—Surety—Discharge of—Claim against principle debtor allowed to be time-barred —Remedy against surety, if lost.

A creditor does not lose his remedy against the surety by reason of the fact that he did not prefer his claim within time against the principal debtor. JAGDAMBIKA PRATAP NARAIN SINGH v. TIR SINGH BAHADUR SINGH Oudh 344

——— s. 213—Demand should be made on agent at his place of business.

Section 213, Contract Act imposes the duty "on demand" by the principal. If anything, these words suggest that the demand should be made on the agent at his place of business. KOKA ANDINARAYANA v. BRAVARAJU LAKSHMINARAYANA RAO Mad. 81

Conversion—Principal and agent—Relief on ground of conversion, when can be had—Agent advancing purchase money for goods purchased on account of principal—Principal has neither title to nor right to present possession of goods until he pays price—No question of conversion arises.

To entitle a person to claim relief on the ground of conversion or trover, he must show not only title to the property concerned but also a right to the present possession thereof.

Where the agent himself advanced the purchase moneyr in respect of the goods purchased by him on account of the principal, the property in the goods cannot be said to have passed to the principal until the amount advanced by the agent for the purchase of the goods is paid to him. No question, therefore can arise, of conversion by the agent in respect of property title to which remains vested in him. Moreover, the agent by reason of his having purchased the goods on his own responsibility, though on account of the principal is vis-a-vis the latter, in the position of an unpaid vendor with a right to retain the goods until payment of the balance of the purchase money. The principal is not, therefore, entitled to possession of the goods even if the agent notwithstanding the non-payment of the balance of the purchase money, had intended that the property in the goods should pass to the principal. YARLAGADDA VENKATASUBBAYYA v. GAJJALA SATYANARAYANAMURTY Mad. 365

Co-operative Societies Act (II of 1912), s. 23—

—Scope—Section, if has reference to debts of outgoing members due to Society.

The words "the debts of a registered society as the existed at the time when he ceased to be a member in s. 33, Co-operative Societies Act refer to the debts due from the Society to third persons and it is with regard to these debts that the liability of a past member has been confined in the section to a period of two years from the date of his ceasing to be a member and no further. The debts referred to in the section have no reference whatever to the debts of the outgoing members due to the Society itself. BELAHRI CO OPERATIVE SOCIETY v. FUTTU LAL Oudh 524

——— s. 43—Rules under r. 20 (12) (ii)—Bar of jurisdiction of Civil Court, if absolute—Reference to arbitration pending—Fresh reference to another arbitrator is incompetent and of no legal effect.

The bar of jurisdiction of a Civil Court created by r. 20 (12) (ii) of the Co-operative Societies Rules is not absolute but limited only. A Civil Court is perfectly competent to entertain a suit in all cases where it can be shown that the act of the authorities of the Co-operative Societies is not within the scope of the Act or is otherwise without jurisdiction.

Where a dispute referred to arbitration is still pending a fresh reference to another arbitrator is not competent and must be disregarded as of no legal effect upon the rights of the parties. BELAHRI CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY v. FUTTU LAL Oudh 524

——— s. 43—Rules under—U. P. Co-operative Societies Rules, rr. 20 (7), 20 (12) (ii), 20 (i)—Violation of r. 20 (7)—Effect—Award, if invalid—Award invalid—Failure to appeal—Award, whether become final and conclusive.

The provisions of rr. 20 (7) (i) (ii) and (iii) of the Rules framed by the U. P. Govt under the Co-operative Societies Act, refer merely to defects of procedure and do not invalidate the award by reason of such defects or irregularities.

Even if the award is invalid on the ground that it was ante-dated or had been made after the expiration of the time fixed for making the award and without obtaining any extension of time or because it was inoperative on the ground of certain procedural defects and irregularities, the proper course for setting aside the award is by means of an appeal to the Assistant Registrar as provided by r. 20 (12) (i). If no such appeal is preferred within limitation the award becomes final and conclusive between the parties. BELAHRI CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY v. PUTTU LAL Oudh 524

Co-owners—Suit by one co-owner alone without joining others, to eject trespasser—Maintainability.

One of several co-owners is entitled to maintain an action in ejectment against a trespasser without joining the other co-owners as parties to the action. Where the plaintiff is the owner of a share of one of the mortgagors in principle there is no bar to his obtaining possession of the mortgaged property. SAMBHU GOSAIN v PIYARI MIAN Pat. 253

Co-sharers—Decree for possession not executed—Decree-holder does not become co-sharer with judgment-debtor is not entitled to share profits.

Without executing a decree for possession a decree-holder cannot become a share-holder with the judgment-debtors and cannot consequently ask for a share in the profits of the property. RAMESHRI v. VAISANO DITTI Pesh. 819

——— No partition of village among co-sharers by metes and bounds but co-sharers in possession of specific plots of bakasht land—Exchange of plots between plaintiffs and defendants—Under deed plaintiffs entitled to be in possession of house standing on part of land given by defendants—Defendants remaining in possession—Suit by plaintiff alleging that they rented out house to defendants, for arrears of rent, ejectment and mesne profits—Transaction held binding upon defendants —Mesne profits held could not be awarded, as according to plaintiffs, defendants were lawfully in possession.

There had been no partition of the village among the co-sharer landlords by metes and bounds, but the co sharers were in possession of specific plots of bakasht lands. Out of the lands in possession of the plaintiffs they had given 14 decimals to the defendants for building a canana house, and the defendants gave in exchange certain lands to them in lieu of the land which they had got. The deed of exchange clearly stated that the plaintiffs were entitled to be in possession of the house standing on 3½ decimals of land. The plaintiffs brought a suit alleging that they had after the exchange, let out the house standing on 3½ decimals of land to the defendants and that the defendants had not paid the rent for the house and asked for the following reliefs: (1) a decree for the arrears of rent, and (2) a decree for ejectment and mesne profits:

Co-sharers—concld.

Held, that the transaction was nothing but a mutual arrangement between two landlords who were in possession of specific plots of bakasht land in the village. This arrangement might not be binding on the other co sharer landlords who were not parties to it and might be disregarded when there would be a partition of the village by metes and bounds; but so long as the village was not partitioned, it must bind the plaintiffs as well as the defendants.

Held, further, that their suit was rightly dismissed in so far as their claim for the rent of the house was concerned as this story was found to be untrue.

Held, also, that as the plaintiffs' case was that the defendants were lawfully in possession of the house as tenants, their claim for mesne profits must be disallowed. KHAKHAN SINGH v. RAM ISHWAR SINGH Pat. 345

Costs—Lower Court wrongly passing decree against appellant at invitation of respondent—Appeal by appellant to rectify mistake—Respondent not contesting appeal—His liability for costs of appellant.

Where the fact that the Court passed the decree at the invitation of the plaintiff-respondent and has compelled the appellants to bring proceedings in appeal and to incur costs in order to have the matter rectified, it would be inequitable to make the defendants appellants, who were clearly right, liable to pay the whole of the costs of the appeal, merely on the ground that the plaintiff-respondent did not contest the appeal. JOYRAM NARAYAN v. SHIVA PRASAD SINGH Pat. 32 ——— Matters arising in several suits substantially same—All cases heard together—One set of costs for all cases together.

Where the matters arising in several suits are substantially the same and all the suits are heard together, the Court should allow one set of costs for the three cases together in fixing the special Advocate's fee. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAKHUBN Rang. 61 ——— Trial Court's discretion—Interference with.

The discretion exercised by the trial Court in allowing the defendant his costs on the ground that he was not necessary party cannot be interfered with in the absence of sufficient grounds. SECRETARY OF STATE v. MALRAJU VENKATA NARASIMHARAO BAHADUR Mad. 37

Court-fee—Appeal—Appeal arising out of suit under s. 33, U. P. Agriculturists' Relief Act (XXVII of 1934)—Ad valorem court-fee is payable on amount involved therein.

An ad valorem fee should be charged on an appeal in a suit under s. 33, U. P. Agri. Relief Act, on the amount involved therein.

Where, therefore, in an appeal arising out of a suit brought under s 33, Agri Relief Act the appellant challenges the amount awarded against him by the trial Court and further claims that he should himself have been awarded a certain amount, he is liable to pay a court-fee on an ad valorem basis on the total amount, that is, the amount decreed against him and the amount claimed by him. GIRJA WATI v. QUDRATULLAH KHAN Oudh 300 ——— Suit for declaration that sale-deed was fictitious and did not affect plaintiff in realising his decree—No prayer for cancellation of deed—Suit is mere declaratory and involves no consequential relief.

A suit was brought by the plaintiff for a declaration that a sale deed was fraudulent and fictitious and does not stand in his way in realising the amount due in respect of a decree obtained by him, without any request for the cancellation of the deed, is merely of a declaratory character and involves no consequential relief. No ad valorem court-fee is therefore, payable on the amount for which the deed was executed. SWAMI DAYAL v. RAM BAHADUR SINGH Oudh 343

Court-fee—concld.

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) s. 6 (4) (as amended by U. P. Court Fees (Amendment) Act XIX of 1938)—Suit for partition—Point as to deficiency in court-fee raised—Court not following procedure under s. 6 (4) but deciding issue with other issues—Court ordering plaintiffs to make good deficiency and preparation of decree to be deferred till deficiency was made good—Deficiency not made good within time allowed—Appeal preferred styling it as under s. 96, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), and s. 6(4), Court Fees Act (VII of 1870)—Appeal, held could not be treated as revision under s. 115, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), nor as appeal from decree but as appeal from under s. 6 (4).

The necessity of faithfully following the provisions of cls. 2, 3 and 4 of s. 6, Court Fees Act is imperative in order to avoid anomalies.

In a partition suit one of the points raised in defence was that the plaint was insufficiently stamped. The Judge did not follow the procedure enjoined by s. 6 (4), Court Fees Act, and decided the issue as regards the court-fee along with the other issues framed in the case. He held that the court-fee paid was insufficient and, by the operative portion of his judgment, directed the plaintiff to make good the deficiency in the court-fee and further ordered that the preparation of the decree be deferred till the deficiency in the court-fee was made good. The plaintiff, however, did not pay the deficiency within the time allowed, and filed an appeal styling the same as a first appeal under s. 96, Civil P. C., and s. 6-A, Court Fees Act:

Held, that as the decision of the Court would be appealable to the High Court as a decree, s. 115, Civil P C, could have no application to the case and, therefore, the memorandum of appeal filed by the plaintiff could not be treated as an application in revision Nor could the appeal be considered as an appeal against a decree because no decree had been prepared in the case The plaintiff was, however, entitled to assail by appeal the order of the Court below calling upon him to make good the deficiency in the court-fee and the appeal must, therefore, be regarded as an appeal from order in accordance with the provisions of s. 6-A; Court Fees Act. BAIJNATH PRASAD v. TEJPAL All. 133

——— s. 7 (IV-B) and Proviso—Under Proviso, court-fee to be calculated upon market value at date of presentation of plaint—Suit for injunction filed before proviso came into force—Valuation of suit at Rs. 5 was proper—Court-fee on Rs. 5 is proper for purposes of appeal.

Under the proviso to s. 7 (IV-B) it is the amount mentioned in the plaint which is the basis of the valuation and, therefore, the Court must look back to the date of the institution of the suit and calculate the court fee upon the market value at the date of presenting the plaint. Hence, a suit for injunction must be deemed to have been correctly valued at Rs. 5 when at the date of the presentation of the plaint s 7 (IV-B) proviso was not in force and court-fee paid on memorandum of appeal on such valuation is correct. CHHAKAURI SINGH v SRI KRISHNA PANDE All. 747

Court Fees Act—contd.

——— s. 7 (iv) (c). SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, Sch II, Art. 17 (iii) 641 F B

——— s. 7 (iv) (c) — Consequential relief in s 7 (iv) (c).

The expression 'consequential relief' in Art 7 (iv) (c), Court Fees Act, means some relief, which would follow directly from the declaration given, the valuation of which is not capable of being definitely ascertained and which is not specifically provided for anywhere in the Act and cannot be claimed independently of the declaration as a 'substantial relief'. It follows therefore that if the relief claimed in any case is found in reality to be tantamount to a substantial relief and not a mere 'consequential relief' in the above sense, the plaintiff must pay court-fee on the substantial relief. ZEB UL NISA v DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F B

——— s. 7 (iv) (c)—Ss. 8 and 9, Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), interpretation of.

All that s. 7 (iv) (c), Court Fees Act, requires is that the plaintiff should state the value of the relief in the plaint. It could scarcely have been intended that the plaintiff should value the relief at one figure for jurisdiction and at another for court-fee. Sections 8 and 9, Suits Valuation Act, show that except when specific rules to the contrary have been framed under s. 9, the value for purposes of court-fee and jurisdiction must be the same. ZEB-UL-NISSA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah 641 F B

——— s. 7 (iv) (c)—Suit by Hindu widow for possession of husband's property, against his relatives, whether for declaration and consequential relief.

On the death of a Hindu leaving his property in possession of members of another branch of his family, his widows brought a suit on the allegation that he died in a state of separation and that they as his widows were entitled to possession of the property left by him:

Held, that the suit was one for possession and not for a declaration and consequential relief namely possession of the property following the declaration. BESAR KUAR v. RAMBHIT SINGH Pat. 538

——— s. 7 (iv) (c), Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii)—Declaration held could not be granted as suit did not fall under s. 42, Specific Relief Act—Result is dismissal of suit and not assessment of higher court-fee—Declaratory relief found to involve consequential relief within meaning of s. 7 (iv) (c)—Plaintiff can state his valuation of relief.

If it is held that the declaration asked for cannot be granted because it does not fall under s. 42, Specific Relief Act, the result, should be dismissal of the suit on that ground, and not assessment of a higher court-fee. If, on the other hand, it is found that the declaratory relief claimed involves a consequential relief within the meaning of s. 7 (iv) (c), Court Fees Act, it will be for the plaintiff to state the amount at which he values the relief as provided in that section. ZEB UL NISSA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F B

——— s. 7 (iv) (c), Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi), Sch I, Art. 17—Suit for declaration that property is waqf and alienations thereof are ineffectual against waqf property — Nature of — Relief — Court-fee payable.

Court Fees Act—contd.

Where the plaintiff sued for a twofold declaration that the property described in the plaint was waqf and that certain alienations thereof by the mutwalli and his brother were null and void and were ineffectual against the waqf property:

Held, that the first part of the relief viz., that it be declared that the property in dispute was waqf was purely declaratory and it involved no consequential relief. Had it stood by itself a court-fee of Rs 10 would undoubtedly have been sufficient. The second part of the declaration however stood on a different footing. The plaintiff wished to have the alienations of the waqf property to be declared null and void and ineffectual as against the waqf property. In substance, the second part of the relief as claimed was tantamount to the setting aside or cancellation of the alienations referred to in the plaint In the circumstances the relief claimed by the plaintiffs could not be treated as a purely declaratory one and inasmuch as it could not be said to follow directly from the declaration sought for in the first part of the relief. The relief claimed in this case could not be treated as a declaration with a 'consequential relief' falling within s. 7 (iv) (c), Court Fees Act. The relief claimed fell neither under s. 7 (iv) (c) nor under Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii) but under the residuary article, Sch. I, Art. 17 and a court-fee of Rs. 10 was sufficient for the first relief as to declaration that the property was waqf, but the second relief which was a substantive one in the shape of setting aside of alienations required ad valorem court fee on the value of the subject-matter of the sales.

Held, also that even if the suit were held to fall under s. 7 (iv) (c), it was doubtful whether that would help the plaintiffs in this case. The plaintiffs had themselves valued the relief in the plaint at rupees ten lacs. They did so, for purposes of jurisdiction but they were bound to fix the same for the purposes of court-fee in view of ss, 8 and 9, Suits Valuation Act.

Held, further that the suit did not fall within the purview of s 42, Specific Relief Act. ZEB-UL-NISA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F B

——— s. 7 (iv) (f)—Suit for accounts dismissed —Appeal must be stamped according to full amount of valuation in plaint.

The plaintiff whose suit for accounts is dismissed is bound to stamp his memorandum of appeal according to the full amount of the valuation in the plaint MIDDE SAMPATIRAYUDU v SONTI VENKATARATNAM Mad. 597

——— s. 8-B 3)—Deficit court-fee not paid within time fixed—Proper order to be passed.

Proper order for the Court to pass, when the deficit court-fee is not paid within time fixed by the Court, is an order for dismissal under the provisions of s 8-B (3), Court Fees Act, and not an order rejecting the plaint under the provisions of O. VII, r. 11, Civil P. C. JARIMON KHATOON v. SECRETARY OF STATE Cal. 144

——— s 8-C—S. 8 C, applicability

Section 8-C, Court Fees Act, is inapplicable to a case falling within s. 7 (iv), cl. (c). JARIMON KHATOON v. SECRETARY OF STATE Cal. 144

——— s. 12 (as amended in Bengal in 1935) —No question as to class of suit—Valuation of Court of first instance is final.

Section 12, Court Fees Act has no application when the question for decision is as to the class under which a suit fell and not merely of valuation in that class. If there is a question of valuation, there being no question as to the class in which the suit fell, the valuation made by the Court of first instance is final. JARIMON KHATOON v. SECRETARY OF STATE Cal. 144

——— s. 12 (2) — Applies to all parties to appeal where deficient court-fee is paid whether by appellant or by any other party.

Section 12 (2), Court Fees Act, applies to all the parties to the appeal. Its provisions are very wide and it definitely refers to the party by whom the fee has been paid. It cannot be intended to apply only to a case where the deficiency was by the appellant. VENKATARAMASASTRI v. VENKATASUBRAMANIA DIKSHITAR Mad. 758

——— s. 12 (ii)—Power of Appellate Court to correct mistake made by lower Court in respect of court-fees.

Where a Court accepts a plaint or memorandum of appeal bearing a stamp of certain value, it must be deemed to have decided that that was the proper court-fee. Section 12 (ii), Court Fees Act gives an Appellate Court power when an appeal comes before it to correct a mistake made below in respect of court-fees. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTIAR, In re Mad. 490

——— s. 17 — Section, if controlled by s. 67-A, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) — Suit embracing two or more mortgages—Court-fees should be paid on each mortgage and not on aggregate amount of claim.

What s. 17, Court Fees Act, means is that in a suit which embraces two or more distinct causes of action court-fee shall be paid on each cause of action. Each mortgage constitutes a distinct cause of action. Consequently, in a suit which embraces two or more mortgages court-fee shall be paid on each mortgage and not on the aggregate amount of the claim. Section 67-A, T. P. Act, does not control, s 17, Court Fees Act. R. M, P. L. S. CHETTIAR FIRM v. KOORMIAH Rang. 711

——— Sch. I, Art, 1 — Appeal against amended decree of Special Judge passed under s. 14, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (XXV of 1934)—Court-fee payable—Ad valorem.

Where an appeal directed against an order of amendment, is to all intents and purposes against the amended decree passed by the Special Judge under s. 14, U. P. Encum. Estates Act, the court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal is ad valorem under Art. 1, Sch. I, Court Fees Act. ABDUL AZIZ v. NAWAB KHAN Oudh 354

——— Sch. II, Art. 11. SEE U. P. Encumbered Estates Act, 1934, s. 9 867

——— ——— Art. 17 (1). SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O XXI, r. 63 782

——— ——— Art. 17-A—Suit filed in District Munsif's Court transferred to Subordinate Judge for being tried along with other suit filed there—Both suits decided by same judgment—Appeal from decree in suit originally filed in District Munsif's Court—Court-fee payable.

Where a suit for declaration which was originally filed in the Court of the District Munsif is transferred subsequently to the Court of the Subordinate Judge for being tried along with the other similar suit filed in that Court and both the suits are decided by one judgment, the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge in respect of the suit originally filed in the District Munsif's Court is one passed by that Court and not by the Court of the District Munsif and the memorandum of appeal from such decree when the value for the purposes of jurisdiction is less than Rs. 10,000 must bear a court-fee stamp of Rs. 100 and not of Rs. 15. CHIDAMBARAM CHETTIAR, In re Mad. 490 ——— Art 17 (iii), s 7 (iv) (c)—Declaratory suit in Court Fees Act, whether covered by s. 42, Specific Relief Act (I of 187).

The Court Fees Act was passed in 1870, while the Specific Relief Act, was passed in 1877. Section 42, Specific Relief Act, was therefore, not in force when the Court Fees Act, was enacted. The declaratory suits referred to in the Court Fees Act cannot therefore be taken to be necessarily those covered by s 42 only. ZEB UL-NISA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F. B.

——— Art. 17 (iii) (c), s. 7 (iv) (c)—Criterion for determination of question of court-fees in declaratory suits—Deed or decree sought to be declared void — Considerations.

In a suit for a declaration that a deed or a decree is null and void, neither the answer to the question whether the plaintiff is or is not a party to the decree or the deed sought to be declared as null and void, nor to the question whether the declaration sought does or does not fall within the purview of s. 42, Specific Relief Act, furnishes a satisfactory or conclusive test for determining the court-fee payable. The true criterion for determining the question of court-fee in cases of this description is the substance of the relief claimed as disclosed by the plaint, taken as a whole. If the relief so disclosed is a declaration pure and simple, and involves no other relief, the suit would fall under cl (iii) of Art 17 of Sch. II, Court Fees Act, and the court-fee payable would be Rs 10 only. At the initial stage of determining the court-fee on a plaint, the question whether the declaratory suit is liable to be dismissed, either because it does not fall within the purview of s 42, Specific Relief Act, or because the plaintiff has failed to sue for a further relief which was open to him or for some other reason does not arise. That question will arise only after the necessary court-fee on the true relief as disclosed by the plaint is paid and the plaint is properly before the Court. ZEB-UL-NISA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F. B.

——— Art. 17 (vi),—Suit under s. 92 Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) falls under Art. 16 (vi), Sch. II.

Suits under s 92, Civil P. C., fall under cl. (vi) of Art. 17, Sch. II, Court Fees Act, which prescribes a court-fee of Rs. 10. ZEB UN-NISA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F. B.

——— ——— Art. 17 (vi) (iii)—No consequential relief open or asked for — Declaration asked for is only under s. 42, Specific Relief Act, 1877.

Section 15, Civil P. C, 1859, was repealed by the Specific Relief Act in 1877 and s. 42 of that Act has widened the scope of the declaratory relief. Under s. 42 a person may sue for a declaration as to his legal character or his right to any property even when no further specific relief is open to him; while before the enactment of that section it was not the practice to grant declaratory decrees unless such further relief was open to the plaintiff. This provision in s. 42 is introduced to enable a person to remove a cloud on his status or title in certain circumstances even when no further relief is open to him at the time. Thus, it is only under s. 42, Specific Relief Act, that Courts in India can grant declaratory relief even when no other specific relief can be claimed by the plaintiff. It is not open to a plaintiff to ask for a purely declaratory decree apart from the provisions of s. 42, when no consequential relief is open to the plaintiff and none is prayed for. In deciding whether a suit is purely declaratory, the substance and not merely the language or the form of the relief claimed should be considered. ZEB-UN-NISA v. DIN MOHAMMAD Lah. 641 F. B.

Criminal Procedure Code, (Act V of 1898), s. 46 (1) SEE Evidence Act, 1872 s. 27. 6

——— s. 54 (1). SEE Penal Code 1860, s. 332 887

——— s. 133—Nali claimed as part of public way —Its long user by other party, if bona fide assertion of claim—Criminal Courts' jurisdiction under s 133 whether ousted

Long user by a person of what is claimed to be a part of the public way e. g., gairmazrua-am-nali, may be taken as a bona fide assertion of claim ousting the jurisdiction of the Criminal Court to pass a summary order under s. 133 against him. BHAJOO GOPE v. GHOLAM HAIDER Pat. 336

——— s. 139-A—S. 139-A not complied with by Magistrate—Effect.

Where a Magistrate has not complied with the provisions of s 139-A, Criminal P. C., his order should be set aside. NIRSU RAUT v. SOMAR NONIA Pat. 371

——— s. 162. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 27 6

——— s. 162—Statement of witness to which his thumb mark was taken by Police during investigation is inadmissible.

A statement of a witness to which his thumb-mark was taken by the Police Sub-Inspector during investigation of the case, is inadmissible. WARIS KHAN v. EMPEROR Oudh 770

——— s. 164—Maker of statement not warned by Magistrate—Defect, if cured by s 29, Evidence Act (I of 1872).

Where a Magistrate has not before recording a confession explained to the person making it that he was not bound to make a confession and that if he did so it may be used as evidence against him, and thus has not complied fully with s. 164, Criminal P. C., the defect is not fatal in view of s. 29, Evi. Act. EMPEROR v. NANUA All 873

——— s. 197—Port trust estate, whether falls under "village, town or district" within the meaning of s. 21 (10), Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860)—Prosecution of chief store-keeper and assistant superintendent of machinery employer for port trust estate—Sanction of Central Government, if necessary.

The port trust estate does not fall within the term "village, town or district" within the meaning of cl. (10) of s. 21, I P. C. The chief store-keeper and assistant superintendent of machinery for the port trust estate entrusted with the keeping and the expending of property by the port trustees of the port on their behalf upon their estate are not public servants. No sanction of the Central Govt therefore, is necessary for their prosecution. S. E. NAYLOR v. EMPEROR Sind 858 ——— ss. 197, 476—Prosecution of M. L. A. under s. 476—Sanction is not required.

No sanction under s 197, Criminal P. C., is required for the prosecution of a Member of Legislative Assembly under s. 476. IMAMDIN v. EMPEROR Sind 557

——— s. 200—Anticipatory protest petition and petition filed after Police report—Distinction between—Anticipatory protest petitions, if amount to complaints

The only distinction between anticipatory protest petition, that is to say, petition made to the Magistrate before the receipt of the Police report and that filed after Police report, is, that an anticipatory protest petition may possibly call for no action at all if the Police report that is received afterwards actually places the accused persons on their trial. This position can of course never arise in connection with petitions of protest filed after the receipt of the Police report But apart from this, the two stand on much the same footing. Petitions amount to petitions of complaint on which the petitioners must be examined under s 200, Criminal P. C. SAIDU KHAN v. GAYA PRASAD Pat. 255

——— s. 209. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 s. 287 339

——— ss. 242, 537—Object of s. 242—Complaint fully giving details of offence—Accused specifically asked to explain case—Non-compliance with s 242 held mere irregularity curable under s. 537.

The primary object of the proceeding prescribed by s. 242, Criminal P. C., is to determine whether the accused pleads guilty to the charge or demands to be tried.

The facts on which the complaint was made were clearly stated in the written complaint. Detailed evidence of the facts alleged by the complainants was given by the prosecution witnesses. The accused himself after the close of the case for the prosecution was specifically asked to explain the case:

Held, that in these circumstances failure to comply with the provisions of s. 242, amounted merely to an irregularity which could be cured under s 537. DOST MUHAMMAD QUTAB DIN v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HARIPUR HAZARA Pesh. 365

——— s. 250—Applicability to warrant cases

Section 250, Criminal P. C., applies to trial of warrant cases as well as summons cases. GOKAL CHAND v. SAID ALI Pesh. 468 ——— ss. 286, 540—Prosecution is not confined to witnesses examined before committing Magistrate —But prosecution is not entitled to have fresh witnesses summoned for purpose of their evidence being taken and considered at trial.

Under s 286, Criminal P. C, the prosecution is not confined to the witnesses examined before the committing Magistrate but may examine other witnesses as well in the Sessions Court but the Crown is not entitled to have fresh witnesses summoned for the purpose of their evidence being taken and considered in the trial. If the prosecution have additional witnesses ready and available to them for giving evidence, their evidence can be taken, and there is no legal objection to this course. In re B. K. NARAYANA REDDI Mad. 342

——— ss. 287, 209, 342—Purpose for which Court is entitled to put questions to accused under s. 342—Written statement by accused in lieu of answers to questions to be put by Court under s. 209, whether record of examination by or before committing Magistrate within meaning of s. 287—Admissibility in evidence.

The purpose for which the Court is entitled to put questions to the accused under s. 342, Criminal P. C., is identical with the purpose indicated in s. 209, namely to afford the accused an opportunity to explain such circumstances as appear in the evidence against him. The questions which are to be put are questions to be put by the Court and the answers to be recorded are the answers to those questions. There is no warrant for the accused or his advisers taking advantage of the occasion to prepare a written statement beforehand and put it in, in lieu of the explanation which is to be elicited and only to be elicited by questions by the Court. Such a written statement does not come within s. 287, as it cannot be said to be a document containing the examination of the accused duly recorded by or before the committing Magistrate and therefore it cannot be tendered in evidence.. K. KRISHNAN, In re Mad. 339

——— ss. 289, 298, 299—Discretion conferred by s. 289—Judicial exercise of—Duties of Judge and jury—Question whether there is evidence to go before jury is one of law, to be decided by Judge—Evidence if believed by jury leading to conviction—Judge must leave case to jury—Defects in evidence to be brought to attention of jury—Evidence even if believed by jury not sufficient to justify conviction—Judge is bound to hold that there is no evidence to be placed before jury—He must withdraw case from jury and direct them to return verdict of not guilty.

Section 289, Criminal P. C., provides that if the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, it may, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.. That section confers in terms a discretion on the Judge, but it is a discretion which must be exercised judicially. Where the Judge is satisfied that there is no evidence to go to the jury, he must in his discretion withdraw the case from the jury, or in other words, direct them to return a verdict of not guilty, because all questions of law have to be decided by the Judge, and the question whether there is any evidence to go before the jury is a question of law. The jury have to decide all questions as to the reliability of the evidence, and it is for them to determine which view of the facts is true. The Judge may consider that the evidence led for the prosecution is very weak, that there are discrepancies in it, that it is of a type usually found to be unreliable, and that the story is inherently improbable. All such defects he ought to bring to the attention of the jury, but if the evidence is such that if it is believed by the jury, it must lead to a conviction, then the Judge is bound to leave the question to the jury, because it is for them to decide whether the evidence is to be believed or not. But if the Judge comes to the conclusion that, assuming that the jury believes the whole of the evidence placed before them, in law they cannot convict the accused, then he is bound to hold that there is no evidence to be placed before the jury, and he is bound to direct them in law to return a verdict of not guilty. EMPEROR v. DAWOOD HASHAM Bom. 859 F B

——— s. 297—Charge held defective and there was misdirection.

The Judge summarizes the evidence against each of the accused persons and at the end of each summary he made the following observation: "This is the evidence against the accused. Do you think that he has been falsely implicated?" He used these very words three times at the end of each summary.

Held, that this was wrong method of approach in a criminal case. The issue before the jury was not whether the accused were being falsely implicated but whether the prosecution had proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused were guilty. A question like this repeated at intervals at the end of the summary of the evidence against each of the accused was very likely to misguide the jury into thinking that unless they were satisfied that the case was false, they should find the accused guilty and amounted to misdirection. EMPEROR v. MUJJAFFAR SHEIKH Cal. 302

——— s. 297—Charge to jury—Case depending on circumstantial evidence—Duty of Judge pointed out—Charge, held defective.

In a case in which the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence. A theoretical discourse of what is circumstantial evidence couched in language which is unintelligible to a mufassil jury is quite worthless. The Judge should tell the jury that if the circumstances were capable of a reasonable interpretation consistent with the innocence of the accused, then the accused are entitled to be acquitted even if the circumstances raised a strong suspicion against them. He should summarize the circumstances alleged against the accused and ask the jury to decide whether from these circumstances the only reasonable inference to be drawn is the guilt of the accused and should tell them that if that was not the only reasonable inference, they should acquit the accused.

The Sessions Judge while concluding the charge said: you should, therefore, consider whether you are prepared to accept the same as showing the guilt of the accused persons:

Held, that these directions in a case depending on circumstantial evidence were quite inadequate. EMPEROR v. MUJJAFFAR SHEIKH Cal. 302

——— s. 297—Defective charge.

Where in placing the evidence before the jury the Judge does not point out, the inherent improbabilities, inconsistencies and important contradictions in the evidence the charge is defective. EMPEROR v. MUJJAFFAR SHEIKH Cal. 302

——— s. 297—Riot—Which party started riot, doubtful—Warning to jury against acting on uncorroborated evidence of interested witnesses and to treat such evidence with caution, is necessary—Failure to warn is misdirection.

Where the parties were at bitter enmity and so far as the question of motive was concerned, either of the parties might have started the riot, it is obviously incumbent on the Judge to warn the jury not once, but more than once wherever the evidence was very scanty and lacked corroboration, where corroboration was available, to treat the uncorroborated evidence offered on behalf of the Crown with caution and to accept it only after a careful examination thereof. The failure of the Judge to so warn the jury amounts to misdirection. BALAM PATEYYA, In re Mad. 375

——— s. 297—Vandalism or theft and dacoity are different—Failure to point out difference to jury amounts to misdirection.

Vandalism is one thing and dacoity and theft are quite different, and hence the failure of the Judge to point out the difference between vandalism and dacoity or theft to the jury when asking them to give their verdict on counts relating to dacoity and theft amounts to misdirection. BALAM PATEYYA, In re Mad 375

——— ss. 298, 299. See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 309 859 F B

——— s. 342 See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 287 339

——— s. 345 (6). See Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act, 1922, s 76 491

——— s. 423 (1), (b)—Committal by Appellate Court to Court of Session—Inquiry and committal order, if should be repeated.

An Appellate Court under s. 423 (1) (b), Criminal

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

P. C., has power to commit the accused for trial to the Court of Session, though it is not necessary for it to repeat the inquiry or write a long commital order, where the alleged facts are set out clearly in the judgment of the trying Magistrate and the evidence is very fully upon the record. MANSHARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454

——— s. 435—High Court, if can revise proceedings of Panchayat.

A Panchayat constituted under the Bihar and Orissa Village Administration Act is a Court and it is in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction, an inferior Criminal Court, and, therefore, its orders are revisable under s. 435 of the Criminal P. C. GONI MABTON v. EMPEROR Pat. 491 ——— ss. 435, 439—Order of District Magistrate under s. 3, Sarais Act (XXII of 1867), calling upon certain persons to register their Sarais, if subject to revision by High Court.

The District Magistrate as the chief officer charged with the executive administration of a district, in criminal matters can under no stretch of language be treated as a Court. His function as an executive officer are poles as under from his functions as a judicial officer and it is only in his judicial capacity that he is subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court. His order calling upon certain persons to register their Sarais, under s. 3, Sarais Act, not being a judicial order is not subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court. GHULAM SADID UD DIN v. EMPEROR Lah. 564

——— s. 438—Reference recommending enhancement of sentence—Accused is entitled to show cause against conviction—High Court can examine actual evidence to decide propriety of conviction.

Where in a reference under s. 438, Criminal P. C., the District Magistrate recommends that the sentence should be enhanced, the accused is entitled to show cause against his conviction, and the High Court can itself examine the actual evidence in the case in order to decide whether the conviction was a proper one or not. JOYRAM RAKSHIT v. ANNADA PROSAD KUNDU Cal. 288

——— s. 438—Reference under—Conviction under s. 323, if can be altered to one under s. 325, Penal Code Act XLV of 1860).

Hgh Court has no power in a reference under s. 438, Criminal P. C., to alter a conviction under s. 323 to one under s. 325, I. P. C. JOYRAM RAKSHIT v. ANNADA PROSAD KUNDU Cal. 288

——— s. 439. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 435 564

——— s. 439—Revision against appellate order of District Magistrate—No revision filed before Court of Session—Chief Court, if can entertain—Wrong advice of Counsel—Effect of.

It is the uniform practice prevailing in the Chief Court to refuse to entertain an application in revision against an appellate order of the District Magistrate where the applicants have not gone in revision to the Court of Session, which has concurrent jurisdiction. The advice given by the Counsel that the application for revision would lie in the Chief Court is not "a special circumstance" which would entitle the applicants to file the application in the Chief Court. DEBI SINGH v. EMPEROR Oudh 47

——— s. 476—Company Judge, if Court.

Company Judge conducting proceedings under s. 195, Companies Act is a "Court" within the meaning of s. 476, Criminal P. C. MOHAMMAD TAHIR v. EMPEROR Lah. 170

——— s. 476—Perjury by contradictory statements—Prosecution for, under s. 193, Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860)—Essentials—Duty of Court—Prosecuting Court must state particular contradictions.

The fact that a witness appears to have made contradictory statements at two different stages of a case is not by itself always sufficient to justify his prosecution for perjury. The fact that the evidence is given in a case of a grave nature should only make the Court the more careful to weigh all the circumstances before embarking on prosecutions for perjury on the basis of contradictions, for, it is in the interests of the Crown as well as in the interests of justice that prosecution witnesses should be free to tell the truth to the Court of Session irrespective of whatever evidence they may have given in the Court of the committing Magistrate.

It is usual, as it is so very desirable, in cases of perjury by contradictory statements for the prosecuting Court not to leave the matter at large but to specify the assignments of perjury, so that the Magistrate who deals with the case will know precisely what it is for which the accused is being proceeded against. SUBA SINGH v. EMPEROR Pat. 569

——— s 476—Preliminary inquiry, if essential.

Section 476, Criminal P. C., does not make a preliminary enquiry essential in law, and the proceeding under s. 476 without such enquiry would not be illegal. If the Court does not think it necessary, it may not order such an inquiry. MOHAMMAD TAHIR v. EMPEROR Lah. 170

——— s. 488—Person of 20 years age and healthy must be presumed to be capable of maintaining himself—Burden is on him, to establish contrary.

A person who is 20 years old and who is healthy and does not suffer from any illness must be presumed to be capable of maintaining himself. His station in life does not make any difference in this question and the burden of proving to the contrary is on him. MUHAMMAD YAR v. ALI MUHAMMAD Lah. 548

——— ss. 499, 514—Surety bond — Forfeiture—Surety undertaking to produce accused on certain date and thereafter as directed by Court—Accused produced on date—With Court's permission accused leaving Court house to say prayers but absconding—Surety, if liable.

The liability of the surety must continue so long as the surety has not been discharged or the bail bond cancelled and the accused taken into the custody of the Court. The accused will be taken in the custody of the Court only when his bail bond is cancelled.

In his bond the accused bound himself to appear in the Court on a certain date and thereafter as directed by the Court and the surety bound himself that the accused shall so attend and in default of his so attending he bound himself to forfeit Rs. 1,000. The accused was produced on the fixed date. During the course of the proceedings the accused with the Court's permission left the Court house to say his prayers and absconded. The bail bond was not cancelled nor was the surety discharged;

Held, that the surety's liability continued even after the production of the accused in the Court. The forfeiture of the bond therefore was justified.

Held, however that inasmuch as the surety was taken off his guard, it was a mitigating circumstance in the case whereby the penalty for forfeiture could be reduced to something nominal. MURADALI MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM v. EMPEROR Sind 471

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— s 509 (1)—S. 509 (1), applicability of, to evidence relating to facts tendered by person who also happened to be medical man.

Section 509 (1), Criminal P. C, confines itself to expert evidence tendered by a medical witness as such. It has no application to evidence relating to facts tendered by a person who also happens to be a medical man. It is therefore necessary to prove a dying declaration by producing the doctor who had recorded it if in recording the statement of the deceased the doctor was not acting as a medical man. WARIS KHAN v EMPEROR Oudh 770

——— s. 514. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 499 471

——— s. 514—Forfeiture proceedings, if must be started before expiry of period of bond.

The proceedings for the forfeiture of a bond for keeping the peace need not be commenced before the expiry of the period for which the bond was given. PADAM SINGH v. KING-EMPEROR Oudh 627

——— s. 514—Security bond for keeping peace—Person under recognizance convicted—Forfeiture proceedings, whether must be started by same Court and at time of conviction.

It is not necessary that proceedings for the forfeiture of the security bond for keeping peace should be taken only by the Court which convicts the person under recognizance and at the time of the conviction. PADAM SINGH v. KING-EMPEROR Oudh 627 ——— ss. 514, 537—Forfeiture of security bond—Failure to record grounds of proof—No prejudice to surety nor failure of justice—Defect is curable.

Where in proceedings for the forfeiture of the security bonds the Magistrate holds for good and justifiable reasons that the bonds had been forfeited but fails to record the grounds of proof as required by s. 514, Criminal P. C, such an omission is merely an irregularity curable under s. 537 when the surety is not prejudiced thereby and no failure of justice has occasioned. PADAM SINGH v. KING-EMPEROR Oudh 627 ——— ss. 517, 520—Order of acquittal and order under s. 517 passed by First Class Magistrate—Appeal—Forum.

An appeal from an order of acquittal and an order under s. 517, Criminal P. C., for disposal of property regarding which the offence had been committed, passed by a First Class Magistrate, lies to the Sessions Judge. RAM DIHAL v. BADRI All. 817

——— ss. 526, 476, 197—Any person, irrespective of status can be prosecuted for making false complaint—Fact that member of Legislature is figuring in case is no grounds for transfer.

The Magistrate when he tries a case under s. 406, I. P. C., should be alert to see that his Court is not used for the purpose of oppression by introducing the evidence of any zemindar or any Member of the Legislative Assembly who as such has no special position or privilege at all in any Court of Law, and the Magistrate must deal with the case as it comes before him strictly upon its merits. If for instance he believes the case is a false case inspired by some prominent person, he will, if he thinks that that prominent person has aided or abetted the making of a false complaint or has given false evidence in Court, not hesitate to take such action under s. 476, Criminal P. C., as the interest of justice requires. It must be made known that Magistrates will not be deterred from doing their duty merely because a person concerned is a zemindar, an M. L. A., or a prominent person. It is a truism that wherever British concepts prevail all men are equal before the law, and a zemindar, an M. L. A., or a prominent person has no special privilege under the Criminal P. C, and should any such person make or aid in making a false complaint or give false evidence on oath, then the law must be put in motion against him in the same way as against any other person. Hence the fact that such a person is figuring in a case is no ground for transferring it. IMAMDIN v. EMPEROR Sind 557

Criminal Procedure Code—concld.

——— s. 528—Notice to opposite party, if obligatory before transfer of case.

There is nothing in s 528, Criminal P. C., itself which makes it obligatory on the District Magistrate to issue notice to the opposite party, before transferring a case under s. 528 (2) and it is undesirable to fetter his discretion. KHEMANA v. DULAREY Oudh 681

——— s. 528 (2)—District Magistrate, power of, to set aside order of transfer of case by Sub-Divisional Magistrate and transfer it to other Court.

A District Magistrate has the power to set aside an order of a Sub-Divisional Magistrate transferring a case and transfer that case to some other Court. There is nothing in the sub-s. (2) of s. 528, Criminal P. C., which suggests that the discretion of the District Magistrate is fettered in any way. KHEMANA v. DULAREY Oudh 681

——— s. 537.

SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 242 365

SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 514 627

——— s. 540—Discretion under first portion of s. 540 should be exercised judicially.

The first portion of s. 540, Criminal P. C., leaves a discretion in the Court to summon any person as a witness, a discretion which should as a matter of course be exercised judicially. B. K. NARAYANA REDDI In re Mad. 342

——— s. 562—First offence—Short sentence, passing of—Effect.

The passing of a short sentence of imprisonment upon a first offender is very often an introduction to a life of crime. The young convict when he comes out of prison has the stigma of prison upon him and yet his imprisonment has not been sufficiently long for its disciplinary influence to have effect, while he has been brought into the company of hardened offenders who may further guide him to a life of crime: Therefore, it is wrong to pass upon the accused, whether he is 18 or 20 years of age, a short sentence for the first offence. EMPEROR v ACHAR HAMZO KUMBHAR Sind 341

Criminal trial—Confession—Divergences between confessions before Police and Magistrate — If ground for rejecting them.

Slight divergences between the two confessions the one made to the Police Officer and the other to the Magistrate or the omissions from the confessions of facts spoken to by the prosecution witnesses are not sufficient reasons for rejecting the confessions. In re KARUPPAN CHETTI Mad. 14

——— Confession — Murder — Question by Magistrate held defective and answer by accused held no admission.

Question put to the accused by the Magistrate recording the confession was to the following effect: "Did you throw the born child into the well as the result of which he died of drowning?" To this the answer given was "Yes":

Held, that question was put in an unfortunate

Criminal trial—contd.

form as it was a question composite in nature to which it was almost impossible to give a direct answer 'yes' or 'no' and it could not therefore be inferred from it that the accused did actually admit that the child was born alive. HASSAN PARI v. EMPEROR Pesh. 284

——— Confession—Part of confession relied on by Court—Other part proved to be false — Such part can be discarded.

If any part of a confession is relied upon by a Court and there is no evidence to disprove another part of it the whole confession must be accepted by the Court, but this is not the case when part of it is proved false by other evidence. In such a case the Court is entitled to rely on one part disregarding at the same time the other. EMPEROR v. NANUA All. 873 ——— Evidence—Accomplice—Corroboration.

Evidence of accomplices must be received with caution and not ordinarily to be accepted without corroboration in material particulars. B. K. NARAYANA REDDI In re Mad. 342 ——— Evidence—Dying declaration — Corroboration, necessity of.

Dying declarations should be corroborated in material particulars and by independent testimony. RAVUPALLI RAMAMURTHY In re Mad 347 ————Evidence—First information report—Value.

The first information report, is really not a substantive piece of evidence but can be used only for corroborative purposes. WARIS KHAN v. EMPEROR Oudh 770 ——— Evidence—Statements by persons not called as witnesses—Court, if bound to accept their statement because case is criminal.

The Court is not bound to accept statements made by persons who were not called as witnesses merely because the case is a criminal one. SANOO MANAJI v. EMPEROR Sind 616 ——— Evidence — Sufficiency — Evidence held not sufficient to warrant conviction.

Held, on facts that the presence of the accused persons in the deceased's company shortly before his death, was no doubt suspicious but not enough to warrant their conviction, even though there was the only statement made by the co-accused that they took part in the murder, specially when the body of the deceased was in such a decomposed condition that it was not even possible to infer that more than one hand was responsible for the death of the deceased SINGAMPILLI YERRANNA In re Mad. 465 ——— Evidence—Trial Court's opinion as to credibility of witnesses—Value of.

The trial Court has the opportunity of watching the demeanour of the witnesses when they are in the witness box and its opinion as to their credibility is of great value. WARIS KHAN v. EMPEROR Oudh 770 ——— Investigation—Sub-Inspector getting information from accused and acting on it — Whether can make him repeat that information before witnesses.

In principle it is of course objectionable for a Sub-Inspector who has received information from the accused and is proceeding to act on that information to get him to repeat that information in the presence of witnesses. A Police Officer ought to expect to be believed when he gives evidence on oath.

It may of course also be possible that the Sub-Inspector was aware that there might be some doubt as to the admissibility of what the accused had stated at the Police Station as it was embodied in a confession made to a Police Officer, in which case, if he considered that the statement might be entirely inadmissible, he was justified in taking the statement again in circumstances where it certainly was admissible. BHAROSA v. EMPEROR Nag. 6

Criminal trial—concld.

——— Joint trial—Large number of offences—Joint trial, when can be held—Proper procedure in such case, stated.

Unless all the offences for which a joint trial is held are parts of the same transaction, there can be no joint trial held according to law in respect of all the offences. A joint trial in respect of very large number of counts is very much to be deprecated even though the law may not prohibit it. Such a trial not only prejudices the accused but also works havoc in the minds of the jury and makes it very difficult if not impossible for them to express any rational opinion on the matters remitted to them for judgment. No doubt, joint trials would be legal in certain circumstances, but the general rule is that there should be a separate trial in respect of every separate charge. It is the exceptional cases which contemplate joint trials in respect of a number of charges, and there is no rule of law which compels a Judge to hold a joint trial. Even where a joint trial is permitted by law, it is open to him, to hold separate trials. The usual course to be adopted in cases of large number of counts is for the Public Prosecutor to be asked to select what he considers to be the best case from his point of view and to try that case first and leave the other charges to be tried if necessary later on after the result of the first trial is known. BALAM PATEYYA In re Mad. 375 ————Jurisdiction—Objection to, taken at late stage —Court, if gets jurisdiction.

A Court does not get a jurisdiction it does not possess, merely because objection to it is taken by the accused at a late stage MANSHARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454 ——— Revision—Finding of facts depending on correct interpretation of law—Case can be examined on merits.

Ordinarily, it is not the practice of the High Court to disturb findings of fact in revision, but where the finding of fact depends on a correct interpretation of the law it can examine the case on the merits ROSHAN SINGH v. EMPEROR All. 189

Custom—Proof of—Statements in riwaj-i-am —Admissibility of, under ss. 48 and 35, Evidence Act (I of 1872).

The answers (riwaj-i-am) contained in a Manual compiled by Mr. (afterwards Sir) James Wilson, called a "General Code of the Tribal Customs in the Shahpur District of the Punjab", published in 1896, are clearly admissible in proof of custom under s. 48 of the Evi. Act, being the opinion, as to the existence of a general custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know of its existence if it existed. They are also admissible under s. 35 of that Act, as entries relating to a relevant fact contained in what may be regarded as a public record, made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty. SUBHANI v. NAWAB PC 436 ——— Validity—Essentials—Antiquity— If must in every case be carried back to period beyond memory of man—English rule as to antiquity, whether applicable in India.

The English rule, that "a custom, in order that it may be legal and binding, must have been used so long that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary" is neither apposite or useful, when applied to Indian conditions. It is undoubted that a custom observed in a particular district derives its force from the fact that it has, from long usage, obtained in that district, the force of law. It must be ancient; but it is not of the essence of this rule that its antiquity must in every case be carried back to a period beyond the memory of man—still less that it is ancient in the English technical sense. It will depend upon the circumstances of each case what antiquity must be established before the custom can be accepted. What is necessary to be proved is that the usage has been acted upon in practice for such a long period and with such invariability as to show that it has, by common consent, been submitted to as the established governing rule of the particular district. Having regard to the circumstances under which local customs have arisen and do arise in India, both with reference to Muslims and Hindus, and the ease and frequency with which people migrate from one district or province to another, it would, create great perplexity in the already uncertain character of customary law to require that, in every case, the antiquity of a custom must be carried back to a period which is beyond the memory of man. SUBHANI v. NAWAB P C 436

Custom (Assam)—Pre-emption—Hindus of District Sylhet, are governed by Muslim law.

By custom the Hindus of the District of Sylhet are entitled to the benefit of the Muslim law of pre-emption. In order to entitle the plaintiff to a decree for pre-emption he has to prove that he made two talabs talab-i-mawasibat the 'first demand' and talab-i-isad the 'second demand' in accordance with the Muslim law of pre emption. RAJANANDNI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal 82

Custom (Punjab)—Adoption—Sarsut Brahmins of Mauza Jandola, Tahsil Thanesar, District Karnal are governed by Hindu Law in matter of adoption

The initial presumption in the case of Sarsut Brahmins of Mauza Jandola, Tahsil Thanesar District Karnal, is that they are governed by Hindu Law in matters of adoption and an adoption of wife's sister's son is therefore valid The mere fact that the family of these Brahmins owns one-half of the village raises no presumption that they have given up Hindu Law and adopted the custom of agricultural tribes in all matters. BIR BHAN v. JAGAN NATH Lah. 522 ——— Alienation—Sayyeds of Gurdaspur District are governed by Customary Law.

The Sayyeds of Gurdaspur District are governed by what is called the usual Customary Law in the matter of alienations and ancestral immovable property cannot be alienated by the holders without necessity. GHULAM RASUL v. KAFAIL AHMAD SHAH Lah. 469 ——— ——— Widow — Reversioners' suit for declaration that widow's alienation cannot affect their reversionry rights—Other reversioners impleaded as defendants along with widow and alienee—Suit compromised and decreed—Plaintiff reversioners to get possession from alienee on certain payment—Defendant reversioners held entitled to benefit of declaration alone and not to share in compromise.

The reversioners instituted a suit for a declaration that their reversionary rights were not affected by the alienation made by the widow. Along with the widow and the alienee they impleaded other reversioners as defendants. The suit was compromised and the declaration was granted. By the terms of the compromise the plaintiffs were to take over possession from the alienee on payment of the certain amount by them alone:

Held, that so far as the reversionary rights were concerned, the defendant reversioners were entitled to share in the benefit of the compromise to the extent to which it must be taken as covering the rights of all the reversioners on the death of the widow i e., the extent of the declaration in favour of the plaintiffs but were not entitled to share in any additional benefit which the active reversioners might secure for themselves by inducing a person in lawful possession to forgo his rights in return for a cash payment to be made by themselves alone. The fact that the plaintiff reversioners obtained possession without making actual payment could not affect the rights under the compromise JALAL DIN v. NAWAB Lah. 186 ——— Ancestral Property—Proof of—Revenue pedigree, value of.

It is now settled law in the Punjab that the mere mention of the name of a person in the revenue pedigree table as the common ancestor is no proof of the fact that every piece of land held by his descendants (howsoever low) was originally held by and descended from him in succession from generation to generation. A genealogical tree of this kind is prepared merely to indicate the relationship of the proprietors in a particular village and is in no sense intended to be a record of the acquisition of every bit of land held by all persons whose names appear in it. It is no doubt presumptive proof of their kinship, but not of the nature of the property owned by them. For that purpose one has to look to the history of the acquisition of the village. To establish the ancestral character of land it is not therefore sufficient to show that the name of the common ancestor from whom the parties are descended was mentioned in the revenue pedigree. It should also be proved that the descendants of that common ancestor held the land in ancestral shares and that the land occupied, at the time of the dispute, by the proprietors thereof had devolved upon them by inheritance SUBHANI v. NAWAB P. C. 436

——— Kharals of Montgomery District governed by Customary Law—Succession — Non-ancestral property—Daughters v. collaterals—Gift by daughter—Collaterals, if can contest it—Position of grand daughter.

According to the custom prevailing among the Kharals governed by the Customary Law of the Montgomery District in the Punjab, daughters are preferred to collaterals in the matter of succession to non-ancestral property and hence the collaterals cannot contest a gift by the daughter.

Daughters and grand daughters, however, stand on the same footing. SANATA v. SAHIB BIBI Lah. 494

——— Succession—Non ancestral property—Married daughters versus collaterals of tenth degree—Tulla clan resident at Mauza Mahmad Tulla, Tahsil and District Shahpur — Daughters take precedence—Onus to prove special custom to contrary lies on collaterals

Under the customary law applicable to the members of the Tulla clan resident at Mauza Mahmad Tulla in the Tahsil and District of Shahpur in the Punjab, collaterals of the tenth degree of a deceased landowner cannot take precedence over his married daughters in succession to his non-ancestral estate.

Where non-ancestral property is claimed by collaterals in preference to married daughters of the deceased owner the initial onus lies on the plaintiffs to prove that the general custom in favour of the daughter's succession had been varied by a special custom enabling the plaintiff to exclude the daughters

Custom (Punjab)—contd.

In the Punjab as a whole, the daughters generally succeed to the self-acquired property of their father, even to the exclusion of the nearest agnatic relations (as e g,) uncles or nephews), and, even as regards ancestral property, it is now well-settled that, more usually, the fifth degree is found to be the remotest customary limit. Some of the answers recorded in Wilson's Manual are in conflict with the customs recorded in Rattigan's Digest, notably what is stated in that Digest as the general custom of the province that daughters exclude collaterals with respect to self-acquired property of their father and this with the recent judicial decisions are sufficient to abrogate the custom to the contrary laid down in Wilson's Manual of Customary Law.

[Held, that even if it be held that the answers in Wilson's Manual raised an initial presumption against the daughters, it was a weak presumption which had been sufficiently discharged by the evidence adduced in the case.] SUBHANI v. NAWAB P. C. 436 ——— Village proprietary body—Reclaimation of waste lands by proprietors—Agreement between proprietors and Government to surrender rights in waste land to Government after passing of Sind Sagar Doab Colonisation Act, 1902—Such agreements recorded in wajib-ul-arz prepared at subsequent settlements—Act repealed—Waste lands reclaimed during interim period—Effect of repeal of Act—Plaintiffs held bound by agreements.

The plaintiffs were some of the proprietors in various villages According to the respective village wajib-ul-arz prepared at the time of the first settlement in 1878 a proprietor had the right under certain conditions to reclaim the shamilat (waste land) of the village and become Adna Maliks of the land. But this position was altered in consequence of a scheme of the Govt. of the Punjab to make a canal in the Sind-Sagar Doab for the purpose of irrigating tracts in that district. In furtherance of the scheme the Sind-Sagar Doab Colonisation Act was passed in 1903. Amongst other provisions it empowered the Govt. to make agreements between proprietors in the district for the surrender of their lands to Govt. on condition that they would receive back an area equal to one-fourth in the improved land. Such surrenders, however, were only to take effect on and from the date on which the excavation of the proposed canal should be begun. Agreements were entered into by the proprietors of all the lands in the villages in question for the surrender of the lands on the statutory terms. The agreement contained the term that from the date of the agreement up to the date of the surrender no one should notwithstanding any law or custom to the contrary acquire or be considered entitled to either proprietary or occupancy tenancy rights in the said lands. At the second regular settlement in 1902 the wajib-ul-arz in each case recorded the agreement between the villagers in this form, "We the proprietors of the village have signed the agreement under the Sind-Sagar Doab Act of 1902..... No one can acquire proprietary rights in the village shamilat till then." The same agreement was recorded in the wajib-ul-arz prepared at the third regular settlement in 1926. The project of the canal, however, was never carried into effect. The excavation was never begun: and in 1929, when the scheme had been finally abandoned the Sind-Sagar Act of 1902 was repealed (Act VI of 1929). The plaintiffs claimed that by reason of the repeal the rights as in 1878 revived and must be taken never to have been affected. They had during the interim period been engaged in reclaiming waste lands, and sought to enjoy the rights to become proprietors of the lands so reclaimed as though the various agreements had not been made:

Held, that the effect of the repeal of the Act was determined by the Punjab General Clauses Act, 1898, s. 4, and it could not be said that the Act once repealed was to be taken never to have been passed But apart altogether from the effect of repeal the agreements recorded in the second and third wajib-ul-arz operated independently of the Act. They expressly determined the rights of the parties during a known period of transition The plaintiffs must be held to their agreement: a result which was the more clearly just because the other proprietors acting on their agreement had lost rights of preventing the plaintiffs from acquiring the rights over the land they claimed. MOHAMMAD IKHTIAR v. HIMTU RAM P. C. 684

Custom (Punjab)—concld.

Dattakamimangoha, s. 2 cls. (8) (84). See Hindu Law—Caste 82

Decree—Consent decree—Construction—Deed directing defendant to pay lump sum to plaintiff by annual instalments—Whole amount made payable on default of two instalments—Charge for decretal amount created upon shares in suit—Plaintiff to recover amount by sale of shares in case of default by defendant—Shares sold on default but sale proceeds insufficient to satisfy decree—Plaintiff, if can proceed against other property to recover balance—Personal decree, if necessary—Object of charge created, stated—Analogy of mortgage decree, whether applicable to consent decree.

The plaintiff made an advance to the defendant, and certain shares were charged to secure the amount. The plaintiff sued to recover the amount due, and there was a consent decree which directed the defendant to pay to the plaintiff a lump sum by yearly instalments Then there was a default clause making the whole amount payable on default of payment of two instalments. Further on it was provided that a charge in favour of the plaintiff for the decretal amount was kept upon the suit shares, and then the decree went on. "If defendant fails to pay the monies in time, the same should be recovered by sale of the said shares." The defendant failed to pay the instalments on the due dates, and the shares were sold but as the sale proceeds were not sufficient to satisfy the decretal amounts the plaintiff took out the darkhast to recover the balance of the debt by attachment and sale of a house belonging to the defendant:

Held, that the charge created by the decree was for the protection of the plaintiff against the rights of intervening creditors, who might attach property of the judgment-debtor whilst the plaintiff's hands were tied by the time given for payment of instalments and its object was not to regulate the order in which the defendant's property was liable to be attached. Clause (1) of the decree, amounted to an order for payment, and could be enforced by any of the methods authorized by the Civil P. C, including attachment and sale of any of the defendant's property. There was nothing in the rest of the decree which expressly took away or limited that right, and the plaintiff could not, therefore, be said to have deprived himself of that right or delayed its enforcement by implication merely because he had protected himself against other creditors by taking a charge on part of the defendant's property. Hence the plaintiff, having failed to realize the whole amount of his debt by sale of the charged shares, could proceed under the decree to attach any other property of the judgment-debtor which might be available No personal decree for the balance, was consequently necessary;

Decree—concld.

Held further, that the analogy of mortgage decree could not be applied to the consent decree which must be construed according to the terms of the language used. GURAPPA GURUSHIDDAPPA NEELI v. AMARANGJI VANICHAND Bom. 217 F B ——— Consent decree and decree obtained on award, differences.

A decree obtained upon an award given after hearing the parties by an arbitrator duly selected by them, cannot be treated on the same footing as a consent decree. The two are radically different. The Court's power in recording compromises cannot be used for disturbing an agreement between the parties. On proof of the compromise, the Court is bound to record the adjustment, unless it is unlawful, and to pass a decree in terms thereof. In the matter of awards, the procedure is laid down, so far as the mofusil Courts are concerned, in Sch. II, Civil P.C. If the award is not challenged on any of the grounds in para. 15 of that Schedule, the Court's business would be to record the award and pass judgment accordingly. The difference between a compromise decree and an award decree is this; that while the former is the result of the agreement of the parties with the Court's seal of approval, the award is the act of a Court or a tribunal set up by the parties of their own choice and is independent of the agreement of the parties. Moreover, if an award were irregular and offended against the provisions of the law, or if there were other grounds sufficient to invalidate it, the procedure to be followed to impeach the award would be the procedure laid down in the Code SHRIPADGOUDA VENKANGOUDA APARANJI v. GOVINDGOUDA NARAYANGOUDA APA RANJI Bom. 795

Dedication SEE Hindu Law 882

Deed—Construction—Dastur rewaz—Remark column — Non-mention of river for description of boundaries of taraf—Whether proves absence of river in taraf.

The non-mention of the river in the remark column of a dastur rewaz which is only meant to contain a description of the boundaries, does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the river was not within taraf. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578 ——— Construction — Deed of title — Area going against boundaries — Court should see what are operative provisions of document rather than descriptive schedule attached to it.

The proposition that where the area goes against the boundaries, the boundaries should prevail, cannot be accepted as a universal proposition. The question as to what had been demised turns upon the true construction of a lease or grant. What the Court will have to see is what are the operative provisions of the document of title and what was actually granted by those operative provisions. The effect of the document depends, on the operative portion rather than on the descriptive schedule attached to the document.

Deed—concld.

Held, on construction that the operative portion of the lease was that which conveyed 3 bighas and that the boundaries given in the schedule did not control the operative portion in the body of the lease. They were merely description. EQUITABLE COAL CO. LTD. v. AMRITA NATH MITTER Pat. 737 ——— Construction—Gift—Principles of construction—Consistency with law.

The cardinal rule of construction of deeds is to ascertain the intention of the donor as disclosed from the language used in the deed. It is also a well-understood rule of construction that such intention should be effectuated so far and as nearly as may be consistent with the law to which the donor was subject.

Where a childless Hindu made a gift of his property to the sons of one of his brothers and the grandsons of another brother:

Held, that in the absence of any special indication in the deed of gift itself, the donor must be taken to have intended that the donees should take per capita and not per stirpes because the property would have been so divided under the Hindu Law if the donees had all been persons of the same relationship to the donor. CHHEDI SINGH v. RAM SINGH Oudh 611 ——— Execution—Evidence—Registration endorsement, if can be treated as sufficient proof.

The Court is not bound to treat the registration endorsement as conclusive proof of the fact of execution but it is certainly open to the Court, to treat it as sufficient proof. GANPATRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

Dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act (VIII of 1939), s. 4—Suit by wife for dissolution of marriage on ground of her conversion—Act coming into force during pendency of appeal—S. 4 if applicable.

A wife instituted a suit for a declaration that her marriage had come to an end on account of her conversion to Christian faith. After the decision of the suit but during the pendency of the appeal Act VIII of 1939 came into force:

Held, that the right claimed by the wife had not vested in her under any statute and consequently she could not insist that that right was indefeasible The law applicable to the question was as contained in s 4 of Act VIII of 1939, by which no marriage was dissolved merely on account of change of faith. FAZAL BEGUM v. HAKIM ALI Lah. 327

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), ss. 7, 18, 19—Jurisdiction —Parties belonging to Mangalore, married there and husband having house of his own at that place —Husband in service at Rangoon—Husband and wife last residing at Mangalore when husband was on leave—Husband having no house or flat in Rangoon during this period—On husband's departure to Rangoon wife staying behind and presenting petition under ss. 7, 18, 19 in Mangalore —Mangalore Court held had jurisdiction to entertain it.

Where there is a residence, it is possible to regard a person as residing there though he is not actually present in the flesh at that place. But where there is no place of residence, this fiction is not available, and the person must be deemed to be residing in the place where he actually lives.

The parties were married at Mangalore to which place they belonged and the husband had a house of his own at that place. The husband was, however, in service in Rangoon and the parties resided there for some years. The wife presented an application under ss. 7, 18, 19 of the Divorce Act at Mangalore on the ground that the parties last resided there when the husband was on leave. The husband had no house of his own or a rented house or flat in Rangoon during this period and the evidence showed that he had wound up the establishment at Rangoon before he left that place. On the expiry of the leave the husband went to Rangoon and the wife remained behind at Mangalore :

Divorce Act—contd.

Held, that during the period of leave when the husband was living with his wife in Mangalore in his own house, he had no place in Rangoon which he could call his residence. Merely because he had a lien, on his post during his leave, he could not be regarded as a resident of Rangoon even during the time when he was spending his leave at Mangalore with his wife in his own house. The Court at Mangalore had, therefore, jurisdiction to entertain the application. JOHN BATIST D'SOUZA v. LIZZIE JANE LOBO [Mad. 382

Divorce Act (Burma) (IV of 1869), ss. 10, 14—Petition must state distinctly facts upon which claim to have marriage dissolved, is founded—Exercise of discretion to excuse delay.

Evidence in divorce proceedings to prove the case of the petitioner must be confined to the pleas set out in the petition. Consequently it is essential, as laid down in s. 10, Burma Divorce Act, to insist that the petition for divorce shall state distinctly, as the nature of the case permits, the facts upon which the claim to have the marriage dissolved is founded.

Before a Court can exercise the discretion to excuse the delay there should be some evidence explaining it, to make clear that there was no connivance or indifference to the adultery. MA DUN MAY v. SAW JAMES Rang. 301 S P Dying declaration.

SEE Criminal trial 347
SEE Criminal trial—Evidence 347

Electricity Act (IX of 1910), s 44 (d)—Construction—Onus to show improper use of electrical energy—Latter part of s. 44 (d) relating to cl. (d), whether exonerates prosecution from discharging onus.

Section 44 (d), Electricity Act, inter alia imposes a penalty for improperly using the energy of a licensee. The onus would, therefore, lie on the prosecution to show that there had actually been improper use of the energy. The latter part of s. 44 (d) in so far as it relates to cl. (d) does not exonerate the prosecution from discharging the onus which lies on it to show that there has been improper use of the energy of a licensee, but merely provides that in case there has been such improper use, the consumer himself as defined in s. 2 (o) of the Act will not be able to avoid the liability by saying that the energy was used by some person over whom he had no control. A. C. MOJUMDAR v. EMPEROR Cal. 746

Equitable set off. SEE Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 76 (b) 533

Estoppel.

SEE Hindu Law 631
SEE Landlord and tenant 251

———Bond payable in certain instalments—Suit by plaintiff on default of two instalments—Suit compromised and decree for two instalments passed—In a subsequent suit by plaintiff, defendant claiming that full consideration for bond had not been paid—Defendant's plea held not barred by compromise decree in previous suit.

The test for determining whether there is an estoppel in any particular case in consequence of a decree passed on a compromise, must depend upon the answer to the question : 'Did the parties decide for themselves the particular matter in dispute by the compromise and was the matter expressly embodied in the decree of the Court passed on the compromise or was it necessarily involved in, or was it the basis of, what was embodied in the decree.'

The original bond was payable in ten annual instalments. The plaintiff instituted a suit for recovery of certain sum when two instalments remained unpaid. This suit was compromised and the plaintiff was granted a decree for the full amount and costs. The parties had come to an agreement that a decree for the two instalments should be passed, but that no further claim should be made by the plaintiff without going into the accounts relating to the balance. In a subsequent suit by plaintiff it was pleaded by the defendant inter alia that the full consideration for the bond had not been paid :

Held, that the compromise decree was merely confined to the two instalments which were in dispute in the previous suit. The decree could not, therefore, be considered to be tantamount to an admission that full consideration had been paid for the bond. Therefore, the consent decree in the previous suit was not a bar to the pleas raised by the defendant in the subsequent suit. ATA MOHAMMAD v. LACHHMAN DAS Lah. 781

——— Minor. SEE Contract 178

——— Misrepresentation

If a party is fully acquainted with the actual facts of the case, there can not be in fact any misrepresentation by the other party upon which the former could have been induced to act or alter his position. BHUTNATH JANAN v. GOPAL PRASAD SAHA Cal. 26

Evidence—Duty of Court—Judge cannot in rejecting evidence of important witness rely on information gained from other cases.

A Judge cannot travel beyond the record of the case before him and rely for the rejection of the important witness in the case on information gained from other cases heard by him. FAZAL BEGAM v. HAKIM ALI Lah. 327 ———Duty of party—Party not producing best evidence—Court can draw inference unfavourable to party.

It is for a party to prove his case by the best evidence available to support the contentions put forward. Where, therefore, a money-lender is examined by a party wishing to prove a money transaction but fails to get his account books produced, the Court is entitled to draw an adverse inference against him. GANSU RAM v. PARVATI KUER Pat. 411

——— Hearsay evidence—Admissibility. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 2 220

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 2—Repeal by Common Law of evidence—Effect — Hearsay evidence—Admissibility—Discretion of Judge in respect of admissibility of evidence.

It is entirely erroneous to state that "the principle of exclusion adopted by the Evi. Act, should not be applied so as to exclude matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth." This mode of regarding the law of evidence is very unsound and hearsay evidence which does not fall under s. 32, Evi. Act, cannot be admitted upon such principle. What matters should be given in evidence as essential for the ascertainment of truth it is the purpose of the law of evidence whether at common law or by statute to define. Once a statute is passed which purports to contain the whole law it is imperative. It is not open to any Judge to exercise a dispensing power, and admit evidence not admissible by the statute because to him it appears that the irregular evidence would throw light upon the issue. The rule of evidence, whether contained in a statute or not, are the result of long experience choosing no doubt to confine evidence to particular forms, and therefore eliminating others which it is conceivable might assist in arriving at truth. But that which has been eliminated has been considered to be of such doubtful value as on the whole to be more likely to disguise truth than discover it It is therefore discarded for all purposes and in all circumstances To allow a Judge to introduce it at his own discretion would be to destroy the whole object of the general rule. SRIS CHANDRA NANDY v. RAKHALANANDA THAKUR ——— ss. 4, 112, 114, Illus. (d)—Proof of marriage—Presumption—Discretion of Court under s. 4.

P. C. 220

Under s. 4, Evi. Act it is open to the Court upon proof of the marriage on a certain date either to regard as proved the subsistence of the marriage on a certain subsequent date unless and until it is disproved, or else to call for proof of it, using the discretion entrusted to the Court by the first clause of s. 4 in a judicial manner according to the circumstances of the case. ISMAIL AHMAD PEERADI v. MOMIN BI BI
P. C. 209

——— s. 8. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 25 873

——— s. 13—Rights of party not in issue in previous suit—Judgment, admissibility of, in subsequent suit.

Where rights of a party in a subsequent suit were not in issue in a previous suit, the judgment in the previous suit is not admissible in subsequent suit. GANPATRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

——— s. 18—Witness—Party, if bound by statement of his witness.

There is no rule of law with regard to the statement of witnesses, that a party must be bound by the statement of his witness though the belief in such a rule is not uncommon and does great harm in judicial trials in some of the Subordinate Courts. JALAL DIN v. EMPEROR Lah. 186

——— ss. 21 (1), 32—Woman describing herself as wife of G in deeds when her marriage with G was not in dispute—Such statements, if admissible and if can be proved by her subsequently in dispute as to her marriage with G.

Where a woman has described herself in deeds executed by her as the wife of one G when there was no dispute about her marriage with G, the statements made by her in such deeds are admissible and can be proved by her in a subsequent dispute wherein her marriage with G is questioned as she had special means of knowledge about her marriage with G. BASHIRAN v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN Oudh 161

——— s. 25—Admissions not amounting to confessions, whether excluded by s. 25.

Under s. 25, Evi. Act only confessions are excluded and not admissions not amounting to confessions.

The accused, a Police Sub-Inspector, made a confession to his subordinate that he had heard a rumour about the murder and that certain persons had approached him to get the matter hushed up and had forced upon him a certain amount;

Held, that the statement as to acceptance of bribe being confession was inadmissible under s. 25 but the statement as to rumour and approach of people to the accused to get the matter hushed up being admission was admissible. SARDAR ALI SHAH v. EMPEROR Lah. 878

——— ss. 25, 27, 8—Statement and act, difference—Accused taking in his hands certain articles and handing them over—Whether amounts to statement or confession—Applicability of s. 8 to such case.

The difference between a statement and an act is clear. A statement must consist of words, be they spoken, be they written, or be they spelled out, as would be done by a mute person who spells out words on his fingers, and even words would not always be statements, as for instance, if a person recited the numbers from 1 to 10, if one considers a statement in the sense used in s. 162, Criminal P. C. Acts however exclude words and cannot be translated into words. It cannot be held therefore that the fact that in the case the accused by taking in his hands certain articles and handing them over, made a statement much less can it be said that he made a statement which amounts to a confession within the meaning of s. 25, Evi. Act. To such a case of s. 8, Evi. Act, applies. EMPEROR v. NANUA All. 873

——— s. 26—Accused sent to doctor for medical examination, with head constable—Examination made not in immediate presence of head constable—Confession to doctor during examination—Admissibility.

Where the accused made a confession to the doctor while being medically examined but not in the immediate presence of the head constable in whose charge she was sent to the doctor:

Held, that the accused was in the custody of Police when she made the confession to the doctor and hence it was inadmissible under s. 26, Evi. Act. HASSAN PARI v. EMPEROR Pesh. 284

——— s. 27. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 25 873

——— s. 27—Accused after committing murder lodging report to Police—First Information Report containing confessional matter—Conclusion of—Such matter if can be admitted under s. 27.

Where the accused after committing murder goes to the Police Station and lodges the first information of the crime, and the report contains statements in the nature of confessions and statements having no connection with the actual narrative of the crime, the statements in the nature of confession cannot be admitted but they are not excluded for the purposes of s. 27, Evi. Act. BHAGORA v. EMPEROR Nag. 6

——— s. 27—Accused describing murder and part played by other accused and almost simultaneously producing deceased's earrings—Admissibility of statement under s 27.

Under s. 27, Evi Act, cases where a discovery is made in consequence of information given and a disclosure by an accused accompanying a statement must be distinguished.

Where an accused makes a statement to a Police Officer describing the murder and the part played by the other accused and almost simultaneously produces ear-rings identified as those worn by the deceased, the discovery of the earings cannot be said to have been made in consequence of the information given by the accused and therefore the statement is inadmissible in Evidence Act—contd.

evidence under s. 27. SINGAMPHLLI YERRANNA, In re Mad. 465

——— s. 27—Accused's statement to Police that he threw away knife on certain spot after killing deceased—Accused leading Police to the spot but knife not found—Police broadcasting that whoever has taken knife should return it or houses would be searched — A coming forward and stating that he found a knife on spot mentioned by accused but he has thrown it away — A producing knife from spot where he alleged it was thrown away by him —Statement by accused held admissible under s. 27.

The accused stated that he would show the knife with which he had stabbed the deceased and which he had thrown away. The Sub-Inspector, the accused, and another witness who was requested to go with the Sub-Inspector, proceeded to the spot but no knife was found. The Sub-Inspector broadcast that whoever had taken the knife away should return it or search would be made of the houses. Then A came forward and stated in the presence of the accused that he had picked up the knife from that very spot. He took the party to some 40 or 50 yards to the west of his house and showed the knife, the blade sticking in the earth :

Held, that the statement of the accused to the Police was admissible under s. 27, Evi Act, since it led to the discovery of (1) the fact that a knife had been seen to be thrown away and was later found by A at the spot indicated, and (2) the knife itself; the fact that the knife was not actually found at the spot mentioned by the accused was immaterial. RAVUPALLI RAMAMURTHY, In re Mad. 347

——— s. 27—Accused voluntarily making statement to Police confessing crime—Such accused, if in custody of Police within the meaning of s. 46 (1), Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898).

A person who makes a statement to a responsible Police Officer, voluntarily confessing that he has committed an act which the I. P. C., regards as an offence, is submitting himself to custody within the meaning of s. 46 (1) of the Criminal P. C., and is then in the custody of a Police Officer within the meaning of s. 27 of the Evi. Act. BHAROSA v. EMPEROR Nag. 6

——— s. 27—Amendment of s. 162, Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), whether affects s. 27.

The provisions of s. 27 of the Evi. Act, are still valid and are not affected by their Lordships' judgment in Pakala Narayana Swami v. Emperor, 160 Ind. Cas. 1. Consequently the amendment of s. 162, Criminal P. C. in 1923 does not affect s. 27, Evi. Act. BHAROSA v. EMPEROR Nag. 6

——— s. 27—Statement under s. 27—Made of recording—Admissibility in part—Duty of Judge.

Statements under s. 27, Evi. Act, should be recorded in the first person, that is to say, as far as possible in the actual words of the accused ; they should not be paraphrased. The Judge should admit those parts which he considers admissible but leave some record for the consideration of the Appellate Court of any other words which the prosecution claimed should be received in evidence. RAVUPALLI RAMAMURTHY, In re Mad. 347 ——— ss. 27 and 30—Only those portions of information given by accused which relate to facts discovered thereby are admissible — Statement of accused involving other accused but not relating to aforesaid facts—Admissibility of statement against other accused.

It is necessary to observe strictly the provisions of s. 27, Evi. Act, by which the only portions of the information given by accused which are admissible are those which relate distinctly to the facts discovered thereby. Hence, statements by an accused which do not relate to aforesaid facts but involve other accused are inadmissible under s 27 against the latter ABDUL BASHA SAHIB, In re Mad. 814

——— s. 30—Confession by accused implicating co accused—Evidentiary value of—It can be used as positive evidence.

The confessions of an accused implicating the co-accused are of less evidentiary value than the testimony of an accomplice because the man in the dock cannot be cross-examined. They can only be taken into consideration under s. 30, Evi. Act, along with such other evidence as there may be. Such confessions may help the Court to decide whether the other evidence is or is not credible. It cannot, however, supply the place of positive evidence regarding the commission of the crime. KARUPPAN CHETTI, In re Mad. 14

——— s. 30—Confession by accused that he killed deceased because other accused promised to give him certain amount — Admissibility under s. 30—Whether evidence against other accused.

A confession by an accused to a prosecution witness that he killed the deceased because the other accused had promised to give him a certain amount, is admissible under s. 30 but it would naturally require the strongest independent evidence if any reliance can be placed upon it at all. But it cannot be treated as against the other accused. SINGAMPILLI YERRANNA, In re Mad. 465

——— s. 32. See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 21 (1) 161

——— s. 33—Scope of, s. 33.

Section 33, Evi. Act covers not only cases of privity of estate and succession of title, but also cases where both the following conditions exist, viz. (1) the interest of the relevant party to the second proceeding in the subject-matter of the first proceeding is consistent with and not antagonistic to the interest therein of the relevant party to the first proceeding; and (2) the interest of both in the answer to be given to the particular question issue in the first proceeding is identical. What the first proviso aims at securing is that the evidence shall not be admitted unless the person who tested, or had the opportunity of testing, the evidence by cross-examination, either is himself, or represented the interests of, the party to the later proceeding against whom the evidence is tendered, i. e. that he was (in the latter case), in effect, fighting that person's battle as well as this own. GANPATRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

——— s. 35. See Custom 436

——— s. 35—Age—School Register — Evidentiary value.

Where there is no evidence to show on what materials the entry in the school register about the age of a person was made the statement in the register about his age has no evidentiary value. JANAKI NATH ROY v. JYOTISH CHANDRA ACHARYA CHOWDHURY Cal. 419

——— s. 35—Endorsement by Sub-Registrar that executant presented document for registration and admitted execution, if relevant fact under s. 35.

An endorsement by the Sub-Registrar showing that the executant presented the will for registration and acknowledged execution is a relevant fact under s. 35, Evi. Act. GANPATRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

——— s. 43—Privy Council decision — Finding showing that village was fixed place—Decision not inter partes—Finding, if evidence.

A finding in a Privy Council decision cannot be relied on by a party to a suit for showing that the village in question was a fixed place, where the judgment was not inter partes. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

——— s. 44—"Obtained by fraud" and "collusion" in s. 44, explained—X executing pro-note in favour of Y, to shield property from creditors—Y agreeing not to execute decree on pro-note—Suit on pro-note—X and Y making bogus reference to arbitration—Decree passed on award—Y executing decree inspite of agreement to contrary—Suit by X to set aside decree as fraudulent and collusive—X and Y held, both being in pari delicto X could not vacate decree—Proper remedy of X stated.

A Judgment or order obtained by fraud upon a Court binds no such Court, and its nullity may be alleged in any collateral proceeding without the necessity of setting it aside. The expression "obtained by fraud" in s. 44, Evi. Act expressly refers to the fraud practised against the Court by any one party, or it may also imply a fraud against any party to the proceeding. he term 'collusion' is used apparently in a different sense, and the language of the section is so comprehensive that it might enable a party to the collusion to lead evidence of his own fraud. But as the section lays down a rule of proof it would not abrogate the rule of larger equity which must guide the Court in granting relief. The collusive decree can be impeached by innocent persons claiming under the parties to the judgment or represented by them therein, or by strangers who were neither privies to nor representatives of the parties to the former suit. If, however, fraud is practised by both the parties on the Court, neither of them can impeach the judgment on the ground that it was collusively procured.

X executed a promissory note in favour of Y in order to shield his property from his creditors. Y agreed not to execute the decree on the pro-note. Y brought a suit on the pro note and both X and Y made a bogus reference to arbitration and obtained a decree on the award by falsely representing the award to be genuine and thus practised fraud on the Court. Subsequently Y in violation of his agreement put the decree into execution. A then brought a suit to set aside the decree as being collusive and fraudulent;

Held, that both parties having colluded and practised fraud on the Court, were in pari delicto and it was not, therefore, open to one of the parties to vacate the decree and thus take advantage of his business. Nor could the collusive decree be dealt with on the analogy of a transfer fraudulently effected under s. 84, Trusts Act.

Held, further that proper remedy for X for preventing Y from executing the decree in breach of his agreement was by way of suit for injunction and not by a suit for setting aside the decree. SHRIPADGOUDA VENKANGOUDA APARANJI v. GOVINDGOUDA NARAYANGOUDA APARANJI Bom. 795

——— s. 58—No admission by defendant in written statement or at hearing—Plaintiff is not relieved of producing best material in support of his case.

The plaintiff is not relieved of producing the best materials in support of his case, where no admission has been made by the defendants either in their written statement or at the hearing. MIDNAPORE

ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

——— s. 68—Attesting witness unable to prove document—If can be proved by other evidence

Under s. 68, Evi. Act what is necessary is that an attesting witness if available should be called in evidence. If he is not able to prove the document there is no bar to its being proved by other evidence. BASHIRAN v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN Oudh 161

——— s. 90—Copy not thirty years old—Presumption under s 90, if can apply.

The presumption contained in s. 90 of the Evi. Act cannot apply to a copy that is not itself 30 years old. GANPATHRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

——— s. 91—Rent suit based on unregistered lease—Rate of rent cannot be proved aliunde.

The terms of s. 91, Evi. Act, are quite explicit in their prohibition of the proof of the terms of the lease aliunde, and no other evidence can be given to prove the rate of rent in a suit which is based on an unregistered lease except the lease itself which is inadmissible in evidence under s. 49, Regis. Act. ATUL KRISHNA BOSE v. ZAHED MONDOL Cal. 635

——— s. 92. SEE Insurance 155

——— s. 92—Gift deed—Construction — Conduct of parties—Relevancy.

Where the language of the deed is clear and free from ambiguity, any consideration of the conduct of the parties with a view to ascertaining the intention of the grantor or the donor is beside the point. CHHEDDI SINGH v. RAM SINGH Oudh 611

——— s. 112. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s 4 209

——— s. 114—Adverse inference—Omission to examine witness—Effect.

The omission of a party on whom the onus lay, to examine a particular witness gives rise to a presumption adverse to him. ONKARSA v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NANDURA Nag. 473

——— s. 114—Birth of first child to young woman and not in presence of any one—Presumption that child was born alive, if can be drawn.

No presumption under s. 114, Evi. Act, that the child born was born alive can be reasonably made especially in the case of a young woman giving birth to her first child and entirely unattended during the process. HASSAN PARI v. EMPEROR Pesh. 284 ——— ss. 114 (b), 133—Accomplice—Corroboration in material particulars—Nature of corroboration—Circumstantial corroboration, if sufficient.

It is firmly established both in England and in India that in practice an accomplice must be corroborated in material particulars before the accused can be convicted. The corroboration need not be direct evidence that the accused committed the crime; it is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connection with the crime:

Held, on facts that the statement of accomplice about the acceptance of the bribe by the Sub-Inspector of Police to hush up the murder, being circumstantially corroborated, the offence was proved. SAFDARALI SHAH v. EMPEROR Lah. 878

——— s. 114, illus. (d). SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 4 209

——— s. 133. SEE Evidence Act, 1872, s. 114 (b) 878

Execution. SEE Limitation 318

——— Application necessitated by Court's striking off previous application, whether fresh application for execution or merely one for revival.

An application in execution which is necessitated by the action of the Court in striking off a previous application for execution, is not in law a fresh application, but must be taken to be an application to revive or continue the former application. K. S. R. M. SIVASUBRAMANIAM CHETTIAR v. MURUGESA MUDALIAR Mad 325 ——— Decree compromised—Judgment-debtor to pay certain portion of decretal amount by instalments on fixed date and execute assignment deed in respect of balance—Deed not executed on fixed date but later—Other terms not complied—Decree-holder acting on deed—Whether can take out execution in respect of decretal amount including that portion for which deed of assignment was executed.

Where by a compromise decree the judgment-debtors were to pay the decretal amount in certain fixed instalments, on certain fixed day and execute deed of assignment of the arrears of rent, in respect of the balance of the decretal amount, but the terms are not fulfilled by the judgment-debtors except to execute the assignment deed on same date later than the one fixed by the compromise, and it is found that the decree-holder had acted on the deed by collecting the rent, he cannot take out the execution of his decree in respect of that portion of the decree for which this assignment deed was executed, on the ground that the judgment-debtor had failed to execute it on the date fixed by the compromise. ADIT NARAYAN SINGH v. BINAPANI Pat. 110 ——— Payment by judgment-debtor to one of joint decree-holders, if binding on others.

The payment made by the judgment-debtor to one of several joint decree-holders is not binding on others, unless the decree-holder to whom the payment is made represents the other decree-holders in some way or the other. INDERDAWAN SINGH v. JAIRAJ SINGH Oudh 568

——— Step-in-aid of. SEE Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 182 (5) 566

Execution sale—Decretal amount substantially reduced in appeal after sale—Judgment-debtor found not in position to pay up even reduced amount before date of sale or within 30 days from sale—Sale proceeds less than final decretal amount —S. 144, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), held did not apply and sale could not be set aside.

In execution of a decree, the property of the judgment-debtors was sold and purchased by the decree-holder. Subsequently, the amount of the decree was reduced substantially by the High Court in second appeal. The sale proceeds were less than the final decretal amount. It was found that the judgment-debtors were not in a position to pay up the whole decretal amount and thereby avoid the sale of their property, even if the decretal amount had been reduced before the sale was held or within 30 days from the date of sale;

Held, that as the judgment-debtors could not have paid up even the reduced decretal amount and the sum realised by the sale was less than the reduced decretal amount, the situation would not have been altered in any way, had the decree been modified before instead of after the sale and hence this was not a case to which s. 144, Civil P. C., was applicable and the sale could not be set aside. GANSU RAM v. PARVATI KUER Pat. 411

——— Houses Nos. 146 and 147 put up for sale—House No. 147 first put up for sale but sale amin pointing out house No. 146 to bidders through bona fide mistake—X purchasing it under bona fide belief that he purchased house No. 146—House No. 146 subsequently put up for sale and again amin wrongly pointing out towards house No. 147—Y purchasing it knowing that he was purchasing house No. 147 and not No. 146—Sale certificate describing houses correctly i. e., one purchased by X as house No. 147 and other purchased by Y, as house No. 146—X and Y obtaining possession of houses Nos. 146 and 147 respectively—X reconstructing house at great cost—Y suing X for possession of house No. 146 on strength of sale certificate, after lapse of about twelve years—Y held could not succeed.

In execution of a mortgage decree two adjacent houses bearing Nos. 146 and 147 were put up for sale. At the time of the sale of house No. 147 the sale amin through a bona fide mistake pointed out to the bidders house No. 146 and described it as house No 147. X purchased this house No. 146 believing it to be house No 147. House No. 146 was then put up for sale and was described by the amin under a bona fide mistake as house No 147 and was purchased by Y under the belief that he purchased house No. 147 while the house actually sold was house No. 146. Both X and Y entered into possession of the houses Nos. 146 and 147 respectively. The sale certificates mentioned correct numbers of the houses purchased by X and Y as Nos. 147 and 146 respectively. X reconstructed house No. 147 at a great cost under a bona fide belief that he had purchased that house. After about twelve years Y sued X for possession on the basis of the sale certificate:

Held, that Y must have bid for, and intended to bid for, the house No. 147 and nothing else. And as he had been content to accept that position for almost twelve years he could not succeed in obtaining something which ex hypothesi he never bought. Even if, it was accepted that by virtue of the sale certificate he had become technically the owner of house No. 146 no Court in justice, equity or good conscience would assist him to obtain possession of something which he never bargained to have At the most he could be held to be a trustee for the real owner X. KALYAN DAS v. BRIJ KESHORE All. 495

——— No bidders on date of auction—Decree-holder if can, in same proceeding ask Court to put property for sale at later date.

The fact that there are no bidders on occasion of the auction does not prevent the decree-holder from asking the Court in the same proceedings to put up the property for sale at a later date. SIVASUBRAMANIAM CHETTIAR v. MURUGESA MUDALIAR Mad. 325 ——— Setting aside of. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O. XXI, r. 90 124

Extortion.

SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 383 241

SEE Penal Code, 1860, ss. 383, 385, 347, 342 454

Fraud. SEE Insurance 156

Gift.

SEE Deed 611

SEE Muhammadan Law 161

Government of Burma Act, 1935, s. 5 (3)—Scope of s. 5 (3)—It applies only as between Governor and Ministers regarding administrative matters.

The correct reading of s. 5 (3), Govt. of Burma Act, is this. If any question arises whether any matter (a) is a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, or (b) is not a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment —then the decision of the Governor in his discretion is final.

Section 5 (3) only applies as between the Governor and the Ministers in regard to administrative matters. It has nothing whatever to do with the Governor's legislative powers which are specified in a sub-part ("Legislative powers of Governor") of part IV ("Legislative") of the Govt. of Burma Act. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91

——— s. 25—Member appointed Second Lieutenant in Army, whether holds office of profit, when he has received no remuneration or his appointment is subject to His Majesty's approval.

A person who is appointed a Second Lieutenant in the Army in Burma Reserve of Officers holds an office of profit under the Crown in Burma, even if he has in fact received no remuneration or has not joined any particular unit of the Army in Burma or his appointment is subject to the approval of His Majesty. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91 ——— ss. 25, 42—Ordinance providing that member whose seat has become vacant under Government of Burma Act shall nevertheless be restored to his former seat is void.

Having regard to the terms of s. 24 (2) the only meaning which can be assigned to s. 25 (1) (a) is that if an office of profit is not to disqualify its holder it must have been so declared before the time comes when the seat would, but for such a declaration by the Burma Legislature, have become vacant. An Act of the Legislature, or an Ordinance the effect of which is to provide that a member whose seat has become vacant under the Govt. of Burma Act shall nevertheless be restored to his former seat which is then vacant—such an Act amends the provision of the Govt. of Burma Act, and is beyond the powers of the Burma Legislature to enact or in the case of an Ordinance, beyond the powers of the Governor. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91 ——— ss. 25, 42—Power of Speaker of House to declare seat of member vacant.

The question whether a seat of a member of the House of Representatives has become vacant or not is not a point of order at all for the Speaker, nor is it the matter for the House to determine. It is a point of law affecting the status of an individual and is for a Court to determine. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114 ——— ss. 25 (1), (a), 27 (3)— Member resigning his post in army—He ceases to hold any office for profit even if resignation is yet subject to His Majesty's approval.

Where a member has resigned his appointment in the army he cannot be said to be holding any office for profit under the Crown and is not disqualified for being a member of the House of Representatives even if His Majesty has not yet approved of his being given permission to resign his appointment. U BA MAUNG v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 234 ——— ss. 27, 32— Power of Speaker to declare whether seat has become vacant or not—Speaker so declaring, whether protected either by s. 27 (1), or by s. 32 (2).

One must look at the particular statute which bring into being the Legislature whose powers and privileges are under consideration. In order therefore, to appreciate the position of the Speaker in Burma and to ascertain his powers and privileges, it is necessary to turn to the Govt. of Burma Act. He has no powers to declare whether a seat has become vacant or not.

Sub-s (1) of s 27, Govt. of Burma Act is designed to prevent members being sued for slander or prosecuted for defamation, and perhaps also, from being prosecuted for sedition, in respect of a speech made in the House. The Speaker's declaration that a member's seat was vacant although made by words spoken in the Chamber, does not come within the purview of the sub-section. In making such a declaration the Speaker does a great deal more than merely rule upon a point of order arising under the rules of procedure of the House. Consequently he is not protected either by s. 27 (1) or by s. 32 (2), U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91

——— s 27 (3)—Speaker of house of representatives, if subject to High Court's jurisdiction—His right to declare that member's seat has become vacant.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives is subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court. He has no power to declare a member's seat to have become vacant. U BA MAUNG v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 234

——— s. 41—Ordinance under s. 41 providing that it would cease to operate at expiration of six weeks from re-assembly of Legislature—Legislature re-assembling at 11 a. m., on February 15—Ordinance, when expires.

Where an Ordinance under s. 41 provided that the Ordinance would cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the re-assembly of the Legislature, if there be no resolution by the House disapproving it, and the Legislature re-assembled at 11 A. M., on February 15:

Held, that the Ordinance ceased to operate at midnight on March 28 and 29, as the law takes no notice of the fractions of a day. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91

——— ss. 41, 42—Ordinance has same force as Act.

An Ordinance promulgated under either s. 41 or s. 42 of the Govt. of Burma Act has the same force and effect as an Act of the Legislature. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114

——— ss. 41, 42—Ordinance issued by Governor —Whether implies that Governor has formed his opinion and exercised his individual judgment —Ordinance expressing purpose of enabling Governor satisfactorily to discharge functions—Governor is sole Judge—Court, if can sit on judgment

The Governor's functions are capable of being exercised in any one of three different ways. Some are exercisable in his discretion which means that he need not ask for the aid or advice of his Ministers at all; indeed it is not their duty to aid or advise him in respect of these matters; a second group is exercisable, notwithstanding the advice of Ministers, in the exercise of his individual judgment; and a third group is exercisable under the guidance of his Ministers. Matters in the Govt. of Burma Act which are said to fall within the individual judgment of the Governor may fall within the second or third group according to the opinion formed by the Governor as to the course which he should take. Hence where an Ordinance issued is expressed to be under powers conferred by s. 42, it is implied that an opinion has been formed by the Governor and an individual judgment has been exercised by him.

The Court will not inquire whether circumstance

Government of Burma Act—contd.

in fact existed which rendered immediate action necessary before the promulgation of an Ordinance. That is for the Governor to decide. The Court should not assume the burden of deciding for what purpose the action was necessary. Where in an Ordinance the purpose is expressed to be that of enabling the Governor satisfactorily to discharge certain functions the Governor is the only Judge of that. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114 ——— ss. 41, 42—Promulgation of Ordinance — Publication in Gazette is necessary.

Promulgation and publication in the Official Gazette are not synonymous. Publication in the Official Gazette is not sine qua non of promulgation, though it is a record that promulgation has taken place and a means of announcing the fact to the widest possible circle of individuals Reading of an Ordinance by the Speaker of the House of Representatives is sufficient promulgation. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114 ——— ss. 41, 42—Expiry of Ordinance.

An Ordinance was promulgated under s. 41 of the Govt. of Burma Act: the Legislature re-assembled on February 15, 1940:

Held, that the Ordinance expired at the midnight which concluded on March 28, as six weeks from February 15, 1940, expired on March 20, 1940. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114

——— s. 42—High Court, if can enquire, whether Ordinance promulgated under s. 42 is within Governor's powers—Ordinance providing that members of House of Representatives should not be disqualified, if they held commission in His Majesty's forces, if ultra vires of Governor's powers.

High Court is not precluded from enquiring whether an Ordinance promulgated by the Governor under s. 42 is or is not within his powers. Sub-s. (4) of s. 42 makes it clear that the Court can go into the question whether any provision of an Ordinance promulgated under s. 42 is or is not void, on the ground that such provision, if it had been enacted in an Act of the Legislature, would not have been valid. An Ordinance providing that members of the House of Representative should not be disqualified for being members of the House if they held commissions in His Majesty's forces is not matter of defence, but is concerned with something which is a matter entirely for the Ministers. The Governor has therefore no power to promulgate such an Ordinance when the Legislature is then in session. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91

——— s. 42—Ordinance, if should contain preamble.

Obiter Per Dunkley, J.—There ought to be a common form of preamble for all Ordinances, and the preamble should set out that the Governor is satisfied as required by the terms of s. 42 (1) and also the purpose within s. 48 (1) for which the Ordinance is promulgated. But it is not legally necessary that this should be done, and legally all that is necessary is that the Governor should declare that he promulgates the Ordinance under the provisions of s. 42, Govt. of Burma Act; but the adoption of this suggestion might make for the better understanding by the public of the reason and necessity for the issue of an Ordinance. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114

Government of Burma Act—concld.

——— s. 42—Ordinance when said to be promulgated.

"Promulgation" of an Ordinance without doubt connotes the fact of making the public aware of the existence of the new law. In Burma, as in India and elsewhere, promulgation of a new law takes place through the medium of the Official Gazette. It is wrong for the notifications which appear in the Burma Gazette when an Ordinance is first published therein to say, as they do: "The Governor has promulgated the following Ordinance"; they should say "The Governor hereby promulgates the following Ordinance." Consequently an Ordinance is promulgated on the date on which it is published in the Gazette. U LUN v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 91

——— s. 124 (1)—Whether refers to artificial persons—Official Trustee under s. 6 or s. 7 (1) (a) Official Trustees Act (II of 1913) whether servant of Crown.

A corporation cannot be a servant of the Crown, although the members of the corporation may well be. Section 124 Govt. of Burma Act refers to natural persons only and not to artificial persons. Under s. 6, Official Trustees Act, the Official Trustee is a corporation sole with a perpetual succession and therefore is not a servant of the Crown. Nor is an Official Trustee acting under s. 7 (1) (a), Official Trustees Act, as an ordinary trustee, a servant of the Crown. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAKBURN Rang. 61

Government of India Act, 1935, (25 and 26 Geo V, Ch. 42), s. 205 (1)—Dismissal of revision application by Single Judge of High Court is final order—Such order certifying that matter involves substantial question of law involving interpretation of Government of India Act—Appeal to Federal Court, if competent—S. 111-A, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), whether bar.

An order passed by a Single Judge of the High Court dismissing an application for revision, is a final order of the High Court. Hence when such order certifies that the appeal involved a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Govt. of India Act, an appeal to the Federal Court is competent and s. 111-A, Civil P. C., is no bar to such appeal. A. L. S. P. P. L. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. MUTHUSWAMI GOUNDAN Mad. 856

——— s. 205 (1)—Effect of s. 205 (1) in respect of appeal to Federal Court.

The effect of s 205 (1), Govt. of India Act is that where a High Court has certified that a judgment, decree or final order passed by it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act, the dissatisfied party has the right of appeal to the Federal Court. If the case involves the amount of Rs. 10,000 or more and otherwise complies with the conditions regarding appeals to His Majesty in Council under the Civil P C, then the Federal Court is empowered to hear and decide all the questions arising in the appeal. If the Federal Court were not empowered to deal with all the questions in such a case it would mean that there would be an appeal to the Federal Court on the question of interpretation of the statute and an appeal to the Privy Council on the other points in the case. A. L. S. P. P. L. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. MUTHUSWAMI GOUNDAN Mad. 865

——— s. 270 (1)—Applicability — Act done by public officer apparently official Act — Character, if changed by allegations in plaint of conspiracy or malice.

If an act done by a public officer is apparently an official act, its character as such will not be changed by allegations that it was done in bad faith or that it had not that character which it purported to have. Applicability of the statute depends on what the act purports to be and is not affected by allegations that the apparent state of things is not the real one. The allegation that an official act was maliciously and corruptly done will not derogate from its official character if it had that character: and what applies to the attribution of malice or corrupt motive in the mind of a single officer applies no less where the same malice is attributed to him jointly with others. The word conspiracy only means that a malicious purpose is entertained by two or more persons jointly. NAND KUMAR SINHA v. PASHUPATI GHOSH Pat. 276

Government of India Act—1935—concld.

——— s. 270 (1) — Giving of evidence by Police Officers—When official act.

The giving of evidence by the Police Officers is not an act necessarily referable to their duty as Police Officers. The giving of evidence by a public officer may be an act regarding which it is to be determined on the facts of the particular case whether it was or was not done in an official capacity. There may be cases in which a public officer giving evidence does so in the execution of his duty as such officer.

Where, however, the trial Court has found that the giving of evidence by the public officers in the case was done in the execution of their duty the High Court will not, in revision, go behind such finding. NAND KUMAR SINHA v. PASHUPATI GHOSH Pat. 276

——— s. 270 (1)—Receipt of affidavit and making of complaint for offence under s. 193, Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) by Sub-Divisional Officer, are official Acts—Suit for damages based on such acts—Consent of Governor, if necessary.

The receipt of an affidavit of a person by a Sub-Divisional Officer and making of the complaint against such person to the District Magistrate of an offence under s. 193 read with s. 116, I. P. C. are official acts done by the Sub-Divisional Officer in his capacity as such, whether rightly or wrongly done and no suit for damages for wrongful prosecution will lie in respect of these acts without the consent of the Governor of the Province under s. 270 (1), Govt of India Act, 1935, when such acts are done before the relevant date i. e., April 1, 1937. NAND KUMAR SINHA v. PASHUPATI GHOSH Pat. 276

Government Securities Act (X of 1920), s. 5—Object—Question of assignor's beneficial ownership in war bonds and Government promissory notes deposited with Government by assignee, if affected by s. 5.

Section 5, Govt. Securities Act, was enacted only for the protection of the Govt. who can get a due discharge from the person who is the holder of the note. The question as to the beneficial ownership of the assignor in the war bonds and Govt. promissory notes deposited by the assignee with the Govt., is not affected by s. 5. MIDDE SAMPATIRAYUDU v. SONTI VENKATARATNAM Mad 597

Grant—Presumption—Britti granted by founder of estate, in his lifetime — His successors continuing grant for generations—Presumption as to permanent grant or charge on estate, if arises.

Where the original founder of an estate granted a britti in his lifetime; and his successors from pious motives continued the grant for several generations to the plaintiffs' successors who continued to be the family spiritual guides, and served and worshipped the family gods:

Held, that these facts alone were not sufficient to raise a presumption of any lost grant either for the permanent gift of britti or for its being constituted a charge on the estate. SRIS CHANDRA NANDY v. RAK A-LANANDA THAKUR PC 220

Haq-i-Chaharum. See Landlord and tenant 824

Hiba-bil-ewaz See Muhammadan Law 161

Hindu Law— Adoption — Adoption by widow on death of her adopted son—Estate vested in her as heir of deceased adopted son, if divested.

Where on the death of an aurasa or adopted son the estate which has descended to him from his father vests in his mother as heir, and she makes an adoption to her deceased husband, the estate so vested in her will be divested. PATTU ACHI v. V. RAJAGOPALA PILLAI Mad 630

——— ——— Illatom adoption — Incidents to be determined by evidence in each case—Held, that plaintiff was illatom son-in-law and agreement must be inferred from facts, on basis of which affiliation was carried out—Second appeal—Finding of fact—Illatom adoption.

An illatom affiliation is a creature of agreement. But this does not mean that in every case of an illatom affiliation there must be a detailed contract embodying all the incidents of the arrangement in the particular case. The incidents of illatom affiliation have not been completely established by judicial decisions and these incidents should ordinarily be settled by evidence in the particular case.

One K when he had no children took the plaintiff into his family with the idea of a regular adoption. Subsequently when sons and a daughter were born to him he formed the idea that, in due course, he would marry his daughter to the plaintiff and take the plaintiff as an illatom son-in-law. On this understanding the plaintiff continued to live in the family. On his death-bed K instructed his wife to complete the illatom affiliation by marrying the daughter to the plaintiff. The plaintiff was duly married to K's daughter and lived in the family and was treated as the illaton son-in-law;

Held, that the plaintiff was an illatom son-in-law. The plaintiff performed his part by marrying the daughter and was thereafter treated as an illatom son-in-law. From these facts it must be inferred that there was an agreement on the basis of which the illatom affiliation was carried out.

It is not open in second appeal to attack the findings of fact on the essential questions of the authorization by the prospective father-in-law to his wife to complete the affiliation after his death and of the subsequent marriage and the status recognized in favour of the adoptee as an illatom son-in-law. NAGI REDDI v. NANJUNDAPPA Mad. 298

——— ——— Widow — Authority to adopt—Time limit for adoption—Will providing for adoption of son of any nephew except V and K — Widow permitted to adopt any one except son of V or K on refusal of nephews to give son in adoption—Eligible nephews and their wives dead—Adoption of nephew's grandson, held valid.

Apart from any express restriction in that respect, imposed by the husband there is no limit to the time during which a widow may exercise her power of adoption.

A direction to operate as a prohibition against a widow adopting a boy as a son to her husband except the boy named by him must be explicitly made and clearly intended by the husband to limit the discretion of his widow for all time and on every occasion on which otherwise after his death his widow might validly make an adoption to him :

Hindu Law—contd.

Held, on facts that the direction in the will that the son of a nephew should be adopted was merely recommendatory so long as a nephew was available to give him in adoption and it was not intended that the direction was to be followed for all time and on every occasion when the widow might choose to adopt. It was reasonable to infer from the provisions of the will that the testator was desirous that an adoption should be made by his widow. He prohibited the adoption of a son of V or K and he expressed the desire that the son of one of his other nephews should be adopted if available. But he had not made it clear that in the event of such a son not being available no adoption was to be made. The adoption of the plaintiff who was a grandson of one of the eligible nephews was therefore valid as at that time, the three eligible nephews and their wives were all dead, so that, although some of their sons were living, they had no parents to give them in adoption, and it was impossible to comply with the provisions of the will. DAMODAR VISHNU v. SHRIRAM LAKSHMAN Bom. 413 ——— Alienation—Legal necessity — Limited owner.

The costs of necessary litigation for the purpose of obtaining property to which a limited owner was entitled would constitute legal necessity but the costs must be reasonable costs. MITTULAL SINGHANIA v. PURSOTOMB DEBI BAGLA Cal. 193 ——— ——— Widow—Trust, if alienation.

Quaere.—It is doubtful whether a trust deed can be regarded as an alienation. DAMODAR VISHNU v. SHRIRAM LAKSHMAN Bom. 413 ——— Caste—Baidya—Whether Ambhastha.

Persons belonging to the caste of Baidyas are not Ambhasthas. RAJNANDINI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82

——— ——— Dattakamimangoha s. 2 cl. (8)—"So forth" in cl. 8, includes marriage.

The words "so forth" in s. 2, cl. 8 include marriage. RAJNANDINI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82

——— ——— Dattakamimangoha, s. 2, cl. (84) —Ambhastha, whether comes under "Murdavhishikta and others."

An Ambhastha does not come under "Murdhavishikta and others" mentioned in s. 2, cl. 84, of Dattakamimangoha. RAJNANDINI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82 ——— Debts—Suit on promissory note executed by father—Sons joined as defendants but subsequently dismissed from suit—Decree against father alone—Interest of sons in family property, if liable in execution.

Where in a suit on a promissory note executed by father alone, the sons are impleaded on the ground that the debt was incurred for family necessity but the sons are subsequently dismissed from the suit and a decree is passed against the father alone, the decree-holder can proceed to execute the decree against the son's interests in the family property. REDDI KRISHNAN NAIDU v. CHINTALA SOMI NAIDU Mad. 825

——— Impartible estate.—Bhamgarh estate in Nimar District—Holder's right to alienate.

The holder of an impartible estate (Bhamgarh estate in Nimar District) governed by custom of primogeniture has a power to alienate the estate. RAO BHIMSINGH v. GANGARAM Nag. 598 ——— Impartible estate—Succession to ancestral impartible estate in joint Hindu family is governed by Mitakshara.

The successor to an ancestral impartible estate in a joint Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara is designated by survivorship although he holds the state according to the custom of impartibility. The estate devolves on the successor. RAO BHIMSINGH v. GANGARAM Nag 598 ——— Inheritance — Madras — Brother's son's daughter.

Under the Hindu Law as administered in the Presidency of Madras female bandhus are entitled to come in after the male bandhus are exhausted provided of course they satisfy the other conditions required by law. Consequently a brother's son's daughter is entitled to inherit. YENAMANDRA JAGANNADHAM v TEEBETHALA ADILAKSHMI Mad. 135

——— Joint family—Co-parcenery—Family consisting of male and his deceased brother's wife—Widow adopting son—Whether becomes co-parcener with uncle.

There is no co-parcenary body where the family consists of an individual male and for instance his deceased brother's wife ; but if the latter, having authority from her late husband, should adopt a son the latter would become a co-parcener with his uncle in the family estate BHAGWATI v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX, U. P. & C. P. All. 236

——— ——— De facto manager—Mortgagee dealing with him in good faith, if protected.

A person dealing in good faith with the de facto manager of a joint Hindu family is not affected with notice of any defect in his de jure title. A mortgagee dealing with a member of a joint Hindu family acting as a de facto manager of the family properties until they are actually divided, cannot be defeated on the ground that such member was not de jure manager of the family, where there is no proof that mortgagee was aware that proposal for a partition were on foot or that he dealt with the mortgagor otherwise than in good faith and in the belief that he was also the de jure manager. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAHRAICH RAM All 571 ——— ——— Manager—Finding that loan was borrowed for family benefit is one of fact.

A finding that a loan was borrowed by the manager of the joint Hindu family for the benefit of the family is a finding of fact and when supported by evidence, is binding in second appeal even though the second Appellate Court were disposed to disagree with it. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAHRAICH RAM All. 571

——— ——— Manager — Mortgage by. SEE Mortgage 657

——— ——— Self-acquired property—Person by will giving absolute estate to wife—Son adopted by widow on death of husband and property devised to him by will—Property in hands of adopted son is self-acquired.

A person made a will by which he conferred the absolute estate in the property on his widow. On the death of the testator his widow adopted a son under the authority given to her by her husband and made a will devising the property to her adopted son :

Held, that the absolute estate given to the widow would not be avoided by the adoption. The property was self acquired in the hands of the widow. It was also the self-acquired property in the hands of the adopted son as he got it under the will of his adoptive mother. NARINJAN DAS v. KRISHAN LAL Lah. 160

——— Joint family business—Transaction by manager—When supported — Principles governing transactions relating to joint family business, stated—Creditor, if must show actual benefit—Business mainstay of family, whether prima facie evidence that loan borrowed for business was for benefit of family.

There are two separate and distinct grounds upon which the power of a manager of a joint Hindu family can be "rightly exercised" either "in a case of need" or "for the benefit of the estate." That these grounds are separate and alternative. Where the question involves the consideration of a transaction relating to a business, the following principles apply: (1) If the business is merely the individual enterprise of any particular member or members of the family as distinct from a 'family' business, no question either of 'need' or 'benefit' can arise and the transaction can never bind the interests of the other members of the family. (2) Where the business is strictly 'ancestral', then either 'need' or 'benefit' to the estate or family will be presumed, (3) Where the business is a 'family' business but is either new or "newish" no such presumption in favour of the mortgagee arises but the question becomes one of fact whether there has been "benefit to the estate or family". In that case, when no actual benefit is positively proved, the mortgagee has to show that he made reasonable enquiries as to the purpose for which the loan was required and was reasonably satisfied that the purpose was beneficial. (4 Finally, where it is shown that the business in question is the 'mainstay' of the family, in the sense that it is all, or practically all, the family has to depend upon, then, the proposed mortgagee is entitled to accept that fact as prima facie evidence that a loan taken for the purposes of that business is a transaction for the benefit of the estate or family. He is not required to go further and to enquire into the technical business necessity for raising the money. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAHRAICH RAM All. 571

——— Maintenance—Widow—Estoppel — Mortgage by son, of house left by deceased father—Widow signing deed after hearing contents—Whether estopped from claiming right of residence and maintenance as against mortgagee.

A Hindu son mortgaged a house left by his father and after having read the contents of the deed, his widowed mother signed the deed. As a token of her consent the widow had acquiesced in the transaction to the extent of surrendering her rights of residence and maintenance:

Held, that the widow was estopped from claiming those rights against the mortgagee. JASODAN DEVI v. JAI GOPAL Pesh. 631 ——— Marriage—Marriage between Baidya and girl Kayestha, validity.

A marriaged by a Baidya girl with a Kayestha is valid according to local custom. RAJNANDINI v. ASWINI KUMAR CHOWDHURY Cal. 82 ——— Partition—Consent decree not to partition, if acts as estoppel.

A subsisting consent decree providing inter alia that the land in suit should not be partitioned, so long it stands operates as an estoppel between the parties and their representatives. PULNI KRISHNA MUKHERJEE v. ADYA NATH MUKHERJEE Cal. 692 ——— ——— Separation in status and actual separation of assets, if different.

A separation 'in status' may well be different thing from an actual separation of assets. It is possible, that a family may have divided 'in status' notwithstanding that the physical partition of the assets was not yet complete. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAHRAICH RAM All. 571 ——— Partition—Subsequent agreement between members to effect partition referring to previous agreement to same effect and cancelling it—Subsequent agreement held re affirmation of intention.

Where a subsequent agreement between the members of a joint Hindu family to effect a partition of family property referred to a prior agreement between them to the same effect and cancelled it:

Held, that the subsequent agreement was a 'reaffirmation' rather than a 'cancellation' of any intention to separate which might be found to be contained in the earlier agreement. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAHRAICH RAM All 571 ——— Religious endowment — Dedication — Bathing ghat on banks of Ganges at Benares—Dedication, nature of—Partial or complete —Whether must be complete.

A bathing ghat on the banks of the Ganges at Benares is a subject-matter to be considered upon the principles of the Hindu Law. If dedicated to such a purpose, land or other property would be dedicated to an object both religious and of public utility, just as much as is a dharamsala or a math, notwithstanding that it be not dedicated to any particular diety. But it cannot from this consideration be at once concluded that in any particular case there has been a dedication in the full sense of the Hindu Law which involves the complete cessation of ownership on the part of the founder and the vesting of the property in the religious institution or object. There may or may not be some presumption arising in respect of this, from particular circumstances of a given case, but, in the absence of a formal and express endowment evidenced by deed or declaration, the character of the dedication can only be determined on the basis of the history of the institution and the conduct of the founder and his heirs. That the dedication of property to religious or charitable uses may be complete or partial is as true under the Benares as under the Bengal School of Hindu Law. Partial dedication may take place not only where a mere charge is created in favour of an idol or other religious object but also "where the owner retained the property in himself but granted the community or part of the community and easement over it for certain specified purposes." HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI v. GAURI SHANKER TEWARI P C 882 ——— ——— Dedication—Essentials for valid dedication.

There is the very broadest distinction between saying that the ownership of a person in a bathing ghat is not absolute because it is qualified by the public's right of user for purposes of bathing, and say that the person is not the owner at all, but a mere mutawalli in whom nothing vests because his predecessor had dedicated the ghat in the full sense of divesting himself completely of all interest therein Dedication in the full sense known to the Hindu Law is a different matter. In the usual case of complete dedication made to an idol, for example, the property ceases altogether to belong to the donor and becomes vested in the idol as a juristic person. Complete relinquishment by the owner of his proprietary right is however by no means the only form of dedication known to the Hindu Law and is very different from anything that could ordinarily be inferred from the public user of a highway. From the standpoint of the Hindu Law it is not essential to a valid dedication that the legal title should pass from the owner nor is it inconsistent with an effectual dedication that the owner should continue to make any and all uses of the land which do not interfere with the uses for which it is dedicated. When the dedication is only partial the property in some parts of India might nonetheless in common parlance be described as devottar; but whether it be charged with a sum of money for the worship of an idol or be subjected to a right of limited user on the part of the public, it would descend and be alienable in the ordinary way; the only difference being that it passes with the charge upon it. HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI v. GAURI SHANKER TEWARI PC 882 ——— Religious endowment—Dedication—Prayag or Puthiya ghat at Benares—Nature of dedication—Plaintiff held owner of said ghat and could restrain defendants from using it for acting as ghatias without plaintiff's consent in exercise of profession of ghatias.

Hindu Law—contd.

The river bank at Benares is a sacred and historic spot with a powerful claim to the regard of a pious Hindu; but the practice of bathing in the Ganges is not in general so directly connected with the worship of a particular diety that nothing short of complete dedication would be appropriate for a public bathing ghat. The character of the use to be made of the bank does not require it. Nor does the public right of use for purposes of bathing take its origin as a rule from an immediate and express act of dedication: rather does it begin by acts of user which are acquiesced in by the owner of the property who in due course makes provision for the public needs as an act of charity or piety. It may well be doubted whether a complete abandonment of the owner's rights is at all usual in the case of public bathing ghats; though it might be common enough in the case of banks dedicated to the public for bathing purposes: even then the ownership of the banks would be another matter:

Held, that the plaintiff was the owner of the Prayag or Puthiya ghat at Benares and permanent injunction could be granted to the plaintiff, restraining the defendants from frequenting the Prayag ghat, without the consent of the plaintiff or her successor-in-title, for the purpose of acting as ghatias thereon, and from sitting or squatting upon the same without such consent in the exercise of the profession or occupation of ghatias. HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI v. GAURI SHANKER TEWARI PC 882

——— ——— Shebait—*Co-*shebaits are co-sharers of shebaiti right and not of debutter property.

The fundamental fact to be remembered in the case of an absolute debutter is that the property of the debutter estate belongs absolutely to the idol. The shebait is not the owner of the property and if there are several co-shebaits they are in no sense co-sharers in the property. The shebait has not the legal ownership but only the title of a manager of a religious endowment. Co-shebaits, are not co-sharers of the debutter property. They are co-sharers of the shebaiti right. This "possessory title" of a shebait is merely a right to possess on behalf of the idol; it is not a title which the shebait has by virtue of a right of ownership in the property. GOBINDA DAS NATH v. SHYAMA CHARAN NATH Cal. 200

——— ——— Shebait—*Co-*shebaits—*Right to contribution among co-*shebaits, if exists—One shebait paying revenue to save property from sale—Other co-shebaits, when liable for contribution.

Hindu Law—contd.

A finding that the parties are co-sharers in the shebaiti interest cannot by itself afford sufficient basis for a decree for contribution in proportion to the shares of the parties. Unless some special contract or custom is proved, the right to contribution cannot arise. The property which is saved from sale by the payment of revenue by one of the co-shebaits is not the shebaiti interest in which the hebaits are co-sharers but the property of the idol in which they are not co-sharers. The other co-hebaits are not, therefore, liable for contribution in the absence of a special contract or custom. But even if special contract or custom is proved the co-shebaits are not liable for contribution, where the revenue is paid by one of them out of the surplus funds in his hands. GOBINDA DAS NATH v. SHYAMA CHARAN NATH Cal. 200 ——— Religious endowment—Shebait—Position of—If trustee—One shebait if can sue others for contribution when obligation on part of others is proved.

Shebaits are managers of the debutter property and although their rights and duties to some extent resemble those of trustees they are not trustees in the true legal sense of the term inasmuch as the property of the estate is not vested in them as manager of the estate of the idol. One of the shebaits can sue the others for expenses incurred in the course of management if it can be established that there was an obligation in the other managers to share in the payment of these expenses. GOBINDA DAS NATH v. SHYAMA CHARAN NATH Cal. 200

——— ——— Shebaitship—Devolution of—Principles as to, stated.

The principles applicable to a case where the shebait is dead are as follows: (a) If there is a provision in the deed of endowment about the mode in which the office is to be filled up, the next shebait is to be appointed in pursuance of the provision, that is, the devolution of the trust depends upon the terms on which it was created; (b) If there are no such provisions, then it depends on the usage of a particular institution; (c) In the absence of all these, the office of shebait reverts to the heirs of the founder.

The founder of the endowment did not nominate anybody as the next shebait, although she had reserved that right in herself, nor did the managing committee to whom she had given such right nominate anybody as the shebait. Indeed the managing committee never took the slightest interest in this endowment and they did not care to fill the vacancies as they occurred by the death of the members and so their number was reduced to two:

Held, that the title to the property and its management and control followed the line of inheritance from the founder, and the next heir-at-law of the founder became the shebait. Such a vesting could not be prevented by the likelihood of any power if there was any such power left outstanding in the committee of two being exercised. The office became hereditary in the hands of the heir-at-law and after his death it was not necessary again to go back to the original founder and see as to who would be her heirs as it would be in contravention of the Hindu Law of inheritance to say that the endowment should be held in a series of successive life estates by the heritors.

Held, further that after the death of one of the two members of the managing committee the sole surviving member of the committee could not constitute the committee and, the son of the heir-at-law who succeeded him after his death obtained an indefeasible title from the very start and in any event after the death of the sole surviving member of the committee his title became absolutely indefeasible. DHARAM NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN All. 697 ——— Religious endowment—Shebaitship—Suit about—Parties—Deity, if necessary party.

Where in a suit merely questions of deb-sheba arise, the idol is not a necessary party to be brought on the record, for the transferability of shebaitship does not depend upon the will of the idol. PULIN KRISHNA MUKHERJEE v. ADYA NATH MUKHERJEE Cal. 692 ——— Shebaitship—Turn of worship (joint pala)—Partition of—Extent of.

The joint pala cannot be put up for sale as it would be wrong to compel the holder of a religious office to part with it against his wishes for a pecuniary consideration but the joint palas can be partitioned by giving each shebait a turn of worship in rotation when, the shebaits have a material and proprietary interest in the offerings and it has become impossible owing to disputes and differences to carry on the sheba jointly:

Held, that the custom existed whereby the palas of the deity were trasferable. PULIN KRISHNA MUKHERJEE v. ADYA NATH MUKHERJEE Cal. 692

——— Reversioner—When next reversioner is female getting limited interest, remote reversioner who would get absolute estate can sue for declaration that alienation made by limited owner is bad.

Ordinarily, a remote reversioner is not entitled to institute a suit unless he can show that the next reversioner has precluded himself from instituting a suit or has refused to institute a suit or is in collusion with the limited owner. Where, however, the next reversioner is a female, who would also get a limited interest, the remote reversioner who would get an absolute interest is entitled to sue for the prevention of waste, or for a declaration that an alienation by the limited owner is bad on the ground that it was made without legal necessity. MITTULAL SINGHANIA v. PURSOTOMH DEBI BAGLA Cal. 193

——— Widow—Maintenance. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 34 27

——— ——— Maintenance — Husband, if can dispose of property so as to jeopardise wife's right to maintenance—Provision as to maintenance of widow in husband's will, value of—If deprives Court's power to fix reasonable maintenance.

A widow is entitled to be maintained by persons who may have inherited the estate of her husband, so long as she does not lose such right by reason of inchastity on immorality. It is not open to a husband to dispose of his property in such a manner as to jeopardise the rights of his wife. If a provision is made by a Hindu husband in his will as regards the maintenance to be granted to his widow after his death, this can only be taken as a suggestion made by the husband as to what would be a reasonable provision for her maintenance and cannot deprive the Court of its power to fix a reasonable maintenance. Even if the husband bequeathed his property ignoring the wife's claim to maintenance absolutely, the bequest will not defeat the widow's claim to maintenance and will defeat her claim. JAMUNA KUNWAR v. ARJUN SINGH All. 27

——— ——— Maintenance—In order to claim maintenance, widow, if bound to reside in husband's house—Direction in husband's will that widow must reside at family house, if can be ignored for just cause.

Ordinarily a widow is not bound to remain at the residence of her deceased husband in order to claim maintenance provided she does not leave it for unchaste purposes and when there is a direction in the will that she must reside at the family house the direction can be ignored for just cause:

Held, on facts that there were sufficient grounds for the widow to leave the residential house, JAMUNA KUNWAR v. ARJUN SINGH All. 27

——— Widow — Surrender—Suit by presumptive reversioner for declaration that surrender by limited owner is invalid—Onus to prove that surrender is valid, where lies—Suit by remote reversioner—Limitation.

In a suit by presumptive reversioners for a declaration that alienations by the intermediate limited owners is not binding on the actual reversioners the onus of proving legal necessity, is upon the alienee. The suit for a declaration by a presumptive reversioner that surrender by the limited owners is invalid and does not destroy rights of actual reversioners should be governed by the same rule of onus inasmuch as under the Hindu Law the intermediate limited owners have only life interest and the estate vests absolutely only in male reversioners.

Where the immediate reversioners were parties to the alienation by the widow, and consequently precluded themselves from bringing a suit for having it declared to be improper, the remote reversioner is competent to maintain a suit for a declaratory relief under s. 42, Specific Relief Act. As the Act makes no express provision for such cases, the suit must necessarily be referred to Art. 120, under which it should be instituted within six years from the date when the right to sue accrued. The right to sue would accrue ordinarily as soon as the alienation is made, but in a case where the plaintiff was not born when the widow executed the deed, his right to sue could not come into existence before the date of his birth. JANAKI NATH ROY v. JYOTISH CHANDRA ACHARYA CHOWDHURY Cal. 419 ——— ——— Surrender—Surrender with consent of daughter of next reversioner—Daughter reserving to herself as consideration substantial part of property or stipulating for any benefit to her save and except what was necessary for maintenance—Surrender to preserve husband's estate—Surrender, if binding on next reversioner.

Under Hindu Law a widow can, with the consent of her daughter who is the next heir of her husband, relinquish the estate in favour of the daughter's son. But the consent given by her must show an intention to efface her own interest completely and circumstances must be such as would entitle the Court to construe the transaction as amounting, in substance, to a relinquishment by the widow in favour of her daughter and a second surrender by the latter in favour of the next male heir. If the daughter who joins with the mother in the act of surrender reserves for herself as a consideration for the same, a substantial part of the property which she is also presumed to surrender, or stipulates for any benefit to her save and except what is necessary for her maintenance, the transaction might amount to a transfer of her own life interest for consideration, but that could not give the reversioner in whose favour the surrender is made an absolute interest in the estate to the prejudice of the actual reversioner at the time of her death. Mere consent might operate as a personal estoppel against the consenting daughter or any other person claiming through her, but it cannot bind the actual reversioner. Such a surrender is not binding on the actual reversioner even if it is made to preserve the husband's estate. Protection of the husband's estate is, no relevant matter for consideration in determining the validity of a surrender by the widow. JANAKI NATH ROY v. JYOTISH CHANDRA ACHARYA CHOUDHURY Cal. 419

Hindu Law—concld.

——— Widow—Surrender—Surrendering female, can take portion of immovable property for maintenance—Such maintenance reserved—If it can be enjoyed by widow's successor after her death.

The maintenance need not be provided in the shape of a periodical pecuniary allowance and there is nothing in law which prevents the surrendering female heir from taking a portion of the immovable property or a lump sum at once for purposes of maintenance provided it is not unreasonable.

A surrendering female heir can always reserve for herself a right to be maintained out of the estate which she surrenders, but the maintenance can be enjoyed by her only during her lifetime. It would be against the spirit of the doctrine of surrender if the widow would stipulate for a maintenance allowance not only to be paid to her during her lifetime, but which would be payable for ever to her heirs and successors.

The widow has full powers over the income of her husband's estate, and a gift of the accumulated income, unless she had already chosen to treat it as a part of the corpus, cannot affect the validity of surrender. JANAKI NATH ROY v. JYOTISH CHANDRA ACHARYA CHOWDHURY Cal. 419

Husband and wife—Cruelty—Onus—Nature of proof.

There can be such a thing as mental cruelty but it should be possible to point to some definite words or actions as constituting it. A charge of matrimonial cruelty is a serious matter nonetheless serious when it is made against a medical man and it is for the party who makes such a charge to prove it if it is denied. If he or she fails to prove it, a Court of Law is bound to presume that it is unfounded, mere failure to control a daughter of 17—often no easy task—cannot either alone or in conjunction with anything else amount to cruelty to her step-mother. THA MYA v. MA KIN PU Rang. 836

——— Marriage—Proof of. SEE Evidence Act, 1872 s. 4 P C 209

Impartible estate. SEE Hindu Law 598

Income Tax Act (XI of 1922), s 2 (1) — Agricultural income — Determination of— Income held not agricultural.

In order to determine whether the income is agricultural income or not regard must be had to the source of such income.

An ancestor of the assessee had in the past rendered some service to the Bettiah Raj. In consideration of these services the Raj had for many years given a thikadari lease of certain villages at a comparatively favourable rent to this ancestor and afterwards to his descendants. On the expiry of the term of the lease the Raj declined to grant a new lease and the sum of Rs. 4,500 per annum was granted to the then lessee in lieu of the profits which he would have made if he had continued as lessee. The question was whether this allowance was agricultural income within the meaning of s. 2 (1), Income Tax Act :

Income Tax Act—contd.

Held, that this annual payment made to the assessee could not be regarded as agricultural income as it was not derived from any lands. It was in fact an annual ex gratia payment made by the Raj to the assessee in consideration of some services rendered by an ancestor of his in the remote past. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX v. DHANESHWARDHAR MISRA Pat. 767

——— ss. 3, 9—Trustees of private trust, if association of individuals within s. 3.

The Trustees under the trust constitute an association of individuals within the meaning of s 3 of the Act, but that does not make them owners within the meaning of s. 9. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX BOMBAY PRESIDENCY, SIND and BALUCHISTAN v. IBRAHIMJI HAKIMJI FIRM Sind 256

——— s. 4 (3) (i)—Private waqf for maintenance of settlor's family—Income, if taxable.

A difference must be drawn between property dedicated in name and in fact to God, in short a difference must be drawn between a private waqf created, if not primarily, at least in part, for the maintenance of the settlor's family, and a waqf created for charitable or religious purposes falling within the exception in s. 4 (3)(i) of the Income Tax Act. So far as the waqf operates as a waqf for charitable and religious purposes, immunity from taxation can be claimed, but so far as the waqf operates for the maintenance of the settlor's family or other quasi secular purposes, so far the income is liable to taxation. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, BOMBAY PRESIDENCY, SIND AND BALUCHISTAN v. IBRAHIMJI HAKIMJI FIRM Sind 256

——— s. 6—Interest awarded under s. 28, Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), if chargeable with income-tax—Nature of such interest, stated.

Under s. 28, Land Acquisition Act the awarding of interest is not mandatory but is discretionary with the Court; and so the claimant is not entitled to it as of right under any rule of law. Interest awarded under s. 28, is in the nature of compensation for the loss of the late owner's right to retain possession of the property acquired. In other words, it is damages assessed in terms of interest for loss of possession of property up to the date of receipt of its consideration. Such interest is not therefore, income within the meaning of s. 6, Income Tax Act, nor can this money be treated as profits when the assessee neither owns nor possesses what was, the only possible source of such profits. Nor can it very well be said that the money in question represents the interest which the assessee might have received by investing the principal sum. Consequently the interest awarded under s 28, Land Acquisition Act, is not assessable to income-tax BAHARI LAL BHARGAVA v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, U. P. & U P. All. 731 ——— ss. 6, 9—Private wakf for maintenance of settlors' family—Trustees of such waqf are not owners of income—Income to be taxed in hands of beneficiaries.

For the purpose of ss. 6 and 9, Income Tax Act, the trustees of a private waqf created for maintaining the settlor's family are not the owners of the income. The income should, therefore, be taxed in the hands of the beneficiaries and not in the hands of the trustees COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX, BOMBAY PRESIDENCY SIND AND BALUCHISTAN v. IBRAHIMJI HAKIMJI FIRM Sind 256

——— s. 8, Prov. 2—In obedience to directions of Income-tax Authorities, assessee company inserting certain figure as interest on tax-free securities in their return—Whether can challenge in appeal.

Income Tax Act—contd.

Even if the assessee-company in obedience to the direction of the Income-tax Department and under protest accepted a certain figure as interest on tax-free securities and inserted it in their return, they are free to challenge it in appeal within the time allowed. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX v. INDIAN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. LTD., KARACHI Sind 714

——— s. 8, Proviso 2—Life Assurance Company holding tax free securities, if entitled to ask that whole interest of tax free securities should be deducted from the total income before tax is assessed even if that total income is calculated according to statutory rules.

The mere fact that the accounts of a Life Assurance Company have to be kept under the provisions of the Life Assurance Companies Act and the rules made thereunder in a particular manner or that the income, profits and gains are to be calculated in the manner prescribed in r. 25, Income-tax Rules, does not affect in any way the statutory exemption from income-tax on the interest of certain securities, given by the proviso to s. 8, Income Tax Act. However the income or actuarial surplus be called, however arbitrary be the manner of its calculation, it is an income on which the company is assessed; it is sufficiently real to them, and if the assessee-company hold income-tax free securities, they are entitled to a real and not an illusory benefit from such holding, and they are entitled to ask that the interest of their tax-free securities should be deducted from their total income before the tax is assessed, even if that total income be calculated according to statutory rules. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX v. INDIAN LIFE ASSURANCE CO., LTD., KARACHI Sind 714

——— s. 13, Proviso—Assessee doing business of selling gold and silver served with notices under ss. 22 (4) and 23 (2)—Books of account accepted in respect of transactions in silver and s. 13, Proviso applied in respect of transactions in gold—Income-tax Officer held justified in doing so.

An assessee who was doing a business of selling gold and silver was served with notices under ss. 22 (4) and 23 (2), Income Tax Act. The munib of the assessee was specifically asked about the profits from the transactions in gold and silver. In respect of the transactions in gold the Income-tax Officer applied Proviso to s 13;

Held, that the income-tax authorities were justified without giving notice to the assessee, in applying the proviso to the s. 13 in respect to transactions in gold while accepting the books of account in respect to transactions in silver. GANESHILAL CHHAPPAN LAL v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX All. 606

——— s. 13, Proviso—Income tax Officer exercising his judgment and not acting arbitrarily — Interference with discretion

The language of the proviso to s. 13 makes it clear that discretion is vested in the Income-tax Officer; but obviously it was not the intention of the Legislature that such discretion should be arbitrary. What the Court has to consider is whether the Income-tax Officer exercised his judgment in arriving at the conclusion that the income, profits and gains were not properly deducible from the assessee's regularly kept books of accounts; if he did exercise his judgment and did not act arbitrarily, then having regard to the language of the proviso, his discretion cannot be interfered with. GANESHILAL CHHAPPAN LAL v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX All. 606

——— s. 14—Widow of Hindu co parcenary, whether member of undivided family within meaning of s. 14—Widow receiving allowance as member of undivided family—Partition between co-parceners, whether affects her status as member of undivided family—Her allowance, if exempt.

The widow of a Hindu co-parcenary, though not herself a member of the co-parcenary body, may nevertheless be a member of the undivided family within the meaning of s. 14, Income Tax Act. The widow of a deceased co-parcener receiving maintenance allowance as member of Hindu undivided family continues to be a member of the undivided family with each of the entities into which the family subsequently disrupts irrespective of whether any such entity consisted of one male member or of several male members because there can be no partition between a co-parcener and a member of the undivided family who is not a co-parcener, as for instance, the widow of a deceased co-parcener. Hence the maintenance allowance received by the widow continues to be exempt under s. 14 even after the disruption of the family. BHAGWATI v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX, U. P. & C. P. All. 236

——— ss. 33, 34, 35 — Powers of Income-tax Officer in matter of revision

It is not open to an Income-tax Officer, when he has proceeded to a final assessment to reopen that assessment whenever and, however, he pleases. The powers of Income-tax Officers in the matter of revision are limited by ss. 33, 34 and 35 of the Income Tax Act. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, BOMBAY PRESIDENCY SIND AND BALUCHISTAN v. IBRAHIMJI HAKIMJI FIRM Sind 256

——— s. 64 (3), Proviso— Proviso to s. 64 (3), construction.

The words occurring in the proviso to s. 64 (3) Income Tax Act, are that the assessee should have had an opportunity of representing his views and not that the assessee should have been formally heard on his objection KANHAIYA LAL GOENKA v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, U. P. All. 725

——— ss. 64 (3), 66—Place of assessment decided under s. 64 (3)—Incometax Officer accepting final order of Commissioner and proceeding to make assessment—Plea of jurisdiction, if can be raised in appeal before Assistant Commissioner—High Court whether can under s. 66 deal with that question.

It is not permissible to an assessee to create a question arising out of the appeal by putting it in the grounds of appeal when as a matter of fact the assessee is not competent to raise the plea and the Assistant Commissioner is not competent to decide the plea. Where the place of assessment has been decided under the provisions of s 64 (3), Income Tax Act, and an Income-tax Officer accepting the final order of the Commissioner or Commissioners or the Central Board of Revenue proceeds to make an assessment, the plea of jurisdiction cannot be raised before the Assistant Commissioner on appeal and the High Court cannot deal with that question under s. 66 of the Act KANHAIYA LAL GOENKA v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, U. P. All. 725

——— s. 66. SEE Income Tax Act, 1922, s. 64 (3) 725

Inheritance. SEE Hindu Law 135

Injunction—Grant of, is discretionary—Defendant assuring that he would take no action to the prejudice of plaintiff—Injunction should not be granted.

The granting of an injunction is a discretionary matter and the Court would be loath to consider that circumstances could make it desirable to Injunction—concld.

grant one in a case where the defendant has given an assurance that he would refrain from any action to the prejudice of the defendant. U I UN v U CHIT HLAING Rang. 114

Insanity SEE Penal Code, 1860, s 84 . 282

Insolvency—Official Receiver—His position as regards ordinary Civil Courts.

The Official Receiver so far as the ordinary Civil Courts are concerned is a suitor and a suitor only. He is not entitled to send reports as he does to the Insolvency Court and if he wants to either file a plaint or a written statement or a counter-affidavit he ought to do it in the proper form. P. S. AR. AR ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR v. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, COIMBATORE Mad 138

Insurance—Life—Fraud — Person effecting insurance must be actually dependent on or expect advantage from continued existence of person insured—Persons effecting insurance on his younger brother's life held had no insurable interest and hence the insurance contract was void under ss. 23 and 30, Contract Act (IX of 1872) — Insurance Company can under s 92, Evidence Act (I of 1872), prove that person effecting insurance was doing it for his own use and benefit and not for use and benefit of person insured.

To give the person effecting the insurance an insurable interest in the life of the person insured, there must be actual dependence of the person effecting the insurance on the person whose life is insured or he must have an expectancy of some advantage from the continued existence of the person insured.

A doctor insured the life of his younger brother who was carrying on a money-lending business on his own behalf and was not rendering any valuable services to the doctor. He was receiving Rs. 11 per month from his brother on account of the price of a house that he had transferred to him. He was also receiving maintenance and in lieu of that maintenance he used to assist his brother as a compounder. No such services were being rendered by him as could be enforced by the doctor in a Court of Law. The voluntary services rendered by him were also of an insignificant and perfunctory nature and in lieu thereof he used to receive maintenance from his brother. In the policy he was shown as a money-lender carrying on an independent business and was not insured as a compounder rendering services to his brother. Shortly afterwards, the policy was assigned in favour of his brother doctor and the assignment was registered in the office of the company. The company continued to receive premiums from doctor by means of cheques. On the death of his brother the doctor demanded a sum of Rs. 20,000, but the company refused to pay on the ground that the contract of insurance was void on account of fraud and misrepresentation, that the real person securing the insurance was the doctor and that his younger brother was merely a figurehead:

Held, that it could not be held that doctor was in any way dependent on his brother or that he expected to receive any substantial advantage from the continued existence of the life of his brother. In insuring his younger brother's life for a sum of Rs. 20,000 he was not insuring the life of a compounder but he was entering into a wagering transaction hoping to make money if his younger brother disappeared. The insurance contract was therefore against public policy and was also a wagering contract under the provisions of ss. 23 and 30, Contract Act.

Held, also that under proviso (1) to s 92, Evi. Act, the insurance company was entitled to prove facts showing that the insurance was really effected by the doctor for his own use and benefit and not for the use and benefit of his younger brother MANI SHANKAR SOMESHWAR PANDYA v. ALLIANZ UND STUTTGARTER LIFE INSURANCE BANK, LTD. Lah 155

Insurance—concld.

Interim order. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 151 175

Interogatories. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, O III, r. 1 707

Interpretation of Statutes—Declaratory statute.

A declaratory statute has a retrospective effect. FAZAL BEGAM v. HAKIM ALI Lah. 327 ——— Fiscal enactment—Doubt arising—Construction in subject's favour.

Where the interpretation of a fiscal enactment is open to doubt, it should be construed favourably to the subject. BAHARI LAL BHARGAVA v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX All. 731 ——— Punctuations.

A statute must be interpreted without regard to punctuation. BHOLA SINGH v. RAMAN MAL Lah. 312 ——— Section primarily intended to apply to suits—Principle of construction in applying it to appeals.

Where a section primarily intended to apply to suits is also to be applied to appeals, the ordinary canon of construction is that the necessary changes in wording should be made so as to make the section good sense VENKATARAMASASTRI v. VENKATASUBRAMANIA DIKSHITAR Mad. 758 ——— Side-headings to sections.

The Courts are not entitled to look at the side-headings to sections of a statute in interpreting the statute. The Legislature is not responsible for the side-headings. BRIJMOHAN SINGH v. TULSIRAM Nag. 75 ——— Similar words in similar enactment—Interpretation.

When the same or exactly similar words are used in statutory provisions which appear to have a similar object, they should be interpreted in the same way. VISHNU TATYABA NAIK v. EMPEROR Bom 229 ——— Statutes imposing pecuniary burdens—Strict construction.

Statutes which impose pecuniary burdens, are always construed strictly and a construction which would have the effect of making a person liable to pay the same tax twice in respect of the same subject-matter would not be adopted unless the words were very clear and precise to that effect. In a case of reasonable doubt the construction most beneficial to the subject will be adopted. DAULAT RAM v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, LAHORE Lah 72

Investigation. SEE Criminal trial 6

Issues. SEE Practice 571

Joint trial SEE Criminal trial 375

Jurisdiction. SEE Divorce Act, 1869, ss 2, 18, 19 382

Jury—Charge to. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 297 302

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), s. 23—Market value of acquired land, how to be determined

It is wrong to say that only the lease money of the land in dispute could be considered for arriving at its value and not the lease money accruing from the lands in the vicinity. The market value of the acquired land is to be ascertained from recent instances of sale in the same or in the adjoining locality and from the average rental of these and similar lands in the vicinity. MADARA v. SECRETARY OF STATE Pesh. 215

——— s. 28. SEE Income Tax Act, 1922, s. 6 731

Landlord and tenant—Estoppel—Termination of tenancy—Estoppel, when continues—S. 43, Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), if modifies rule—S. 46 of the Act, if applies.

The ordinary rule is that a tenant must deliver possession before he can dispute his landlord's title and that, that estoppel ordinarily continues even beyond the term of the tenancy unless the tenant first delivers possession. Section 43, Presidency Small Cause Courts Act does not purport to lay down any law modifying the ordinary law with regard to relations between landlord and tenant Section 46 of that Act has no application. M. VENKATA RAO v. B. SUBBA RAO Mad 251

——— Haq-i-chaharum—Liability of lessee or vendee of building site to pay, on transfer of building—Question is not of custom having force of law.

The question whether the vendee or lessee of building sites would be liable to pay haq-i-chaharum to the zemindar on transfer of the buildings, is not a question of a custom having the force of law. The question really is one of contract between the zemindar and the person in occupation of the site. RAMAI CHAUBEY v. RAM DATTA SONAR All. 824

——— Rent—Suit for, on ground that rent was settled—No declaration that land was liable to assessment sought—Failure to prove settlement—Suit cannot be tried as for declaration.

Where in a suit for rent the plaintiff has not sought for a declaration that the land was liable to fair and equitable assessment, but on the other hand it is asserted that the land has been settled at certain amount per annum, with the defendants, on the story of that settlement having failed the suit cannot be allowed to be tried as a suit for declaration that the land was liable to be assessed for rent. RAMGOBIND SAHU v. MOSO DHOBI Pat. 780

——— Rent—Suspension, doctrine of—Essentials for applicability of—Landlord realising rent of part of demised land from sub-tenant by mistake and not with intention of evicting tenant—Tenant not entitled to suspension of rent.

Mere dispossession of the tenant from part of the demised premises is not sufficient to justify a total suspension of rent, but in order to apply the doctrine of suspension it must be proved that the landlord deliberately and intentionally evicted the tenant from a part of the demised premises.

Where a landlord has realised the rent of a part of the demised land from the sub-tenant by mistake and his purpose was not to evict the tenant from that portion of the land, his action does not entitle the tenant to a suspension of the rent of the tenure. BASANTI LAL v. JAMUNA PRASAD SINGH Pat 250

——— Ryot, if can build house on parti land in front of his house.

A ryot is not entitled to build a residential house upon the parti land in front of the existing house. BADRI LONIA v DWARKA PRASAD RAM SHUKLA All. 785

Lease—Construction—Lease originally granted for building and manufacturing purposes at fixed annual rent—Lessee and his successors in possession for long time during which transfers taking place without objection by zamindar—Lease must be deemed to be perpetual with transferable and heritable rights—Mere fact of land being subsequently cultivated does not affect nature of original lease.

Where a zemindar has originally leased a land on a fixed annual rental for building and manufacturing purpose and the lessees and their successors have remained in possession of the land for a long time during which period the land has been the subject of numerous transfers without any exception even having been taken by the zemindar, the lease must be deemed to be a perpetual lease with heritable and transferable rights. The mere fact of the land being brought under cultivation subsequently cannot nullify the original lease and alter the position of the lessee and his successors to that of agricultural tenants. RAM DAUR RAI v. LACHMI PRASAD All. 407

Legal practitioner—*Professional misconduct—Gross negligence—Judgment-debtor filing satisfaction petition with forged signature alleged to be of decree-holder's son, acknowledging satisfaction—*Mukhtar endorsing identification of decree-holder on being told by judgment-debtor that person brought by him was decree-holder—Decree-holder alleged to be illiterate—Judgment-debtor known to mukhtar for 15 years—Mukhtar not making investigation nor taking precaution of obtaining thumb impression of alleged decree-holder but acting merely on judgment-debtor's assurance that he would obtain such thumb-impression—Mukhtar not acting for his or judgment-debtor's benefit—Mukhtar's act held, grossly careless and negligent—Serious notice of his conduct without imposing punishment of suspension held sufficient in the circumstances.

In execution case a satisfaction petition was filed purporting to be by the decree-holder. On the petition was a signature alleged to be that of the decree-holder's son, acknowledging satisfaction and also an endorsement of identification of the decree-holder, by the mukhtar. Subsequently this petition was found to be a forged one and the judgment-debtor was found guilty of presenting a forged petition of satisfaction. Proceedings were started against the mukhtar under the Legal Practitioners Act. In answer to the charge the mukhtar stated that the judgment-debtor a sadhu, had been known to him for fifteen years; that the latter came to him and showed him a man who he said was the decree-holder and asked him (the mukhtar) to identify him as such; that he was shown the petition of satisfaction which had already been completed, and he identified the person shown to him as the decree-holder. It was said that the decree-holder was illiterate and could not sign and another person signed who purported to be decree-holder's son. The mukhtar did not take the precaution of taking the thumb-impression of the person who was said to be the decree-holder on the mere assurance of the judgment-debtor that he would take his thumb-impression :

Held, that the frankness of the mukhtar in admitting that he made no further investigation while identifying the decree-holder and that he had acted merely upon the assurance of the judgment-debtor, must be considered as a point in his favour. Although cases of mukhtars identifying improperly must be regarded severely ; yet in the present case the Court could take a more lenient view because of the mukhtar's past record and because there was no suggestion that the mukhtar acted as he did for gain or in order to benefit the judgment-debtor in the case. He did not appear to have had any dishonest motive, though, in the circumstances, he was grossly careless and negligent Although the Court must take serious notice of his conduct yet in the circumstances the Court did not think that it was necessary to impose any punishment by way of suspension. RAMSWARUP LAL, A MUKHTAR, In re Pat. 861 S B

Lessor and lessee—Mortgage by lessee of lease-hold property—Privity of estate or privity of contract between mortgagee and lessor, if exists—Mortgagee entering into possession—Effect—Liability of mortgagee for rent and royalty due from lessor.

In case of a mortgage of a lease-hold property by the lessee the interest taken by the mortgagee is not an absolute interest and is not such as to render him liable for the burdens of the lease by reason of privity of estate. No privity of estate can result from entry into possession in the case of a person who has taken a transfer from the lessee of an interest which is not the whole interest in the term. There is no privity of contract between the lessor and the mortgagee in respect of the rent and lessee's covenants. If the lessee retains part of his original interest in the term the mortgagee cannot be liable to the lessor for the whole of the rent and covenants; and cannot without apportionment be liable for any part thereof, whether or not he enters into possession. The transferee of a partial interest in the term cannot be taken to have promised the lessor to discharge any part of the burdens of the lessee.

Hence the mortgagee of the lease-hold property is not liable to the lessor for the rents and royalties due by the lessor from the lessee. JAGADAMBA LOAN CO., LTD. v. SHIBA PRASAD SINGH P C 890

Limitation—Execution — Decree transferred to another Court—Question whether execution is time-barred can be determined by either transferee Court or decree Court—It depends on convenience.

Where the decree has been sent to another Court for execution, both, the Courts to which the decree is sent and the Court which passed it have jurisdiction to determine the question whether the execution of the decree is time-barred or not. The question which of the two Courts is more suitable depends upon the question of convenience and priority. P. L. S. P. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. L. N. CHETTIYAR FIRM Rang. 318

——— Minor — Suit against— Plaint within time —Subsequently defendant found to be minor— Guardian ad litem appointed, but beyond limitation —Suit, if barred — Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXII, r. 3 (C. P. Amendment)— Scope and interpretation.

Order XXXII, r. 3 of Civil P. C., as amended in the Central Provinces contemplates distinctly a suit brought against a certain defendant in which a dispute about minority is raised and in which the Court has to be satisfied about the fact of minority and then on being satisfied it has to appoint a proper person to be guardian. It does not mean that the suit is a nullity until that is done or that no suit can be taken to have been instituted until a guardian has been appointed. The Lim. Act contemplates a suit brought against particular person; it does not matter whether that person is a major or a minor. The suit is not instituted against the guardian but against the minor himself and the minor does not become another person simply because he is subsequently described as a major. Consequently the suit, so far as the Lim. Act is concerned, is against the proper person, whether he is described as a major or a minor and therefore is within time if it is within time on the date on which the suit is instituted by the presentation of the plaint. The question of guardianship is a separate matter and relates not to the institution of the suit but to the right of the plaintiff to carry it on against the person who in point of fact is a minor. If no proper guardian is appointed, the suit of course in the result becomes a nullity. But it is a nullity not because it is not instituted in time but because the procedure for continuing the suit against the minor and for obtaining a decree or order against him has not been carried into effect. ABDUL AZIZ v. AMIR Nag. 805

Limitation Act (IX of 1908)—Limitation Act, construction of — Principles—Hardship no ground for enlarging period.

Limitation Act ought to receive such a construction as the language in its plain meaning imports. A law of limitation and prescription may appear to operate harshly or unjustly in particular cases, but where such law has been adopted by the State it must, if unambiguous, be applied with stringency. The rule must be enforced even at the risk of hardship to a particular party. The Judge cannot on equitable grounds enlarge the time allowed by the law, postpone its operation, or introduce exceptions not recognised by it. Although great hardship may occasionally be caused by statutes of limitation in cases of poverty, distress and ignorance of rights, yet the statutory rules must be enforced according to their ordinary meaning in these and in other like cases. GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD. v. JANMOHAMMED ABDUL RAHIM P C 225

——— s. 2 (3)—Administration bond is bond as defined in s. 2 (3).

An administration bond falls within the terms of the definition of bond given in s. 2 (3), Lim. Act. GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD v. JANMAHOMED ABDUL RAHIM P C 225

——— s. 3—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VIII, r. 2— Apparent contradictions between —Provisions of, explained.

Seemingly contradictory provisions of s 3, Lim. Act and O. VIII, r. 2, Civil P. C, are easily reconcilable. Section 3 makes the question of limitation a material question although not raised by the parties; but a Court is not bound to raise and decide a question of fact of its own motion. Hence where the question of limitation is purely one of law capable of determination on the facts admitted or proved before the Court, the Court is bound under the provisions of s. 3 to raise the question suo motu and decide it.

But where the question of limitation raises issues of fact not arising from the plaint, the defendant is bound under O. VIII, r. 2, to raise such question in his written statement; if he fails to do so thereafter it is within the discretion of the Court to allow the question to be raised or not. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RABBURN Rang. 61

——— s 5—Applicability to execution applications.

Section 5, Lim. Act, does not apply to applications in execution at all. P. L. S. P. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTIAR v. L. N. CHETTIYAR FIRM Rang. 318

——— s. 10, Art. 120—Claim for account on footing of trustee's wilful default—Claim, whether governed by s. 10, Limitation Act—Art 120 of the Act, if applies—Claim for account of corpus of trust funds vested in trustee, if falls within ambit of s. 10.

Section 10, Lim Act has no application to a claim for an account of moneys which ought, but for the default of the trustee, to have come into his hands, but in actual fact never became vested in him. It does apply to a claim for an account on the footing of wilful default. Such a claim is liable to be barred by limitation, and Art. 120, Sch. I is the Article applicable. Hence the claim for an account of the corpus of the trust funds which became vested in the trustee falls within the ambit of s. 10, and is not barred by limitation; but a claim for an account of the interest which the trustee ought to have earned for the trust funds, but failed to earn is governed by Art. 120. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAEBURN Rang 61

Limitation—concld.

——— s. 10, Art. 120—Suit against trustee de son tort, for accounts—S. 10, if applies — Article applicable.

In a suit for accounts against the trustee de son tort s. 10, Lim. Act, will not apply, for, it applies to cases of express trust alone. Such a point is governed by Art. 120. DHARAM NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN All 697 ——— ss. 19, 20—Difference between s. 19 and s. 20.

——— s. 12. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 109 295

There is a fundamental difference between the ss. 19 and 20, Lim. Act. Under s. 20 all that is necessary is that an acknowledgment of the payment, (or, under the old section as it stood before the amendment: "the fact of payment"), should appear in the handwriting of, or be signed by the person making the payment. If the person making the payment is a Judge of the Court, and an acknowledgment of the payment, (or the fact of payment if the unamended section applies) appears in his handwriting or is signed by him, then that is enough. But that is not enough under s. 19. GAJADHAR PRASAD v. UDAICHAND Mad. 401 ——— ss 19, 20 — Explanation 2 to s. 19—Deposition of party admitting liability for claim reduced to writing and signed by Judge—Judge, if agent for purposes of s 19.

Explanation 2 to s 19, Lim Act means not only that the agent must be duly authorised to sign the document in question but that he must be authorised to sign for the purpose which the section contemplates, that is to say he must be authorised to sign on behalf of the person sought to be made liable for the purpose of acknowledging liability. The authorisation need not necessarily be direct. It can be implied, as for instance from the nature of the employment, but the authorisation, whether it be express or implied, must be to acknowledge the liability in question and not merely to sign the document. Though a Judge of a Court is authorised, and indeed required by law, to sign the statements which he records, he is authorised to do so for the purpose of authenticating the depositions and not for the purpose of acknowledging liability. He is in no sense the agent of the witness. He is merely fulfilling a statutory duty which is imposed upon him by O. XVIII, r. 5 of the Civil P. C., in order to bring into play the presumption raised by s. 80 of the Evi. Act. The fact that the witness is a party and consequently goes into the box voluntarily does not make any difference. GAJADHAR PRASAD v. UDAICHAND Nag. 401

——— s. 20—Appropriation of payments— Payment without instruction—Appropriation of, to save limitation—Account books maintained on katauti system—Entry of payment by debtor on credit side—If can be treated as part payment of principal.

Under s. 20, Lim. Act, in the absence of definite instructions by the debtor the creditor can appropriate payments made by the debtor. In the case of interest, if it is attempted to save limitation, the instructions must be by the debtor and the payment must be of interest as such, but in the case of principal, if the debtor has given no instructions, the creditor can appropriate it, if he so chooses, towards principal and can save limitation provided time has not run out at the time of appropriation, and provided acknowledgment of payment appears in the handwriting of or on a writing signed by the person making the payment. The execution of a sarkhat by the debtor in the creditor's books of account maintained on katauti system, on the credit side, amounts to a part payment of principal within the meaning of s. 20. SITARAM HABURAM v. SITARAM LALMAN All. 854

——— s. 28. SEE Limitation Act, 1903, Art. 44 168

——— Art. 44—Manager loosely described as de facto guardian is no guardian at all—Applicability of Art. 44.

Article 44 refers to the relationship of guardian and ward. A manager, loosely, described as a de facto guardian, is not a guardian at all. The article applies only if the transfer is binding unless it is set aside by a suit. LALIT KUMAR DAS CHAUDHURY v. NOGENDRA LAL DAS Cal. 168 ——— Art. 44, s. 28—Art. 44, scope of—Ward's failure to sue within time prescribed by Art. 44—Effect—Whether extinguishes right to property under s. 28.

Article 44, Lim. Act has nothing whatever to do with suits for possession. The only thing which becomes barred at the expiry of time prescribed by Art. 44, is the ward's right to set aside a transfer. The failure to sue within the time prescribed does not extinguish the right to the property under the provisions of s. 28 of the Act. LALIT KUMAR DAS CHOUDHURY v. NOGENDRA LAL DAS Cal. 168 ——— Art. 47—Final order—Appeal and revision, distinction between, made in Criminal Procedure Code.

Where the Sessions Judge in exercise of his power under s. 435 makes a reference to the High Court under s 438 with the recommendation that the order of the Magistrate be set aside, the matter remains sub judice so long as it is not finally determined by the High Court. The order of the High Court passed under s. 439 will be the final order in the case.

The Magistrate decided the case under s. 145, Criminal P. C. on August 4, 1932. An application was filed for revision before the Sessions Judge who made a reference to the High Court on September 29, 1932. But the High Court by its order dated November 11, 1932, discharged the reference and the suit was brought on November 13, 1935, 9th to 12th being holidays:

Held, that the order of the High Court and not the order of the Magistrate was 'final order' within the meaning of Art. 47, Lim. Act, and the period of limitation under Art. 47 must be computed from the date of the High Court's order. The suit was therefore within limitation. RAMPAL SINGH v. MANSUKH RAI KHEMKA Pat. 501 ——— Art 47—"Final order" in col. 3, Art. 47 refers to order contemplated by col. 1.

The "final order" in col. 3 of Art. 47 of the Lim. Act must be understood to refer to the order contemplated by col. 1 of the same Article. RAMPAL SINGH v. MANSUKH RAI KHEMKA Pat 501 ——— Art. 47—"Final order in the case", meaning of—High Court's order in revision in pro- ceedings under s. 145, Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898) — Whether Magistrate's order or High Court's order is final.

The Criminal P. C, makes a clear distinction between an appeal and a revision, because in the case of an appeal the party has a right to be heard but there is no such right in the case of a revision. Revision is entirely in the discretion of the Court. But where the Court does exercise its power of revision under s. 435 of the Code, the order which is ultimately passed by the High Court under s. 439 of the Code is no less effective than an order passed on appeal. Section 439 itself provides that in revision the High Court may in its discretion exercise any of the powers of an Appellate Court. If, therefore, an order passed by an Appellate Court could be regarded as the final order, there is no reason why an order passed by the High Court in exercise of its power of revision under s. 439 of the Code could not be equally regarded as the final order. Whether the High Court ultimately interferes in revision or not, its order is none the less the final order. RAMPAL SINGH v. MANSUKH RAI KHEMKA Pat. 501 ——— Art. 47—High Court's order dismissing appeal for want of jurisdiction, if final.

The order of the High Court dismissing an appeal for want of jurisdiction cannot be the final order. RAMPAL SINGH v. MANSUKH RAI KHEMKA Pat. 501 ——— Art. 47—Whether High Court's order summarily dismissing revision is final.

Quære.—Where the High Court summarily dismisses an application for revision, whether its order would be the final order within the meaning of Art. 47 of the Lim. Act. RAMPAL SINGH v. MANSUKH RAI KHEMKA Pat. 501

——— Art. 61. See Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 120 823

——— Arts. 66, 80—Bond—Bond providing for payment of loan within seven years—Further stipulation that interest due would be paid at end of each year and that in default of such payment creditor would be entitled to recover entire amount of bond with interest—No interest paid in any year—Bond held single bond—Limitation for suit on bond held ran from date specified for payment as prescribed by Art 66 and not from date of first default in payment of interest—Whole amount held did not become due on default so as to induce application of Art. 80.

The plaintiff instituted a suit on September 1, 1936, for recovery of money on foot of a bond dated September 2, 1926. The bond provided that the loan would be repaid within seven years from the date of execution of the bond. There was also a stipulation that interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid, the creditor would be entitled to sue for the recovery of the entire debt with interest. No interest was paid by the defendant in any year:

Held, that the bond such as one in question was a single bond notwithstanding the fact that there was what is called a default clause. Nor was it an instalment bond. The option given to the creditor was purely for the benefit of the creditor and did not make the money become payable. It merely gave the creditor a right, if he chose to exercise it, to have the money made payable Neither of the Arts. 66, 74 and 75, Lim. Act, were applicable to such a case. In such a case the period of limitation for instituting a suit for the amount due under the bond, ran from the date specified for payment as prescribed by

Art. 66 of the Lim. Act and that it did not run from the date of the first default in payment of interest, nor did the whole amount of the bond become payable on that date so as there and then to induce the application of Art. 80. RAGHUNANDAN TEWARI v. SHEORAJI Oudh 481 F B ——— Art. 68—Nature of administration bond—Art 68 applies to such bond—Time, when begins to run.

An administration bond is as often assigned when persons of full age are concerned as when the beneficiaries are all of them infants; and such a bond is of the nature of an additional security taken by the Court for the benefit of the beneficiaries. If a right of action under the bond becomes statute barred by the operation of Art. 68 of the Lim. Act, that does not affect the rights of the benefices against the administrator.

It is no doubt true that a suit by the assignee of an administration bond is a suit by a person who derives title from the assignment which is authorised by the terms of s. 292 of the Succession Act, but this does not show that the action on the bond by the assignee is not a suit on a bond subject to a condition. Every valid assignment of a bond confers substantive rights upon the assignee, but those rights are not, in any case greater than the rights possessed by the assignor. A suit upon such a bond, if brought by an assignee, is not in any way different from an ordinary suit by the holder of a bond, the condition of which has been broken. The action brought by the assignee being on a bond subject to a condition, Art. 68, Lim. Act applies and time begins to run from the last date on which the condition was broken and no action can therefore, be brought after the expiration of three years.

An administrator of an intestate is merely the officer of the Court in whom the deceased himself has reposed no trust. On the death of the former the estate of the intestate does not pass to his heirs or representatives and no authority whatever can be transmitted by him, nor has anyone claiming under him any right to interfere with or to complete the administration of the property of the intestate. The office comes to an end on death (if not before) and the course which should be taken when an administrator dies is to obtain a grant of administration de bonis non, and the person to whom such grant is made will be entitled to take possession of the property. Therefore the administrator cannot be guilty of any default or misconduct in relation to the administration after the date of his death, though, of course, his representatives would continue liable in respect of any such default or misconduct committed by him during his lifetime. The condition of the bond could be said to have been broken by the administrator by the default of some person in relation to the estate of the intestate after the original letters of administration had ceased to have any operation by reason of the death of the administrator. The condition of the bond according to its terms could therefore be broken at the latest on the death of the administrator and a suit brought by the person to whom the bond is assigned under s 292, Succession Act beyond three years of such death is barred by time. GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD. v. JANMAHOMED ABDUL RAHIM P C 225

——— Art. 80. See Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 66 481

——— Arts. 111, 116, 83—Sale and mortgage of lands by A in favour of B—Sale consideration left with B to be paid to A as creditor for debts due under mortgage and handnotes—Default by B—Handnotes paid by A—Same lands subsequently sold in execution of decree against A—Suit for possession and recovery of consideration—Suit held governed by Art. 111, read with Art. 116 and time-barred—Time held began to run when handnotes were paid by A.

The plaintiffs owed some amount to R on two mortgages and two handnotes. They executed in favour of the defendants a sale deed and a sudbharna bond and the defendants were put in possession of the land thus sold and mortgaged to them. The consideration was left with the defendants for payment to R. Defendants failed to pay to R. Plaintiffs themselves paid off the handnotes on March 25, 1929, and R sued them on the mortgages and obtained a decree. Subsequently the plaintiffs executed a sale deed in favour of X in respect both of the lands which had been sold to the defendants and mortgaged to them. Subsequently the same lands were put up for sale in execution of a money decree against the plaintiffs and purchased by Y. The suit was instituted on September 24, 1935, to recover possession of the land covered by the sale deed and mortgage of the defendants and the consideration which the defendants had failed to pay:

Held, that the consideration for the sale deed in favour of the defendants could not be split up into two parts, namely, the amount payable on the handnotes and the amount payable on the mortgages of R. That as the mortgage debts had fallen due prior to the execution of the sale deed there was a breach on the part of the defendants to pay the consideration money for the sale deed when they declined to pay the debts on the hand note. As there was an express agreement to pay the consideration money and as this agreement was contained in a registered document the period of limitation was that provided by Art. 111 read with Art. 116, namely 6 years and the suit having been filed beyond such period the plaintiffs' claim to recover the unpaid consideration money for the sale deed was barred. Even if the suit was viewed as a suit on a contract of indemnity to which case Art. 83 would apply, the suit was barred as the plaintiffs were damnified on March 25, 1929. BRAHAMDEO NARAIN RAI v. JAIKISHUN CHAUDHURY Pat. 172

——— Art. 115—"Successive breaches," meaning of.

The term "successive breaches" in Art. 115, Lim. Act refers only to cases in which there is a promise to pay periodically, as for instance, payment of rent, annuities, interest, maintenance, etc. BRAHAMDEO NARAIN RAI v. JAIKISHUN CHAUDHURY Pat. 172 ——— Art. 120.

SEE Limitation Act, 1908, s. 10 697

SEE Limitation Act, 1908, s. 10, Art. 120 61

——— Art. 120—Suit by District Board for realizing tax on circumstances and property, is governed by Art. 120.

A suit brought by the District Board for realizing a certain amount as tax on circumstances and property, is not really a suit for recovery of money but for the recovery of a liability under a particular statute and does not fall within the purview of Arts. 37 to 115, Lim. Act, but is governed by Art. 120. DISTRICT BOARD, DEHRA DUN v. BABU RAM All. 870

——— Arts. 120, 61—Joint purchase of property by plaintiff and defendant—Stamps for sale certificate purchased by plaintiff—Suit for contribution—Article applicable—Cause of action, when arises.

A claim for contribution in respect of a share of the amount spent by the plaintiff for purchase of stamps for a sale certificate issued in respect of properties jointly purchased by him and the defendant is governed by Art. 120, Lim. Act and not by Art. 61. The cause of action in such a case does not arise when the stamps are purchased but when they are actually utilized for the purpose in question. S. P. RM. M. MEYAPPA CHETTIAR v. S. P. RM. M. RAMASWAMI CHETTIAR Mad. 823

——— Art. 124—Art. 124, applicability to appointment to office by nomination.

Article 124, Lim Act is not applicable where the appointment to the office is made by nomination and applies only when the appointment is by succession through inheritance. DHARAM NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN All 697 ——— Art. 124—Distinction between claim to religious office and to property of endowment as also between movable and immovable property of endowment, if can be made.

There is no distinction as regards limitation between a claim to an office and a claim to the property of endowment. Nor is there any distinction between movables and immovables in a matter of endowment. DHARAM NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN All. 697 ——— Art. 142—Plaintiff applying for mutation—Defendant co-sharer in possession denying title of plaintiff—Plaintiff's suit for possession—Limitation, when begins to run.

The plaintiff applied for mutation of his name on April 29, 1934. The defendant objected and denied the plaintiff's title on May 19, 1921. The plaintiff learnt of this denial 15 days later. The Revenue Court dismissed the plaintiff's application on March 30, 1925 holding that the defendant was in possession. The plaintiff brought a suit for possession on March 30, 1937:

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation. Even assuming that the parties were co-sharers the possession of the defendant became adverse to the plaintiff from the date the plaintiff came to know of the denial of his title, and not from the date on which the plaintiff's mutation application was dismissed. The suit having been brought after 12 years from such date was time-barred. JWALA PRASAD v. LAKSHMI NARAIN Oudh 686 ——— Art. 142—Suit for possession based on title—Plaintiff alleging dispossession—Art. 142 applies—Burden to prove possession within 12 years is on plaintiff.

Article 142, Lim. Act, applies to a suit for possession based on title, where the plaintiff alleges his dispossession and the plaintiff has to prove his possession within 12 years of the suit. JWALA PRASAD v. LAKSHMI NARAIN Oudh 686 ——— Art. 179—Order permitting decree-holder to withdraw money awarded to him upon rateable distribution is ministerial order—Application for withdrawal is not step-in-aid—Subsequent execution petition held barred by limitation.

In execution of his decree, a decree-holder realised the decretal amount in part after the sale of certain properties. On February 28, 1933, the Court approved the schedule of rateable distribution and dismissed the execution case on part satisfaction. On March 18, 1936, the decree-holder applied for the withdrawal of the amount lying in Court. Subsequent execution petition was filed on March 18, 1939, and it was urged on behalf of the judgment-debtor that the application was barred by limitation:

Limitation Act—concld.

Held, that the Court had on February 28, 1936, decided the matter once and for all, and all that was necessary for the decree-holder to do was to comply with the ministerial rule for allowing him to withdraw the money lying in Court. His application on March 18, 1936, and the order passed thereon was a purely ministerial order and was not a judicial order in any sense of the word. The subsequent application being, therefore, presented over three years from the termination of the earlier execution case was barred by limitation. M. NOORUL HODA v. RAI NOHAR PRASAD VARMA Pat. 566 ——— Arts. 180, 182—Application for possession by decree-holder auction-purchaser—Article applicable.

An application for possession by an auction-purchaser, whether he is a decree-holder or a stranger, is governed by Art. 180, Sch. I, Lim. Act and not by Art. 182. There is nothing to indicate that the Legislature intended this article to apply to those auction-purchasers who were strangers. GURMUKH DASS L. DUNI CHAND v. MOHAMMAD KHAN NAMDAR KHAN Pesh 337 ——— Art. 181—Applicability to proceedings under s. 144, Civil Procedur Code (Act V of 1908) —Decree for pre-emption by trial Court—Deposit made—Decree reversed in appeal by original vendee—Amount withdrawn before such decree—Application for restitution—Time, when runs—Second appeal by pre-emptor—Limitation, if suspended—Time, when runs in case of deposit withdrawn after first Appellate Court's decree.

The article of Lim. Act applicable to applications under s. 144, Civil P. C., is Art. 181. Where the pre-emption decree of the trial Court is reversed in appeal by the original vendee, the right to apply for restitution in respect of the amount withdrawn by the vendee before the appellate decree from out of the deposit made in Court by the pre-emptor decree-holder for payment to the vendee, accrues at the moment when the first Court's decree is drawn up and the limitation runs from that time. The right to apply for restitution is not suspended because a second appeal is preferred by the pre-emptor. In respect of the amount withdrawn by the vendee after the decree of the first Appellate Court limitation for restitution in respect of that amount runs from the date on which the amount was withdrawn. UJAGAR SINGH v. LEKHA SINGH All. 387

——— Art. 182. SEE Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 180 337

——— Art. 182—Deed void ab initio—Limitation is not stopped.

The darkhasts filed by the assignee are ineffective to prevent limitation running, only if the assignment was void ab initio. If the effect of the decree is merely to cancel the assignment as from the date of the suit it prevents running of limitation. RAMCHANDRA KRISHNAJI CHANDOLE v. VITHU GOVIND PANHALE Bom. 79

Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act (II of 1876), ss. 55, 56—Government purchasing land at revenue sale and setting holder as licensee—Suit to set aside sale—Government, if necessary party.

Per Dunkley, J.—Government is a necessary and proper party to a suit to set aside a revenue sale, where the purchaser is the Govt. who settles the holder of the land as a licensee. To such a case s. 56 would apply. AH TWE v. MA MAI SEIN Rang. 372 F B ——— ss. 55, 56—Question as to arrears of land revenue or defaulter or both—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to decide—Suit to set aside sale by Township Officer for arrear of land revenue—Civil Court, if can entertain.

With regard to the assessment and collection of land revenue the (Lower) Burma Land and Revenue Act, 1876, specifically applies. It is not necessary to make any enquiry to see whether it does so or not. There is no preliminary question of whether arrears exist before the case is taken up by the Revenue Officer, and accordingly this question is one for him to determine. The Civil Court has no jurisdiction in view of ss. 55 and 56, Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act, to decide the question as to arrears of land revenue or defaulter or both and, therefore, it cannot entertain suit to set aside a sale held by Township Officer for land revenue arrears. AH TWE v. MA MAI SEIN Rang. 372 F B

Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886)—A, bidder at auction of toddy shop entering into partnership agreement with R after date of auction but before issue of license—Agreement held illegal.

A, a bidder at an auction of a toddy shop entered into an agreement with R after the date of the bid at auction but before the date of the issue of license, the terms of which were that, A, should bear one-half of the expenses of running the business and that the sale proceeds should be divided between A and R. The duties of R ware confined to the supervision of the procuring of toddy from the trees:

Held, that by the constitution of this partnership there was transfer to R of the privilege of selling toddy and such an agreement being illegal could not be enforced. NARASIMHULU NAIDU v. PEMMATI NAGA REDDY Mad 827

Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act (IV of 1938), s. 3 (ii)—Holder of vendor's lien in land, if agriculturist.

The holder of a vendor's lien in agricultural land is qualified to be an agriculturist. V. S. SINGHARACHARIAR v. PAPPETTI AMMAL Mad. 896

——— s. 3 (ii) Proviso A—Criterion for applicability of proviso is date of assessment and not period for which it is made.

The criterion for the applicability of Proviso A to s. 3 (ii), Mad. Agri Relief Act, is not the period in respect of which the assessment is made but the date of the assessment. Proviso A only disqualifies persons who have been assessed to income-tax in either of the two financial years ending March 31, 1938, and it does not lay down any restriction regarding the period in respect of which that assessment might have been made. RAJOO v. PALANIYAPPA CHETTIAR Mad 547

——— s. 8, Explanation—Whether covers case in which debt due by A is discharged on debt due by B to same creditor being substituted for it.

Explanation to s. 8, Mad. Agri Relief Act was intended to cover the case of a debt by A in favour of X renewed by another debt by A in favour of X or included in a fresh document executed by A in favour of X for the original advance plus some further sum. It does not cover a case in which a debt due by A is discharged on a debt due by B to the same creditor being substituted for it. NEELAPPA REDDIAR v. SOLIMUTHU UDAYAN Mad. 171

——— s. 9—For applicability of s. 9 both prior debt and debt sued on must be debts due from agriculturist.

Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act—concld.

Both the debt sued on and the prior debt which it is found to have been superseded must, if s. 9, Mad. Agri. Relief Act is to have any application fall within the definition of the term "debt" in s. 3; that is to say, both the prior debt and the debt sued on, must be debts due from an agriculturist.

Where therefore A and his brother B executed a promissory note in supersession of an earlier promissory note executed by A alone who was not an agriculturist within the purview of the Act, it is not open to B to call in aid s. 9 on the ground that the debt upon which he is sued is in renewal of a prior debt. N. KRISHNASWAMY IYEY v. T. N. NAGALINGA MUDALIAR . Mad. 470

——— s. 10 (2)—Mortgage executed for price payable to mortgagee for land purchased from him —Scaling down of such debt.

Where a mortgage is executed for the price payable by the mortgagors for lands purchased by them from the mortgagees, the debt falls under the category of s. 10 (2), cl. (2) and cannot therefore be scaled down. ATHIYAPPA GOUNDAN v. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR . Mad. 281

——— s. 15—S. 15, if can be invoked in favour of tenant whose rent is payable to assignee of rent from Malabar Jenmi.

Section 15 of the Mad. Act IV of 1938 cannot be invoked in favour of a tenant whose rent is payable to an assignee of rent from a Malabar Jenmi

The terms "Jenmi" and "Intermediary" used in s. 3 and in the succeeding ss. 16 and 17 are not extended by any words in the Act so as to include an assignee of the right to collect rents, and the definitions in the Malabar Tenancy Act do not cover such an assignee. AMAD KOYA v APPU Mad. 406

Madras City Municipal Act (IV of 1919), as amended by Act (X of 1936), s. 287—Power of Commissioner to refuse renewal of license.

There is nothing in s. 287, Mad. City Municipal Act, which indicates an intention on the part of the Legislature to withhold from the Commissioner the power of refusing to renew a license when the circumstances demand it. The Commissioner has in a proper case the power to refuse a renewal. The refusal should not however be arbitrary or prompted by some ulterior motive. ABDUL KAREEM v. COMMISSIONER, CORPORATION OF MADRAS Mad. 551

Madras Co-operative Societies Act (VI of 1932), s 51—Registrar or arbitrator in passing award under Act, if acts as Court—Proceedings under Act, whether suit and award if decree within meaning of s. 51 (1), Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920).

The Registrar or the arbitrator in passing the award under the Mad. Co operative Societies Act certainly acts as a Court. The procedure laid down under the Act is a substitute for an ordinary suit in a Civil Court and the requirements of a suit are satisfied in a proceeding under the Act. An award under the Act is a decree as used in s. 51 (1), Prov. Insol. Act. There is however no reason to suppose that a decree holder under an award under the Act is intended to be placed on any higher footing than an ordinary decree-holder. GOVADA BALAB ARATHI CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT SOCIETY, GOVADA v. ALAPATI VENKATAKRISHNAYYA Mad. 555

——— s. 51, rules under r. 15—Award made

Madras Co-operative Societies Act—concld.

under, filed in Civil Court under r. 15 (7) (c)—If can be executed by assignee of person in whose favour it was made.

An award under r. 15 of the rules under s. 51 of the Co-operative Societies Act made, after it has been filed in Civil Court for enforcement under r. 15 (7) (c) can be executed on the application of an assignee from the person in whose favour the award was made. K. MUNUSAMI CHETTI v. CHENCHU NAIDU Mad. 634

Madras Debt Conciliation Act (XI of 1936), s. 4 (1)—Application under, by insolvent debtor without permission of Insolvency Court—Jurisdiction of Debt Conciliation Board to entertain it.

An application to a Debt Conciliation Board when the debtor is an insolvent and the Insolvency Court has not given its consent, is in direct contravention of s. 28 (2) of the Prov. Insol. Act and the Board has no jurisdiction to entertain it. The position is the same whether the application to the Debt Conciliation Board is made by the insolvent or by a creditor. An insolvency takes away the jurisdiction of the Debt Conciliation Board. K. DASARADHARAMA REDDY v. RAHIMTULLA HUSSANI Mad 567 ——— ss. 18, 17—Board is entitled to give certificate under s. 18, even when it is bound eventually to dismiss petition of debtor under s. 17.

——— s. 17. SEE Madras Debt Conciliation Act, 1936, s. 18 416

Action under s. 18, Mad. Debt Conciliation Act does not depend on a majority of the creditors agreeing to a settlement of the debts owing to them. The opening words of s. 18 (1) make it quite clear that the certificate can be granted during the pendency of the proceedings if a fair offer has been made by the debtor and has been refused by the debtor. The fact that the Board may have to dismiss a debtor's petition under s 17, does not deprive it of the right of exercising its power of certifying that a reasonable offer has been refused. MUTAU GOUNDAN v. PERIYA GOUNDAN Mad. 416

Madras District Municipalities Act (V of 1920), s. 83 (1)—Power house built on part of hill set apart for religious purposes—Power used for lighting temple and way leading to it and also supplied to shop-keepers at profitable rates—Power house, held not exempt from tax.

The words "places set apart for public worship ..... other purpose" in s. 83 (1), Mad. District Municipalities Act read with the opening words of the section mean that there shall be exemption for places set apart for public worship and used for that purpose and for places set apart for public worship, but not actually in use. If a place is used for a purpose other than public worship, the place does not fall within the exemption, even though the intention was that it should be used for public worship. Where a power house is built on a part of a hill which is set apart for religious purposes, is used for the purpose of lighting the way upto the temple on the hill and the temple itself and the electricity is supplied to the shop and hotel-keepers within the hill at a profitable rate, the power house being used for commercial as well as religious purposes is not exempt from taxation. MUNICIPAL COUNCIL, PALNI v. SRI DHANDAYUTHAPANI DEVASTHANAM, PALNI Mad. 34 of parties—Consent withdrawn—Report of Official Referee, value of.

Madras High Court (Original Side) Rules—Questions raised, within province of Judge—When can be referred to Official Referee—Consent

Madras High Court (Original Side) Rules—concld.

The Official Referee is not a Judge of the Court but only a Commissioner and the adjudication by him of the questions, which under the Code and the Rules, form part of the functions of a Judge would be ultra vires. The Judge referring to the Official Referee questions which have to be tried by himself cannot confer jurisdiction on the Official Referee any more than he can confer jurisdiction on a stranger by asking him to decide points in dispute in the case. Questions as to the substantive rights are solely within the province of a Judge and matters of detail, i. e., the working out of those rights either by taking out accounts or effecting a partition or selling properties are, under the rules, functions which the Judge may delegate to the Official Referee.

Where the questions raised in the issues are entirely within the province of the Judge, the Court has no jurisdiction to refer them to any one for decision unless the parties have agreed to submit their disputes to arbitration. When the consent of the party to the matter proceeding before the Official Referee is withdrawn the report of the Official Referee should not be considered. If, however, the parties have expressly agreed that the evidence recorded by the Official Referee shall be treated as evidence in the case there can be no objection to the Court taking that evidence into consideration. V. G. MANICKA MUDALIAR v. ANDALAMMAL Mad. 801

Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act (II of 1927), s. 84 (1)—Villagers actively managing temple since 1904—Presumption that they had right to manage even prior to 1904—Archakas allowed to manage small portion—Effect.

Where the villagers were managing a temple since 1904 though prior to that date they had allowed the archakas to manage the small property of the temple for some years:

Held, that the presumption was that even before that year the villagers had the right of management and the villagers by allowing the archakas for some years before 1904 to manage the small property of the temple, did not lose their right of management of the institution, or even of its property. In re MUNIRATNA GURUKKAL Mad. 696

Madras Local Boards Act (XIV of 1920), s. 55 (2) (b)—Person whose adjudication is annulled under s. 43, Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), if "undischarged insolvent" within s. 55 (2) (b)—Whether disqualified to be member of Local Board—S. 55, if controlled by s. 73, Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920).

Annulment of adjudication, under ss 35, 39 or 43, Pro. Insol. Act, on whatever ground it is based, must be taken to put an end to the legal character of an insolvent which, adjudication under the Act confers upon a debtor, and he can no longer be regarded in the eye of the law as an insolvent. Hence a person whose adjudication is annulled under s. 43, Prov Insol. Act is not disqualified for election as a member of a Local Board as an "undischarged insolvent" under s. 55 (2) (b), Mad. Local Boards Act. That expression in s. 55 is not controlled by s. 73, Prov. Insol. Act. CHINNIYA PILLAI v. SUBBARATNAM PILLAI Mad. 147

Madras Survey and Boundaries Act (VIII of 1923), s. 14—Suits under—Government, if necessary or proper party.

The decisions given under the Survey and Boundaries Act are by Survey Officers who, though appointed by the Govt., in no sense represent them in their actions under the Survey and Boundaries Act. They are Statutory Officers given statutory powers and they act in a quasi-judicial manner; and their decisions are binding on parties in the absence of a suit. The Govt. is not in the least interested in the result of the suits; for the Survey Officer, in making his decisions acts not as an agent of the Govt., but as a statutory officer specially empowered under the Act. Consequently the Govt. is neither a necessary nor a proper party in suits under s. 14, Mad. Survey and Boundaries Act. SECRETARY OF STATE v MALRAJU VENKATA NARASIMHARAO BAHADUR Mad. 37

Maintenance.

SEE Burmese Buddhist Law 836
SEE Hindu Law 631
SEE Hiddu Law—Widow 27

Marumakkattayam Act (XXII of 1933), s. 38.

SEE Marumakkattayam Act, 1933, s. 43 869

——— ss. 43, 38—Application for registration of tarwad under s. 43, pending—Tavazhi, if can file partition suit—Rule of Hindu Law as to partition, whether applies to tarwad—Partition suit—Other members, if precluded from applying for registration—Doctrine of lis pendens, applicability of.

Chapters VI and VII of the Act stand apart and there is nothing in any of the sections of these two chapters which suggests that a tavazhi is precluded from filing a suit under s. 38 for partition because there happens to be pending an application for registration under s. 43. The ordinary rule of Hindu Law that the filing of a partition suit involves the automatic severance of the joint status applies to a tarwad and hence the filing of a suit under s. 38 puts an end to the right of other members of the tarwad to apply for registration under s. 43. The doctrine of lis pendens obviously can have no application here. There is a right to partition given in Chap. VI and there is nothing in Chap. VII which prevents that right being exercised while the tarwad remains unregistered. MADHAVI AMMA v. NAGAPPAN NAYAR Mad. 869

Master and servant—Employment of servant on basis of special contract—Pension rules subsequently framed by employer—Rules, when can be imported into contract.

Where a person has been employed on the basis of a special contract the provisions of the pension rules, framed by the employer subsequently cannot be imported into it unless there is any indication in the contract itself that the rules were to be considered as incorporated in the contract. AMIR SINGH v. NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA, DELHI Lah 384

——— Misconduct on part of servant justifying his dismissal condoned by master—Master cannot subsequently claim right to dismiss him or impose any other punishment in respect of that misconduct.

Once a master has condoned any misconduct which would have justified dismissal or a fine, he cannot after such condonation go back upon his election to condone and claim a right to dismiss him (servant) or impose a fine or any other punishment in respect of the offence which has been condoned. DISTICT COUNCIL, AMRAOTI v. VITHAL VINAYAK BAPAT Nag. 658 ——— Pension, when cannot be claimed as of right.

In the absence of a contract between the employer and the employee, the employee cannot as of Master and Servant—concld.

right claim the pension for past services Nor can the pension which is granted as a matter of grace be claimed as of right. AMIR SINGH v. NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA, DELHI Lah. 384 ——— Refusal to pay wages during period of suspension of servant, when justified.

A local body has no more authority and power over its servants and employees than any other person or body unless such powers are expressly conferred by statute. The matter, therefore, must be governed along the ordinary lines of master and servant An ordinary master not given special powers by statute or by some rule or law flowing from a statute has no power to suspend a servant. He can either dismiss him or continue him in service on fresh terms. In either case the servant is entitled to be paid up to the date of dismissal in the one case or of continuance in service in the other. The master can only justify a refusal to pay the wages during the period of suspension on the ground that he had a right to dismiss the servant because of some wrongful action justifying dismissal or that instead of exercising the right he came to a fresh agreement with the servant under which the servant rather than be dismissed agreed to forego his salary during a certain period and agreed to continue to serve on fresh terms under a fresh contract. But it would be necessary for the master to prove in such a case first, that there is this fresh agreement, and secondly that he was justified in dismissing the servant and thus forcing him into a fresh engagement DISTRICT COUNCIL, AMRAOTI v. VITHAL VINAYAK BAPAT Nag. 658

Mesne profits—Suit for possession and mesne profits —Claim for mesne profits neither tentatively valued nor court-fee paid—Prayer for amendment of plaint by valuation of claim and payment of court-fee can be granted at any stage of suit.

In a suit for possession and mesne profits the plaint ought to give a tentative valuation for the claim for mesne profits and on that valuation court-fees ought to be paid. But the Court cannot dismiss the prayer for mesne profits without giving an opportunity to the plaintiff to value the relief and to pay court-fee thereon. A prayer for valuing the claim for mesne profits separately and for payment of deficit court-fee thereon ought to be allowed at any stage of the suit. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

Minor. SEE Adverse possession 168

——— SEE Contract 178

——— SEE Limitation 805

——— SEE Muhammadan Law 253

——— Voidable transaction—Repudiation by minor —Whether should institute suit—Failure to sue within three years of his majority—Whether ipso facto perfects title of person claiming under voidable transaction.

A transaction which is voidable at the instance of the minor may be repudiated by any act or omission of the late minor, by which he intends to communicate the repudiation, or which has the effect of repudiating it. It is not necessary that he should bring a suit Hence the minor's failure to institute a suit within three years of his majority does not ipso facto perfect the title of the person claiming under the voidable transaction. LALIT KUMAR DAS CHAUDHURY v. NOGENDRA LAL DAS Cal. 168

Mortgage. SEE Suits Valuation Act, 1887, s. 8 871

——— Amendment—Question involving identity of mortgaged property, if can be dealt with on application to amend relevant documents.

A question involving the identity of the property mortgaged cannot be dealt with on an application to amend the relevant documents after the mortgage decree is passed, sale held and a sale certificate is issued. SHYAMA KANT LAL v. RAM LAL Pat. 748

——— Construction — Usufructuary — Mortgagor binding himself to deliver possession and authorising mortgagee to retain possession till payment of money advanced—Indication in document that property is to be taken as security—Mortgage held usufructuary within meaning of s. 58 (d), Transfer of Property Act (XX of 1929)—Mortgagee not put in possession—He is entitled to decree under s. 68, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882).

Where the mortgagor binds himself to deliver possession of the property in Jeth 1341 F. and authorizes the mortgagee to retain possession until Jeth 1350 F. when the executant binds himself to pay the money and the mortgagee is entitled to retain possession until payment of the money advanced, the transaction is an usufructuary mortgage. The mere absence of hypothecation clause is immaterial when in the deed the word 'rehan' is expressly mentioned in the heading and in the body of the document in more places than one there are indications that the parties intended that the properties described in the document should be taken as security for the loan advanced.

In such a case where the mortgagee is not put in possession against the stipulation contained in the document under s. 68, T. P. Act, he is entitled to either a decree for the amount which he lent or for possession. HARNATH SINGH v. MAIYA AMBIKA DEVI Pat. 272

——— Equitable. SEE Registration Act, 1908, s. 17 152

——— Hindu Law — Joint family—Manager— Mortgage by, on behalf of himself and as karta and guardian of his younger undivided brother— What mortgagee must show in order to bind minor's interest in mortgaged property—Mortgage by karta held was not binding on minor's interest in property mortgaged.

Where mortgage of property of Hindu joint family consisting of two brothers one of whom is minor is executed by the elder brother who is karta for himself and as manager and guardian of his undivided younger brother, stating as consideration the payment of debts of joint family business, the mortgagee, in order to bind the minor's share in the mortgaged property has to show in his suit that there was necessity for the loan, or that he made reasonable enquiry as to the necessity for the loan and that the facts represented to him were such as, if true, would have justified the loan.

The mortgage in suit was executed in 1916, in favour of B by A " for himself and as family manager and guardian of his undivided younger brother R", on the security of certain properties belonging to the joint undivided family. The consideration was stated to have been received " by your obtaining the same and paying the same towards the debts due by our common firm at Colombo." The mortgagee sued A and R on the mortgage. R denied both the continuance of the Colombo business and of the existence of debts of such business in 1916. There was no evidence sufficient to establish—even prima facie—the continued existence of the family business in Colombo in 1916, and the indebtedness of such business and no evidence of any enquiry made by the mortgagee, as to the truth of the representations made to him by A. In answer to the order for discovery, R filed an affidavit to the effect that the account-books called for were not, and never had been, in his possession, or under his control. The mortgagee took no further steps in the matter:

Mortgage—contd.

Held, that the mortgage was not binding on the interest of R in the property mortgaged in the absence of evidence as to the position in 1916. The statements of A in his written statement, which were not supported in evidence were of no value against R.

Held, further that the evidence, acquiesced in by the mortgagee negatived any deliberate withholding of account-books and no adverse inference could be drawn. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR v. M AR RM. VISWANATHAN CHETTIAR P C 657 ——— Mortgage of movable property—How to be enforced.

A mortgagee of movable property is not entitled to claim possession. His right is only to enforce the mortgage by suing for a sale of the property or by the appointment of a Receiver to secure possession of it in order that his security may be realised. CHINNI VENKATACHALAM CHETTI v. ATHIVARAPU VENKATRAMI REDDI Mad. 679

——— Mortgage of produce of land—Subsequent lease of land—Standing crop on land claimed by mortgagee—Mortgagee's title, if prevails over that of lessee with notice of mortgage.

Where the produce of the land realised therefrom every year is also mortgaged with the land, so long as the mortgagee allows the mortgagor to remove the crops and does not secure them during the year the crops were raised, he loses his right to them. His rights will not also prevail against a bona fide assignee from the mortgagor without notice of the mortgage in his favour. Where however the lessee of the land takes the assignment with notice of the mortgage of the produce of that land realised every year and standing crop on the land is claimed by the mortgagee, the title of the mortgagee to the crops must prevail over that of the lessee. CHINNI VENKATACHALAM CHETTI v. ATHIVARAPU VENKATRAMI REDDI Mad. 679

——— Mortgagee put into possession under registered sudbharna bond but no consideration paid—Suit by mortgagor after expiry of term of mortgage for possession—Suit should be treated as for redemption after taking accounts—Mortgagee is liable to account for income of property.

Where under a registered sudbharna bond the mortgagees were actually given possession but the consideration was never paid by the mortgagees, a suit brought by the mortgagor for possession, after the expiry of the term of the mortgage should be regarded, as a suit for redemption after taking of accounts. In such a suit the mortgagor would be entitled to possession on payment of the consideration and such other sums as might be due to him after taking of the accounts. In such a case as nothing is payable by the mortgagor on account of the principal, for the consideration was never paid by the mortgagee, the mortgagee is liable to account for the income of the property during the time he was in possession as mortgagee. BRAHAMDEO NARAIN RAI v. JAIKISHUN CHAUDHURY Pat. 172 ———Movable property, mortgage of—Validity—Produce of land realised every year mortgaged with land—Mortgage of produce operates as mortgage of movable property.

Mortgage—contd.

Under the Indian law there can be a valid mortgage of movable property. Under s. 3, T. P. Act, immovable property does not include growing crops. Where the deeds of mortgage not only give security to the mortgagee over the immovable property comprised therein but also over the produce realised therefrom every year, the deeds of mortgage will operate in respect of the produce on the land as a mortgage of movable property. The moment the crop comes into existence the mortgagee gets title to the crop. CHINNI VENKATACHALAM CHETTI v. ATHIVARAPU VENKATRAMI DEDDY Mad. 679 ——— Simple mortgage—Characteristics of stated.

The characteristics of a "simple morgage," are (1) that there must be a loan; (2) that the mortgagor must have bound himself personally to repay the loan; (3) that to secure the loan he has transferred to the mortgagee the right to have specific immovable property sold, in the event of his having failed to repay and (4) that possession of the property has not been, and is not to be, transferred to the mortgagee during the pendency of the mortgage. These stipulations may be express, or they may appear by necessary implications from the terms of the particular transaction. Thus, a promise to pay necessarily arises out of the acceptance of a loan and it need not be stated in so many words in the deed. It is implicit in the transaction itself that the obligor is under a personal liability to repay, unless this liability is excluded by the terms of the contract, expressly or impliedly, as for example in the case of a usufructuary mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale, where the agreement is to repay out of a particular property or fund alone and in a particular manner. OM PARKASH v MUKHTAR AHMAD Lah. 789

——— Substituted security — Amendment—Partition after mortgage of share in village—Mortgagor losing share in village mortgaged and obtaining share in another village—Mortgagee not proceeding against such substituted security in mortgage suit—Property originally mortgaged sold and purchased by decree-holder—Sale certificate issued—Subsequent application by decree-holder for amendment of description in mortgage decrees, execution petition, sale proclamation and sale certificate—Amendment held could be allowed upto stage of final decree and no more.

The mortgagors mortgaged their shares in village S while partition proceedings were proceeding in respect of the mahal which included the village S but before the partition was finally concluded and approved of by the Commissioner. By the partition the mortgagors lost all the property of any value in S but were given a separate takhta in village B. In a mortgage suit the mortgagee however did not take any steps to proceed against the substituted security but only prayed for sale of the original security. The preliminary and final decrees were for the sale of that share in S and such was the share mentioned in the execution petition, the sale proclamation and the sale certificate. After the whole proceedings were over and difficulties arose as to obtaining possession of the substituted security, the mortgagee decree-holder who had purchased the property himself applied to the Court for amendment of the description of the mortgaged properties in the preliminary and final decrees in the suit and in all the consequential papers of the execution proceedings, that is, in the execution petition, sale proclamation and sale certificate.

Mortgage—contd.

Held, that the partition must be deemed to have taken place after the mortgage On the principle of substituted security the mortgagees could have proceeded against such part of the property allotted to the mortgagors in village B as represented their original share in S which had been mortgaged by the mortgage and could have brought to sale the substituted security and hence an amendment of the plaint, the preliminary decree and the final decree, could be allowed but no further amendment, could be justifiably made. Because if an amendment was made in the execution petition, sale proclamation and sale certificate, the result would be that property would have been bought and sold which had never been even put up up sale. No amendment could therefore be made in any of the relevant documents and proceedings following the final decree. SHYAMA KANT LAL v RAM LAL Pat. 748 ——— Substituted security, ascertainment of—Method—Duty of Court.

In ascertaining what precisely is the substituted security out of a share allotted to the mortgagor in partition subsequent the mortgage the partition papers and the valuation of the properties made in the partition proceedings are no doubt of the utmost importance but it would be advisable that, before a finding is recorded as to what the substituted security is, the parties should be given an opportunity of placing their contentions before the Court and any evidence which they may seek to adduce and which the Court may consider to be properly admissible. After such inquiry the Court should come to the conclusion as to what is the substituted security and such should be inserted in all the relevant documents. SHYAMA KANT LAL v. RAM LAL Pat. 748 ——— Suit on mortgage—Lessee and trespasser, if necessary parties.

Though the lessee, or the trespasser, (or even the transferee), may be proper parties if their interests accrue subsequent to the mortgage, they are not necessary parties to a suit on mortgage. UMAR HAJI KARIM v. BADRIDAS RENURAI Nag. 306

——— Usufructuary—Mortgage bond containing term mentioning period after which mortgagor undertakes to redeem property on payment of principal—Whether inconsistent with usufructuary mortgage.

Where the mortgagee is given possession of the mortgaged property and the stipulation is that he should remain in possession till the sum advanced is paid and enjoy the usufruct in lieu of interest, the mortgage is usufructuary even if the mortgage bond mentions a period or term, after which the mortgagor undertakes to redeem the property on payment of the principal money. Such a term is quite consistent with the mortgage being a usufructuary mortgage and does not by itself import any personal liability. It simply amounts to a proviso for redemption, and fixes the minimum period within which the right of redemption can be exercised. A provision in the deed that in case of dispossession the mortgagee would be able to realise the principal and interest at certain rate, is in the nature of an indemnity clause and does not alter the nature of the mortgage. BHUTNATH JANAN v. GOPAL PROSAD SAHU. Cal. 26

Motor Vehicles Act (VIII of 1914), s. 16, rules under, Punjab Motor Vehicles Rules, rr. 24 (1), 48 and 49—Offence under—Summons not specifying nature of—Accused not given opportunity to produce defence—Conviction held could not be sustained.

Where in a case in which the accused was charged with offences under rr. 34 (1), 48 and 49, Punjab Motor Vehicles Rules the nature of the offence was not specified in the summons which was issued to the accused, and the case was somehow taken up before the date fixed and no adjournment was granted to him to enable him to produce his evidence in support of his defence,

Held, that the accused was prejudiced in his defence and consequently his conviction could not be sustained. GHULAM QADIR v. EMPEROR Lah. 673

——— s. 112—U. P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1940, rr. 2 (g), 79 (viii)—Offence under s. 112 read with r. 79 (viii), if can be tried by Honorary Special Magistrate or by stipendiary Magistrate.

In r. 2 (g) of the U. P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1940, "Magistrate" means a stipendiary Magistrate. This presumably means that wherever the word "Magistrate" occurs in the rules it must be understood to mean a stipendiary Magistrate. The rules do not deal with the trial of offences under the Act. The mere fact that the offence of which the accused was convicted is made an offence by r. 79 (viii) of the Motor Vehicles Rules is no reason for holding that the Magistrate trying the case must be a Magistrate such as is defined in those rules. The accused can therefore be convicted by Honorary Special Magistrate for offences under s. 112 of the Motor Vehicles Act read with r. 79 (viii) of the Motor Vehicles Rules. SOBHA RAM v. EMPEROR Oudh 50

——— s. 112—Words "this Act", if include convictions under old Act—Three previous convictions for offences under old Act—Proper sentence—Motor Vehicles Rules (1940), r. 79 (viii).

The words "this Act" in s. 112, Motor Vehicles Act of 1939, do not include convictions under the old Act of 1914, which is repealed by the new Act.

Where, therefore, an accused who had three previous convictions for offences under the old Act of 1914, was convicted under s. 112 of Act of 1939, for breach of r. 79 (viii) of Motor Vehicles Rules of 1940, for carrying passengers in excess and was sentenced to a fine of Rs. 100:

Held, that the fine of Rs. 100 was illegal and must be reduced to Rs. 20.

Held, further that the proper course for the Magistrate in such a case was to cancel the accused's licence for a period of at least six months, and if this accused was brought up again for an offence under the Motor Vehicles Act, the Magistrate would do well to cancel his licence either for a period of one year or six months. EMPEROR v. BISHUN NARAIN Oudh 340

Motor Vehicles Rules (1940) r. 79 (viii). See Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, s. 112 340

Muhammadan Law—Gift—Gift in future, validity.

Under the Muhammadan Law immediate possession is essential for gift. A gift in future is void. Where the donor retains possession during his lifetime and the donee is to take after his death, the gift is void. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

——— Hiba-bil-ewaz—Deed duly executed and registered showing bona fide intention of donor to divest himself in præsenti of property and confer it upon donee—Deed delivered to wife

Muhammadan Law—contd.

—Gift is valid though possession is not delivered.

The words in the deed of gift duly executed and registered that the donor had put the donee in possession and occupation of the land gifted from the date of its execution, show the bona fide intention of the donor to divest himself in præsenti of the property and to confer it upon the donee. Where it is also stated in the deed that the donor stipulated and reduced it to writing that he had no concern of any sort left in the land gifted and that all the rights which he had would hereafter be enjoyed by the donee the gift is not invalid merely for the reason that possession was not delivered. Where a Muhammadan executes a deed of gift of immovable property in favour of his wife which declares that he had delivered possession over it to her as absolute owner and the deed is handed to and retained by her the gift is valid though the donee has not obtained actual possession until after her husband's death. PASHIRAN v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN Oudh 161

——— Marriage—Acknowledgment— Acknowledgment by man that certain woman is his wife, if invests that woman with status of married wife—Such acknowledgment, when raises presumption of marriage.

An acknowledgment by a man that a certain woman is his wife, is sufficient in the eyes of the Muhammadan Law to invest the woman with the status of a married wife and the subsequent born children with the status of legitimacy, unless the marriage is shown to have been legally impossible. By reason of the acknowledgment a presumption in favour of the marriage is raised. If direct evidence of marriage is adduced and the Court disbelieved it, the effect of presumption arising from the acknowledgment is not lost and the failure does not absolve the opposite party from disproving or proving the impossibility of marriage and thereby rebutting the presumption. BASHIRAN v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN Oudh 161 ——— ——— ——— Proposal and acceptance—Form of —Lapse of long time—Presumption.

Where there is evidence that the woman gave her consent to the marriage and that the man agreed to the dower, this was sufficient proposal and acceptance. The Muhammadan Law does not prescribe that the proposal and acceptance should be made in any particular form. Moreover, after the lapse of a long time, all the formalities required should be presumed to have been complied with. BASHIRAN v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN Oudh 161 ——— Minor—Sale of minor's immovable property by mere de facto guardian—Validity.

Under Muhammadan Law, the mother of a minor child who is merely his de facto guardian, has no power to sell any immovable property belonging to the minor and consequently, the sale of his interest by the mother is absolutely void. SAMBHU GOSAIN v. PIYARI MIAN Pat. 253 ——— Wakf—Absence of mutwalli—Power of nomination and appointment of imam, by whom to be exercised.

In the absence of a mutwalli the power of nomination and appointment of an imam to a mosque is given to the waqif's descendants and the members of his family preferentially to others. If the person appointed by the waqif is incompetent or unfit, the congregation have a right to select a more fit person but with the proviso that an application will have to be made to the Kazi for the removal of the incompetent servant and the appointment of the person selected by the congregation. M. M SHAHUL HAMEED MARAKAYAR v. MOHAMMAD HUSAIN SAHIB Mad. 131

——— ——— Wakf — Mutwalli — De facto mutawalli whether can get declaration that he is proper mutawalli.

Quære—Whether a de facto mutawalli can get a declaration from the Civil Court that he is the properly constituted mutawalli. KAMMON v. ALLAH BAKHSH Lah. 323

——— ——— ——— Mutwalli—Mutwalli himself peish imam—Surrender by him of mutwallishipto mosque committee—Committee's power to dismiss him acting as peish imam.

It is no doubt customary in many mosques for the mutwalli to exercise full disciplinary powers over the servants of the mosque. But this power cannot be said to have vested in the mutwalli of the mosque, where the mutwalli was himself the peish imam for, it is absurd to contemplate the exercise of the power of dismissal by the individual who is himself liable to be dismissed. Therefore, the surrender by such person of his functions as mutwalli to the mosque committee cannot be said to have invested that committee with a power of dismissal over that person which he as mutwalli could not have exercised. M. M SHAHUL HAMEED MARAKAYAR v. MOHAMMAD HUSSAIN SAHIB Mad. 131

——— ——— ——— —Mutawalli—Nomination by, of successor during marz ul maut—Effect— Diarrhoea or general debility due to old age, if marzu-ul-maut.

Under Muhammadan Law the nomination of his successor by the mutwalli for the time being is valid only if it is made while he was in death illness (marz-ul-maut). Neither diarrhoea nor "general debility due to old age" can be called mortal maladies and, therefore, nomination of successor during such illness is not valid. KAMMON v. ALLAH BAKHSH Lah. 323

——— ——— Waqf found to be invalid—Beneficiary, if trespasser until it is set aside.

The fact that the deed is not a waqf will not make it a void deed It is a deed by which an interest has been conveyed by the waqif to the beneficiary and until it is set aside, the beneficiary cannot possibly be called a trespasser. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

——— ——— Waqif must be owner at time of dedication.

There are many kinds of waqfs but the term waqf has a definite legal meaning; it cannot be said that an undertaking to create a waqf is void for uncertainty. If nothing more is said the undertaking means that the person has contracted to create such a waqf as to him seems suitable or best. He is, however, not free to dispose of the property in any way he likes; the disposition must be by way of a valid waqf. When he makes the waqf he will have to specify the objects of the waqf with reasonable certainty or the waqf will be void for uncertainty; but the contract to make a waqf would not be invalid because the terms of the proposed waqf are not mentioned in the contract.

Under Muhammadan Law the property dedicated by way of waqf must belong to the waqif at the time of dedication. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

Muhammadan Law—concld.

Municipality—Insufficiency of, municipal service, whether ground for tax-payers withholding payment of tax.

Municipality—concld.

The insufficiency of municipal service is no ground for the tax-payers withholding the payment of tax. If they are dissatisfied with the service provided by the Municipal Board they may complain to the District Magistrate and have their grievances remedied. The High Court, however, has no jurisdiction to reduce or disallow taxes on the ground that the Municipality has been inefficient in the discharge of its municipal duties. BADRUNNISSA v. MUNICIPAL BOARD, AGRA All. 822

Murder. SEE Criminal trial 284

Murshidabad Estate Administration Act (XXIII of 1933), s. 19 (1)—"Arrears", if covers arrears due before Act came into force.

The word "arrears" in s. 19 (1), Murshidabad Estate Administration Act, covers "arrears" which became due before the Act came into operation SECRETARY OF STATE v. SADEK REZA Cal. 807

Muslim Dissolution of Marriages Act (VIII of 1939), s. 2 (viii) (f), (a) (ii)—Grounds for dissolution of marriage—Wife separating from husband due to ill-treatment—No effort on husband's part to treat wife as wife or according to injunctions of Quran — Case falls under s 2 (viii) (f) — Wife forced to live with parents for 12 years due to husband's ill-treatment—No society of husband—Husband's conduct, whether cruelty — Payment of maintenance on Magistrate's order for some months during two years prior to suit—Wife, if debarred from relying on s 2 (ii) in respect of earlier period of ten years.

It is of course only a very gross failure to render to a wife her just rights that could be considered by a Court as a ground for dissolution. But where there has never after the separation been any real intention on the part of the husband or positive effort made by him to treat his wife as a wife at all, much less to treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran, or even on a footing which having regard to human imperfections and to the circumstances of the husband could be condoned as an honest effort in that direction, the case falls within the purview of s. 2 (viii) (f), Muslim Dissolutiont of Marriage Act.

The wife was forced to live away from her husband for about 12 years on account of his ill-treatment. The return to husband meant submission to conditiens impossible to a self-respecting woman. Her life thus was made miserable. She was compelled to do without the society of her husband and she could not marry any other person. She was forced to live with her parents, a degrading position, and be a burden upon her parents. In pursuance of the Magistrate's order, however, the husband had been paying maintenance allowance to her for some months during two years preceding the suit by the wife for the dissolution of the marriage :

Held, that the payment of maintenance during two years preceding the suit did not debar the wife from relying on s 2 (ii) of the Act in respect of the earlier period of ten years as a good ground for the dissolution of her marriage.

Held, further that it was reasonable in the circumstances of the case to say that the husband was making her life miserable by cruelty of conduct within the meaning of s. 2 (viii) (a). The fact that she could by resorting to distress warrants obtain from her unwilling husband Rs. 7-8-0 per month—a sum wholly insufficient for maintaining her in any comfort was not enough to relieve her of her misery. ASMABAI v. UMER MAHOMED SIDIK MIRZA Sind 847

Mussalman Waqf Validating Act (IV of 1913), s. 3—Waqf for maintenance of family and children—Ultimate gift to religious, pious or charitable purpose, is essential.

In the case of a waqf for the maintenance of the waqif's family and children, an ultimate gift for a religious, pious or charitable purpose is essential for its validity as a waqf and the intention to make such a gift cannot be inferred from the mere use of the word waqf.

The waqif by the waqfnama provided for the payment of certain trivial sums payable annually to the Imam of a Masjid, to a High School, a Girl's School and a Madrasa. He also awarded two gold medals. The rest of the income was divided among the members of his family and on their deaths among their eldest male issue. He then further stated that if any of the beneficiaries died without male issue the income would "revert to the waqf estate and will be appropriated by the mutwalli";

Held, that there was no ultimate gift to a religious, pious or charitable purpose and consequently the waqf was invalid. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

Mutwalli.

SEE Muhammadan Law 131, 323

N.-W. F. P. Agriculturists Debtors' Relief Act (IV of 1939), s. 2, Proviso (1)—House or shop property mortgaged—Proviso, if contemplates that equity of redemption should not be worth more than Rs. 500.

The Proviso (1) to s. 2, N.-W. F. P. Agri. Debtors' Relief Act, does not contemplate that in a case of morgaged property the equity of redemption should not be worth more than Rs. 500. It merely states that relief will be denied to a person who is the owner of shops in municipal limits and that the value of those shops is more than Rs. 500. HABIB GUL JAN GUL v. GOPI CHAND SINGH JAWAHAR MAL Pesh. 560

N.-W. F. P. Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act (VI of 1935), s 2—Reversioners' suit for declaration that alienation by woman holding life estate is not binding on them, is not maintainable after the passing of the Act.

In all suits instituted after the passing of the N.-W. F. P. Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act the Courts must determine the rights of the parties under Muhammadan Law and not according to custom. A reversioner is unknown to Muhammadan Law. It is under custom that a reversioner is entitled to question sales made by a widow or other woman holding a life estate. His right under custom is based on a spes successionis, which is also unknown to Muhammadan Law.

Consequently, after the passing of the aforesaid Act, the reversioners have no locus standi to sue for declaration that alienation by woman holding life estate is not binding on them. AMIR FAHIM v. AJUN IASA Pesh. 480

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s 118—Presumption under— Promissory note—Distinction, if can be drawn between admission and proof of execution—Execution held proved and presumption under s. 118 applied.

Section 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act provides that until the contrary is proved it shall be presumed that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration. No distinction is drawn in that section between admission of execution and proof of execution, and it is immaterial whether execution is admitted or is proved. In either case the presumption can be made.

Negotiable Instruments Act—concld.

Where the suit was between the sons of the parties to the promissory note and the defence was based on ignorance of the execution and not on any definite knowledge that the promissory note had not been executed by the father of the defendants who were minors represented by their real uncle and one of the plaintiff's witnesses deposed that he knew the handwriting and signature of the executant and that the note was executed by the defendant's father and although the defendants could have produced evidence to disprove execution of the promissory note they did not do so:

Held, that the Court was justified in the circumstances to hold that the evidence of the plaintiff's witness was sufficient to prove the execution of the document, and the presumption provided by s. 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, therefore, applied. RISHI KESH v. BRIJ MOHAN LAL Oudh 863

New plea. SEE Practice 451

Oaths Act (X of 1873), s. 11—Scope— Section relates to proceedings in which evidence was given and not to all possible proceedings — Evidence on special oath in proceeding under O. XXI, r. 100, Civil Procedure Code whether conclusive proof in suit under r. 103.

Primary meaning of s. 11, Oaths Act must be that the evidence given in any proceeding in which a challenge has been made and an oath has been taken shall be in that proceeding conclusive proof of the matter stated. It cannot automatically be evidence at all except in the proceeding in which it is actually being received. If there is a subsequent proceeding, then until that statement made on oath is brought into that subsequent proceeding, it cannot even be considered. No doubt, for some purposes, the suit which follows the order on the claim petition may be a continuation of the same proceedings but the scheme of the Civil P. C., itself shows that there is an essential difference between the two. The claim proceeding is in the nature of a summary proceeding which gives a provisional result, and the scope of the suit is very much wider. Therefore any evidence given under the special provisions of the Oaths Act in a proceeding under r. 100, O. XXI, cannot be conclusive proof in any suit under r. 103. M. R. RANGANATHA AIYAR v. JAYAVELU MUDALIAR Mad 591

Official Trustees Act (II of 1913), s. 6 or 7 (1) (a). SEE Government of Burma Act, 1935, s. 124 (1) 61

Oudh Civil Rules, Vol. I, Paras. 53, 54, 55——Document filed and admitted—Should not be returned before conclusion of case.

A document filed and duly admitted should not be returned to the party before the conclusion of the case. SHEORAJ v. GANGA PRASAD Oudh 675

Oudh Rent Act XXII of 1886), s. 19-A. SEE Oudh Rent Act, 1886, s. 19 150

——— ss. 19, 19 A—Remission of revenue, when entitles tenants to get remission of rent.

Mere remission of revenue does not by itself entitle the tenants to get remissions of rent unless so ordered by the Collector or the Assistant Collector specially empowered. DAYA SHANKAR v BADRI PRASAD Oudh 150

Pakka adatya. SEE Contract 779

Partition. SEE Hindu Law 571

———Decree directing member to pay certain sum as his share of marriage expenses of his sisters— Absence of notice of marriage, whether ground to refuse such payment.

According to a decree in a partition suit a member of the family was required to pay a certain sum towards his share of the marriage expenses of each of his sisters. The member objected to pay the amount due under the decree because he was not given notice of the marriage:

Held, that to the extent to which the details of the claim were contested, the fact that there was no notice might be taken into consideration in admitting or rejecting items of expenditure. CHADALAVADA ANAND ARAMAYYA v. CHADALAVADA SUBBAIYA Mad. 112

Partnership Act (IX of 1932), ss 2 (b), 4, 69—Solitary transaction of money-lending by some persons jointly—Persons, if become partners in firm—Their registration under s. 69, if essential.

Section 2, cl. (b) read with s. 4, Partnership Act is intended to mean a continued participation of two or more persons in a trade, occupation or profession with the intention of sharing profit accruing from it. An adventure or an undertaking mentioned in s. 8 presumes the existence of a partnership as defined in s. 4 and therefore a fortiori the existence of a business mentioned in s. 2, cl. (b). A solitary transaction in which persons have jointly lent money even though entered into by more than one person would not make those persons partners in a firm so that their registration should be necessary under s 69, Partnership Act. KARAM DIN NAWAB DIN v. ANANT RAM LALA HUKUM CHAND DHAL Pesh. 51

——— s. 4—Single transaction or venture—Whether business

A single transaction or venture does not amount to business and consequently it does not come under "business" as mentioned in s. 4, Partnership Act. NATHI LAL v. SRI MAL All. 772

——— s. 69. SEE Partnership Act, 1932, s. 2 (b) 51

Patna High Court Rules, Chap. III, rr. 3, 13, 16 Chap. XIII, r. 10—"Affidavit", meaning of—Petitioner verifying statements in petition by solemn affirmation—Person verifying petition must appear before Commissioner for oaths to verify it—O. VI, r. 15, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), if applies to applications to High Court.

The word "affidavit" is comprehensive enough to include both statements sworn to and affirmed and although a distinction is drawn in r. 3 of the Patna High Court Rules between the verification of a petition by solemn affirmation and its verification by an affidavit, there are several rules in Chap. III which show that where the facts stated in a petition are verified by the solemn affirmation of the petitioner the procedure should be the same as when they are verified by an affidavit and it is obvious from rr. 13 and 16 that the person verifying the petition must appear before the Commissioner for Oaths to verify it. There is nothing in Chap. III or any other Chapter of the Rules to show that O. VI, r. 15, Civil P. C., has been made applicable to applications filed in the High Court. RADHAKRISHNA DAS v. HARI NAIK Pat. 12 ——— Chap. XIII, r. 10—Petition verified by petitioner himself, if requires court-fee under r. 10, Chap. XIII—Recasting of rules suggested.

The rules of the High Court ought to be recast in plainer language and if in fact it is intended that a petition which is verified by the petitioner himself does not require a court-fee under r. 10 of Chap. XIII it must be said so in clear language. RADHAKRISHNA DAS v. HARI NAIK Pat. 12

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 21 (10). See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 197 358

——— s. 34 —Common intention—Necessity for—Proof of—Constructive liability under s 34.

It is quite wrong to say that if several persons have a common purpose, each person will be liable for every act done by the other in furtherance of that common purpose. In order to make a person constructively liable with the aid of s. 34, I. P. C., for an offence not actually committed by him, it must always be shown that the person so sought to be made liable had the intention requisite for the constitution of that particular offence. Thus to make him constructively liable under s. 34, I. P. C., for murder, it must be proved that he had the intention of committing murder in common with the person or persons who actually committed the murder and who were his companions in the joint criminal act or enterprise. Unless this intention is proved, he cannot be made liable under the aforesaid section even though the murder be committed in order to accomplish some other object or purpose shared in common. Emperor v. Mujjaffar Sheikh Cal. 302

——— s. 84—Insanity—For applicability of s. 84 what is to be seen is whether accused knew that what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law.

For the application of s 84, I. P. C., what is to be seen is not only whether the accused knew the nature of his act, but whether he knew what he was doing was either wrong or contrary to law. The law will punish a man for doing something which he knows to be contrary to the law whatever his private opinion may be regarding its ethics. Again if an act is contrary to law ignorance of the law will not protect a man from punishment when it is shown that the man knew that what he was doing was wrong. Geron Ali v. Emperor Cal. 282 ——— ss. 84, 302—Accused killing two persons including his own daughter considering that he was doing meritorious deed qualifying him for heaven—Accused held protected by s. 84.

The accused was a disciple of the Pir and called him father and the Pirani mother. The Pir said to him, "Take the head of those who dissuade you and come to your doors." At this time the Pirani, said to him that he would go to heaven if he offered a human head in sacrific, on that day which was an auspicious day being the first day of Ramzan. The accused cut off the heads of two persons including that of his own infant daughter and offered the same to the Pir and said: "Father, you asked me for one human head, I present you with two." The evidence showed that he considered that he was doing a meritorious act which qualified him for heaven;

Held, that the accused did not know that what he was doing was wrong or contrary to law and he was therefore, entitled to the protection of s. 84, I. P. C. Geron Ali v. Emperor Cal. 282

——— ss. 97, 99—Accused going to certain house to commit offence fully prepared by arming himself with dagger, in case of eventuality—Accused discovered and apprehended—Accused killing deceased —Held there was no right of private defence and that offence was murder.

M had gone to the house of A and his son G with the intention of committing an offence. M knew that the men of the family might discover him, and M went prepared for this eventuality. M went armed to this adventure with every intention of using his dagger if discovered. He was discovered and was pursued by A and G. A was killed by M and when A's son G tried to catch hold of M he was also killed:

Held, that when M had killed A the right of arrest at that moment would arise. When G was exercising that right, no right of self-defence would arise to M so as to justify his killing G. The killing of G therefore amounted to murder

Held, also that since M had gone prepared for any eventuality by arming himself, he could not be said to have right of private defence. Mohammad Khan Abbas Khan v Emperor Lah. 198 ——— ss. 97, 102, 302—Accused during altercation disarming deceased and stabbing him to death —No right of private defence can be claimed—Offence held murder.

There was an altercation between the accused and the deceased who was armed with hatchet. The accused first wrested the hatchet from the hands of the deceased and then stabbed him to death while the other accused held the deceased:

Held, that the accused were not acting in the exercise of the right of private defence but were guilty of murder. Emperor v. Ashraf-ud Din Lah. 594

——— s. 99. See Penal Code, 1860, s. 97 198

——— s. 124— Scope—Defamation of Government —Duty of Court—Speech held seditious—Sedition.

The provisions of s. 124-A, I. P. C., are very wide and in strict law they would cover everything that amounts to defamation of the Govt. excluding any criticism in good faith of any particular measures or acts of administration. If the Govt. comes into Court and asks for a decision from a Judge or a Magistrate whether particular conduct is or is not within the terms of s. 124-A, the Court must express a perfectly fair opinion as between the parties apart from its own ideas of political expediency and the terms of s. 124-A are so wide that much that may generally be regarded as justifiable speech would come within its terms.

A speech suggesting generally that the Govt. established by law in British India was thoroughly dishonest and unfair and that steps should be taken either by violence or by threat of violence to abolish it comes within the provisions of s. 124-A. Parmanand v. Emperor All. 710

——— s. 149. See Penal Code, 1860, s. 302 666

——— s. 149—S. 149, applicability.

Section 149, I. P. C., cannot come into operation unless there is an unlawful assembly and an unlawful assembly requires the participation of five persons. Emperor v Mujjaffar Sheikh Cal. 302 ——— ss. 153 A, 295-A—Book containing passages promoting enmity between classes — Intention of author, how to be judged—Preface of book, if guide.

In a prosecution under s. 153-A, I. P. C., for publishing a book containing passages promoting enmity between different classes the preface can be no guide with regard to the intention of an accused person. The intention has to be judged primarily by the language of the book and the circumstances in which the book was published. If the language is of a nature calculated to produce or to promote feelings of enmity or hatred the writer must be presumed to intend that which his act was likely to produce. Shib Sharma v. Emperor Oudh 516 ——— ss. 153-A, 295-A—Rediculing Prophet of Muhammadans is offence under s. 153-A.

A Hindu who ridicules Prophet of the Muham-

Penal Code—contd.

madans not out of any eccentricity but in the prosecution of a propaganda started by a class of persons who are not Muhammadans, promotes feelings of enmity and hatred between Hindus and Muhammadans and is guilty under s. 153-A, I. P. C. SHIB SHARMA v. EMPEROR Oudh 516

——— s. 193. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 476 569

——— s. 201. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 300 814

——— s. 220—Magistrate usurping jurisdiction—His duty—Whether mere irregularity.

Where the Legislature has provided that an offence because of its gravity or because of the special knowledge required in its trial, shall be tried by a Sessions Court, a First Class Magistrate, however proper be his motives, should not himself remove that case, as it were from its proper Court, the Court of Session, and try it himself by merely altering the numbers of the sections, for, after all the numbers of the sections are mere lables, and what is to be looked at is the allegation of the facts. Where serious offences, such as one under s. 220 against the Sub-Inspector, are to be tried, it is desirable from all points of view, from the point of view of the public, from the point of view of the Police force, from the point of view of the officer concerned, from the point of view of justice, that these most serious cases, and they are most serious cases, should, so far as the law permits, be committed to the Court of Session even if a First Class Magistrate had power to try them.

The Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try an offence under s. 220. It is not a case of irregularity such as is referred to in s. 531, Criminal P. C, but is an illegality comparable to those irregularities under s, 530, Criminal P. C., which make proceedings void. MANSHARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454 ——— ss. 220, 347, 342—"Corruptly and maliciously" in s. 220 covers confinement for extortion under s. 347—Police Sub-Inspector wrongfully confining person on charge of gambling and extorting money from them by putting them under fear of prosecution—Offence falls under s. 220 and not under s. 347 or 342—It is triable by Court of Session.

The words "corruptly and maliciously" in s. 220, I. P. C, are wide enough to cover confinement for the purpose of extortion. Where a Police Sub-Inspector wrongfully confines certain persons on charges of gambling in futures and extorts money from them by putting them in fear of being challaned in Court upon offences which he knew to be false, the offence falls under s. 220 and not s. 347 or s. 342 and is triable only by Court of Session. MANSHARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454 ——— ss. 220, 348—Conviction of accused under s. 220 and confederate under s. 384 read with s. 114, Penal Code—High Court quashing proceedings and committing case to Sessions Court—Proceedings against confederate, if should be ordered to be dropped merely because he has served part of sentence—Proper procedure.

Where the Magistrate by usurping jurisdiction convicts an accused for an offence falling under s. 220, I. P. C., and his confederate under s. 348 read with s. 114, I. P. C, the High Court while quashing the proceedings and committing the case to the Court of Session, cannot order that no further proceedings be taken against the confederate merely because he has served a part of his sentence. It is in the interests of all concerned that the confederate and the accused should be tried together for offences which are all part of the same transaction. MANSJARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454

——— s. 295-A. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 153 516

——— s. 295-A—Book published before enactment of s. 295-A—New edition published subsequent to its enactment—Author, if can be convicted under s. 295-A.

Where a new edition of a book published before enactment of s. 295-A, I P. C., is published after its enactment, its author can be convicted under that section when his connection with the publisher is proved. SHIB SHARMA v EMPEROR Oudh 516

——— ss. 297, 441—S. 297, whether to be interpreted by reference to s. 441—Meaning and scope of "trespass" in s. 297—S. 297, if limited to religious feelings—Feelings contemplated by it are limited by reference to place of worship on sepulture—Whether refers to intention only—Accused held committed trespass.

Section 297, I. P. C, fully deals with offences to which it refers and is self-contained and requires interpretation by no reference to s. 441, I. P. C. The word "trespass" in s. 297, I. P. C., means any violent or injurious act committed in such place and with such knowledge or intent as defined in that section. Section 297, I. P. C., does not refer to "religious feelings," though the kind of feelings, which comes within the section is clearly limited in its nature by the second paragraph to the section by reference to a place of worship, to a place of sepulture, to feelings of a spiritual nature than a material kind, feelings associated with such sacred places. It does not punish acts which are merely of earthly vanity or pride. That s. 297, is not limited to feelings of a religious nature is clear by the fact that in s. 298, which follows it, "religious feelings" are expressly referred to. Section 297, does not refer only to "intention". It refers also to trespass which is likely to wound the feelings.

The complainant erected stones in memory over his dead daughter and two children, over their ashes in the cremation ground. The complainant's son-in law, eleven years after the death of his wife as a result of a dispute about money matters with the complainant went to the cremation ground and deleted the name of the complainant from all the stones on the ground that they were erected out of money provided by him:

Held, that on the evidence and circumstances of the case the accused's (son-in-law's) trespass was committed with something more than knowledge; it was committed with intent to wound the feelings of the complainant. It was done in a spirit of spite and vinditiveness, and it was by injuring the complainant's feelings that the accused's feelings of spite and vindictiveness had to be satisfied. This was not a case where the feelings which were wounded were merely worldly feelings of vanity and pride. The fact that the stones were erected out of the money provided by the accused did not give him the right to enter the cremation ground and delete the name of the complainant therfrom. SANOO MANAJI v. EMPEROR Sind 616

——— ss. 300, 201,—First accused found guilty—Accused No. 2 meeting first accused on evening of day of murder and knowing where certain articles belonging to deceased which she carried with her on the evening of murder were to be found—Facts, if sufficient to warrant conviction of accused No. 2 either under s. 300 or s. 201.

Where an accused is found guilty of the offence of murder, the facts that 2nd accused met the first on the evening of the date of murder and knew the place where certain articles belonging to the deceased which she had carried with her on that fateful evening were to be found, lead to grave suspicion against accused No. 2 but are not sufficient to warrant his conviction either for murder or for intentional concealment of evidence. ABDUL BASHA SAHIB, In re Mad. 814

——— s. 302.

SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 84 282

SEE Penal Code, 1860, ss. 97, 102 594

——— s. 302—Murder—Circumstantial evidence.

The case against two accused rested on circumstantial evidence which was not such as to leave one no alternative but to hold that they were guilty. There was no evidence to show that both of them killed the deceased or that both had the intention to kill him:

Held, that neither could be found guilty of murder. EMPEROR v. MUSJAFFAR SHEIKH Cal. 302

——— s. 302—Provocation—Woman of low caste importuniting accused to instal her as his permanent mistress—Whether provocation, justifying awarding lesser sentence.

A man who is willing to have casual intercourse with a woman, treating her as a prostitute, may nevertheless justifiably resent any suggestion amounting to importunity—that he should instal her as a permanent mistress, which would result in heavy caste penalties. Then if on her insistence he loses control and gives a lathi blow on her head causing her immediate death, the accused is entitled to a lesser penalty and not that of death. BHAROSA v. EMPEROR Nag. 6

——— ss. 302, 149—Number of persons participating in beating man with intention to kill him—Man dying—Man responsible for fatal blow unknown—All, if guilty of murder—Body of six persons with common object to abduct and murder going to house of deceased and separating into two bodies, one for abducting and another for murdering—Murder committed by latter body—Each body held guilty of murder.

Where persons have been found guilty of deliberate intention to murder, there is no justification for refraining from passing the death sentence on all concerned merely because it cannot be said which of the accused struck the fatal blow.

A body of six persons went to the house of the deceased with the common object of abducting a woman and murdering the deceased. On their arrival they separated into two bodies, one entrusted to abduct and another to murder. The murder was committed by the latter body:

Held, that each gang was guilty of murder under s. 302, I. P. C., as the murder was committed in pursuance of the common object of the unlawful assembly. EMPEROR v. RAMJI LAL BUDHA Lah. 666

——— ss. 302, 318—Prosecution seeking to prove offence under both s. 302 and s. 318—Charge should be framed under two heads—Accused found guilty under both charges—Conviction under both charges and not in alternative.

A conviction in the alternative should be made where on the facts proved it is not certain under which section the offence falls. Where the prosecution set out to prove both that the accused had murdered her child (s. 302, I. P. C.) and had also secretly disposed of the body by throwing it into a well (s. 318, I. P. C.,) the charges should be framed under two heads and not in the alternative and where the accused is found guilty of both offences she should be convicted under both the sections and not in the alternative. HUSSAN PARI v. EMPEROR Pesh. 284 ——— ss. 302, 404—Accused in murder case charged with misappropriation of deceased's articles—Procedure, if good.

In a case of murder, it is not a desirable procedure to charge the accused under s. 404 for misappropriating the articles of the deceased. SINGAMPILLI YERRANNA, In re Mad. 465

——— s. 304-A—Heavy traffic—Road invisible due to dust raised—Duty of motor car driver pointed out—Rash and negligent driving

When there is heavy vehicular traffic on the road and the road is invisible in a cloud of dust, it is the duty of all motorists under these conditions to stop the car. To continue driving must obviously be dangerous when it is impossible to see anything at all in the neighbourhood, particularly when the driver continues driving the car and manages to get on the wrong side of the road blocking the right of way of a car in the act of proceeding in the opposite direction and the act of driving amounts to undoubtedly a rash and negligent act. EMPEROR v. ABDUL QAYYUM Lah. 766

——— s 318. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 302 284

——— s. 332—Ingredients of offence under—Constable assaulted while attempting to arrest accused without warrant or authority to do so—No offence under s. 332—No allegation by constable that he proceeded under s. 54 (1), Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898)—S. 54 (1), Criminal Procedure Code does not apply.

In order to bring the case within the purview of s. 332, I. P. C., it is necessary to establish that the public servant was acting at the time of the assault as such public servant and in the particular matter discharging a duty imposed upon him as such public servant. A constable who had no warrant of arrest in his possession at the time of the assault, nor had he been entrusted with the duty of arresting the accused, cannot be said to have been acting in the discharge of his duty if he intended or wanted to arrest the accused. Where there is no allegation by the constable in his deposition that he proceeded under s. 54 (1), Criminal P. C., s. 54 (1), Criminal P. C., does not apply. RAGHUBAR v. EMPEROR Oudh 887

——— s. 342. SEE Penal, Code 1860, s. 347 454

——— s. 347. SEE Penal, Code 1860, s. 220 454

——— ss. 347, 342—S. 347 includes offence under s. 342.

The offence under s. 342, I. P. C., is included in the offence under s. 347. MANSHARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454

——— s. 352. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s 383 241

——— ss. 383, 352, 324—Extortion—What prosecution must prove—Accused assaulting victim and forcibly taking his thumb impression on blank paper—Offence, nature of—Whether amounts to extortion or robbery—Hurt with bhala—Fact that accused is student, if mitigation of offence.

The definition of 'extortion' in s. 38, I. P. C. makes it necessary for the prosecution to prove that the victims were put in fear of injury to themselves or to others, and further, were thereby dishonestly induced to deliver papers containing their thumb impressions. The forcible taking of the victim's thumb impressions on blank piece of paper which can be converted into a valuable security does not necessarily involve inducing the victim to deliver papers with the thumb impressions. Hence, where the victim is assaulted by the accused and his thumb impression forcibly taken upon a blank piece of paper, the offence of extortion cannot be said to have been established. The offence is no more than the use of criminal force or an assault punishable under s. 352, I. P. C. Nor does the offence amount to robbery in the absence of proof that the papers were taken from the victim's possession.

Penal Code—contd.

The fact that the accused is a student, is no mitigation of the offence of causing hurt with a bhala. JADUNANDAN SINGH v. EMPEROR Pat. 241 ——— ss. 383, 385 347, 342—Extortion includes offence under s. 385.

Extortion as defined in s. 383, I. P. C., includes putting any person in fear of injury and covers s. 385, I. P. C, which is a less serious offence punishable only with two years' imprisonment as against three years' imprisonment for an offence under s. 384. MANSARAM GIANCHAND v. EMPEROR Sind 454

——— s. 404. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 302 465

——— s. 441. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 297 616

——— s. 467—Prosecution under—Complaint of Court, if necessary.

A complaint of the Court is not necessary for prosecuting the accused who were not parties to proceedings under Legal Practitioners' Act, for an offence under s 467 of the I. P. C. GURUSWAMI CHETTIAR, In re Mad. 322 ——— ss. 482, 486—Order as to costs or confiscation of goods, if can be passed of by High Court in revision.

In cases of a prosecution for infringement of a trade mark the High Court will not pass any order in revision in respect of costs or confiscation of accused's goods. If the complainant has in fact suffered any damage, he must seek his remedy in Civil Court. ROSHAN SINGH v. EMPEROR All. 189 ——— ss. 482, 486—Trade mark—Infringement—Ingredients of ss. 482 and 486, stated—What prosecution must prove — False and counterfeit trade mark, distinction — Accused, if can be convicted under both ss. 486 and 482—Accused held not guilty under s. 486 but only under s. 482.

To establish the charge under s 482, I. P. C, it is necessary to prove that the accused's article is marked in a manner reasonably calculated to be believed that they are the marks of the article manufactured by the complainant. An accused would render himself liable to conviction under s. 482 if he uses a false trade mark on any goods which may or may not have been manufactured by him. On the other hand, the ingredient of an offence under s. 486 is the sale or exposing or possessing for sale, goods or things with a counterfeit trade mark. The offence under the first section will be complete as soon as a false trade mark has been used, but under the latter section it will be necessary that goods should be sold or be possessed or exposed for sale. Therefore, it is perfectly legal to sustain the conviction under both sections provided that the mark on the goods of the accused is a false trade mark and also a counterfeit trade mark. The distinction between false trade mark and counterfeit trade mark is somewhat subtle. It depends on the degree of resemblance between the false and genuine trade marks.

Penal Code—concld.

Held, that the accused could not be convicted under s. 486 as it could not be said that the No 301 used by the accused as trade mark upon his goods was a counterfeit of No. 501 the registered mark of the complainant; nor could it be said that words "India" were a counterfeit of "tomco". The accused however could be convicted under s 482 as the accused's goods were a colourable imitation of the complainant's goods. ROSHAN SINGH v. EMPEROR All. 189 ——— ss. 482, 486—Trade mark—Infringement—What prosecution must prove.

In the case of an infringement of a trade mark the prosecution must prove that the trade mark on the accused's goods is likely to deceive a purchaser who is acquainted with the complainant's "get-up" but who trusts to his memory. Mere differences in detail do not prevent the two designs being essentially the same. What degree of resemblance is necessary is a matter incapable of definition a priori. ROSHAN SINGH v EMPEROR All. 189

Pension. SEE Master and Servant 384

Perjury. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1893, s. 475 569

Personation. SEE Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923, Sch II, Part I 752

Pleadings SEE Practice 186

——— Amendment—Defective verification.

Where the verification of the plaint is defective amendment should be allowed if the defect is a mere irregularity and has prejudiced nobody. MITULAL SINGHANIA v. PURSOTOME DEBI BAGLA Cal. 193 ——— Amendment—Suit to set aside revenue sale—Amendment of plaint at stage of second appeal to the effect that ss 55 and 56, Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act (II of 1876), are ultra vires, cannot be allowed.

In a suit to set aside a sale held by Township Officer in Lower Burma, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to amend his plaint at the stage of second appeal, to the effect that parts of ss. 55 and 56, Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act are ultra vires. AH TWE v. MA MAI SEIN Rang. 372 F B Practice—Case raised in plaint—No denial in written statement—Question not agitated in trial Court—Appellate Court, if can consider and decide it.

Where the case was clearly made out in the plaint that defendant had failed to deposit the balance of the purchase money and there was no denial of the assertion in the written statement the facts necessary to be established must be taken to be admitted facts. Consequently the lower Appellate Court would be justified in considering the question and giving a decision thereon even though the question had not been agitated in the Court of first instance. ANNAPURNA DASI v. BAZALE KARIM FAZLEY MOULA Cal. 390

——— Evidence. SEE U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, s. 189 121

——— High Court—Full Bench when satisfied that view previously taken in High Court about law of limitation is wrong, can declare correct law especially when its effect is to enlarge period.

If on a consideration of the decisions on the point in question the High Court is satisfied that the view previously taken is the wrong view, there is no reason why it should not accept and declare what is the correct view; more particularly is this the case where the effect is not to deprive persons who have lent money under a bond, of an extended period of limitation to which formerly they had been held entitled but rather to enlarge the period of limitation, by doing which there can be no deprivation of rights. RAGHUNANDAN TEWARI v. SHEORAJI Oudh 481 F B ———Issues—Joint family business—Transactions by manager challenged—Issue to be framed stated.

Practice—concld.

In a case challenging transactions relating to joint Hindu family business in which the existence of a joint Hindu family is denied, that, of course, is a distinct issue. Where that is not disputed, the general issues which arise are these:—(1) Whether the business was 'ancestral'. (2) If the business was not 'ancestral' then whether it was a 'family' business at all or whether it was merely an 'individual' business. If it was merely an 'individual' business no question of 'need' or 'benefit' can arise. (3) If the business was not 'ancestral', but was a 'family' business, then: (a) Was there any 'actual' benefit or 'actual' need. If no 'actual' benefit is proved, then (b) whether the business was the 'mainstay' of the family; and (c) whether the mortgagee advanced the money in the bona fide belief that it was borrowed for the purpose of the 'need' of the business or for the purpose of the 'benefit of the estate or family', and (d) whether such belief, if any, was the result of bona fide inquiries which were reasonable and sufficient in the circumstances of the particular case. LACHHMI PRASAD v. BAIJNATH RAM All. 571

———New plea—Important question of law, if can be taken for first time in second appeal.

A point which was not directly raised in either of the Courts below but which involves an important question of law, can be raised in second appeal. TAMIZALI v. MD. NASARALI BHUIYA Cal. 451 ———Pleadings—Technicalities should not be insisted—Legal effect of facts stated by both sides should be determined.

Too much insistence should not be laid on the technicalities of pleadings. If the facts on both sides are stated with sufficient correctness and precision, the legal effects which flow from them are a matter for determination by the Court which conducts the trial or hears any subsequent appeal. JALAL DIN v. NAWAB Lah. 186 ———Precedent—Applicability of equitable principles—English authorities can be looked to.

A High Court is entitled to apply principles of justice, equity and good conscience and to look for such principles to English authorities. KALYAN DAS v. BRIJ KISHORE All 495 ———Precedents—Text books—Notes in, on a case—Reliability.

It is sometimes dangerous to accept as accurate the notes appearing in text-books. It is always safer to refer to the decision itself on which the note is based. EMPEROR v. MUJJAFFAR SHEIKH Cal. 302 ———Subsequent events—Cause of action incomplete—If can be completed by anything arising after action.

Nothing arising after action is brought, can either create a new, or complete a then incomplete, cause of action entitling the plaintiff to any relief in that same then existing suit. U BA MAUNG v. U CHIT HLAING Rang. 234 ———Withdrawal of application—Courts' duty.

The Court cannot take away the right of a party to withdraw any application made by him on which no orders had been made at the time. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD. v. BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578

Precedent. SEE Practice 495

———Parties consenting not to canvass particular legal question—Decision in suit, if binding on inferior Courts as to answer to that question.

Where by consent, parties to a suit do not canvass a particular legal question, the decision in that suit cannot be an authority binding on an inferior Court as to what the answer to that question is. MA KYIN SEIN v. MAUNG KYIN HTAIK Rang. 507

Pre-emption. SEE Custom (Assam) 82

———Jurisdiction—Appeal—Pre-emption decree on payment of price and compensation for improvement—Appellate forum must be determined on basis of price.

The value of a pre-emption suit which is decreed on payment of price and compensation for improvement, does not include the amount of compensation for improvement for purposes of appeal. The appellate forum must be determined on the basis of price made payable. AZIMULLAH JAN v. ABDUL HAKIM Pesh. 385

Presidency Small Cause Courts (Act IX of 1887), ss. 43, 46. SEE Landlord and Tenant 251

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 13—Court must consider whether petitioning creditor has good debt—Mere existence of decree, if sufficient—Court, whether estopped from disputing decree.

In insolvency the question which arises is not merely one between the petitioning-creditor and the judgment-debtor. The rights of other creditors of the judgment-debtor have to be considered. If an order of adjudication is made, the rights of those creditors to recover payment independently of their own debts are taken away. Therefore, the Court must consider whether the petitioning creditor in fact has a good debt, and it is not bound by any decree as between the creditor and the debtor. The debtor may be estopped from disputing the decree, but the Insolvency Court is not estopped; the Court must be satisfied about the validity of the debt in the interests of the other creditors. JETHMAL NARANDAS v. MAHADEO ANANDJI DHORIA Bom. 54

——— s. 39 (2), cls. (a), (d) and (e)—Case falling under—Court's order should be one suspending discharge for specific time.

The object of the order of the discharge is to enable a person to recommence with a clean slate, and it is desirable that he should be given the opportunity of making a fresh start. But, on the other hand, it is undesirable that the man who has brought himself within the ambit of the Insolvency Act, should as it were, walk through the Bankruptcy Court without some period during which his discharge shall be suspended. Consequently, in a case falling under s. 39 (2), cls. (a), (d) and (e), Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, Court's order should be an order, suspending the discharge for a specific time. M. DO CARMO LOBO v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE Rang. 764

——— ss. 108, 53—Construction—Proceedings under s. 103—Attaching creditor, position of—Attachment followed by sale—Attaching creditor, if entitled to proceeds.

The administration in insolvency of a deceased debtor's estate under s. 108, Presi. Towns Insol Act, must necessarily mean that the uncharged assets of the estate are to be utilised for the benefit of the general body of creditors, and as a mere attachment creates no charge, an attaching creditor is in no better position than any other ordinary creditor. If the attachment has resulted in a sale and the sale proceeds are in Court, the attaching creditor is entitled irrespective of s 53, to the money or so much of it as is necessary to meet his claim. D. D. JITALIA v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE Mad. 460

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act—concld.

Presumption. SEE Grant 220

Principal and agent. SEE Conversion 356

——— Suit against agent for accounts—Agent residing elsewhere—Cause of action, if arises where principal resides.

The principle that the debtor is bound to seek out his creditor and pay his debt is not applicable in India for the purpose of determining the local jurisdiction of a particular Court. Even assuming that this English rule either in terms or by analogy could be applied in this country, it cannot be extended to a case, where the contract itself is not one of loan but one of agency. Where, therefore, a principal sues the agent for accounts it cannot be said that the cause of action arises at the place where principal resides. KOKA AUDINARAYANA RAO NAIDU v. BHAVARAJU LAKSHMINAYANA RAO Mad 81

Principal and Surety. SEE Contract Act, 1872, s. 60 206

——— Contract of guarantee — Held, surety's liability was co-extensive with that of principal.

A contract of guarantee entered into by a surety was in these terms: "If you supply any goods to the firm on credit or on hundi and are unable to realize the price thereof from the firm, I and my property will be responsible for that amount":

Held, that it was impossible to read into those words any condition that it was only if all remedies failed against the principal debtor that his liability would come into operation. That the liability of the surety was co-extensive with that of the principal debtor as in an ordinary contract of guarantee. KUCKREJA LTD. v. SAID ALAM Lah. 206

Private defence. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s 97 594

——— Right of. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 97 198

Professional misconduct. SEE Legal Practitioner 861

Provident Funds Rules, r. 17, Note 1—Hindu wife obtaining decree for separate maintenance from husband, whether judicially separated from husband—Depositor's death—Proceedings to recover provident fund — Parties, if should obtain succession certificate.

Main purpose of the Provident Fund Rules is to preserve for the members of the depositor's family the right to receive his provident fund, and the framers of the rules did not intend to exclude a Hindu wife who had obtained a decree for separate maintenance. The status of such a Hindu wife is not, in any real sense, equivalent to the status of a wife judicially separated under the Divorce Act, and there is no reason why a Hindu wife who has been placed in the unfortunate position of having to sue for separate maintenance owing to her husband's conduct should for any purpose be considered as outside the list of these who are entitled to benefit under the rules.

The parties to a proceeding to recover provident fund after depositor's death are under no liability to obtain any succession certificate; the amount vests in them upon the death of the depositor. SUBBADRAMMAL v. KANNAMMAL Mad. 329

Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), s. 4—Interpretation—Official Receiver party to civil proceedings as representative of estate—Decision against him—Decision, whether can be re-opened by application under s. 4—Proper remedy.

It is left to the discretion of the Court to entertain a petition under s 4, Prov. Insol. Act. The party who is bound by a decree or order of a Civil Court is not entitled to re-agitate the same question by another suit and what cannot be done by another suit cannot be achieved by means of proceedings under s 4. The procedure under s. 4 is only a substitute for a regular suit. The prior judgments against an insolvent are liable to be re-opened in the Insolvency Court at the instance of the Official Receiver only in cases in which before insolvency, judgments were obtained against debtor and they are sought to be re-opened on the daughter's adjudication to see whether they were binding on the Official Receiver as representing the general body of creditors. But where the Official Receiver is a party to a proceeding in his capacity as the representative of the estate, he is not entitled to re-open an adverse decision in an application under s. 4. His remedy is only to appeal as any other party to the proceeding against the order of the Civil Court if he is dissatisfied with it. P. S. AR. AR. ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR v. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, COIMBATORE Mad. 138

——— s. 6 (e)—Sale of debtor's property in execution of decree for rent, if act of insolvency.

Sale of property which is vested in the debtor and is in his physical possession, in execution of decree for arrears of rent under Mad. Estates Land Act, operates as an act of insolvency under s. 6 (e), Prov. Insol. Act. MAYANDI VENKATESA MUDALI v. KONNE DESAPPA MUDALI Mad. 787

——— ss. 27, 43—Time originally fixed under s. 27 for application for discharge—If can be extended after its expiry but before order of annulment.

A Court has jurisdiction to extend the time originally fixed under s. 27 of the Prov. Insol. Act for an application by the debtor for discharge, after the expiry of that time but before an order of annulment is passed under s. 43 of the Act. S. HASAN ABBAS ALI KHAN PEARE SAHEB v. ABDUL RAHMAN Oudh 776

——— s. 28 (5)—Transaction and deeds held created trust entitling beneficiary to priority.

Under an oral will of his brother, one K an insolvent held a sum of Rs. 11,000 which his brother had instructed him to pay to his wife R. K formally handed over the amount of Rs. 11,000 to her for which she passed a receipt, and then she formally handed back Rs. 10,000 out of that amount to K to be kept by him as a deposit, and she created the trust deed in respect of the same. It was to bear interest at eight annas per cent. per month. Certain beneficiaries were mentioned in the trust deed, the principal one being R herself for the amount of Rs. 8,000 from the income of which she was to be maintained during her life-time. With regard to the balance of Rs. 2,000 she was to be given it in two instalments if she wanted to go on pilgrimage, and after her death the corpus was to be distributed to certain temples. It was further provided that the majority of the trustees, of whom K was one, was empowered to invest the trust moneys either in authorized securities or with several reputed merchants. That the trust deed was written on October 14, but its actual execution was on October 20. On the latter date K stated in the receipt of the amount passed by him to R that he had received the amount of Rs. 10,000 by way of deposit for which he was to pay interest at eight annas per cent. per month, and he further stated that according to her husband's directions R was to make a trust deed in respect of the said amount, that he was to be one of the trustees, that as stated in the trust deed the amount was to be dealt with according to the opinion of the majority of the trustees and that he was bound to pay the amount on demand by them :

Held, that the deposit and the trust were parts of one and the same transaction and that even though the receipt might have been passed in order of time before the execution of the trust deed, the intention of the parties was to enter into one transaction on that date. It could not be said that K was not a trustee when the amount was deposited with him. As a trust had been created, K must be deemed to be holding the amount as a trustee, even though it was agreed that he was entitled to invest the trust fund in any security that he liked and pay interest to the beneficiary. The widow R was therefore entitled to claim priority under s. 28 (5), Pro. Insol Act. KRISHNADAS GOVARDHANDAS MADIVALE v. RATANBAI GOKULDAS LAXMANDAS Bom. 718

——— s. 41—Court considering that discharge should be refused under cl. (a) of s. 41 (2)—Application of cl. (b) or (c) or both should be considered.

If the Judge is of opinion that an absolute discharge should be refused under cl. (a), of s. 41 (2), Pro. Insol Act then he should consider the possible application of cls. (b) or (c), or both, to the case and pass an order accordingly. JIWACHH MAHTHA v. BANWARI SAH RAMLAGAN RAM Pat. 546

——— ss. 41, 42—Application for discharge delayed—Petition giving reasons for delay filed—Application admitted and notices for hearing issued—Whether amounts to extending of time and condoning of delay.

No doubt, even in a case where the application for time had not been filed until after the expiry of the time fixed, it is still open to the Court in a proper case to allow time, provided that the adjudication has never been actually annulled under s. 43. But whether that should or should not be done upon the merits is a question for consideration

An insolvent applied for his discharge beyond the time within which he was directed to so apply, explaining his failure to apply in time. Upon this petition the order passed by the Court was : "Separate petition showing cause of delay filed. Admit the discharge petition. Issue notice to creditors fixing February 19, for hearing." When the matter came up for hearing, the Court refused the final discharge on the ground that the application was time-barred and no sufficient cause was shown for the delay :

Held, that the order of the Court admitting the discharge petition and directing issue of notice for hearing, could not be taken to mean that the time was extended by the Court and the delay condoned. Until the order refusing discharge was passed the question of the sufficiency of the cause for delay had never received judicial consideration from the Court at all, and the order in the order-sheet was a mere routine order placing the whole matter for consideration after notice. JIWACHH MAHTHA v. BANWARI SAH RAMLAGAN RAM Pat. 546

——— ss 41, 42—Insolvent directed to apply for discharge within certain time, making delay in applying—If ground for refusing absolute order of discharge.

Where a person is adjudged insolvent and directed to apply for his discharge within certain time, the delay in so applying is not one of the grounds specified in s. 42, Pro. Insol. Act at all for refusing to grant an absolute order of discharge. It may be a ground for annulling the adjudication. JIWACHH MAHTHA v. BANWARI SAH RAMLAGAN RAM Pat. 546

——— s. 43. See Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, s. 55 (2) (b) 147

——— s. 43—Insolvency Court specifying period of one year within which to apply for discharge—Order challenged by way of appeal and revision to High Court—High Court's order and not that of Insolvency Court, is final—Limitation for application of discharge runs from such final order.

The order of the Insolvency Court specifying the period of one year within which an application for discharge was to be made is not a final order when the same was challenged originally by way of an appeal to the District Judge and later by a revision petition to the High Court. In such a case the order passed by the High Court in revision must be deemed in law to be the final order, furnishing the starting point of the limitation for an application of discharge. In this respect no distinction can be drawn between orders and decrees passed under the Civil P. C., and an order passed under the provisions of the Prov. Insol. Act specifying the time within which an insolvent must apply for discharge. S. HASAN ABBAS ALI KHAN v. ABDUL RAHMAN Oudh 776

——— s. 51 (1) and (3)—S. 51 (3), if restricted to sale in execution of decree — Sub-ss. (1) and (3), whether refer to same classes of cases.

Section 51 (3), Prov. Insol. Act, does not restrict the sales to those held in execution of a decree but applies to sales in execution in general. Therefore, the sale in execution of an award of the Registrar or the arbitrator under the Mad. Co-operative Societies Act gives a good title to the purchaser who in good faith purchased it as against the Receiver in insolvency. Both ss. 51 (1) and 51 (3) refer to the same classes of cases. GOVADA BALABHARATHI CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT SOCIETY, GOVADA v. ALAPATI VENKATAKRISHNAYYA Mad. 555

——— s. 53—Creation of waqf by debtor, a day prior to insolvency, in favour of wife and children —Waqf held mala fide.

The deed of transfer purported to be a waqfnama executed by the debtor just one day before he applied for insolvency. Although he could retain considerable benefits out of the properties, he divested himself of all the rights therein and conferred them almost wholly on his wife and children.

Held, that the transaction was mala fide and without consideration and was liable to be annulled under s. 53, Prov. Insol. Act. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

——— s. 53—Transfer in pursuance of contract prior to insolvency—Transfer not in terms of contract—Transfer, if voluntary—Waqf in pursuance of contract found to be invalid—Transfer can be set aside.

A transfer which the debtor is bound to make in pursuance of a contract entered into prior to his insolvency petition is voluntary within the meaning of s. 53, Prov. Insol. Act if it is not in terms of the contract. Consequently where a waqf, which the debtor was found to create under a contract, is found to be invalid, the transfer is voluntary and is liable to be annulled if it falls within the mischief of s. 53. MAHAMMAD ALI v. DINESH CHANDRA ROY CHAUDHURY Cal. 540

——— s. 66 (2)—Allowance under—Discretion of Court—Insolvent claiming expenses in lump sum for his daughter's marriage—Application, if falls under s 66 (2)—Proper procedure stated.

The making of the allowance is left to the discretion of the Court. It is not possible to hold that an application where a lump sum is claimed on behalf of the insolvent for meeting the marriage expenses of his daughter will come strictly within the scope of s. 66 (2), Prov. Insol. Act. But under the category of "allowance for the support of himself and his family" the expenses that may be necessary for celebrating the marriage of the daughter of the insolvent may be brought Therefore, the proper course for the insolvent to adopt is to ask for an increase in his allowance for the period during which he contemplated celebrating the marriage of his daughter. Such an application would be dealt with by the Court bearing in mind the considerations that ought to prevail in disposing of applications under s. 66 (2). The claim can certainly not be made as a matter of right. MATTAPALLIAPPA RAO v. RAMAMURTHI Mad. 521

——— s. 73. SEE Madras Local Boards Act, 1920, s. 55 (2) (b) 147

——— s. 78 (2)—Proof of debt—Meaning and nature of.

Before a party can claim the benefit of the exclusion enacted by s. 78, Prov. Insol Act, two conditions have to be satisfied. The suit or application in which limitation is pleaded must be in respect of a debt provable under the Act, and it must also have been proved under the Act. Proof of debt in insolvency means that kind of proof only which entitles a creditor to have his name entered in the Schedule and none other. Evidence given to make out that a petitioning creditor is qualified to apply to have the debtor adjudicated insolvent, is not proof in insolvency, and unless he tenders proof of his debt in the manner indicated by s. 49, his name cannot be entered in the Schedule; and, however, true his debt may be, he cannot be allowed to come in for a dividend. Nor can he be permitted to claim in a suit for the recovery of the debt after annulment of the insolvency, an exclusion of the time during which the insolvency remained pending if he had not proved the debt in the sense explained above. SAIT SOGMULL LACHIRAM FIRM, TENALI v. VALLABHANENI PARANDHAMAYYA Mad 705

——— s. 78 (2)—S. 78 (2) incorporates principle of s. 14, Limitation Act (IX of 1908).

Section 78 (2), Prov. Insol. Act was intended to incorporate the principle of s. 14, Lim. Act, so as to meet the situation which is likely to arise frequently in insolvencies. That principle operates to enable a person who was prosecuting with due diligence another proceeding founded upon the same cause of action, in another Court, to exclude the time during which he was so prosecuting that proceeding. Want of diligence, and failure to do what could be done to recover the debt in spite of the insolvency, that is to say a failure to prove for the debt, would deprive a party of the benefit of the section. SAIT SOGMULL LACHIRAM FIRM, TENALI v. VALLABHANENI PARANDHAMAYYA Mad. 705

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25—Revision, scope

The revisional powers under s. 25 of the Prov. Small Cause Court should be exercised in exceptional circumstances to correct palpable errors and to prevent miscarriage of justice. ELSIE, C. GRIFFIN EDWARD v. WILLIAM AINSLIE CANNON HOWARD Oudh 38

——— s. 25—Revisional powers under, extent of.

Under s. 25, Prov. Small Cause Courts Act, the High Court has wider powers of interference than those given by s 115, Civil P C., and it will interfere in exercise of that power on grounds similar to those which would justify interference under s. 115, Civil P. C., or, apart from those grounds, when there is reason to think that there has not been a fair trial or that a palpable injustice has been committed or even in the case of a simple error of law if it is a matter of general importance. Section 25 however, cannot, be used in such a way as to give an ordinary right of appeal on points of law. VITHALBHAI MOTIBHAI v. NADIAD ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO. LTD. Bom. 35

——— s. 35—New Small Cause Court Judge having no pecuniary jurisdiction to execute decree of predecessor can transfer it to himself on regular side and deal with it as Sub-Judge—He can order attachment in latter capacity.

Where a new Small Cause Court Judge has no pecuniary jurisdiction to execute the decree passed by his predecessor he can transfer it to himself on the ordinary side and deal with it as a Sub-Judge. Hence an attachment order by him in his latter capacity would be perfectly valid. SOHAN LAL GULAB RAI v. FIRM MUHAMMAD DIN MUHAMMAD YUNIS Pesh. 712 ——— Art. 35 (j)—Suit for compensation for illegal attachment — Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court to try—Suit held exempted from jurisdiction of Small Cause Court — Property wrongfully attached, damaged while in custody of supurdar—Decree-holder held liable for compensation.

A decree-holder in execution of his decree attached a machine belonging not to the judgment-debtor but to the plaintiff. The plaintiff's objection under O. XXI, r. 58, Civil P. C, was allowed and the machine was ordered to be released and the supurdar in whose possession it was, was ordered to hand it over to the plaintiff. When the plaintiff went to see the machine he learnt that many parts were missing, and some were broken, and the machine had become quite useless. The plaintiff brought a suit against the decree-holder stating in the plaint that he suffered a great loss owing to the improper acts of the decree-holder and the supurdar, that the machine had become useless, and so he was entitled to recover its price; the plaint further stated that the cause of action arose on the day when his machine was attached, on the day it was ordered to be released and on the day he learnt of the damage caused to it:

Held, that the wrongful act of the decree-holder alleged by the plaintiff could be no other but that he caused his machine to be attached in execution of his decree, and although the plaintiff claimed the price of the machine, yet he had assessed the damages on that amount. The suit was therefore for compensation for illegal attachment and exempted from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court.

Held, further that the decree-holder was liable for compensation. His liability arose because he got the plaintiff's property attached, and he was bound to restore it in the condition it was at the time of the attachment. PRITHI NATH v. M. H. NOWROJI Oudh 654

Provocation. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 302 6

Public policy. SEE Contract 112

Punjab Court of Wards Act (II of 1903), s. 13—Joint proprietor, if can sue Court of Wards for partition of his share in joint property.

Punjab Court of Wards Act—concld.

The Punjab Court of Wards Act does not expressly bar the right of a joint proprietor to bring a suit for partition of his share in joint property. It may be that the Court of Wards is entitled to take possession of the property of a joint proprietor along with a ward of the Court of Wards; it may be that they can execute leases of such property, but there is nothing in the Act which specifically bars the right of the co-proprietor to bring a suit for partition which is a statutory right conferred on him by the Partition Act and there is no reason either in law or in equity, that the Court of Wards Act contemplated that the joint proprietor should not bring such a suit to partition his share and thereby avoid the need of superintendence of his property by the Court of Wards. QAISAR JAHAN BEGUM v. DEPUTY COMMISSIONER, DEHLI PROVINCE Lah. 829

——— s. 32—Modification of order—Awarding additional and future interest.

Awarding additional and future interest would not amount to modification of the order of the Deputy Commissioner. COURT OF WARDS ESTATE OF MALIK AMIR KHAN v. TEHLA RAM Lah. 149

Punjab Government Notification No. 29 of July 4, 1888, s. 17 (1) (d). See Registration Act, 1908, s. 17 (1) 786

Punjab Motor Vehicles Rules, rr. 24 (1), 48 and 49. See Motor Vehicles Act, 1914, s. 16 673

Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), s. 61—Only tax actually being levied is saved and not tax that could be levied

It is the tax that was actually being levied that is saved under s. 61 and not a tax that could be levied under the old Municipal Act. DAULAT RAM v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, LAHORE. Lah. 72

——— ss. 61, 62 (12)—Tax on salt—Municipality if can impose it.

The combined effect of ss. 100, 140, sub-s. (1) and the Federal Legislative List Item No. 47 is that salt is a matter which is within the jurisdiction of the Federal Legislature alone and cannot therefore by virtue of sub-s. (1) of s. 100 be dealt with in any manner by a Provincial Legislature. Consequently, a Municipal Committee cannot legally impose a tax on salt. DAULAT RAM v MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, LAHORE Lah. 72

——— s. 62 (12)—S. 62 (12), if precludes enquiry into question whether tax is legal or otherwise.

All that sub-s (12) of s. 62, Punjab Municipal Act lays down is that a notification of the imposition of a tax under the Municipal Act shall be conclusive evidence that the tax has been imposed in accordance with the provisions of the Act and does not preclude an enquiry into the question whether the tax is legal or otherwise. DAULAT RAM v MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, LAHORE Lah. 72

——— s. 93—Fire brigade, if agent of Municipal Committee — It is independent unit under Crown.

The fire brigade maintained by the Peshawar Municipal Committee is not the agent of the Peshawar Municipal Committee. The fire brigade is an independent unit under the control of an officer of the Crown and the mere fact that the Peshawar Municipal Committee pays for it does not make it liable for its acts or omissions. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, PESHAWAR v. ABDULLAH JAN MIAN AGHA JAN Pesh. 593

——— s. 172. See Punjab Municipal Act, 1911, s. 226 365

——— s. 195-A—Expression "delivered to" if means "served upon"

The words "service" or "served" are technical terms implying a definite process of the law and where those terms are used, that process has to be carried out. The words "delivered to" do not appear to me to mean or to be intended to mean the same as "served upon." They are words of much wider meaning. SURAIN SINGH v. EMPEROR Lah. 317

Punjab Municipal Act—concld.

——— s. 195-A—Notice, if should specify in detail how sanctioned plans had been contravened.

There is nothing in the language of s 195-A of the Act, as it now stands, which requires the notice to state any more than that the sanction has been contravened. The notice is invalid if it does not specify in detail how the sanctioned plans had been contravened. SURAIN SINGH v EMPEROR Lah. 317

——— ss. 195-A, 215—Notice under s. 195-A signed on behalf of executive officer by person authorized to do so, is valid—Presumption in such cases.

Where notice under s. 195-A, Punjab Municipal Act has not been signed by the executive officer but by another person who has been specially authorised by the executive officer to sign such notices, the notice is valid.

The legal maxim omnia praesumuntur rite esse actæ has been embodied in an illustration to s. 114, Evi. Act, and if a person receives a notice purporting to be signed by somebody on behalf of the executive officer, the presumption is that it is signed by a person who has been authorized to sign it, and if the person receiving that notice presumes otherwise and disobeys the notice, he is taking a risk. The burden lies on him to rebut the presumption of regularity. SURAIN SINGH v. EMPEROR Lah. 317

——— ss. 228, 172—Municipal Committee giving sanction in general terms for prosecution of petitioner for offence set out in sanction—Offence not mentioned by section but by facts constituting offence under s. 172—S. 228 held sufficiently complied with.

The sanction of the Municipal Committee for a prosecution was given in general terms without mentioning any section but after reciting the facts which the committee considered to constitute an offence and which were found to constitute an offence under s. 172, Punjab Municipal Act. These facts were that the petitioner had built on municipal land without permission, that he had been served with a notice to demolish the building within two days and had not complied with it. The complaint prayed that the accused be punished for these acts:

Held, that in these circumstances the committee sanctioned the prosecution for such offence as might be found proved on the facts stated by them. Therefore, there was no defect of non-compliance with the provisions of s. 228 of the Act which were sufficiently complied with. DOST MUHAMMAD QUTAB DIN v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HARIPUR HAZARA Pesh. 365

Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (VII of 1934), s. 35—House let out—Onus lies on judgment-debtor to prove length of occupation.

The house of an agriculturist judgment-debtor is exempt under s. 35 unless it has been let out on rent for a period of a year or more. The mere negative form of s. 35 would not, shift the onus from the judgment-debtor. Even if it did do so, still once it is proved that the property had been let on rent, the period for which it had been rented being a matter specifically within the knowledge of the judgment-debtor, the onus would lie on him to show the length of the period. BHOLA SINGH v. RAMAN MAL . Lah. 312

——— s. 35—Words 'for a period..... more'—Construction.

The words "for a period of a year or more" in s. 35 only qualify the words "left vacant." BHOLA SINGH v. RAMAN MAL Lah. 312

Rangoon City Municipal Act (VI of 1922), s. 194—Applicability—There must be tax claimable—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to decide whether person is in arrears of municipal tax.

Before s. 194, Rang. City Municipal Act comes into operation there must be arrears of tax or some fee or money claimable. There is no statute which says that the fulfilment or non fulfilment of this condition precedent is to be decided by any person so that his decision is to be final and the jurisdiction of the Court is to be ousted. Accordingly the Court may enquire whether a person is in arrear with payment of a municipal tax, for, if he is not, the Land Revenue Acts have no application. AH TWE v. MA MAI SEIN Rang. 372 F B

Rateable distribution.

SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 73 38, 536

Registration—Sub-Registrar making endorsement that executant admitted execution, whether attesting witness.

A Sub-Registrar who has signed a document in the presence of the executant after receiving from him an acknowledgment of execution, is an attesting witness. GANPATRAO v. NAGORAO Nag. 41

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Equitable mortgage—Letter signed and delivered to mortgagee at time of depositing title-deeds, by way of security for loans—Letter, held required registration.

One S borrowed money on a promissory note and deposited with the creditor title deeds of certain property as security. At the time of the deposit S signed and delivered to the mortgagee a letter which stated that S had received the amount in cash and for that amount had kept with the mortgagee as security, the original title-deeds relating to certain property. The letter further stated that at the time of the discharge of the bond, S would take back the letter as well as the title deeds. In a subsequent mortgage the said letter was described not only as collateral security letter but as security for the loan:

Held, that the letter constituted the bargain between the parties and operated to declare the rights of the mortgagee in the property. Consequently, the memorandum fell within s. 17, Regis. Act, and ought to have been registered. Not having been registered it could not be admitted in evidence with the result that the equitable mortgage could not be proved. VISALAKSHI AMMAL v. C. KRISHNAVENI AMMAL Mad. 152

——— ss. 17, 49—Document connected with partition not registered—Inadmissible to prove actual partition or share of party—Admissible to prove jointness or otherwise of person.

A document connected with a partition is not admissible in evidence in the absence of registration, to prove actual partition and to prove what was allotted to any person by that partition: It is, however, clearly admissible to establish the status of a party to the document or to establish separation in the family and to rebut any case that such party died in a state of jointness. BESAR KUAR v. RAMBIT SINGH Pat. 538 ——— ss. 17, 49—Unregistered simple mortgage deed—Admissibility of, to obtain money decree.

The personal covenant to pay is distinctly divisible or separable in a simple mortgage, from its hypothecation clauses and the bond so regarded, is clear evidence of the debt. Therefore, though a simple mortgage deed creating charge on immovable property over Rs. 100 is unregistered, the deed is admissible in evidence to support the mortgagee's claim for a money decree. OM PARKASH v. MUKHTAR AHMAD Lah. 789

——— s. 17 (1), Proviso and s. 17 (1) (d)—Punjab Government Notification No. 29 of July 4, 1888—The word "reserve"—Meaning explained.

The word "reserve" in s 17 (1) (d), Regis. Act, and also in the Punjab Govt Notification No 29 of July 4, 1888, is a technical expression used for keeping to himself by the lessor of a yearly rent in making the grant of the land to the lessee and in common parlance it is equivalent to the word "fix". ISLAMUDDIN JUMMA DIN v. FIRM JIWA SHAH RAM CHAND Pesh. 786

——— ss. 17 (1) (d), 17 (2) (vi), 49—Exemption under s. 17 (2) (vi) does not extend to decrees embodying lease—Compromise decree embodying fresh lease—Decree must be registered and if unregistered it cannot be relied upon to prove rent of tenancy.

It is true that s. 17 (2) (vi), Regis. Act exempts a decree or order of Court from registration but the exemption does not extend to decrees embodying leases. This is perfectly clear from the wording of sub-s. (2) of s. 17 which expressly limits the operation of the exemption therein contained to documents dealt with in cls. (b) and (c) of sub-s. (1). Sub-clause (d) of sub-s. (1) which deals with leases is excluded from the operation of sub-s. (2).

Where after annulling the tenancy by notice under s. 167, Ben. Ten. Act, the plaintiff sues the tenant as trespasser for rent arrears but the suit is compromised by the defendant taking a fresh lease, the compromise decree is not the recognition of an old lease but a new lease and hence is compulsorily registrable under s. 17 (1) (d). Where the compromise decree is not registered, it cannot be relied upon by the tenant for proving the rent of the tenancy. ATUL KRISHNA BOSE v. ZAHED MONDAL Cal. 635

——— s. 17 (1) (e)—Charge, creation of, by decree—Assignment of such decree, if falls under s. 17 (1) (e).

An assignment of a decree creating a charge on immovable property falls within the purview of s. 17 (1) (e), Regis. Act, as a charge is a right to or in immovable property within the meaning of that Act. RAYCHAND JIVAJI v. BASAPPA VIRAPPA BELLARY Bom. 740

——— s. 17 (1) (e)—Decrees made prior to or simultaneously with assignment, whether covered by s. 17 (1) (e).

Per N. J. Wadia, J.—There is nothing in the language of s. 17 (1) (e), Regis Act to indicate that only assignments of decrees which are simultaneous with the making of the decrees are covered by that section, and where the decree had already created the interest long before the assignment was made, the assignment would not be governed by cl. (e). The language of the clause is wide enough to cover all decrees whether made prior to the assignment or simultaneously with the assignment. RAYCHAND JIVAJI v. BASAPPA VIRAPPA BELLARY Bom. 740

Registration Act—concld.

——— s. 17 (2) (vi). See Registration Act, 1908, s. 17 (1) (d) 635

——— s. 49.

See Registration Act, 1908, s. 17 538, 789

See Registration Act, 1908, s. 17 (1) (d) 635

——— s. 49—Unregistered sale deed—If can be used to explain nature of possession taken under it.

Though an unregistered deed of sale is ineffective to pass title, it can be used to explain the nature of the possession taken under it. It may operate as starting point for adverse possession of vendee, if he has set up independent title in himself. Umar Haji Karim v. Badridas Ramrai Nag. 306

——— s. 97—Registered document when takes effect—Position of parties to document and third parties in the matter, explained.

It is undoubtedly true that as between the transferor and the transferee the registered document takes effect from the date of execution; and if there is a competition between two documents relating to the same property both of which are registered, the one executed earlier in point of time will have priority, but as regards third party the point of time at which the deed is to be effective is when it is registered. Gobardhan Bar v. Gukadhar Bar Cal. 530

Religious endowment. See Hindu Law 200, 882 P C

Res judicata. See also Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 11 44

——— Issue made subject of final order—That order cannot be ignored by succeeding Court.

Section 11, Civil P. C. is not exhaustive of the applicability of the principle of res judicata. When an issue has been made the subject of a final order by a Court, that order cannot be ignored by a succeeding Judge nor has the Court jurisdiction to alter its decision except on grounds which would justify a review. Karnam Subramanya Rao v. Fulla Rami Reddi Mad. 44

——— Party's estate vesting in his mortgagee prior to suit to which mortgagee was not party—Decision is not binding on him.

The estate which has already vested in a mortgagee cannot be represented in, or adjudicated upon, in a subsequent litigation to which he is not a party; consequently the decision in the suit is not binding on the mortgagee. Ganpathao v. Nagorao Nag. 41 ——— Question of limitation not raised in transferee Court — If barred in decree Court.

Even if the plea that application for execution is time-barred is not raised in the Court to which the decree is transmitted for execution, the plea cannot be res judicata in the Court which passed the decree because the plea can be raised at any time in the transferee Court. P. L. S. P. Subramanian Chettiar v. L. N. Chettyar Firm Rang. 318

Retracted Confession. See Confession 265

Reversioner. See Hindu Law 193

Revision.

See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 435 564

See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 439 46

See Criminal trial 189

Riot. See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 297 375

River—Navigable river—Property in bed.

The property in the river bed of a navigable river is in the Crown. Midnapore Zamindary Co. Ltd. v, Bijoy Singh Dudhuria Cal. 578

Riwaj-i-am—Entries in—Presumption — Judicial decision, value of in rebutting presumption.

A judicial decision, though of comparatively recent date, may contain, on its records, evidence of specific instances, which are of sufficient antiquity to be of value in rebutting the presumption enjoyed by the riwaj-i-am. In such a case, the value of the decision arises from the fact not that it is relevant under ss. 13 and 42 of the Evi. Act as forming in itself a "transaction by which the custom in question was "recognised, etc., etc" but that it contains, on its records, a number of specific instances relating to the relevant custom. To ignore such judicial decisions merely on the basis of the riwaj-i-am would add greatly to the perplexities and difficulties of proving a custom. Subhani v. Nawab P C 436

——— Entries in—Presumption of correctness—Extent of—Rebuttal of—Nature of evidence required — Rights of females who had no opportunity of being consulted by officer compiling riwaj-i-am, adversely affected — Custom recorded not in conformity with general customary law — Presumption is weakened.

Though the entries in the riwaj-i-am are entitled to an initial presumption in favour of their correctness, irrespective of the question whether or not the custom as recorded was in accord with the general custom the quantum of evidence necessary to rebut this presumption would, however, vary with the facts and circumstances of each case. Where, for instance, the riwaj-i-am laid down a custom in consonance with the general agricultural custom of the province, very strong proof would be required to displace this presumption, but where, on the other hand, this is not the case and the custom as recorded in the riwaj-i-am is opposed to the rules generally prevalent, the presumption would be considerably weakened. Likewise, where the riwaj-i-am affects adversely the rights of females who had no opportunity whatever of appearing before the revenue authorities, the presumption would be weaker still, and only a few instances would suffice to rebut it.

The effect of the statements in the riwaj-i-am (Wilson's Manual) is weakened by the fact that women had no opportunity of being consulted by the officer compiling the customary law and by the fact that the custom recorded was not in conformity with the general customary law though the degree of the weakening would depend upon the facts of each case. Subhani v. Nawab P C 436

Sarais Act (XXII of 1867), s. 3. See Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 435 564

Second appeal. See Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 102 633

——— New plea. See Practice 451

——— New plea—Plea of undue influence cannot be raised for first time.

Where undue influence is not pleaded in the lower Courts it cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal because evidence would have been necessary to prove or disprove the exercise of undue influence if it had been taken up in the trial Court. Karam Din Nawab Din v. Anant Ram Lala Hukum Chand Pesh. 51 ——— Question of law—Deed document of title and foundation of suit —Its construction is question of law.

Where a deed is the document of title in the case and is the foundation of the plaintiff's suit, the construction of such a document is a question of law, which can be raised in second appeal. Om Parkash v. Mukhtar Ahmad Lah. 789

——— Question of law or fact—Terms of document

Second Appeal—concld.

—Intention to be inferred from—Question is one of law.

Whether the interpretation of a particular order is a question of fact, or a question of law, or a question of mixed fact and law, depends on the circumstances of each particular case. The general rule is quite clear Where intention is to be inferred from the terms of a document, the question is one of law, or mixed question of fact and law ; where the intention is to be inferred from the other facts and circumstances tending to show what was the real intention of the Judge in passing that particular order, then the question may be either a question of pure fact, or again, may be a question of mixed fact and law. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HAFIZABAD v. GOPAL DAS Lah. 334

———Rent suit—Finding of lower Courts that plaintiff was unable to prove rate of rent—No interference in second appeal.

The High Court cannot interfere in second appeal with the conclusion which has been arrived at by the Courts of fact, that the plaintiff in the rent suit has been unable to prove the rate of rent which is payable by the defendants, although the reasoning of such Courts in rejecting the documents filed by the plaintiff are not quite satisfactory. RAMGOBIND SAHU v. MOSO DHOBI Pat. 780

Security Bond. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 514 627

Shebait. SEE Hindu Law—Religious endowment 200

Sind Sagar Doab Colonisation Act (I of 1902) SEE Custom (Punjab) 684

Specific performance—Agreement to mortgage. Obiter.—Specific performance of an agreement to mortgage can be granted. GAJADEAR PRASAD v. UDAICHAND Nag 401

Specific Relief Act (I of 1887), s. 9—Suit under—Each party claiming exclusive possession—Neither claiming joint possession — Court, if can pass decree for exclusive possession.

Where in a suit under s. 9, Specific Relief Act, neither side contends that within the six months preceding the suit either had been in joint possession but each claims to be in exclusive possession, the Court is right in not going into the question of joint possession and in placing that party in exclusive possession which on the facts before it, it considers to have been in possession at the date of the dispossession.

It may well be that a joint owner of property is still at the date of suit under s. 9 entitled to the property and would be given possession in a suit probably instituted for that purpose. But nevertheless it is open to one co-owner of property to oust the others and to obtain exclusive possession for himself. The title of the others may not be extinguished when this is done, but if that ouster took place more than six months before the institution of the suit under s. 9, then for the purposes of s. 9 that ouster would hold good even though the title of the plaintiff may not be extinguished. Consequently the admission of the defendants which go to the question of title do not oust the jurisdiction of the Court, and where neither side contends that they were in joint possession within six months before the suit is filed, the lower Court is right in placing the plaintiff in exclusive and not in joint possession. ABDUL AZIZ v. AMIR Nag. 805

Stamp Act (II of 1899), ss. 33, 42—Civil Court admitting document under proviso (a) to s. 35 and granting certificate under s. 42 (1)— Collector if can impound that document again under s. 33 (1) or proceed to assess further deficiency and penalty under s. 40.

When a Civil Court has collected the deficiency and penalty which appears to the said Court to be due on any document and has admitted the document in evidence under proviso (a) to s. 35 of the Act, and has granted a certificate under sub-s. (1) of s. 42 of the Act that the proper duty and penalty have been levied in respect of the said document, it is not open to the Collector, on the document being subsequently produced before him in the performance of his official functions, to impound the same under sub-s. (1) of s. 33, Stamp Act, and to proceed thereafter to assess further deficiency and penalty under s. 40, Stamp Act. NAND LAL v. EMPEROR Lah. 368 S B ———ss. 40 (1) (a), 33, 42—Collector's certificate under s. 40 (1) (a), if can be reviewed either by himself or by any other authority.

Where the Collector is of opinion that the instrument is duly stamped or is not chargeable with duty and gives a certificate to that effect, that certificate is final and the decision cannot be reviewed either by the Collector himself or by any other authority or by another Collector before whom the document appears. NAND LAL v. EMPEROR Lah. 363 S B

———s. 42—Collector's endorsement that document is properly stamped—Court, if can refuse to admit it on the ground that it is not properly stamped.

It is clear from the terms of s. 42 (2), Stamp Act, that the Court at any rate cannot refuse to admit a document in evidence on the ground that such document is not properly stamped where the Collector's endorsement appears that it is properly stamped or that the duty has been levied on it. NAND LAL v EMPEROR Lah. 368 S B

Substituted Security. SEE Mortgage 748

Succession Act (XXXIX of 1925), s. 63—Will—Attestation—Will held not properly attested.

A will which was jointly executed by two persons who were illiterates was signed by one P on behalf of the executants against their thumb-impressions. One K signed the will as a scribe and merely said that he read over the contents of the document to the executants. K did not say under his signature that he attested the signatures of the executants. The signature of one L also appeared on the will. But his signature was from the pen of K and there was a mark just below it. There was no evidence that this mark below L's name written by K was made by L himself. The only other signature, was that of, P but he was the person who also signed for the executants :

Held, that in the circumstances the signatures on the will were not properly attested as required by s. 63 of the Succession Act.

Held, further that even if the endorsement by the Registrar before whom the document was registered was taken to amount to attestation, yet as there was no other witness who could be said to have attested the will, the will was not properly attested. BULAKI MAHTON v DULIA Pat. 463

———s. 283—Application for probate—Probate Court cannot decide whether property dealt with by testator in fact belonged to him.

In an application for probate of a will or for the grant of letters of administration with a copy of the will annexed, the sole question that arises is whether or not the will is a true one. It is not open to the probate Court to decide whether or not the property with which a testator has purported to deal, in fact belonged to him. KASHI NATH SINGH v. DULHIN GULZARI KUER Pat. 856

Succession Act—concld.

——— s. 283—Person claiming adversely to testator or disputing his right to deal with property—Whether can be deemed to claim interest in estate of deceased within meaning of s. 283.

A person who claims outside and independently of a will or claims adversely to the testator and disputes his right to deal with the property, can in no sense be deemed to claim an interest in the estate of the deceased within the meaning of s. 283 of the Succession Act and he is not, therefore, entitled to oppose the grants of probate or letters of administration. KASHI NATH SINGH v. DULHIN GULZARI KUER Pat. 856

——— s. 292—Assignment of bond under s. 292, Succession Act (XXXIX of 1925)—Effect—Whether confers on assignee new cause of action and fresh starting point.

Section 292, Succession Act, does not have the effect of conferring a new cause of action on the assignee, and therefore does not provide a fresh starting point for the purposes of limitation. It is wrong to say that the condition of the bond is not broken for the purposes of the Lim Act until the date of the assignment. THE GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD. v. JANMAHOMED ABDUL RAHIM P C 225

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Mortgage—Redemption suit—Value for jurisdiction

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage of immovable propeity the value for jurisdiction is the amount of money which is found to be due on the mortgage. The market value of the property mortgaged can on no account be ever the value for jurisdiction in a redemption suit. MOTAI v. MOHD AKBAR KHAN CHIEF OF HOTI Peth 871

——— ss. 8 and 9. SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, s. 7 (iv) (c) 641 F B

Surety. SEE Contract Act, 1872, s. 137 344

———Discharge of—Composition between principal debtor and creditor—Surety is not absolved from liability when he has expressly contracted to remain liable even after principal's discharge

Although a composition bond between the principal debtor and the creditor extinguishes the debt to the principal debtor, yet it does not absolve the liability of the surety under the surety bond where the surety had expressly contracted to remain liable, notwithstanding the discharge of the principal. In such a case it cannot be contended that the discharge of the principal is an implied discharge of the surety. A. R. KRISHNASWAMI AYYAR v. TRAVANCORE NATIONAL BANK, LTD. Mad. 332 ——— Liability of—Surety representing principal to be major and agreeing to compensate plaintiff if representation proved false—Principal found to be minor—Liability of surety.

Where the sureties represent to the plaintiff that principal is competent to contract and make the plaintiff enter into a transaction, agreeing to compensate if their (sureties') representations proved false or any defect was discovered in the contract thereafter the sureties must under the terms of their contract compensate the plaintiff. The suretyship contract is a collateral and almost an independent contract and can be enforced TIKKI LAL v. KOMALCHAND Nag. 178.

Surety Bond. SEE Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, s. 499 471

Surrender SEE Hindu Law—Widow 419

Trade Mark—Infringement. SEE Penal Code, 1860, s. 482 189

——— Infringement—Defendant's goods colourable imitation of plaintiff's goods—Actual deception, if must be proved.

Where defendants' goods are colourable imitation of the plaintiff's goods, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove actual deception especially when the defendants sold their goods not openly in shops but in a hole and corner manner by canvassers and by a lorry upcountry. J. C. ENO. LTD v VISHNU CHEMICAL CO. Bom. 392 ——— Infringement—Imitation of words—Tests—Copy of words used as trade-mark in any other language intended to deceive or likely to deceive, can be restrained—Words "Fruit salt" distinctive mark of plaintiff's saline—Defendant selling saline under name "Falaxar", meaning in Marathi "Fruit Salt"—Defendants held could be restrained from using that word.

If traders in India have acquired in any language the exclusive right to the use of certain particular marks not merely as descriptive of but as distinctive of their goods, they have the right to restrain another trader from copying those words for use in connection with a similar class of goods in any other language in India If traders attempt to deceive by mis-spelling or distorting any word in any shape or form, it being obvious what word they are in fact intending to indicate, they are in fact attempting to deceive. This is the real test which has got to be applied not only to the use of words in the same language, but to the use of words in any other language which may be a colourable imitation of words in the language from which the evidence may establish that they were in fact taken. If the Court comes to the conclusion that the use of the words in a foreign language was an intention to deceive and in fact was likely to deceive, then the Court ought to restrain the use of such words.

The plaintiff's saline was well-known in India and was very commonly asked for as "Fruit Salt", the words "Fruit Salt" were well-known in the trade to belong exclusively to the plaintiff's saline, and those words were not merely descriptive of, but were a distinctive mark of, the plaintiff's saline. The defendants had been selling and offering for sale in Bombay and other places in India saline not of the plaintiffs' manufacture under the name "Falaxar", and that word was the Marathi equivalent of the plaintiffs' mark "Fruit Salt":

Held, that the word "Falaxar" was the Marathi equivalent of the mark "Fruit Salt", and the defendants could therefore be restrained from using such name. Though any one may use the word "Fruit" and the word "Salt" in any language in India as he pleases, yet he is not permitted to use those words as indicative of a class of goods similar to the plaintiffs' goods, the reason being that those words in the English language had become distinctive of their goods, and if those words were used in any other language in India in connection with a similar class of goods, the use of the words might be liable to cause deception:

Held, further that it could not be said that any one could possibly have sought to register in England in connection with goods similar to the plaintiffs' goods the words "Fruit Salt" in any foreign language. J. C. ENO. LTD. v. VISHNU CHEMICAL CO. Bom. 392

——— Infringement—Passing-off action—Plaintiff can make choice of either account and payment of profits gained by defendant or enquiry as to damage occasioned to plaintiff.

In a passing off action the plaintiff is entitled to make his choice of either an account and payment to him of the profits which the defendant has gained by his wrongful conduct, or an enquiry as to, and payment of the damages occasioned to the plaintiff by reason of it. J. C. ENO. LTD. v VISHNU CHEMICAL CO. Bom. 392

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 8—Entire patti of zamindar sold—Abadi included in patti, if passes to purchaser.

Where the entire patti of a zemindar constituting a distinct unit has been sold by auction, the abadi numbers whose area was included in the area of the zemindari patti which are a part and parcel of the latter also pass to the purchaser. SHEORAJ v. GANGA PRASAD Oudh 675

——— s. 53—Sole and only creditor, if can maintain representative suit.

Even if the plaintiff is the only creditor, he can bring a representatives suit for the benefit of or on behalf of all the creditors. DEOKALI PATTAH v. RAMDEVI Rang. 286

——— s. 53—Suit under—Decree held cancelled deed and not merely declared it void between creditors and parties to deed.

A decree was passed in a suit to set aside a deed of assignment, brought by the creditors under s. 53, that the deed of assignment was bogus and fraudulent and declaring it as cancelled and of no effect against the creditors :

Held, that the Court intended to cancel the assignment and not merely to declare it void in part leaving it effective as between the assignors and the assignee and ineffective only against the creditors.

[Proper form of decree in such cases stated.] RAMCHANDRA KRISHNAJI CHANDOLE v. VITHU GOVIND PANHALH Bom. 79

——— s. 53—Transfer challenged as void under s. 53—Material question to be considered—Fact that all creditors have been paid off since transfer, if material.

Where a transfer is challenged as void under s. 53 what the Court has to consider is whether the action of the transferee on the date of the transfer was intended to defeat or delay the creditors and not whether the creditors have been defeated since. The fact that all creditors have been paid off since the date of the transfer is immaterial. DEOKALI PATTAH v. RAMDEVI Rang. 286

——— s. 58 (d). SEE Mortgage 272

——— s. 65-A—Lease by mortgagor for unusual term to defeat creditors, is void—Lessee has no right to redeem.

A lease is void, unless it is one granted in the ordinary course of management A lease by the mortgagor for an unusual term to defeat the creditors is void and would not be binding on the mortgagee. The lessee in such a case will have no right to redeem. PANDELA FUNDARIKAKSHUDU v. SONTINENI KONDAYYA Mad. 366

——— s. 65-A—Mortgage before s. 65-A but lease after it—Section has no application.

Where the mortgage took place before s 65-A was introduced in T P. Act, that section would not apply, even if the lease was actually after s. 65-A was introduced. PANDELA FUNDARIKAKSHUDU v. SONTINENI KONDAYYA Mad. 366

——— s. 67-A. SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, s. 17 711

——— s. 68. SEE Mortgage 272

——— s 76 (h)—Essentials for applicability of s 76 (h)—Mortgagee in possession of mortgaged property as mere tenant under lease-deed—S. 76 (h) does not apply—Equitable set-off, if can be allowed.

Before s. 76 (h), T. P. Act can be applied it must be shown that the possession of the mortgagee is by way of security for the debt, or in some way referable to the mortgage.

A mortgagee had entered into possession of the mortgaged property under a lease-deed as a mere tenant and not in his capacity of the mortgagee, on agreement of paying certain rent. In the suit on the mortgage the subsequent transferee from the mortgagor contended that the rents from the mortgagee should be set-off against him in reduction of the interest on mortgage money under s. 76 (h), T. P. Act:

Held, that the transaction referred to in the lease-deed was merely a lease with a provision for the payment of rent in advance and could in no sense be described as a mortgage of any sort. There was no question of property being held in mortgage unless it was held as security for the debt, and to constitute a mortgage there must also be provision, express or implied for a right of redemption. As in the lease-deed there was neither any provision whereby the property was held as security for the debt nor for redemption, the lessee came in purely as tenant, and not as mortgagee.

Held also, that even if it could be held that the possession under the lease-deed was possession as mortgagee, it was not as mortgagee under the mortgage in suit, and possession was in no way referable to the mortgage upon which the suit had been brought. Hence as the mortgagees were not in possession as mortgagees, but as tenants upon rent under a lease which had nothing whatever to do with the mortgages in suit, s. 76, T. P. Act did not apply to the case for s. 76 (h) to be applicable the possession of the mortgagee must be qua mortgagee.

Held further, that there was no question of equitable set-off as it had not been shown that the rent was due to the subsequent transferee nor had the transferee shown that he had any right, legal or equitable, to raise the plea of set off. GULAB CHAND PRASAD v. RAM KUMAR Pat. 533

——— s. 100—Principles underlying O. XXXIV, Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), applicability of, to charges created by decree—Charge created by act of parties—Rule applicable to—Held, right to proceed personally against judgment-debtor was not independent of charge and could only arise after exercising right against property charged.

The principles underlying O. XXXIV, Civil P. C., although they may not strictly apply in the case of a charge, may be applied and ought to be applied by analogy to charges created by a decree, unless indeed the terms of the decree make it clear that the remedy of recovering the decretal amount from the property charged was not given in lieu of the personal remedy but in addition to it. In every case it must be essentially a question of construction of the decree, but unless the contrary appears, the ordinary rule should be that when a charge is created by act of parties the specification of the particular fund or property negatives a personal liability and the remedy of the holder of the charge is against the property charged only or at any rate against the property charged in the first instance.

Transfer of Property Act—concld.

Hence, where a decree creating a charge on the immovable property provides expressly that in case the defendant fails to pay the amount at the time fixed he would be entitled to recover the amount out of the property charged.' The right to proceed against the judgment-debtor personally cannot be said to be independent of the charge but only arises, if at all, after the right against the charged property has been exercised. RAYCHAND JIVAJI v. BASAPPA VIRAPPA BELLARY Bom. 740

——— s. 100—U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), s. 177—Execution sale of immovable property—Municipal taxes in arrears—Auction-purchaser should be presumed to have constructive notice of charge—His failure to make enquiry—Effect—Duty of Municipality — Bye-laws of Lucknow Municipality — Municipality, if can follow property in hands of auction-purchaser in execution of decree.

The principle of constructive notice in the case of a transaction relating to immovable property which is required by law to be and has been registered by a registered instrument, should be applied to arrears of taxes which form a charge under the Municipalities Act on property sold at an auction sale. Even if any difficulty had been experienced by the auction-purchaser or was likely to be experienced by him in obtaining information regarding arrears of Municipal taxes standing against the immovable property, directly from the Municipal authorities, that would not be a valid defence. Rule 19 of the Municipal Account Code provides for the affixation to the assessment list of fly-leaves containing columns 5 to 13 of Form 3 appended to that Code. This form clearly shows what arrears are due. There are bye-laws of the Lucknow Municipality regulating inspections and the giving of copies of Municipal records and documents, and although permission has to be given by the Executive Officer, it may be presumed that where a house is being sold in execution of a Civil Court decree permission would be given. If on application being made permission was refused and the would-be purchaser could not otherwise obtain the necessary information, constructive notice could not of course be imputed to him. Intending purchaser is not bound to presume that the taxes have been paid. It must be presumed that a person who buys house property situated in a Municipality is acquainted with the law by which a charge is imposed on that property for the payment of taxes. When a charge has been expressly imposed in the Municipalities Act upon property for the payment of Municipal taxes, the Municipality is entitled to follow the property in the hands of a transferee who has not cared to make any enquiry as to whether payment of the taxes is in arrears. MUNICIPAL BOARD OF LUCKNOW v. RAMJI LAL Oudh 290

——— s. 108 (c)—Property leased for cultivation and settling tenants thereon—Right of lessee to collect and sell surface stones.

Where property is leased for the purpose of cultivation and settling tenants thereon, the lessee is only entitled to a reasonable right to user in the soil but he has no right to dig or quarry stone or to collect and sell surface stones. Right to collect and sell surface stones can be established only by custom. KUSUM KAMINI DEBYA v. JAGDISH CHANDRA DEO DHABAL DEB Pat. 760

Trust—Breach of—Trustee mixing up trust funds relating to separate and distinct trusts — Whether guilty of breach of trust.

Trust—concld.

Where a trustee in respect of separate and distinct trusts mixes up the trusts funds he is guilty of breach of trust OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAEBURN Rang. 61 ——— Investment—Duty of trustee—Appointment of surveyor or valuer by trustee, if proper—Tests in such cases.

It is the duty of a trustee to confine himself to the class of investments which are permitted by the trust, and likewise to avoid all investments of that class which are attended with hazard. If a surveyor or valuer is appointed for the purpose of enabling a trustee to obtain a true valuation, the only question is whether in all the circumstances of the case the trustee has appointed a person whose advice he can with prudence take into account in arriving at his decision. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAEBURN Rang. 61

Trustee—Person accepting trust in relation to specific sum and agreeing to invest it in his firm and undertaking duties of trustee—Whether can plead that transaction was not trust—Insolvency of such person—Beneficiary and co-trustees if entitled to preferential charge over outstanding debts.

Per Wassoodew, J.—Where a person accepts a trust in relation to a specific sum of money and agrees to invest it in his firm and also undertakes the duties of a trustee in respect thereto and further agrees to conform to the terms of the instrument creating the trust, the defence that the transaction in relation to the amount is not a trust is not open to him. In those circumstances the beneficiary and the co-trustees will be entitled to a preferential charge over the outstanding debts in the event of his bankruptcy. It is not open to the trustee to claim that the character in which he holds the property is different from that of a trustee. KRISHNADAS GOVARDHANDAS MADIVALE v RATANBAI GOKULDAS LAXMANDAS Bom. 718

Trusts Act (II of 1882), ss. 13, 33—Suit challenging trust decreed—Mesne profits, awarding of, against trustees—Trustees, if can be ordered to pay costs of suit out of their own pockets.

Trustees are bound to carry out the provisions of the trust deed and are justified in continuing to do so even after the suit is brought, challenging the trust at least until the passing of the decree and hence mesne profits should not be ordered against them. They are bound by law to defend the suit which sought to put an end to the trust. It is therefore unreasonable that they should be made to pay the costs of the suit out of their own pockets. DAMODAR VISHNU v. SHRIRAM LAKSHMAN Bom. 413

——— s. 20 (e)—"Value of property" how calculated—Advance on security of immovable property—Trustee must consider value of security itself and should not be guided by character or solvency of borrower.

For the purposes of s. 20, Trusts Act, the value of the property does not mean what would be obtained at a forced sale of it, the risk of a forced sale, though an element to be taken into consideration in deciding whether the security is one upon which a trustee might wisely advance money, is something which does not and cannot affect the actual value of the property at the time of the advance.

A person making an advance upon his own account upon the security of immovable property may no doubt be influenced to do so partly by the value of the security itself and partly by his estimate of the solvency and character of borrower. But a trustee may not blend these considerations together. He must not allow the character or solvency of the borrower to weigh with him so as to make his advance, in effect, an advance not upon the security offered, but upon a consideration of other matters which seems to make it safe not to rely upon the security alone. OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. RAHBURN Rang. 61

Trusts Act—concld.

——— ss. 63, 66—Mixing of trust amount with other assets of trustee—Insolvency of trustee—Assets in hands of Official Assignee, whether can be followed for amount of trust.

Where a trustee mixes up trust amount with his other assets which on his insolvency vest in the Official Assignee the assets can be followed in the hands of the Official Assignee for the trust amount and the right to do so does not depend upon whether the trust property had been properly or improperly disposed of. KRISHNADAS GOVARDHANDAS MADIVALE v RATANBAI GOKULDAS LAXMANDAS Bom. 718 ——— ss. 88, 90—Ss. 88 and 90 how far exhaustive.

The terms of ss. 88 and 90, Trusts Act are not exhaustive only in the sense that if a person cannot be brought within these sections, and held liable as a trustee, he must be found to fall under the residuary section i. e., s. 94. In other words where no trust has been declared, a person would not be accountable as a trustee until obligations are found to have been created which are in the nature of a trust and under which he may be held to be, what is termed in English Law, as a constructive trustee. NALLANGAL v. ARASAPPAPPILLAIPATTI Mad. 314

——— ss. 88, 90, 94—Person applying for issue of pattah depositing amount for survey stones and trees and dying—His widow making fresh application and obtaining pattah—Land attached by husband's decree-holder—Ss. 88, 90 and 94, if apply.

A person applied to the Govt. for issuing a pattah and deposited certain amount for the value of survey stones and of the trees growing on the land but before the grant could be made he died. His widow made a fresh application for the same purpose and a pattah was issued to her. The husband's decree-holder attached this land on the ground that it was liable to be sold in execution of his decree:

Held, that the widow could not be said to have acquired the property for the benefit of her husband's estate. The widow could not be said to be a person holding any fiduciary character and of such a nature as to be bound to protect the interests of the creditor of her deceased husband and s. 88, Trusts Act did not apply. Nor did s. 90 apply as a Hindu widow could neither be described to be a tenant for life nor qualified owner in the sense in which these expressions have been used in that section. Morever the expression "persons interested" did not cover the creditors of the widow's deceased husband:

Held, further that since the widow could not be held to have owed any duty to the creditor of her husband or to be holding the property for his benefit, the provisions of s. 94 of the Act were not applicable. NALLANGAL v. ARASAPPAPPILLIPATTI Mad. 314

U. P. Agriculturists' Relief Act (XXVII of 1934), s. 23—Section does not bar revision against appellat order under the section.

Revision is maintainable against a decision of the District Judge setting aside a decree passed by an Assistant Collector under s. 12 of the U. P. Agri.

U. P. Agriculturists' Relief Act—concld.

Relief Act, though an appeal against the appellate order under s. 23 is barred under that section of the Act LALTA SINGH v. SRIDHAR SUKUL Oudh 214

——— s 33. SEE Court-fee 300

——— s. 33—Debtor whether must be agriculturist at date of loan and suit.

For the purpose of s. 33, U. P. Agri. Relief Act, an agriculturist debtor must be an agriculturist at the date of the loan as well as at the date when the suit is brought. KAZIM HUSAIN v MANGALA DEVI Oudh 59

U P. Encumbered Estates Act (XXV of 1934), ss. 9, 13—Rejection of written statement filed beyond time prescribed—Court-fee payable on appeal from such order is under Sch. II, Art. 11, Court Fees Act (VII of 1870).

The rejection of a written statement beyond the time prescribed by the Act cannot have the force of a decree of a Civil Court. It is only when an order is passed under s. 14, U. P Encum. Estates Act that the order becomes a decree. The creditor who is aggrieved by an order of the Special Judge rejecting his written statement filed beyond the prescribed time is entitled to appeal on payment of court-fee payable under Art. 11, Sch. II, Court Fees Act. GANGA KUER v SUKHJIT SINGH All. 867

——— s. 14. SEE Court Fees Act, 1870, Sch. I, Art. 1 354

——— s. 45—Revision against appellate order of District Judge passed before amendment of Act, filed subsequent to amendment, is incompetent—It cannot even be treated as second appeal.

Where an application for revision of an order of the District Judge passed in appeal on August 31, 1939, was filed on October 6, 1939 and the Encum. Estates Act as amended by Act XI of 1939, had come into force on September 30, 1939:

Held, that the revision was incompetence and it could not even be treated as a second appeal as under s 45, a second appeal could lie only in respect of appellate orders or decrees passed after the amending Act came into force and not to those passed before it. SHEO NATH v. TIRBENI SHANKAR Oudh 159

——— s. 45 (2). SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 115 464 F B

——— s. 46. SEE Civil Procedure Code, 1908, s. 115 464 F B

U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 36—Ex-proprietary rent—Liability to pay, when arises.

Tenant's liability to pay ex-proprietary rent arises from the date when ex-proprietary tenancy arises and from the date when mutation of names is effected. The new zemindar becomes liable to pay revenue from the date of his purchase and if it has been realized from the former zemindar the latter can recover it. DAYA SHANKAR v. BADRI PRASAD Oudh 150

——— s. 106 Agreement providing that on partition revenue shall be paid through taluqdar lambardar—Validity of condition.

The condition in the deed of agreement to the effect that on perfect partition the Govt. revenue shall be paid through the taluqdar lambardar, imposes a restraint upon partition and consequently cannot be enforced; at any rate it is not binding upon the successors to the contracting parties. MOHAMMAD RAZA v. AHMAD ABBAS Oudh 689 ——— ss. 109, 111, 112—Application for perfect partition—Rejection of, on ground that such partition was excluded by certain agreement—Order falls under s. 111 (1) (o) and is appealable.

An application was made for perfect partition of a taluqdari village. An objection having been raised the Deputy Commissioner heard the parties, considered the report of the Sub-Divisional Officer and came to the conclusion that the right to perfect partition was excluded by a certain agreement and that the previous decision of the Commissioner was res judicata and hence he rejected the application:

Held, that the objection raised the question of proprietary title and the Deputy Commissioner acted under cl. (c) of sub-s. (1) s. 111 of the Land Revenue Act and under the first portion of sub-s. (1) of s. 111. An appeal, therefore, was competent from his order rejecting the application. MOHAMMAD RAZA v. AHMAD ABBAS Oudh 689

U. P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1940, r. 2 (g). SEE Motor Vehicles Act, 1914, s. 112 50

——— r. 79 (VIII). SEE Motor Vehicles Act, 1914, s. 112 50

U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), s. 8 (1) (j). SEE U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, s. 189 121

——— s. 120. SEE U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, s. 189 121

——— ss. 166, 177—Liability of tax-payer to pay tax, if depends upon municipality presenting a bill to tax-payer—Liability, when arises.

The liability of the tax-payer to pay municipal tax is not made to depend upon the Board presenting a bill to the tax-payer. The liability arises the moment the tax-payer has been assessed and the money becomes due upon the date on which the Municipality have declared by their rules that the tax is payable. There is nothing in the U. P. Municipalities Act disentitling the Municipality from executing its charge because it has failed to present a bill for the tax to the tax-payer. BADRUNNISSA v. MUNICIPAL BOARD, AGRA EXECUTIVE OFFICER All. 822

——— s. 177.

SEE Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 100 290
SEE U. P. Municipalties Act, 1916, s. 166 822

——— ss. 189, 120, 8 (1) (j)—S. 189, if refers to out-fall of drain—Ss. 189, 120 and 8 (1) (j) whether empower Municipality to acquire land outside Municipal limits for drain or sewage works without owner's consent and without notice and compensation—Drain constructed by Municipality for draining sewage and rain water into plaintiff's jheel without his consent—Plaintiff's suit for injunction on ground that drain water would pollute jheel and damage plants and fish in it—Municipality must prove to the contrary—It cannot be allowed to adduce expert evidence that drain water would not pollute jheel, after close of evidence—Municipality held acted negligently and arbitrarily—Practice—Evidence.

Section 189, U. P. Municipalities Act does not refer to the out-fall of any drain which may be constructed by a Municipality. It does not empower a Municipality to take its sewage outside the Municipal boundaries and dispose of it where it likes upon private property regardless of the rights of the property owner. Sections 189 and 120 read with s. (8) i; (j) do not confer upon the Municipality the power to take land outside the Municipality for the purposes of a drain or a sewage works without notice to the owner or the occupier of that land and without his consent and without compensation.

A Municipal Board constructed a drain for running the sewage and rain water of the city into the plaintiff's jheel situated outside the Municipal limits. The plaintiff who derived an income from the jheel brought a suit for injunction against the Board. The Court found that the dirty water would pollute the jheel and prove deleterious to the plants and fish in the jheel:

Held, that even if the Board were within its rights in using the plaintiff's jheel for the disposal of the sewage of the city, it was acting arbitrarily and negligently in that it did not consult the plaintiff or offer him compensation and, secondly, it did not take ordinary and reasonable steps to purify the sewage before running it on to the plaintiff's property. Injunction could therefore be granted.

Held, further that it was for the Municipality to prove that the sullage was so mixed with pure rain water that what flowed into the jheel would not have any deleterious effect upon the plants and fish, but after the evidence was closed the Municipality could not be allowed to adduce expert evidence to show that the drain water would not pollute the jheel as the Municipality knew well what case it had to meet. MUNICIPAL BOARD, GORAKHPUR v. RAI KAMLAPATI RAI All. 121

U. P. Stay of Proceedings (Revenue Courts) Act (IV of 1937), s. 2—Stayed Arrears of Rent (Remissions) Act (XVIII of 1939), s. 3—Suit for arrears of rent—Appeal pending when Act IV of 1937 came into force—No stay order passed—S. 3 of Act XVIII of 1939 does not apply.

The words "which have been stayed" in s. 3 of U. P. Act XVIII of 1939, do not include those cases in which the proceedings were not stayed by any order of the Court though they ought to have been under s. 2 of U. P. Act IV of 1937. Hence where an appeal against a decision in a suit for arrears of rent was pending when Act IV of 1937, (U. P. Stay of Proceedings (Revenue Courts) Act) came into force but no stay order was passed, the provisions of s. 3 of Act XVIII of 1939, (Stayed Arrears of Rent (Remission) Act) do not apply to the suit and the suit cannot be dismissed. DAYA SHANKAR v. BADRI PRASAD Oudh 150

U. P. Stayed Arrears of Rent (Remission) Act (XVIII of 1939), s. 3. SEE U. P. Stay of Proceedings (Revenue Courts) Act, 1937, s. 2 150

Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation (III of 1889), s. 41. SEE Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation, 1889, s. 53 (2) (xii) 417

——— ss. 53 (2) (xii), 41—Default in payment of revenue by fishery lessee—Surety's land resumed without notice for payment of revenue and without attachment or sale—Surety's claim is not barred by s. 53 (2) (xii).

The words "connected with or arising out of the collection of revenue" in s. 53 (2) (xii) must be construed reasonably. Their meaning cannot be extended so as to include any consequence however indirect, or however unjustified by law of action taken to collect revenue. The words "collection of revenue" mean collection by payment in the ordinary course or recovery of arrears in the way allowed by s. 41, Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation. Consequently where on default by a fishery lessee in the payment of revenue his surety's land is resumed without serving any notice to pay the revenue and without attachment or sale of the land within the meaning of s. 41, the claim of the surety cannot be said to be connected with or arising out of collection of revenue. The claim is not therefore barred by s. 53 (2) (xii). MAUNG SHWE THIN v. MAUNG THA OK Rang. 417

Usurious Loans Act (X of 1918), as amended by C. P. Amendment Act (XI of 1934), s. 3—Suit instituted after amendment in respect of transactions prior to amendment—Amendment, if applies—Court, if bound to re-open such transactions if interest is excessive.

Usurious Loans Act—concld.

The provisions of the Usurious Loans Act as amended by the Central Provinces Amendment of 1934 will apply to a suit instituted long after the amendment came into force but in which transactions of dates prior to the amendment are called in question and sought to be re-opened on the only ground that interest is excessive within the meaning of the amendment. Consequently the Court is bound to re-open the transactions if it finds that interest alone is excessive as defined in the amendment. SHEOSHANKER SAHAI v. SURAJMAL Nag. 623

Waqf.

SEE Muhammadan Law 131, 323

Whipping Act (IV of 1909), ss. 3, 5—Offence punishable with imprisonment under Penal Code—Whipping in lieu of punishment for aforesaid offence—Age limit—Ss. 3 and 5, Whipping Act (IV of 1909), should be read together with provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, relating to whipping.

Section 3, Whipping Act, permits whipping in lieu of any punishment for which the offender is liable under the Criminal P. C. to imprisonment, irrespective of age. Hence for whipping for an offence of theft there is no age limit. Sections 3 and 5 should be read together along with s. 393, Criminal P. C. and other provisions contained in the aforesaid Code which relate to whipping. EMPEROR v. ACHAR HAMZO KUMBHAR Sind 341

Will—Attestation. SEE Succession Act, 1925, s. 63 463

——— Construction—Intention—Memorandum held neither will nor gift but contract.

In construing a document alleged to be a will the intention of the person executing it must be deduced from the language of the document itself. It is entirely wrong for a Court to interpret a document in a particular way because some one taking under the document chooses to put that interpretation upon it The intention of a party to a document must be deduced from the document itself by giving the words therein their ordinary natural meaning.

On the objection of the son to the father's application for revocation of the settlement of his properties under the Ben Settled Estates Act, the son and the father entered into a transaction on condition that the son should withdraw his objections. The transaction was embodied in a memorandum which was executed by both the parties. By its terms the son was to withdraw his objections if he was allotted roughly one-third of the property. The father agreed to this, provided, the son did not take possession of the property till after the father's death and provided, the son undertook to execute a suitable waqf of the remaining two-thirds when he got the property. The son accepted these terms and the settlement was accordingly revoked by their joint application After the father's death the son created a waqf of the properties in pursuance of the agreement appointing his son as mutwalli. It was contended that the document operated as a will:

Held, that the terms of the memorandum were irrevocable. The memorandum was not a will since it was executed both by father and son who took benefit under it and it took effect during the lifetime of the father, nor was it a gift. The memorandum evidenced a contract between the parties for which there was a consideration given by both parties. MUHAMMAD ALI v. DINES CHANDRA ROY CHOUDHURY Cal. 540

Will—concld.

Words and Phrases.

——— "Damosh Koha", meaning explained.

The word 'damosh' means a beel or inland pool of shallow water being a part of the deserted bed of a river. Hence the words "damosh kohi etc." cannot include the bed of a large flowing navigable river. MIDNAPUR ZAMINDARY CO. LTD v BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578 ——— "Taraf" or 'pergunnah', whether signify co-terminous villages or compact area of land.

The word taraf does not signify a collection of co-terminous villages, villages forming a compact block of land. The word means a sub-division of a pergunah including several villages. A pergunah which usually covers a very large tract and means a large local division of the Muhammadan times, which corresponds in idea, though not in extent, with a district of modern times, does not convey the idea of a compact area of land with no public and navigable river cutting through it. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO. LTD v BIJOY SINGH DUDHURIA Cal. 578 —— —— "Tax" and "Cess".

"Cess" means, specially in relation to India, "a tax" levied for a specific object. "Tax" in legal parlance also means nothing more than money which individuals are compelled to pay for public pusposes. It is impossible, therefore, to distinguish "tax" from "cess" or "duty." DAULAT RAM v. MUNICIPAL COMMITEE, LAHORE Lah. 72

Workmen's Compensation Act (VIII of 1923), s. 8 (8)—Mother, widow and minor son of deceased Muhammadan awarded compensation—Minor's share put in post office by the direction of the Commissioner—Mother and minor dying—Commissioner, if can order minor's share to be transferred to widow and open account in widow's name—Widow remarrying, effect of—Jurisdiction of Civil Court in the matter of distribution of minor's share.

The mother, widow and a minor son of deceased Muhammadan were awarded compensation as dependents. The minor's share of the compensation was deposited in the post office by the Commissioner. After the death of the mother and the minor the Commissioner ordered the minor's share to be allotted to the widow and directed the postal authorities to cancel the minor's account and open a fresh account in the name of the widow.

Held, that the order was perfectly valid, as the alteration of the widow's circumstances by the death of the other dependents amounted to a variation of circumstances within the meaning of s 8 (8), Workmen's Compensation Act. The fact that the widow had remarried was immaterial.

Held, also under s. 8 (8) of the Act the Commissioner for Workmen's Compensation was the proper authority to make a re-distribution of the money which had been allotted to the share of the deceased minor. Consequently, the Civil Court of the Munsif had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter at all. Hence as far as the Commissioner of Workmen's Compensation was concerned, the decree of the Civil Court (though a consent decree) in such v. suit was of no effect DEFENDANTS OF RAHIM BUX JAMES FINLAY & CO. LTD. Cal. 57

INDIAN CASES

1941 . JOURNAL Vol. 193

[Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the views expressed by the contributors.]

TESTAMENTARY GIFTS TO CLASSES

In complicated cases the practitioner will naturally resort to such works as Jarman, Hawkins or Theobald on Wills or S. J. Bailey's Law of Wills, but it may be useful to have some of the simpler rules for determining the constitution of classes set out here. These rules are often called "Rules" or collectively "The Rule of Convenience," as it is convenient for the personal representatives or the trustees to distribute the funds, and for the persons included in the class to receive their shares as soon as possible. It will be conceded, however, that persons who expected to be in the class, but are excluded cannot be expected to regard the excluding rule other than as one of great inconvenience. The rules naturally yield to any testamentary directions (express or implied) that they are not to apply, and the whole will should be looked at to see if the testator has excluded any of them.

It may not be easy to define a gift to a class. In Kingsbury v. Walter (84 L. T. Rep. 697; (1901) A. C. 187) Lord Davey said: "Prima facie a class gift is a gift to a class consisting of persons who are included and comprehended under some general description and bear a certain relation to the testator." In a subsequent part of his speech he stated: "Another principle which is, I think, established in this branch of the law, is, that all the interests of members of the class must vest in interests at the same time. For instance, if there is a gift to A. for life, and afterwards to B. and the children of C., the class must vest in interest at the death of the testator, although it is capable of enlargement by the birth of subsequent children of C. during the lifetime of the tenant for life." The importance of the difference between a gift to a class and one to individuals is that in the latter case, if the gift is to them as tenants-in-common and one of them dies in the testator's lifetime, his share lapses and falls into the residue, or if it is a share of residue is treated as undisposed of, while if one of a class predeceases the testator the share intended for him passes to the other members of the class. There is the well-known exception to the law as to lapse introduced by the Wills Act, 1837, s. 33, under which gifts to the testator's issue who die in his lifetime, but leave issue living at his death "shall not lapse" but shall take effect as if the legatee had died immediately after the testator. The persons interested in the estates of the child (or issue) who predeceased the testator naturally hoped that the benefit of s. 33 would be extended to a class gift. There are earlier decisions of Kindersley, V. C. and Wood, V. C., and in Re Sir E. Harvey's Estate (68 L. T. Rep. 562; (1893) 1 Ch. 567) Mr. Justice Chitty, as he then was, said: "A gift by will to a class is taken...to be a gift, where it is immediate to those only who survive the testator; and where it is not immediate, but postponed, to be a gift to those only who servive the testator, or come into being before the period of distribution...and, according to the decisions already cited, the 33rd section does not apply although the child leaves issue that survive the testator. The principle acted upon was that the section leaves the construction of these class gifts unaltered; and that these gifts are still to be read as gifts to those only who survive, and not as gifts to the possible members of the class who die in the testator's lifetime."

In Re Chartres (137 L. T. Rep. 52; (1927) 1 Ch. 466) Mr. Justice Astbury formulated the rule of convenience as follows: "First, if there is an immediate gift in a will to A's. children, the rule lays down that only those children in existence at the testator's death shall take, although his intention was obviously different. By way of exception to this first head, if there are no children of A. in existence at the testator's death, then the rule of convenience ceases to operate, and all subsequently born children take in accordance with the testator's intention. The second head of the rule may be stated as follows. If the gift is in future, as for instance, to A. for life with remainder to B's children, the rule provides that only those children of B. shall take who come into existence before A's death. Here again there is an exception that if there are no children of B. in esse before A's death, then the rule ceases to operate and all subsequently born children take. The third head may be stated as follows: where there is a gift to A. for life and after his death to B's children who attain 21, then if at A's death there are children of B. who have attained 21 or the representatives of such children, the rule applies and the class closes. If at A's death there are only infant children of B. who subsequently attain 21, then again the class closes when the first child so attains that age; and in all cases the rule is excluded if there is an express intention of the testator to [the contrary." It is strange that the rule should be recognised as not carrying out the testator's [intention, and yet prevail in a court which endeavours to find out from the will what that intention was. How unfairly the rule may work out can be seen by a simple illustration. A testator bequeathes a fund to his mother for life and after her death to the children of his young sister in equal shares. The mother dies soon after the testator when the young sister has only one child, whom we will call A. Obviously the testator intended all the children of the sister to take, but by the rule of convenience A. takes the whole of the fund.

Fortunately, any one who is alive to the danger can easily provide against it by making the bequest in favour of the children living at the testator's death or born afterwards (2 Key and Elphinstone, 13th edit., Vol. 2, p. 797). It is true that A. may in such a case have to wait before any capital can be paid over to him, but that is better than depriving B C. D. &c. of any interest in a fund intended for them all and making one rich at the expense of the others. Although the law of lapse does not apply to gifts to a class, it is probably desired that the children of a deceased member of this class should stand in the shoes of their parent. We recommend a form in Key and Elphinstone (sup.) p. 799, "In trust for all or any the children or child of the said living at the death of the survivor of the said and and the children or child then living of any then deceased child of the said who whether children or grandchildren being male attain the age of 21 years or being female attain that age or marry if more than one in equal shares as tenants-in-common, but so that the children of any deceased child of the said shall take equally between them as tenants-in-common, only the share which their parent would have taken had he or she survived the survivor of the said and and attained a vested interest." This form, it will be observed, makes B's grandchildren stand in the shoes of their parents as primary beneficiaries, and does not make the share which the deceased child would have taken part of the estate of the deceased child, as the 33rd section of the Wills Act, 1837, does. Words of distribution should be employed in respect of the children of a deceased child, otherwise they may be stranded with a joint tenancy (Re Yates, 64 L. T. Rep. 819; (1891) 3 Ch. 53). In the last mentioned case Mr. Justice North said: "The court has held, time after time, that when words of distribution occur only once, there being two classes to take, those words apply to the first class only (that is, here the sons and daughters); and not to the second class, in this case the issue who are to take the share which a deceased son or daughter would have taken if alive." Mr. Justice Simonds has, however, recently decided in Re Froy (158 L. T. Rep. 518; (1938) 1 Ch. 566), where the testator directed that the unappointed part of a fund "shall fall into, and form part of my residuary estate and be divided among my children then living or the issue of a deceased child, and on the death of such husband the residue shall be so divided and applied," that the words of double severance were in such a case unnecessary. In the opinion of the learned judge the gift opened with words of severance "which can properly be construed as applying equally to substitutional as original shares. Therefore, contrary to the opinion I first formed, I hold that the gift to the issue of Mr. Dunfee is a gift to those issue as tenants-in-common." It is safer to have the double severance expressed, as it might be held that Re Froy did not apply in a particular case.—L. T.

IMPERIAL ACTS.

ACT No. 1 of 1941.

THE INSURANCE DEPOSITS (TEMPORARY REDUCTION) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 3rd March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 8th March, 1941.

An Act to provide for the reduction temporarily of the amounts payable as instalments of the sum to be deposited by an insurer under section 7 of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Whereas, in consequence of conditions arising out of the present war, it is expedient to provide for the reduction temporarily of the amounts payable as instalments of the sum to be deposited by an insurer under section 7 of the Insurance Act, 1938;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and extent.

(1) This Act may be called the Insurance Deposits (Temporary Reduction) Act, 1941.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. Definition.

In this Act "insurer" means an insurer as defined in clause (9) of section 2 of the Insurance Act, 1938, except that it does not include a Mutual Insurance Company or a Co-operative Life Insurance Society to which Part IV of that Act applies.

3. Reduction of instalments of deposit.

(1) An insurer entitled to the benefits of this Act shall, subject to the provisions of section 5, be deemed in respect of any instalment of the deposit to be made by him under section 7 of the Insurance Act, 1938, which he was required to pay during the year commencing on the 1st day of January, 1940, or which he may be required to pay at any time after the end of that year and so long as this section continues to have effect, to have complied with the provisions of the said section 7 as to payment of instalments of deposits, if he has paid or pays in accordance with the provisions of that section not less than one half the total amount which would have been required by that section as the instalment, had the insurer not availed himself of the provisions of this Act.

(2) If an insurer entitled to the benefits of this Act, when paying an instalment of deposit, has, in respect of any instalment due during the year commencing on the 1st day of January, 1940, paid more than one half the total amount required by the said section 7 as the instalment, he may at his option have the amount of any such surplus payment appropriated to the payment of the next or any subsequent instalment of deposit required from him under the said section 7 read with sub-section (1) of this section.

(3) This section shall cease to have effect on the expiration of one year from such date as may be fixed, for the purposes of this Act, by the Central Government by notification in the official Gazette as the date of termination of the present hostilities.

4. Insurers entitled to the benefits of this Act.

An insurer shall be entitled to the benefits of this Act only if—

(a) he carries on life insurance business only, and

(b) the date on which he first assumed risk on any policy issued by him was earlier than the 3rd day of September, 1939, but not earlier than the 3rd day of September, 1929.

5. Cesser of title to the benefits of this Act.

(1) An insurer otherwise entitled to the benefits of this Act shall cease to be so entitled in any year if in the preceding year his total premium income, including annuity considerations, as shown in the revenue-account prepared under the Insurance Act, 1938, exceeded rupees thirty thousand.

(2) An insurer otherwise entitled to the benefits of this Act shall cease to be so entitled in respect of any future instalment—

(a) if after the 1st day of January, 1941, he declares any bonus or dividend at a rate higher than the rate at which such bonuses or dividends were last declared by him before the 3rd day of September, 1939, or

(b) if the proportion of his renewal premium income spent by him in payment of commission and other expenses including capital expenditure, determined in accordance with Rule 25 of the Insurance Rules, 1939, exceeds in any year the proportion as so determined for the accounting period ending on the 31st day of December, 1939.

6. Resumption of payment of instalments in accordance with Act IV of 1938.

(1) When section 3 ceases to have effect, or if before that date an insurer ceases under clause (a) or clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 5 to be entitled to the benefits of this Act, instalments of deposits shall be paid in accordance with the provisions of section 7 of the Insurance Act, 1938 (except that no insurer shall be required to pay as an instalment an amount exceeding the amount which would have been payable by him had he not availed himself of the provisions of this Act), until the last instalment required to be paid under the said section 7 has been paid, and the balance of the deposit then remaining unpaid in consequence of the reduced instalments authorised under this Act shall be paid by the insurer in such further instalments, of such amount and at such times, as the Central Government may direct.

(2) If while section 3 continues to have effect an insurer ceases in any year under sub-section (1) of section 5 to be entitled to the benefits of this Act, instalments of deposit in that year shall be paid by him in accordance with the provisions of section 7 of the Insurance Act, 1938, except that he shall not be required to pay as an instalment an amount exceeding the amount which would have been payable by him had he not availed himself of the provisions of this Act, and the provisions of sub-section (1) of this section shall apply to the payment by such insurer of any balance of the deposit due from him which remains unpaid after the last instalment required to be paid under the said section 7 has been paid.

7. Saving in respect of delayed payments of instalments of deposits.

For the purposes of the Insurance Act, 1938, an insurer entitled to the benefits of this Act who has failed to pay before the 1st day of January, 1941, an instalment of deposit due in the year 1940 shall not be liable to any consequences on that account in respect of a failure to comply with the provisions of section 7 of the said Act as to deposits if before the 15th day of February, 1941, he has paid as such instalment not less than one half the total amount required by the said section 7.

8. Removal of difficulties.

If any difficulty arises in determining the amount payable as an instalment of deposit by an insurer under this Act, the matter shall be decided by the Central Government whose decision shall be final.

ACT No. II of 1941.

THE INDIAN MERCHANDISE MARKS (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor-General on the 11th March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 15th March, 1941.

An Act further to amend the law relating to fraudulent marks on merchandise.

Whereas it is expedient further to amend the law relating to fraudulent marks on merchandise;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and commencement.

(1) This Act may be called the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1941.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. Amendment of section 2, Act IV of 1889.

In section 2 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889 (hereinafter, in sections 3 to 9 inclusive, referred to as the said Act),—

(a) for clause (1) the following clauses shall be substituted, namely :—

'(1) "mark" has the meaning assigned to that expression in clause (f) of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Trade Marks Act, 1940;

(1A) "trade mark" means a "registered trade mark" as defined in clause (j) of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Trade Marks Act, 1940, or a mark used in relation to goods for the purpose of indicating or so as to indicate a connection in the course of trade between the goods and some person having the right as proprietor to use the mark:';

(b) in sub-clause (c) of clause (2), for the words "numeral, word or mark" the word "mark" shall be substituted.

3. Amendment of section 4, Act IV of 1889.

In section 4 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "numerals, words or marks", in both places where they occur, the word "marks" shall be substituted;

(b) in sub-section (2), after clause (b) the following word and clause shall be added, namely:—

"and

(c) being the name or initials of a fictitious person or of a person not carrying on business in connection with goods of the same description."

4. Amendment of section 7, Act IV of 1889.

In section 7 of the said Act,—

(a) after the words "things to which a false trade description is applied" the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"or which, being required by notification under section 12-A to have applied to them an indication of the country or place in which they were made or produced, are without the indication required by such notification";

(b) in clause (a), after the words "trade description" the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"or that any offence against this section had been committed in respect of the goods".

5. Insertion of new section 7-A in Act IV of 1889.

After section 7 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

"7-A. Penalty for tampering with, altering or effacing a mark applied in pursuance of section 12-A.

If a person tempers with, alters or effaces a mark which has been applied to any goods to which it is required to be applied by notification made under section 12-A, he shall, unless he proves that he acted without intent to defraud, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in the case of a second or subsequent conviction, with imprisonment which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both."

6. Amendment of section 9, Act IV of 1889.

In sub-section (1) of section 9 of the said Act, after the words "any goods or things to which a false trade description is applied" the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"or which, being required by notification under section 12-A to have applied to them an indication of the country or place in which they were made or produced, are without the indication required by such notification."

7. Substitution of new section and heading for section 12 and heading in Act IV of 1889.

For section 12 of the said Act and the heading preceding that section the following section and heading shall be substituted, namely :—

"Stamping of Piece-goods, Cotton Yarn and Thread.

12. Stamping of piece-goods, cotton yarn and thread.

(1) Piece-goods, such as are ordinarily sold by length or by the piece, which have been manufactured, bleached, dyed, printed or finished in premises which are a factory, as defined in the Factories Act, 1934, shall not be removed for sale from the last of such premises in which they underwent any of the said processes without having conspicuously stamped in English numerals on each piece the length thereof in standard yards, or in standard yards, and a fraction of such a yard, according to the real length of the piece, and, except when the goods are sold from the factory for export from British India, without being conspicuously marked on each piece with the name of the manufacturer, or of the occupier of the premises in which the piece was finally processed or of the wholesale purchaser in India of the piece.

(2) Cotton yarn such as is ordinarily sold in bundles, and cotton sewing or darning thread, which have been manufactured, bleached, dyed or finisded in premises which are a factory, as defined in the Factories Act, 1934, shall not be removed for sale from those premises unless, in accordance with any rules made under section 20 of this Act, in the case of yarn the bundles are conspicuously marked with an indication of the weight of yarn in each bundle and the count of the yarn contained in the bundle and in the case of thread each unit is conspicuously marked with the weight of thread in the unit and the grist number and, except where the goods are sold from the factory for export from British India, unless each bundle or unit is conspicuously marked with the name of the manufacturer or of the wholesale purchaser in India of the goods.

(3) If any person removes or attempts to remove or causes or attempts to cause to be removed for sale from such premises or sells or exposes or has in possession for sale any such piece-goods or any cotton yarn or any cotton sewing or darning thread which is not marked as required by sub-section (1) and sub-section (2), every such piece and every such bundle of yarn and all such thread, and everything used for the packing thereof, shall be forfeited to His Majesty and such person shall be punished with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees."

8. Insertion of new heading and section 12-A in Act IV of 1889.

After section 12 of the said Act the following heading and section shall be inserted, namely :—

"Power to require goods to show indication of origin.

12-A. Power to require goods to show indication of origin.

(1) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, require that goods of any class specified in the notification which are made or produced beyond the limits of British India and imported into British India, or which are made or produced within the limits of British India, shall, from such date as may be appointed by the notification not being less than three months from its issue, have applied to them an indication of the country or place in which they were made or produced.

(2) The notification may specify the manner in which such indication shall be applied, that is to say whether to the goods themselves or in any other manner, and the times or occasions on which the presence of the indication shall be necessary, that is to say whether on importation only, or also at the time of sale, whether by wholesale or retail or both.

(3) No notification under this section shall be issued, unless application is made for its issue by persons or associations substantially representing the interests of dealers in or manufacturers, producers, or users of the goods concerned, or unless the Central Government is otherwise convinced that it is necessary in the public interest to issue the notification, nor without such inquiry as the Central Government may consider necessary.

(4) The provisions of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, shall apply to the issue of a notification under this section as they apply to the making of a rule or bye-law the making of which is subject to the condition of previous publication.

(5) A notification under this section shall not apply to goods made or produced beyond the limits of British India and imported into British India if in respect of those goods the Chief Customs Officer is satisfied at the time of importation that they are intended for exportation whether after transhipment in or transit through British India or otherwise."

9. Amendment of section 20, Act IV of 1889.

In section 20 of the said Act, after sub-section (1) the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely :—

"(1-A) The Central Government may make rules providing for the manner in which for the purposes of section 12 cotton yarn and cotton sewing or darning thread shall be marked with the particulars required by that section."

10. Amendment of section 18, Act VIII of 1878.

In section 18 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878,—

(a) in clause (e),—

(i) for the words "the United Kingdom, British India and British Burma", in both places where they occur, and for the words "the United Kingdom or in British India or in British Burma" the words "British India" shall be substituted ;

(ii) in sub-clause (ii), for the words "in the same language and character as the name or trade mark" the words "in the English language" shall be substituted ;

(b) in clause (f),—

(i) sub-clauses (ii) and (iii) shall be re-numbered as sub-clauses (iii) and (iv), respectively, and the following shall be inserted as sub-clause (ii), namely :—

"(ii) have not been conspicuously marked on each piece with the name of the manufacturer, exporter or wholesale purchaser in India of the piece, and", and

(ii) In sub-clause (iv) as so re-numbered, for the words and figures "Indian Factories Act, 1881" the words and figures "Factories Act, 1934" shall be substituted ;

(c) after clause (g) the following clauses shall be added, namely :—

"(h) goods which are required by a notification under section 12-A of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, to have applied to them an indication of the country or place in which they were made or produced, unless such goods show such indication applied in the manner specified in the notification :

(i) cotton yarn such as is ordinarily imported in bundles, if—

(i) the bundle containing such yarn has not been conspicuously marked with the name of the manufacturer, exporter or wholesale purchaser in India of the goods, or

(ii) such bundle has not been conspicuously marked with an indication of the weight and the count of the yarn contained in it, in accordance with the rules made under section 20 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, and

(iii) the yarn has been manufactured beyond the limits of India, or

(iv) having been manufactured within those limits, has been manufactured beyond the limits of British India in premises which, if they were in British India, would be a factory as defined in the Factories Act, 1934 ;

(j) cotton sewing or darning thread, if—

(i) the units in which the thread is supplied have not been conspicuously marked with the name of the manufacturer, exporter or wholesale purchaser in India of the goods, or

(ii) if each unit has not been conspicuously marked with an indication of the weight of thread contained in it and the grist number in accordance with the rules made under section 20 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, and

(iii) the thread has been manufactured beyond the limits of India, or

(iv) having been manufactured within those limits, has been manufactured beyond the limits of British India in premises which, if they were in British India, would be a factory as defined in the Factories Act, 1934."

11. Amendment of section 19-A, Act VIII of 1878.

In sub-section (3) of section 19-A of the Sea Customs Act, 1878,—

(a) for the words "British India", in both places where they occur, the word "India" shall be substituted ;

(b) for the words "and in the same language and character" the words "in the English language" shall be substituted.

12. Substitution of new section for section 478, Act XLV of 1860.

For section 478 of the Indian Penal Code the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"478. Trade mark.

For the purposes of this Code, the expression "trade mark" includes a trade mark registered under the Trade Marks Act, 1940, and any mark used in relation to goods for the purpose of indicating or so as to indicate a connection in the course of trade between the goods and some person having the right to use the mark."

13. Amendment of section 480, Act XLV of 1860.

In section 480 of the Indian Penal Code, for the words "are the manufacture or merchandise of a person whose manufacture or merchandise they are not" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"have a connection in the course of trade with a person with whom they have not any such connection".

Extracts from Contemporaries.

Law and Lawyers in Literature.

Readers of Sir Walter Scott's great novel, "Guy Mannering"—one of the best of the series — may recall that when Colonel Mannering went to consult Counsellor Playdell in Edinburgh he was shown into a room hung with a portrait or two by Jamieson, the Caledonian Vandyke, and surrounded with books, the best editions of the best authors, and in particular an admirable collection of the classics, as to which their fortunate owner said: "These are my tools of trade. A lawyer without history or literature is a mechanic; a mere working mason; if he possesses some knowledge of these, he may venture to call himself an architect." Happily, law and literature have time and again been felicitously linked together, and even law treatises, usually reputed by the public as the acme of aridity, have been rendered literature in the real sense by the lucidity and even charm of their language, as witness the writings of such distinguished lawyers as Sir Henry Maine, F. W. Maitland, and others.

In Quotation Books.

That the law and lawyers have a very conspicuous place in the various books of quotation may be seen by a glance through the index of such a work as Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," on the title page of which is the happy but modest avowal, "I have gathered a posie of other men's flowers, and nothing but the thread that binds them is my own." It is an admirable collection with which to spend an occasional hour, and in which the lawyer will find a host of references to his calling, sometimes jocularly critical, but in the main recognising the important role which the man of law enacts in this work-a-day world. We are there reminded that it is in Cibber's "Woman's Wit" that the familiar phrase "Possession is eleven points in the law" appears. In graver mood we find Chatham's great declaration that "where law ends, tyranny begins." "The law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public," came from Dr. Johnson, when in a benign mood. On the other hand, we have the jibe from Shakespears at "the law's delay"—a criticism levelled against it by each generation. Selden warns us that "ignorance of the law excuses no man; not that all men know the law, but because 'tis an excuse every man will plead, and no man, can tell how to refute him." Coke assures us that "reason is the life of the law; nay, the common law itself is nothing else but reason.... The law, which is the perfection of reason"—a pronouncement which has not invariably been placidly accepted by the defeated litigant. In the old days, it is said that a disappointed suitor as he emerged from a Court of law might be heard to mutter. "If this is law, give me equity," while if he came defeated from a Chancery Court he might be heard moaning. "If this is equity, give me law."

Jocular References.

In "Love a la Mode," Charles Macklin gaily announced that "the law is a sort of hocus-pocus science, that smiles in your face while it picks your pocket; and the glorious uncertainty of it is of more use to the professors than the justice of it." In another and more recent collection of quotations, that by Sir Gurney Benham, is a short section headed "Forensic," which starts off with the cheerful statement that "the law of England is the greatest grievance of the nation, very expensive and dilatory," Bishop Burnet being the author. Thus, law is represented by his dictum that "corporations have neither bodies to be punished nor souls to be damned; they therefore do as they like." Lord Westbury, the author of many caustic sayings, is represented by his description of a witness from the College of Arms as "a silly old man who did not understand even his silly old trade." The authorship of this, however, has also been fathered on Lord Chesterfield and Whately. More practicial was Westbury's injunction to his coachman when the horses got out of hand, "drive into something cheap."—L. T.

Wit & Humour.

Ultimate Proof.—"It is embarrassing sometimes to pursue a direct line of questioning," said a lawyer in telling about a recent visit to New York. He had just dined at a hotel in Fifth Avenue, where the girl who takes care of the hats at the dining-room door is celebrated for her memory about the ownership of headgear.

"How do you know this is my hat?" the collegian asked as his silk tile was presented to him.

"I don't know it," said the hat girl.

"Then why do you give it, to me?" insisted President Eliot.

"Because you gave it to me," replied the young lady.—Case and Comment.

INDIAN CASES

1941 JOURNAL Vol. 193

[Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the views expressed by the contributors.]

EVIDENCE IN REBUTTAL

In courts of summary jurisdiction, it is rarely that the prosecution offers or is allowed to give evidence to rebut the case for the defence. Yet s. 14 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848, evidently contemplates that such evidence may be given. That section, after prescribing the procedure for hearing the prosecutor or complainant and such witnesses as he may call, as well as the defendant and any witnesses he may call, goes on to direct the justices "also to hear such witnesses as the prosecutor or complainant may examine in reply, if such defendant shall have examined any witnesses or given any evidence other than as to his the defendant's general character."

This does not confer a general right upon prosecutors or complainants to call further evidence after the defendant has closed his case, but it recognises the right of the prosecutor or complainant in summary proceedings to call evidence to rebut the evidence for the defence, subject to certain restrictions.

As our answer to a practical point at p. 407, ante, indicated, the cases limiting the right to call rebutting evidence apply to courts of summary jurisdiction. The principles are the same whether the trial be on indictment or in a court of summary jurisdiction, but it may be that their application should in practice be to some extent different, in the two kinds of trial. It is, therefore, worthwhile to examine the principles that have been laid down in the various cases, and to see how they ought to be applied to summary proceedings.

The prosecution is never allowed to call further evidence for the purpose of strengthening its case where that case has been weakened by the defence, unless the new evidence be in reply to some fresh issue raised by the defence, which the prosecution could not have dealt with when giving its evidence. That is to say, evidence in reply must not be merely confirmatory of evidence already given.

There are many cases quoted in the text books illustrating the foundation principle that rebutting evidence is admissible only in respect of matters arising ex improviso. Some of these decisions were upon civil actions, others upon criminal trials. It will suffice to quote a few of the authorities dealing with criminal cases.

R. v. Stimpson (1826), 2 C. & P. 415, was a trial at assizes for larceny. The case is thus summarized "On an indictment for a larceny, if the prosecutor rests his case on the prisoner's recent possession of the goods, then the prisoner calls a witness to prove that he (the prisoner) bought them of J. T., if the prosecutor call J. T., he can only ask him as to such matters as go to negative the prisoner's case, and cannot prove by him that he saw the prisoner commit the theft."

The reason for the decision, no doubt, was that it was always open to the prosecutor to call the witness to prove he saw the prisoner commit the offence, but that it was not known to the prosecutor that the defendant would state in his defence that he bought the goods from that witness. Upon the defence raising that issue, the prosecutor, taken by surprise, might call a witness to deny the prisoner's statement.

In R. v. Shrimpton (1851), 2 Den. C. C., p. 319; 169 Eng. Rep. 521, it was decided that where the prisoner, by his counsel, seeks to establish the prisoner's good character through cross-examination of a witness for the prosecution, the prosecution, may give evidence of bad character in rebuttal. After referring to "the scandalous attempts we have all seen made by persons repeatedly convicted, to establish a good character for honesty before the jury, either by calling witnesses, or by cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution," Lord Campbell, C. J., stated that the prisoner had given evidence of his own good character when his counsel elicited such evidence by cross-examination, and Alderson, B., pointed out that the relevant statute spoke of "giving evidence" and not of "calling witnesses." It is clear from this and other authorities that in general the prosecution may give evidence to rebut the testimony of the defendant's good character, whether such evidence comes from cross-examination of witnesses for the prosecution or from witnesses called for the defence.

The defence of alibi frequently opens the way for evidence by the prosecution in rebuittal. R. v. Froggatt (1910), 4 Crim. App. Rep. 115, is a good illustration. The headnote begins "When the defence sets up an alibi, it may be contradicted (even as to an immaterial date) by rebutting evidence." In delivering the judgment of the court, Bucknill, J., pointed out that the evidence given by the prosecution by way of rebutting the evidence for the defence as to the prisoner's whereabouts, though admissible at that stage, might not have been admissible if it had been tendered as evidence in chief. During the course of the argument, Phillimore, J., observed "In some cases it would be impossible for the prosecution to deal with the alibi except by way of rebutting evidence, because the prosecution does not know that at the trial the prisoner may not set up some defence other than, and inconsistent with, an alibi, even though before the justices he set up an alibi." He recalled a case he tried on circuit where the defence to a charge of rape was an alibi before the justices, but consent before the court of trial.

The most recent case is R. v. Day (1940), 104 J. P., 181. The headnote to that case runs as follows: "After the close of the case for the defence of a prisoner charged with forgery and with obtaining money by a forged cheque, the trial was adjourned. On the adjourned hearing, the judge allowed the prosecution to call a handwriting expert, who pointed out similarities between the signature on the cheque and certain specimens of the prisoner's admitted handwriting, which the prosecution had had in their possession before the beginning of the proceedings. The case for the prosecution had hitherto rested on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice.

Held, that the additional evidence should not have been admitted at that stage of the trial, as it did not relate to anything which had arisen ex improviso in the course of the proceedings, but the necessity for that kind of evidence should have been obvious from the beginning. As it was impossible to say that the verdict must have been the same if the evidence had not been admitted, the conviction must be quashed."

Hilbery, J., delivering the judgment, observed that a question might arise in the course of a trial, as to the proper time at which evidence ought to be received, and that the judge then had to exercise a judicial discretion; but that in this case it was an attempt to remedy, an obvious defect in the evidence for the prosecution. This was supplementary evidence, and it had been in the hands of the prosecution from the beginning.

It is clear from many authorities that evidence to rebut the defence is admissible only in respect of matters arising ex improviso, which could not by ordinary human ingenuity be foreseen and this applies not only to witnesses called by the prosecution, but even to witnesses called by the court. It has been said that the prosecution must stand or fall by the case it presents, and cannot supplement its evidence after the defence has been closed. The only exception is in respect of matters arising ex improviso. As was pointed out in one case, if the rule were otherwise, enquiries might go on interminably, first one side, and then the other, calling further evidence to contradict what had just been given in evidence. In courts of summary jurisdiction, it is likely that there will be more matters arising ex improviso than in trials on indictment. Before a trial on indictment proceedings before examining justices have taken place, and there are depositions upon which any evidence for the defence has been recorded, and if the defence has not called evidence there may have been cross-examination of witnesses for the prosecution sufficient to indicate the lines upon which the defence will be conducted at the trial. The prosecution should normally be in a position to call all the necessary evidence at the trial, save in such cases as a defence of alibi or the giving of evidence of good character which has not been anticipated. In summary proceedings the prosecutor is quite likely to be completely in the dark as to the nature of the defence that will be set up, and not infrequently it is true to say that the prosecution could not by ordinary ingenuity have anticipated the evidence for the defence. In such cases it is reasonable and proper to allow the prosecution to give evidence in rebuttal of the defence, and this is covered by the words of s. 14 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848:—J. P.

IMPERIAL ACTS

ACT No. III of 1941

THE PETROLEUM (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 17th March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 22nd March, 1941.

An Act further to amend the Petroleum Act, 1934.

Whereas, it is expedient further to amend the Petroleum Act, 1934, for the purpose hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Petroleum (Amendment) Act, 1941.

2. Amendment of section 23, Act XXX of 1934.

For clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 23 of the Petroleum Act, 1934, the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

"(c) being the holder of a licence issued under section 4 or a person for the time being placed by the holder of such licence in control or in charge of any place where petroleum is being imported or stored, or is under transport, contravenes any condition of such licence or suffers any condition of such licence to be contravened, or".

ACT No. IV of 1941.

THE BERAR LAWS ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 17th March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 22nd March 1941.

An Act to extend certain Acts to Berar.

Whereas, by orders made under the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, the provisions of certain Acts in force in British India have from time to time been applied to, and are now, by virtue of such application, in force in, Berar;

And whereas, it is expedient that those and certain other Acts should be extended to, and be, by virtue of such extension, in force in, Berar:

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and commencement.

(1) This Act may be called the Berar Laws Act, 1941.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. Extension of certain Acts to Berar.

(1) The Acts specified in the First Schedule and so much of any Act specified in the Second Schedule as relates to matters with respect to which the Central Legislature has power to make laws are hereby extended to, and shall be in force in, Berar; and in any enactment so extended any reference by whatever form of words to subjects of His Majesty shall be deemed to include a reference to Berari subjects of His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, and notwithstanding anything contained in clause (7) of s. 3 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, any reference to British India shall be construed as a reference to British India and Berar.

(2) The Acts specified in the Third Schedule shall be amended in the manner set forth in the second column of that Schedule.

3. Cesser of application of certain Acts to Berar.

The application, if any, to Berar, made by order under the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, of the Acts specified in the First Schedule, of so much of any Act specified in the Second Schedule as relates to matters with respect to which the Central Legislature has power to make laws, and of the Indian Cotton Cess Act, 1923, shall cease to have effect:

Provided that all appointments, delegations, notifications, orders, bye-laws, rules and regulations, which have been made or issued under, or in pursuance of, any provision of any of the said Acts as applied to Berar by order under the said Order in Council, and which are in force at the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have been made or issued under or in pursuance of the corresponding provision of that Act as now extended to, and in force in, Berar.

4. Removal of doubt.

For the removal of doubt it is hereby declared that the Acts specified in the Fourth Schedule have ceased to have effect and are repealed in Berar.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE

[See sections 2 (1) and 3.]

Acts Extended to Berar.

Year.	Number.	Short Title.
1850	XIX ...	The Apprentices Act, 1850.
1850	XXI ...	The Caste Disabilities Removal Act, 1850.
1855	XIII ...	The Indian Fatal Accidents Act, 1855.
1856	XI ..	The European Deserters Act, 1856.
1856	XV ...	The Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act, 1856.
1860	XLV ...	The Indian Penal Code.
1864	III ...	The Foreigners Act, 1864.
1865	III ...	The Carriers Act, 1865.
1866	XXI ...	The Native Converts' Marriage Dissolution Act, 1866.
1867	XXV ...	The Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867.
1869	IV ...	The Indian Divorce Act.
1872	I ...	The Indian Evidence Act, 1872.
1872	III ...	The Special Marriage Act, 1872.
1872	IX ...	The Indian Contract Act, 1872.
1872	XV ...	The Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872
1873	V ...	The Government Savings Banks Act, 1873.
1873	X ...	The Indian Oaths Act, 1873.
1874	IX ...	The European Vagrancy Act, 1874.
1875	IX ...	The Indian Majority Act, 1875.
1875	XVIII ...	The Indian Law Reports Act, 1875.
1876	IX ...	The Native Coinage Act, 1876.
1877	I ...	The Specific Relief Act, 1877.
1878	VIII ...	The Sea Customs Act, 1878.
1878	XI ...	The Indian Arms Act, 1878.
1879	XVIII ...	The Legal Practitioners Act, 1879.
1881	XXVI ...	The Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881.
1882	II ...	The Indian Trusts Act, 1882.
1882	XII ...	The Indian Salt Act, 1882.
1884	IV ...	The Indian Explosives Act, 1884.
1888	III ...	The Police Act, 1888.
1889	IV ...	The Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889.
1890	VIII ...	The Guardians and Wards Act, 1890.
1890	IX ...	The Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act, 1890.
1891	XVIII ...	The Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891.
1898	V ...	The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.
1901	II ...	The Indian Tolls (Army) Act, 1901.
1903	VII ...	The Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903.
1903	XV ...	The Indian Extradition Act, 1903.
1904	VII ...	The Ancient Monuments Preservation Act, 1904.
1905	IV ...	The Indian Railway Board Act, 1905.
1906	III ...	The Indian Coinage Act, 1906.
1908	V ...	The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.
1908	VI ...	The Explosive Substances Act, 1908.
1908	IX ...	The Indian Limitation Act, 1908.
1908	XIV ...	The Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908.
1908	XVI ...	The Indian Registration Act, 1908.
1909	IV ...	The Whipping Act, 1909.
1910	IX ...	The Indian Electricity Act, 1910.
1911	II ...	The Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.
1911	VIII ...	The Indian Army Act, 1911.
1912	IV ...	The Indian Lunacy Act, 1912.
1913	II ...	The Official Trustees Act, 1913.
1913	III ...	The Administrator-General's Act, 1913.
1914	III ...	The Indian Copyright Act, 1914.
1916	VII ..	The Indian Medical Degrees Act, 1916.
1917	II ...	The Motor Spirit (Duties) Act, 1917.
1917	XVIII ...	The Post Office Cash Certificates Act, 1917.
1918	XXII ...	The Bronze Coin (Legal Tender) Act, 1918.
1919	XII ...	The Poisons Act, 1919.
1920	V ...	The Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920.
1920	XIV ...	The Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, 1920.
1920	XV ...	The Indian Red Cross Society Act, 1920.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE—concld.

Year.	Number.	Short Title.
1920	XLVII ...	The Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920.
1920	XLVIII ...	The Indian Territorial Force Act, 1920.
1920	XLIX ...	The Auxiliary Force Act, 1920.
1921	XVIII ...	The Maintenance Orders Enforcement Act, 1921.
1922	XI ...	The Indian Income Tax Act, 1922.
1922	XII ...	The Indian Finance Act, 1922.
1922	...	The Indian State (Protection against Disaffection) Act, 1922.
1923	IV ...	The Indian Mines Act, 1923.
1923	V ...	The Indian Boilers Act, 1923.
1923	VIII ...	The Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923.
1923	XXIII ...	The Legal Practitioners (Women) Act, 1923.
1924	VI ...	The Criminal Tribes Act, 1924.
1925	XXXIX ...	The Indian Succession Act, 1925.
1926	XI ...	The Promissory Notes (Stamp) Act, 1926.
1926	XVI ...	The Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926.
1926	XXI ...	The Legal Practitioners (Fees) Act, 1926.
1926	XXXVIII ...	The Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926.
1929	VII ...	The Trade Disputes Act, 1929.
1929	XIX ...	The Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929.
1930	II ...	The Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930.
1930	III ...	The Indian Sale of Goods Act, 1930.
1930	XVII ...	The Silver (Excise Duty) Act, 1930.
1930	XIX ...	The Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1930.
1930	XXIV ...	The Indian Lac Cess Act, 1930.
1931	...	The Indian Finance Act, 1931.
1931	...	The Indian Finance (Supplementary and Extending) Act, 1931.
1931	XVI ...	The Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1931.
1931	XXIII ...	The Indian Press (Emergency Powers) Act, 1931.
1932	IX ...	The Indian Partnership Act, 1932.
1932	XI ...	The Public Suits Validation Act, 1932.
1932	XII ...	The Foreign Relations Act, 1932.
1932	XIII ...	The Sugar Industry (Protection) Act, 1932.
1932	XXIII ...	The Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1932.
1933	II ...	The Children (Pledging of Labour) Act, 1933.
1933	VII ...	The Indian Finance Act, 1933.
1933	XVII ...	The Indian Wireless Telegraphy Act, 1933.
1933	XXVII ...	The Indian Medical Council Act, 1933.
1934	II ...	The Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.
1934	VIII ...	The Khaddar (Name Protection) Act, 1934.
1934	IX ...	The Indian Finance Act, 1934.
1934	XI ...	The Indian States (Protection) Act, 1934.
1934	XIV ...	The Sugar (Excise Duty) Act, 1934.
1934	XVI ...	The Matches (Excise Duty) Act, 1934.
1934	XX ...	The Indian Carriage by Air Act, 1934.
1934	XXII ...	The Indian Aircrafts Act, 1934.
1934	XXIII ...	The Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Act, 1934.
1934	XXV ...	The Factories Act, 1934.
1934	XXXI ...	The Iron and Steel Duties Act, 1934.
1934	XXXII ...	The Indian Tariff Act, 1934.
1935	...	The Indian Finance Act, 1935.
1936	...	The Indian Finance Act, 1936.
1936	III ...	The Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act, 1936.
1936	IV ...	The Payment of Wages Act, 1936.
1936	XIV ...	The Geneva Convention Implementing Act, 1936.
1937	I ...	The Agricultural Produce (Grading and Marking) Act, 1937.
1937	VI ...	The Arbitration (Protocol and Convention) Act, 1937.
1937	...	The Indian Finance Act, 1937.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

[See sections 2 (1) and 3.]

Acts partially extended to Berar.

Year.	Number.	Short title.
1843	V ..	The Indian Slavery Act, 1843.
1850	XII ...	The Public Accountants' Default Act, 1850.
1850	XXXVII ...	The Public Servants (Inquiries) Act, 1850.
1855	XXIV ...	The Penal Servitude Act, 1855.
1870	VII .	The Court-fees Act, 1870.
1871	XXIII ...	The Pensions Act, 1871.
1881	XI ...	The Municipal Taxation Act, 1881.
1882	IV ...	The Transfer of Property Act, 1882.
1885	XIII ...	The Indian Telegraph Act, 1885.
1886	VI ...	The Births, Deaths and Marriages Registration Act, 1886.
1886	XI ...	The Indian Tramways Act, 1886.
1890	I ..	The Revenue Recovery Act, 1890.
1890	VI ...	The Charitable Endowments Act, 1890.
1890	IX ...	The Indian Railways Act, 1890.
1895	XV ...	The Crown Grants Act, 1895.
1897	III ...	The Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897.
1897	X ...	The General Clauses Act, 1897.
1897	XIV ...	The Indian Short Titles Act, 1897.
1898	VI ...	The Indian Post Office Act, 1898.
1899	II ...	The Indian Stamp Act, 1899.
1899	IV ...	The Government Buildings Act, 1899.
1913	VII ..	The Indian Companies Act, 1913.
1914	IX ...	The Local Authorities Loans Act, 1914.
1916	XV ...	The Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916.
1917	V ...	The Destruction of Records Act, 1917.
1918	II ...	The Cinematograph Act, 1918.
1920	X ...	The Indian Securities Act, 1920.
1920	XXXIX ...	The Indian Elections Offences and Inquiries Act, 1920.
1923	III ...	The Cotton Transport Act, 1923.
1923	XIX ...	The Indian Official Secrets Act, 1923.
1924	XIII ...	The Indian (Specified Instruments) Stamp Act, 1924.
1925	IV ..	The Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act, 1925.
1925	XII ...	The Cotton Ginning and Pressing Factories Act, 1925.
1925	XIX ...	The Provident Funds Act, 1925.
1927	XVI ...	The Indian Forest Act, 1927.
1928	XII ...	The Hindu Inheritance (Removal of Disabilities) Act, 1928.
1929	II ..	The Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act, 1929.
1930	XXX ...	The Hindu Gains of Learning Act, 1930.
1936	V ...	The Decrees and Orders Validating Act, 1936.

THE THIRD SCHEDULE.

[See section 2 (2).]

Acts Amended.

Name of Act.	Amendments.
The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908).	In section 7 and in rule 1 of Order L in the First Schedule —
	(a) after the figures "1887" the words and figures "or under the Berar Small Cause Courts Law, 1905" shall be inserted, and (b) for the words "under that Act" the words "under the said Act or Law" shall be substituted.
The Indian Limitation Act, 1908 (IX of 1908).	In Article 161 of the First Schedule, the word "Provincial", in both places where it occurs, shall be omitted, and after the words "Small Causes", where they occur for the first time, the brackets and words "(other than Presidency Small Cause Court)" shall be inserted.

THE FOURTH SCHEDULE.

(See section 4.)

Acts which have ceased to have effect and are repealed in Berar.

Year.	Number.	Short title.
1841	XIX ...	The Succession (Property Protection) Act, 1841.
1847	XX ...	The Indian Copyright Act, 1847.
1860	IX ...	The Employers and Workmen (Disputes) Act, 1860.
1865	X ...	The Indian Succession Act, 1865.
1865	XXI ...	The Parsi Intestate Succession Act, 1865.
1881	V ...	The Probate and Administration Act, 1881.
1881	VI ...	The District Delegates Act, 1881.
1889	VII ...	The Succession Certificate Act, 1889.
1911	XII ...	The Indian Factories Act, 1911.
1912	V ...	The Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912.
1912	VI ...	The Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912.
1914	VIII ...	The Indian Motor Vehicles Act, 1914.
1919	X ...	The Excess Profits Duty Act, 1919.
1923	X ...	The Indian Paper Currency Act, 1923.
1926	XIX ...	The Indian Finance Act, 1926.
1927	V ...	The Indian Finance Act, 1927.
1928	XX ...	The Indian Insurance Companies Act, 1928.
1929	X ...	The Indian Census Act, 1929.
1933	XIII ...	The Safeguarding of Industries Act, 1933.
1935	... ...	The Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1935.
1936	I ...	The Italian Loans and Credits Prohibition Act, 1936.

ACT No. V of 1941.

THE ASSAM RIFLES ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 17th March 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 2nd March 1941.

An Act to provide for the regulation of and the maintenance of discipline in the Assam Rifles.

Whereas it is expedient to provide for the regulation of and the maintenance of discipline in the Assam Rifles;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title, extent and application.

(1) This Act may be called the Assam Rifles Act, 1941.

(2) It extends to the whole of Assam and applies to all members of the Assam Rifles wherever they may be serving.

2. Definitions.

In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "active service" means service at outposts, or against hostile tribes or other persons in the field;

(2) "Commandant" or "Assistant Commandant" means a person appointed by the Central Government to be a Commandant or an Assistant Commandant of the Assam Rifles;

(3) "District Magistrate" includes a Deputy Commissioner, the Superintendent of the Lushai Hills, the Political Agent in Manipur and the Political Officer of the Sadiya and of the Balipara Frontier Tracts;

(4) "rifleman" means a person appointed as such under section 4 after he has signed the statement in the Schedule in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 4, and includes a rifleman appointed under the Assam Rifles Act, 1920, and a Military Police Officer appointed under the Eastern Bengal and Assam Military Police Act, 1912;

(5) "superior officer" means, in relation to any rifleman,—

(a) an officer of a higher class than, or of a higher grade in the same class as, himself, and

(b) any Assistant Commandant or Commandant;

(6) the expressions "reason to believe", "criminal force", "assault", "fraudulently" and "voluntarily causing hurt" have the meanings assigned to them respectively in the Indian Penal Code.

3. General Superintendence and control of the force.

General superintendence and control of the Assam Rifles shall be exercised by such person or authority as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf, and, in the exercise of such superintendence and control, the person or authority so appointed shall be governed by such rules and orders as the Central Government may make in this behalf.

4. Appointment and discharge.

(1) The appointment of all riflemen shall rest with the Commandant.

(2) Before any person is appointed to be a rifleman, the statement in the Schedule shall be read and if necessary explained to him in the presence of a Magistrate, Commandant or Assistant Commandant, and shall be signed by him in acknowledgment of its having been so read to him.

(3) A rifleman shall not be entitled to be discharged except in accordance with the terms of the statement which he has signed under this Act or under the Assam Rifles Act, 1920.

5. Classes and rank.

There may be all or any of the following classes of riflemen, who shall take rank in the order mentioned, namely :—

(i) Subadars-Major,
(ii) Subadars,
(iii) Jemadars,
(iv) Havildars-Major,
(v) Havildars,
(vi) Naiks,
(vii) Buglers and riflemen, and such grades in each class as the Central Government may from time to time direct.

6. Heinous offences.

A rifleman who—

(a) begins, excites, causes or joins in any mutiny or being present at any mutiny does not use his utmost endeavours to suppress it, or knowing or having reason to believe in the existence of any mutiny does not without delay give information thereof to his Commanding or other superior officer ; or

(b) uses, or attempts to use, criminal force to, or commits an assault on, his superior officer, knowing or having reason to believe him to be such, whether on or off duty ; or

(c) shamefully abandons or delivers up any garrison, fortress, post or guard, which is committed to his charge or which it is his duty to defend ; or

(d) in the presence of an enemy or of any person in arms against whom it is his duty to act, shamefully casts away his arms or his ammunition, or intentionally uses words or any other means to induce any other rifleman to abstain from acting against the enemy, or to discourage any other rifleman from acting against the enemy ; or

(e) directly or indirectly holds correspondence with, or communicates intelligence to, or assists or relieves any person in arms against the State, or omits to discover immediately to his Commanding or other superior officer any such correspondence or communications coming to his knowledge ; or

(f) directly or indirectly assists or relieves with money, victuals or ammunition, or knowingly harbours or protects, any enemy or person in arms against the State ; or who, while on active service,—

(g) disobeys the lawful command of his superior officer ; or

(h) deserts or attempts to desert the service ; or

(i) being a sentry, sleeps upon his post, or quits it without being regularly relieved or without leave ; or

(j) leaves his Commanding Officer, or his post or party, to go in search of plunder ; or

(k) quits his guard, picquet, party or patrol without being regularly relieved or without leave; or

(To be continued)

REVIEW.

The Arbitration Act, 1940.—By N. L. Gupta, Published by Law Publishing House, Allahabad.

Arbitrations have been in vogue in all countries and specially in commercial transactions, their utility cannot be minimized. But the law on the subject is rather confusing. This necessitated the enactment of the Act X of 1940. The learned author has attempted in his commentary on the Act, to place before the reader the plain meaning of the various sections of the Act. The spirit of the law has been explained with reference to the recent case-law. The English Law has been added in various appendices. The book shall be found very useful to the legal profession and also to the men in the commerce. Hon'ble Mr. Justice Braund, of the Allahabad High Court has written a lucid foreword to the book.

IMPERIAL ACTS

(Concluded from page 16)

(l) uses criminal force to, or commits an assault on, any person bringing provisions or other necessaries to camp or quarters, or forces a safeguard, or breaks into any house or any other place for plunder, or plunders, destroys or damages any property of any kind ; or shall be punished with transportation for life, or with imprisonment which may extend to fourteen years, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both such imprisonment and fine.

(m) intentionally causes or spreads a false alarm in action or in camp, garrison or quarters;

7. Other offences including acts prejudicial to good order and discipline.

A rifleman who—

(a) is in a state of intoxication when on or detailed for any duty, or on parade, or on the line of march ; or

(b) strikes, or forces or attempts to force, any sentry ; or

(c) being in command of a guard, picquet or patrol, refuses to receive any prisoner duly committed to his charge, or, whether in such command or not, releases any prisoner without proper authority or negligently suffers any prisoner to escape ; or

(d) being deputed to any guard, picquet or patrol, quits it without being regularly relieved or without leave ; or

(e) being in command of a guard, picquet or patrol, permits gambling or other behaviour prejudicial to good order and discipline ; or

(f) being under arrest or in confinement, leaves his arrest or confinement before he is set at liberty by proper authority ; or

(g) is grossly insubordinate or insolent to his superior officer in the execution of his office ; or

(h) refuses to superintend or assist in the making of any field work or other military work of any description ordered to be made either in quarters or in the field ; or

(i) strikes or otherwise ill-uses any rifleman subordinate to him in rank or position ; or

(j) being in command at any post or on the march and receiving a complaint that any one under his command has beaten or otherwise maltreated or oppressed any person, or has committed any riot or trespass, fails, on proof of the truth of the complaint, to have due reparation made as far as possible to the injured person and to report the case to the proper authority ; or

(k) designedly or through neglect injures or loses or fraudulently or without due authority disposes of his arms, clothes, tools, equipment, ammunition, accoutrements or other necessaries, or any such articles entrusted to him or belonging to any other person ; or

(l) malingers, feigns or produces disease or infirmity in himself, or intentionally delays his cure, or aggravates his disease or infirmity ; or

(m) with intent to render himself or any other person unfit for service, voluntarily causes hurt to himself or any other person ; or

(n) commits extortion, or without proper authority exacts from any person carriage, porterage, or provisions ; or

(o) designedly or through neglect kills, injures, makes away with, ill-treats or loses his horse, or any animal used in the public service ; or who, while not on active service,—

(p) disobeys the lawful command of his superior officer ; or

(q) plunders, destroys or damages any property of any kind ; or

(r) being a sentry, sleeps upon his post, or quits it without being regularly relieved or without leave ; or

(s) deserts or attempts to desert the service ; or

(t) neglects to obey any battalion or other orders, or commits any act or omission prejudicial to good order and discipline, such act or omisesion not constituting an offence under the Indian Penal Code or other Act in force in Assam, shall be punished with imprisoment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

8. Minor offences and punishments.

(1) A District Magistrate or a Commandant, or subject to the control of the Commandant, an Assistant Commandant, or subject to the control of the Commandant an officer not below the rank of a Jemadar commanding a separate detachment or an outpost or in temporary command at the headquarters of a Distrtct during the absence of the District Magistrate, Commandant and Assistant Commandant, may, without a formal trial, award to any rifleman below the rank of a Naik, who is subject to his authority, any of the following punishments for the commission of any petty offence against discipline, which is not otherwise provided for in this Act, or which is not of a sufficiently serious nature to call for prosecution before a Criminal Court, that is to say,—

(a) imprisonment in the Quarter Guard, or such other place as may be considered suitable, for a term which may extend to twenty-eight days when the order is passed by a District Magistrate or a Commandant or to seven days when it is passed by any other officer ;

(b) punishment drill, extra guard, fatigue or other duty, not exceeding twenty-eights day in duration, with or without confinment to lines ;

(c) forfeiture of pay and allowances for a period not exceeding twenty eight days.

(2) Any of the punishments specified in sub-section

(1) may be awarded separately or in combination with any one or more of the others, but no award or awards including imprisonment and confinement to lines shall exceed twenty-eight consecutive days.

9. Manner of imprisonment.

Any rifleman sentenced under this Act to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months shall, when he is also dismissed from the Assam Rifles, be imprisoned in a civil jail, but when he is not also dismissed from the Assam Rilfles he may, if the convicting Court or the District Magistrate so directs, be confined in the Quarter Gurad or such other place as the Court or Magistrate may consider suitable.

10. Privileges of Commandants and Assistant Commandants.

A Commandant or Assistant Commandant shall be entitled to all the privileges which a police officer has under sections 42 and 43 of the Police Act, 1861, section 125 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, and any other enactment for the time being in force.

11. Members of the Assam Rifles to be deemed part of His Majesty's Army for certain purposes.

For the purposes of sections 128, 130 and 131 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, a Commandant, Assistant Commandant, Subadar-Major, Subadar or Jemadar of the Assam Rifles shall be deemed to be an officer, a Havildar-Major, Havildar or Naik shall be deemed to be a non-commissioned officer and a bugler or rifleman shall be deemed to be a soldier of His Majesty's Army.

12. Power of Central Government to make rules.

The Central Government may, as regards the Assam Rifles, make such orders and rules consistent with this Act, as it thinks expedient, relative to the several matters respecting which the Inspector General of Police, with the approval of the Provinicial Government, may, as regards the Police Force, frame orders and rules under section 12 of the Police Act, 1861.

13. Cesser of Assam Act I of 1920 and of appoinment of riflemen as police officers.

The Assam Rifles Act, 1920, shall cease to apply to the Assam Rifles and to riflemen, and all riflemen shall, on the commencement of this Act, cease to be police officers under the Police Act, 1861.

THE SCHEDULE.

STATEMENT.

[See sections 2 (4) and 4 (2).]

1. After you have served for four years in the first instance in the Assam Rifles you have the option of extending the term of your service in the Assam Rifles indefinitely, so long as the Commandant is satisfied with your services, or of claiming your discharge at any time, making your application through the officer to whom you may be subordinate, to a Commandant of the Assam Rifles or to the Magistrate of the District in which you may be serving; and you will be granted your discharge after two months from the date of your application, unless you are on active service or unless your discharge would cause the vacancies in the Assam Rifles to exceed one-tenth of the sanctioned strength. In either of the above cases you must continue to serve in the Assam Rifles until the objection is waived by competent authority or removed.

2. On your enlistment, appointment or training as a musician (piper, drummer, or bandsman), bugler, signaller, writer, soldier-clerk, havildar-compounder or as an artificer (armourer, mochi, carpenter, stone-mason, or motor dirver) you must, in spite of the provisions of paragaph 1 above, serve in the Assam Rifles for eight years from the date of your enlistment or the completion of your training, as the case may be.

3. On your deputation for a specialist course at an Army Training Centre you must sign an undertaking, before leaving the battalion to proceed on the course, that you will not, in spite of the provisions of paragraph 1 above, apply for discharge during the four years following your attendance at the Army Training Course.

4. On your deputation to the Educational or Veterinary Course you must sign an undertaking, before leaving the battalion to proceed on the Course, that you will not, in spite of the provisions of paragraph 1 above, apply for discharge during the eight years following your attendance at the Course.

5. In the event of your re-enlistment after you have been discharged, you will have no claim to reckon for pension or any other purpose your service previous to your discharge.

Signature of rifleman in acknowledgment of the above having been read to him. .....
A. B.

Signed in my presence after I had ascertained that A. B. understood the purport of what he signed. .....
C. D.
Magistrate, Commandant or Assistant Commandant.

ACT No. VI of 1941

THE INDIAN RAILWAYS (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 17th March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 22nd March, 1941.

An Act further to amend the Indian Railways Act, 1890.

Whereas it is expedient further to amend the Indian Railways Act, 1890, for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Indian Railways (Amendment) Act, 1941.

2. Amendment of section 68, Act IX of 1890.

(1) Section 68 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and in the said section as so re-numbered after the word "enter" the words "or remain in" shall be inserted.

(2) To the said section as so re-numbered and amended the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

(2) A railway servant when granting the permission referred to in sub-section (1) shall ordinarily, if empowered in this behalf by the railway administration, grant to the passenger a certificate that the passenger has been permitted to travel in such carriage upon condition that he subsequently pays the fare payable for the distance to be travelled."

3. Amendment of section 112, Act IX of 1890.

(1) Section 112 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and in the sub-section as so re-numbered—

(a) in clause (a), for the words and figures "in contravention of section 68 any carriage on a railway" the words and figures "or remains in any carriage on a railway in contravention of section 68" shall be substituted; and (b) after the words "shall be punished" the words "with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or" shall be inserted.

(2) To the said section as so re-numbered and amended the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

"(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 65 of the Indian Penal Code, the Court convicting an offender under this section may direct that the offender in default of payment of any fine inflicted by the Court, shall suffer imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months".

4. Amendment of section 113, Act IX of 1890.

In section 113 of the said Act,—

(a) for sub-section (3) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(3) The excess charge referred to in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) shall be a sum equivalent to the amount otherwise payable under those sub-sections, or eight annas, whichever is greater :

Provided that where the passenger has immediately after incurring the charge and before being detected by a railway servant notified to the railway servant on duty with the train the fact of the charge having been incurred, the excess charge shall be one-sixth of the excess charge otherwise payable calculated to the nearest anna, or two annas, whichever is greater:

Provided further that if the passenger has with him a certificate granted under sub section (2) of secton 68, no excess charge shall be payable.";

(b) in sub-section (4), for the words beginning with "the sum payable by him shall" and ending with "be paid to the railway administration" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"any railway servant appointed by the railway administration in this behalf may apply to any Magistrate of the first or second class for the recovery of the sum payable as if it were a fine, and the Magistrate if satisfied that the sum is payable shall order it to be so recovered, and may order that the person liable for the payment shall in default of payment suffer imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one month. Any sum recovered under this sub-section shall, as it is recovered, be paid to the railway administration".

5. Insertion of new section 113-A in Act IX of 1890.

After section 113 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

"113A. Power to remove persons from railway carriage.

Any person who, without having obtained the permission of a railway servant, travels or attempts to travel in a carriage without having a proper pass or ticket with him, or in a carriage of a higher class than that for which he has obtained a pass or purchased a ticket, or in a carriage beyond the place authorised by his pass or ticket, or who being in a carriage fails or refuses to present for examination or to deliver up his pass or ticket immediately on requisition being made therefor under section 69, may be removed from the carriage by any railway servant authorised by the railway administration in this behalf or by any other person whom such railway servant may call to his aid, unless he then and there pays the fare and the excess charge which he is liable to pay under section 113 :

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude a person removed from a carriage of a higher class from continuing his journey in a carriage of a class for which he holds a pass or ticket :

Provided further that women and children, if unaccompanied by male passengers shall not be so removed except either at the station at which they first enter the train or at a junction or terminal station or station at the headquarters of a civil district and only between the hours of 6 A. M. and 6 P. M."

INDIAN CASES

1941 JOURNAL Vol. 193

[Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the views expressed by the contributors.]

TEMPORARY NUISANCE : WHETHER ACTIONABLE

In a recent case, which will be considered more fully at the conclusion of the present article, Mr. Justice Atkinson remarked that a temporary nuisance was not necessarily actionable. If a man was doing something which he had a right to do and caused a nuisance of a temporary kind, that was not actionable; but if he did something which was unreasonable and which he had not a right to do, he might be guilty of nuisance.

The temporary character of the acts complained of would appear to be bound up with their reasonableness, and this consideration involves the introduction of a wider problem which has not been treated by the authorities with complete consistency.

Thus, in Reinhardt v. Mentasti (42 Ch. 685) Mr. Justice Kekewich said: "Notwithstanding some passages in some judgments to the contrary, the application of the principle governing the jurisdiction of the Court in cases of nuisance does not depend on the question whether the defendant is using his own property reasonably or otherwise." The defendant who was as conducting the business of an eating house—reasonably, having regard to the activities involved—put up a stove which rendered the cellar of the adjoining house unfit for storing wine. In doing that which was for the convenience of his customers he was creating a nuisance and, the learned judge said, "it seems to me that once you establish that he was creating a nuisance the fact that he was doing what was reasonable from his point of view is no defence."

In Bull v. Ray, (30 L. T. Rep. 1; 8 Ch. App. 467) Lord Selborurne, L.C., made the following statement: "In making out a case of nuisance ... there are always two things to be considered, the right of the plaintiff and the right of the defendant. If the houses adjoining each other are so built that from the commencement of their existence it is manifest that each adjoining inhabitant was intended to enjoy his own property for the ordinary purposes for which it and all the different parts of it were constructed, then so long as the house is so used there is nothing that can be regarded in law as a nuisance which the other party has a right to prevent. But, on the other hand, if either party turns his house or any portion of it, to unusual purposes in such a manner as to produce a substantial injury to his neighbour, it appears to me that that is not according to principle or authority a reasonable use of his property; and his neighbour, showing substantial injury is entitled to protection."

The defendant in the case occupied a dwelling-house, the ground floor of which had, many years prior to the action, been converted into a stable. This stable was altered by the defendant in such a manner that the noise of the horses was an annoyance to the plaintiff who lived next door and prevented the plaintiff from using his premises as a private hotel. The court held that the fact that horses had previously been kept in the stable did not deprive the plaintiff of his right to have the nuisance abated. The Lord Chancellor did not regard it "as a reasonable or usual manner of using the front portion of a dwelling-house in such a street as [that in question], that it should be turned into a stable for horses." If it was so used, the proprietor was bound to take care that it was so used as not to be a substantial annoyance, detrimental to the comfort and value of the neighbouring property.

Bull v. Ray was cited by Mr. Justice Vaughan Williams in the course of his judgment in Harrison v. Vauxhall Water Company (64 L. T. Rep. 864; (1891) 2 Ch. 409)—a case which is also important from the viewpoint of our inquiry in providing an example of a temporary nuisance being held not actionable. The plaintiff had suffered substantial discomfort from the noise caused by lift pumps used by the defendants in sinking a shaft in land adjacent to his house. On the plaintiff launching an action, the defendants substituted centrifugal pumps which made less noise. They might have used pumps of the latter type from the beginning but for various reasons they were less convenient, particulary when the work was in its early stages. It was held that the annoyance, being temporary and for a lawful object, did not amount to an actionable nuisance.

The shaft had been sunk in exercise of the defendants' statutory power and the court held that this power included all things necessary for the execution of the work, but the excerpt from the judgment which is important for our purpose deals with the position apart from any justification on this ground. "It seems to me," Mr. Justice Vaughan Williams said, "that if the defendants had without statutory authority sunk this shaft and done this pumping for any lawful and ordinary purpose in the exercise of their powers as private owners of the land, they would not have been responsible for a nuisance. It frequently happens that the owners or occupiers of land cause, in the execution of lawful works in the ordinary use of the land, a considerable amount of temporary annoyance to their neighbours but they are not necessarily on that account to be held to be guilty of causing an unlawful nuisance. The business of life could not be carried on if that were so. For instance, a man who pulls down his house for the purpose of building a new one no doubt causes considerable inconvenience to his next-door neighbour during the process of demolition; but he is not responsible as for a nuisance if he uses all reasonable skill and care to avoid annoyance to his neighbour by the works of demolition. Nor is he liable to an action, even though the noise and dust and the consequent annoyance be such as would constitute a nuisance if the same, instead of being created for the purpose of the demolition of the house, had been created in sheer wantonness, or in the execution of works for a purpose involving a permanent continuance of the noise and dust. For the law, in judging what constitutes a nuisance, does take into consideration both the object and duration of that which is said to constitute the nuisance: Bull v. Ray."

The plaintiff in Sanders-Clark v. Grosvenor Mansions Company Limited and D'Allesandri (82 L. T. Rep. 758; (1900) 2 Ch. 373) was the lessee of a flat on the first floor of the first defendants' building. When her occupation began the adjoining flats were occupied exclusively for residential or professional purposes. Some six years later the second defendant took a lease of the floor immediately underneath the plaintiff's flat and there carried on a restaurant business. For this purpose he made a number of alterations, including the erection of a large cooking range (for which the flat was not property adapted) and the substitution of wire gaze for glass in one of the windows. The action was discontinued against the first defendants, but the plaintiff alleged that the second defendant conducted his business so as to be an intolerable nuisance to her by noise, heat and smell. The nuisance from heat had been removed since the commencement of the action, by alterations to the premise. The court held that nuisance from noise had not been proved, that the plaintiff had been unnecessarily exposed to nuisance from smell which constituted a substantial interference with her comfort, and that, while the nuisance from heat had been removed, the alterations constituted a nuisance in respect of which she was entitled to relief.

Mr. Justice Buckley observed that when the defendant entered upon the premises and altered the building he was exposing his neighbour to an amount of heat which the flue was not constructed to bear and which might have been dangerous. That was not a reasonable use of the building. "The question," his lordship continued, "is whether he is liable for that, and in my opinion he is. I am not saying that the alteration was not such as he might properly make for the purpose of carrying on a restaurant, but that by so doing he was exposing his neighbour to a burden which she ought not be called upon to bear." The learned Judge preferred to guide himself by Lord Selbourne's judgment in Bull v. Ray (sup.) then by the opinion expressed by Mr. Justice Kekewich in Reinhardt v. Mentasti (sup.). The court must consider whether the defendant was using his property reasonably or not. "If he is using it reasonably," Mr. Justice Buckley said, "there is nothing which at law can be considered a nuisance; but if he is not using it reasonably, if he is using it for purposes for which the building was not constructed, then the plaintiff is entitled to relief."

In a later case, Attorney-General v. Cole and Son (83 L. T. Rep. 725; (1901) 1 Ch. 205), Mr. Justice Kekewich said that his words had been misunderstood. Nothing could be further from his intention than to differ from Lord Selbourne. The decision in Reinhardt v. Mentasti had been founded on the judgment in Bamford v. Turnley (3 B. & S., 62), from which Mr. Justice Buckley seemed to think that he (Mr. Justice Kekewich) differed. The question was, could a man reasonably create a nuisance? "I think," Mr. Justice Kekewich said, 'the answer to be derived from the case of Bamford v. Turnley, from which, so far as I am aware, there has never been any departure at all, is that he cannot. If he commits a nuisance, then he cannot say that he is acting reasonably. The two things are self-contradictory." In the result an injunction was granted against a fat-melter whose business caused noxious gases, notwithstanding that it was carried on in a proper manner and precautions were taken to minimise the nuisance.

It is possible that the difference of view above considered is little more than one of terminology. Mr. Justice Kekewhich in Reinhardt's case speaks of the defendant doing something which is "reasonable from his point of view." In the other cases which have been considered, the test of reasonableness is not the defendant's convenience but the charcter of the property occupied. It would seem, moreover, that Mr. Justice Kekewich recognised the possibility of a temporary nuisance not being actionable. "If it is really a nuisance", he said in the case last cited, "then it seems to follow as a matter of course that it is a nuisance which ought to be restrained, assuming that it is not of a trifling or passing character."

Whether or not there is a difference of view, there can be little doubt that Lord Selbourne's presentation of the matter is to be preferred. The problem was recently considered by Mr. Justice Atkinson in Newman v. Real Estate Debenture Corporation (162 L. T. Rep. 183). One of the questions arising in the case was whether the carrying out of extensive alterations so as to adopt for trading purposes a number of floors of a building constituted a nuisance to one who occupied a flat in the building for residential purposes. The plaintiff was bound by covenant to use his premises for residential purposes only and, as his Lordship held, the defendants were bound by the same covenant. The learned judge answered the above question in the affirmative. "The point is," he saide, "that if a man is doing something which he has a right to do, and causes a nuisance of a temporary kind, it is not actionable, but, if he is doing something which is unreasonable and which he has not the right to do, he may then be guilty of a nuisance." The nuisance in the present case had not been caused by a lawful and proper execrise of the defendants' powers, but by an exercise which was in breach of their duty to the plaintiff. The nuisance could not therefore be excused on the ground that it was only of a temporary character.— L. T.

Extracts from Contemporaries.

Judicial Robes

There is on record somewhere a story handed down from a past generation that, on the announcement of the appointment of a new judge, an older member of the Bench, instead of offering his congratulations to the newly appointed colleague, remarked in somewhat gloomy tones, 'Your robes will cost you a deal of money." It was certainly true, but doubtless also the judicial newcomer viewed the expense entailed in providing himself with the necessary sartorial equipment with comparative indifference. But it certainly is the fact that the number and variety of the judicial gowns of many colours that fill the judge's wardrobe involve considerable expenditure; furthermore, the Bar wig has to be jettisoned and replaced by one without the many curls in its tail, and that again has, of course, to be paid for. So that the new judge begins his career with an expenditure that must make a fair inroad on his first year's salary.

The United States Supreme Court.

When the constitutional organisation of the Supreme Court of the United States had been settled, the question of a court dress cropped up. Should the judges wear gowns and wigs as did their English confreres? This momentous question gave rise to a somewhat heated debate,

Jefferson was stoutly against any needless apparel, but if the gown was to be adopted, he said, "For Heaven's sake discard the monstrous wig which makes the English judges look like rats peeping under bunches of oakum." On the other hand, Hamilton was in favour of the adoption of the English wig and the English gown, while Aaron Burr was in favour of the English gown but strongly opposed what he called the "inverted woolsack termed a wig." Eventually it was decided that the gown should be taken and the wig discarded, and as one writer on the subject said, "all who see the court in session will agree that the flowing black silk gowns worn by the Justices help to preserve in the court room that decorum and sense of solemnity which should always characterise the place of judgment." In Scotland judges are, like the rest of their countrymen, a frugal race, and a member of the Bar, when promoted to the Bench, does not, or, at all events, did not have to provide himself with a new wig of the pattern adopted by the judges in England but contented himself with the wig which he wore at the Bar. Lord Young is said to have taken to the English pattern of the judicial wig, but the circumstance was observed upon at the time and not very favourably.

Jettison of a Judicial Wig

Like other mundane things, even judicial wigs have on occasion suffered mishap. One of the most noted of these occurred in the judicial career of Lord Ellenborough. On that occasion the Chief Justice was being accompanied by Lady Ellenborough in the tour of the circuit. Like quite ordinary persons, the Chief Justice had a profound and not unreasonable antipathy to his carriage being encumbered—so he put it—with unnecessary band—and other boxes containing the numerous hats and other paraphernalia of a lady's wardrobe. On this occasion his Lordship's foot, after a while en route, came in contact with one of the obnoxious receptacles, whereupon, uttering some ejaculations of an objurgatory character, he jettisoned the box, at the same time commanding the coachman to drive on. On reaching the circuit town the Chief proceeded to array himself for the Bench and demanded his wig, a request which was meekly answered by the attendant with the statement that "It was thrown out of the carriage window!" What is the moral? Surely this, that even Chief Justices sometimes act hastily, quite like ordinary mortals, and have to repent at leisure.

Dispensing With Forensic Costume

There have been occasions, a few indeed in number, when the full forensic costume has been temporarily dispensed with on account of the oppressive heat of an unusually hot summer. One such occurred in 1868, when the "Times" had a paragraph stating that during two days in one court the judge and members of the Bar dispensed with their wigs. Sir Robert Collier, who was engaged in the case, called attention to the innovation and apologised for not appearing in full forensic dress. The judge stated that he had set the example of leaving off his wig in consequence of the almost unprecedented heat, there being, he thought limits to human endurance. Sir Robert went on to express the hope that the precedent might be followed, a hope in which not a few others heartily concurred. That was a long time ago, but the wig still flourishes like a green bay tree, giving no sign of superannuation or being consigned to the law's lumber room.—L. T.

Wit & Humour.

The Inquisition.—"If I go on trial," said the prisoner, "do I have to sit here and hear all the hypothetical questions asked by the lawyers?"

"Certainly," said the judge.

"And hear all the handwriting experts?"

"Of course."

"And follow the reasoning of the chemistry and insanity experts?"

"Very probably," said the judge.

"Well, then, Judge, I will enter my plea."

"What is it?" asked the judge.

"Guilty!"—Case and Comment.

IMPERIAL ACTS

ACT No. VII of 1941.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 31st March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 5th April, 1941.

An Act to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, certain parts of British India, to vary the rate of the excise duty on matches leviable under the Matches (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, to vary the rate of the excise duty on mechanical lighters leviable under the Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, to vary the rate of the duty on artificial silk yarn and thread leviable under the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax and to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax and fix the rate at which excess profits tax shall be charged.

Whereas it is expedient to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, certain parts of British India, to vary the rate of the excise duty on matches leviable under the Matches (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, to vary the rate of the excise duty on mechanical lighters leviable under the Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, to vary the rate of the duty on artificial silk yarn and thread leviable under the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax and to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax and fix the rate at which excess profits tax shall be charged ;

It is hereby enacted as follows ;—

1. Short title and extent.

(1) This Act may be called the Indian Finance Act, 1941.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. Fixation of Salt Duty.

The provisions of section 7 of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, shall, in so far as they enable the Central Government to impose by rule made under that section a duty on salt manufactured in, or imported into, any part of British India, be construed as if, for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1941, they imposed such duty at the rate of one rupee and four annas per maund of eighty-two and two-sevenths pounds avoirdupois of salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, any such part, and such duty shall, for all the purposes of the said Act, be deemed to have been imposed by rule made under that section.

3. Excise Duty on Matches.

For section 4 of the Matches (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"4. The duty payable under section 3 shall be levied at the following rates, namely :—

(a) on matches in boxes or booklets containing on an average not more than eighty—

(i) if the average number is forty or less, at the rate of two rupees per gross of boxes or booklets,

(ii) if the average number is more than forty, but not more than sixty, at the rate of three rupees per gross of boxes or booklets, and

(iii) if the average number is more than sixty, at the rate of four rupees per gross of boxes or booklets ;

(b) on all other matches, at such rate as the Central Government may prescribe."

4. Excise Duty on Mechanical Lighters.

In section 3 of the Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, for the words "one rupee and eight annas" the words "three rupees" shall be substituted.

5. Import Duty on Artificial Silk Yarn and Thread.

In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, in Item No. 47 (2), for the entry

"25 per cent., ad valorem or 3 annas per lb., whichever is higher" in the fourth column the following entry shall be substituted, namely :—

"25 per cent, ad valorem or 5 annas per lb, whichever is higher".

6. Inland Postage rates.

For the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1941, the Schedule contained in the Schedule to this Act shall be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, as the First Schedule to that Act.

7. Income-tax and Super-tax.

(1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3 —

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1941, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of Schedule II to the Indian Finance Act, 1939, increased in each case by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government amounting to one-third of each such rate;

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1941, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, be the rates specified in Part II of Schedule II to the Indian Finance Act, 1939, increased—

(i) in the case of the rate applicable to a company, by a surcharge amounting to one-third of that rate, and

(ii) in the case of every other rate, by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government amounting to one-third of each such rate;

Provided that in the case of an association of persons being a co-operative society, other than the Sanikatta Salt-owners' Society in the Bombay Presidency, for the time being registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912, or under an Act of the Provincial Legislature governing the registration of Co-operative Societies, the rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1941, shall be the rates of super-tax specified in the Proviso to clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Indian Finance Act, 1940, increased in each case by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government amounting to one-third of each such rate.

(2) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1942,—

(a) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1940, read with sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Indian Finance (No. 2) Act, 1940, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" on which super-tax has been or might have been deducted under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the super-tax payable by the assessee on that portion of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of super-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1940, read with sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Indian Finance (No. 2) Act, 1940, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income.

(3) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section, and in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of this section where applicable.

(4) For the purposes of this section and of the rates of tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

8. Continuance of and rate of Excess Profits Tax.

(1) In sub clause (a) of clause (6) of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, for the words and figures "31st day of March, 1941," the words and figures "31st day of March, 1941," shall be substituted.

(2) The excess profits tax imposed by section 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after the 31st day of March, 1941, be an amount equal to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the amount by which the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits.

THE SCHEDULE.

Schedule to be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898.

[See section 6.]

"THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

INLAND POSTAGE RATES

[See section 7.]

Letters.
For a weight not exceeding one tola	One and a quarter annas.
For every tola, or fraction thereof, exceeding one tola	Half an anna.
Postcards.
Single	Nines pies.
Reply	One and a half annas.
Book, Pattern and Sample Packets.
For the first five tolas or fraction thereof	Nine pies.
For every additional two and a half tolas, or fraction thereof, in excess of five tolas	Three pies.
Registered Newspapers.
For a weight not exceeding ten tolas	Quarter of an anna.
For a weight exceeding ten tolas and not exceeding twenty tolas	Half an anna.
For every twenty tolas, or fraction thereof, exceeding twenty tolas	Half an anna.
In the case of more than one copy of the same issue of a registered newspaper being carried in the same packet—For a weight not exceeding ten tolas	Half an anna.
For every additional five tolas, or fraction thereof, in excess of ten tolas	Quarter of an anna.
Provided that such packet shall not be delivered at any addressee's residence but shall be given to a recognised agent at the post office Parcels.
For a weight not exceeding forty tolas	Four annas.
For every forty tolas, or fraction thereof, exceeding forty tolas ...	Four annas."

ACT No. VIII of 1941.

THE PROTECTIVE DUTIES CONTINUATION ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 31st March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 5th April, 1941.

An Act to extend the date up to which certain duties characterised as protective in the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, shall have effect.

Whereas it is expedient to extend the date up to which certain duties characterised as protective in the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, shall have effect;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Protective Duties Continuation Act, 1941.

2. Amendment of the First Schedule, Act XXXII of 1934.

In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, in Item No. 17, and in Item No. 61 (5), and in Items Nos. 63 (2), 63 (3), 63 (6), 63 (9), 63 (10), 63 (12), 63 (15), 63 (17), 63 (19), 63 (20), 63 (21), 63 (25) and 63. (27), and in Item No. 74, for the entry or entries in the seventh column "March 31st, 1941" the entry or entries "March 31st, 1942" shall be substituted.

3. Amendment of section 3, Act XIII of 1932.

In section 3 of the Sugar Industry (Protection) Act, 1932, for the figure "1941" the figure "1942" shall be substituted.

ACT No. IX of 1941.

THE INDIAN TARIFF (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 31st March, 1941, and is published in the Gazettte of India, Part IV, dated 5th April, 1941.

An Act further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1934.

Whereas it is expedient further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, for the purpose hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Indian Tariff (Amendment) Act, 1941.

2. Amendment of the First Schedule, Act XXXII of 1934.

In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, in Items Nos. 10 (1) and 11§ (1), in the last column, for the figure "1941" the figure "1942" shall be substituted.

ACT No. X of 1941.

THE TYRES (EXCISE DUTY) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 31st March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 5th April 1941.

An Act to provide for the imposition and collection of an excise duty on tyres.

Whereas it is expedient to provide for the imposition and collection of an excise duty on tyres;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and extent.

(1) This Act may be called the Tyres (Excise Duty) Act, 1941.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. Definitions.

In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "manufactory" means any premises wherein tyres are manufactured;

(b) "owner" includes any person expressly or impliedly authorised by an owner of a manufactory to be his agent in respect of the manufactory;

(c) "tyre" means a pneumatic tyre in the manufacture of which rubber is used, and includes the inner tube and the outer cover of such a tyre.

3. Imposition of and amount of duty.

(1) A duty of excise at the rate of ten per cent. on the value thereof shall be levied on all tyres manufactured in any manufactory in British India and issued out of such manufactory on or after the 1st day of April, 1941, and shall be payable by the owner of the manufactory.

(2) For the purposes of levying the duty imposed by sub-section (1) the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, fix the values of tyres or of any class of tyres; and where no such value has been fixed the value of a tyre shall be deemed to be the wholesale cash price, less trade discount, for which a tyre of the like kind and quality is sold or is capable of being sold by a manufactory without any abatement or deduction whatever except the amount of the excise duty payable on it at the time of issue out of the manufactory.

4. Recovery of duty with penalty.

(1) If any duty payable under section 3 is not paid within the time fixed by a notice issued in accordance with any rules made in this behalf under this Act, it shall be deemed to be an arrear, and the authority to which such duty is payable may, in lieu thereof, recover any sum, not exceeding double the amount of the duty unpaid, which such authority may in its discretion think it reasonable to require.

(2) An arrear of duty, or any sum recoverable in lieu thereof under this section, shall be recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue and shall be recoverable in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other penalty incurred under this Act.

5. Issue from manufactory.

(1) No person shall issue any tyres out of any manufactory except in accordance with the provisions of rules made under section 8 regulating such issue, or, until such rules are made, in accordance with the general or special orders of the Central Government.

(2) Whoever contravenes any such rule or order shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees or to a sum double the amount of the duty on any tyres issued in contravention of such rule or order, whichever is greater.

6. Application of the provisions of Act VIII of 1878 to the duty on tyres.

The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, relating to the levy of and exemption from customs duties, drawback of duty, warehousing, offences and penalties, confiscation and procedure relating to offences and appeals shall, with such modifications and alterations as it may consider necessary or desirable to adapt them to the circumstances, be applicable in regard to like matters in respect of the duty imposed by sub-section (1) of section 3.

7. Power of Central Government to prohibit import.

The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, prohibit absolutely, or with such exceptions as it thinks fit, the bringing of tyres into British India from the territory of any specified Indian State.

8. Power to make rules.

(1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules—

(a) imposing on owners of manufactories the duty of furnishing returns and keeping records and books, and prescribing the form of such returns, records and books and the particulars to be contained therein, and the manner in which the same are to be verified :

(b) regulating the issue of tyres out of manufactories ;

(c) providing for the assessment and collection of the duty, the issue of notices requiring payment, the authority to whom the duty shall be payable and the recovery of arrears;

(d) authorising and providing for the inspection of manufactories ; and

(e) generally for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

(2) Such rules may provide that any breach thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees :

Provided that the breach of any rule made under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall be punishable with the punishment provided for an offence against section 5.

ACT No. XI of 1941.

THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 31th March, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India, Part IV, dated 5th April, 1941.

An Act further to amend the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940.

Whereas it is expedient further to amend the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, for the purposes hereinafter appearing :

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Excess Profits Tax (Amendment) Act, 1941.

2. Amendment of section 2, Act XV of 1940.

In section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), after clause (16) the following clause shall be inserted, namely :—

(16-A) "ordinary share capital" has the meaning assigned to that expression in sub-section (8) of section 9 ;"

3. Amendment of section 4, Act XV of 1940.

Section 4 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section, and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

"(2) Where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply as if so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls before, and so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March were each separate chargeable accounting period, as if the excess of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the excess of profits arising in the whole period ; and any apportionment required to be made by this sub-section shall be made by reference to the number of months or fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole chargeable accounting period."

4. Amendment of section 7, Act XV of 1940.

To section 7 of the said Act the following provisoes shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the 1st day of April, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, and a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period ending on or before the 31st day of March, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period ending on or before the said 31st day of March; and where owing to an insufficiency of profits for chargeable accounting periods ending on or before the said 31st day of March, or, as the case may be, beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, the whole or any part of the deficiency is applied otherwise than as aforesaid,—

(a) the application shall be treated as provisional only; and

(b) if it thereafter appears that there is no longer such an insufficiency as aforesaid, such adjustment shall be made as the Central Board of Revenue may by written order direct:

Provided further that where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the provisions of the preceding proviso shall apply as if so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls before, and so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March, were each a separate chargeable accounting period, and as if the deficiency of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the deficiency of profits occurring in the whole period; and any apportionment required to be made by this proviso shall be made by reference to the number of months or fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole chargeable accounting period."

5. Amendment of section 17, Act XV of 1940.

In sub-section (1) of section 17 of the said Act,—

(a) in the first proviso, for the words "first proviso" the words "second proviso" shall be substituted;

(b) in the second proviso, for the word "modifications" the following words shall be substituted, namely:—

"refusal to make modifications or against any modifications".

6. Amendment of rule 1, First Schedule, Act XV of 1940.

In the first proviso to rule 1 of the First Schedule to the said Act, after the words "Provided that any sums" the brackets and words "(other than any interest paid by a firm to a partner of the firm)" shall be inserted and shall be deemed always to have been inserted.

ACT No. XII of 1941

THE DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT, 1941

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 8th April, 1941 and is published in the Gazettee of India, Part IV, dated 12th April 1941.

An Act to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes.

Whereas it is expedient to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title, extent and commencement.

(1) This Act may be called the Delhi Restriction of Uses of Land Act, 1941.

(2) It extends to the Province of Delhi

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. Definitions.

In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "agriculture" includes horticulture and the planting and upkeep of orchards;

(2) "building" has the same meaning as in clause (2) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911;

(3) "Chief Commissioner" means the Chief Commissioner of Delhi;

(4) "Deputy Commissioner" means the Deputy Commissioner of Delhi and includes any authority, not being an officer employed by the Delhi Improvement Trust, appointed by the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the official Gazette, to perform all or any of the functions of the Deputy Commissioner under this Act;

(5) "place of worship" includes an imambara, dargah, karbala or takya;

(6) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(7) "road" means a metalled road maintained by the Central Government or by a local authority; and

(8) the expression "to erect or re-erect" in relation to any building has the same meaning as in clause (5) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911.

3. Declaration of controlled area.

(1) The Chief Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, by notification in the official Gazette, declare any land adjacent to and within a distance of four hundred and forty yards from the centre line of any road to be a controlled area for the purposes of this Act.

(2) Not less than three months before making a declaration under sub-section (1) the Chief Commissioner shall cause to be published in the official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English a notification stating that he proposes, with the previous sanction of the Central Government, to make such a declaration and specifying therein the boundaries of the land in respect of which the declaration is proposed to be made, and copies of every such notification or of the substance thereof shall be published by the Deputy Commissioner in such manner as he thinks fit at his office and in every revenue estate of which any part is included within the said boundaries.

(3) Any person interested in any land included within the said boundaries may, at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the last date on which a copy of such notification is published by the Deputy Commissioner, object to the making of the declaration or to the inclusion of his land or any part of it within the said boundaries.

(4) Every objection under sub-section (3) shall be made to the Deputy Commissioner in writing, and the Deputy Commissioner shall give to every person so objecting an opportunity of being heard either in person or by pleader, and shall after all such objections have been heard and after such further enquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, forward to the Chief Commissioner the record of the proceedings held by him together with a report setting forth his recommendations on the objections.

(5) If before the expiration of the time allowed by sub-section (3) for the filing of objections no objection has been made, the Chief Commissioner may proceed at once to the making of a declaration under sub-section (1). If any such objections have been made, the Chief Commissioner shall consider the record and the report referred to in sub-section (4) and shall hear any parties applying to be heard and may either—

(a) abandon the proposal to make a declaration under sub-section (1), or

(b) make such a declaration in respect of either the whole or a part or parts of the land included within the boundaries specified in the notification under sub-section (2).

(6) For the purposes of sub-section (3) a person shall be deemed to be interested in land if he is a "person interested" as defined in clause (b) of section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, for the purposes of that Act or, where the land is land occupied by or for the purposes of a mosque, imambara, dargah, karbala, takya or Muslim grave-yard, if he is a Muslim.

(7) A declaration made under sub-section (1) shall, unless and until it is withdrawn, be conclusive evidence of the fact that the area to which it relates is a controlled area.

4. Plans of controlled areas to be deposited at certain offices.

(1) The Deputy Commissioner shall deposit at his office and at the office of the Municipal Committee, New Delhi, and at such other places as he considers necessary, plans showing all lands declared to be controlled areas for the purposes of this Act, and setting forth the nature of the restrictions applicable to the land in any such controlled area.

(2) The plans so deposited shall be available for inspection by the public free of charge at all reasonable times.

5. Restrictions on building, etc., in a controlled area.

No person shall erect or re-erect any building, or make or extend any excavation, or lay out any means of access to a road in a controlled area except with the previous permission of the Deputy Commissioner in writing.

6. Application for permission to build, etc., and the grant or refusal of such permission.

(1) Every person desiring to obtain the permission referred to in section 5 shall make an application in writing to the Deputy Commissioner in such form and containing such information in respect of the building, excavation or means of access to which the application relates as may be prescribed.

(2) On receipt of such application the Deputy Commissioner, after making such enquiry as he considers necessary, shall, by order in writing, either—

(a) grant the permission, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the order; or

(b) refuse to grant such permission.

(3) When the Deputy Commissioner grants permission subject to conditions under clause (a) of sub-section (2) or refuses to grant permission under clause (b) of sub-section (2), the conditions imposed or the grounds of refusal shall be such as are reasonable having regard to the circumstances of each case.

(4) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re-erection of a building, not being a dwelling house, if such building is required for purposes subservient to agriculture, nor shall the permission to erect or re-erect any such building be made subject to any conditions other than those which may be necessary to ensure that the building will be used solely for the purposes specified in the application for permission.

(5) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re-erection of a building which was in existence on the date on which the declaration under sub-section (1) of section 3 was made, nor shall he impose any conditions in respect of such erection or re-erection unless it involves the addition of one or more storeys to the building or the extension of the plinth area of the building by more than one-eighth of the original plinth area, or there is a probability that the building will be used for a purpose other than that for which it was used on the date on which tha said declaration was made.

(6) If at the expiration of a period of three months after an application under sub-section (1) has been made to the Deputy Commissioner no order in writing has been passed by the Deputy Commissioner permission shall be deemed to have been given without the imposition of any conditions.

(7) The Deputy Commissioner shall maintain a register with sufficient particulars of all permissions given by him under this section and the register shall be available for inspection without charge by all persons interested and such persons shall be entitled to take extracts therefrom.

7. Right of appeal.

(1) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Deputy Commissioner under sub-section (2) of section 6 granting permission subject to conditions or refusing permission may within thirty days from the date of such order prefer an appeal to the Chief Commissioner.

(2) The order of the Chief Commissioner on appeal shall be final.

8. Compensation.

(1) No person shall be entitled to claim compension under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by an order—

(a) refusing permission to make or extend an excavation, or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant, or

(b) refusing permission to lay out a means of access to a road, or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant, or

(c) granting permission to erect or re-erect a building but imposing conditions on the grant.

(2) When an order has been made refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building any person who has exercised the right of appeal given by sub-section (1) of section 7 may, within three months of the date of the order of the Chief Commissioner, make to the Chief Commissioner a claim for compension on the ground that his interest in the land concerned is injuriously affected by the said order:

Provided that no claim for compensation may be made under this sub-section in respect of any land situated in a controlled area adjoining a road which has been constructed after the commencement of this Act or which was not at the commencement of this Act a road within the meaning of clause (4) of section 2.

(3) On receipt of a claim under sub-section (2) the Chief Commissioner shall either proceed to acquire the land concerned under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or transfer the claim for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the said Act:

(To be continued)

IMPERIAL ACTS

(Concluded from page 32)

Provided that in case the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land, the claimant shall be entitled to be repaid by the acquiring authority the amount of expense which he may have properly incurred in connection with the preparation and submission of his claim for compensation under this section, and in default of agreement such amount shall be determined by the authority deciding the value of the land in the proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the settlement of a claim by mutual agreement.

9. Compulsory acquisition.

If the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, then, notwithstanding anything contained in that Act,—

(i) proceedings under section 5-A of that Act shall not be required;

(ii) the notification under s. 6 of that Act shall be published within six months from the date of institution of the claim, failing which the claim shall be transferred for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under that Act;

(iii) the market value of the land shall be assessed as though no declaration under section 3 (1) had been made in respect of the area in which it is situated and no restrictions upon its use and development had been imposed, any compensation already paid to the claimant or to any of his predecessors in interest for injurious affection being deducted from the market value as so assessed.

10. Amount of compensation how determined.

(1) When a claim is transferred for disposal under section 8 or section 9 to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, such officer shall make an award determining the amount of compensation, if any, payable to the claimant.

(2) The amount of compensation awarded under sub-section (1) shall in no case exceed—

(a) the amount that would have been payable if the hand had been acquired under section 9, or

(b) the difference between the market value of the land in its existing condition having regard to the restrictions actually imposed upon its use and development by the order refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building thereon, and its market value immediately before the publication under sub-section (2) of section 3 of the notification in pursuance of which the area in which it is situated was declared to be a controlled area, and no compensation shall be awarded under sub-section (1)—

(i) unless the claimant satisfies the officer making the award that proposals for the development of the land which at the date of the application under sub-section (1) of section 6 are immediately practicable, or would have been so, if this Act had not been passed, are prevented or injuriously affected by the restrictions imposed under this Act, or

(ii) if and in so far as the land is subject to substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment which were so in force at the date when the restrictions were imposed under this Act, or

(iii) if compensation in respect of the same restrictions in force under this Act or of substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment has already been paid in respect of the land to the claimant or to any predecessor in interest of the claimant.

(3) The provisions of Parts III, IV, V and VIII of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, shall so far as may be apply to an award made under sub section (1) as though it were an award made under that Act.

11. Saving for other enactments.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the power of any authority to acquire land or to impose restrictions upon the use and development of land under any other enactment for the time being in force.

12. Prohibition of use of any land as a brick-field, etc., without a licence.

(1) No land within a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a charcoal-kiln, pottery-kiln or lime-kiln and no land either within or outside a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a brick-field or brick-kiln except under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a licence from the Chief Commissioner which shall be renewable annually.

(2) The chief Commissioner may charge such fees for the grant and renewal of such licences and may impose such conditions in respect thereof as may be prescribed.

(3) No person shall be entitled to claim compensation under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by the refusal of a licence under sub-section (1).

13. Offences and Penalties.

(1) Any person who—

(a) erects or re-erects any building or makes or extends any excavation or lays out any means of access to a road in contravention of the provisions of section 5 or in contravention of any conditions imposed by an order under section 6 or section 7, or

(b) uses any land in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 12, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees and, in the case of a continuing contravention, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day after the date of the first conviction during which he is proved to have persisted in the contravention.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1), the Deputy Commissioner may order any person who has committed a breach of the provisions of the said sub-section to restore to its original state or to bring into conformity with the conditions which have been violated, as the case may be, any building or land in respect of which a contravention such as is described in the said sub-section has been committed, and if such person fails to do so within three months of the order may himself take such measures as may appear to him to be necessary to give effect to the order, and the cost of such measures shall be recoverable from such person as an arrear of land revenue.

14. Trial of offences.

No Court inferior to that of a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under this Act.

15. Protection of persons acting under this Act.

No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

16. Savings.

Nothing in this Act shall apply to—

(a) the erection or re-erection of buildings upon land included in the inhabited site of any village as defined in the revenue records;

(b) the erection or re-erection of a place of worship or a tomb or cenotaph or of a wall enclosing a graveyard place of worship, cenotaph or samadhi on land which is at the time a notification under sub-section (2) of section 3 is published by the Chief Commissioner occupied by or for the purposes of such place of worship, tomb, samadhi, cenotaph or graveyard;

(c) excavations (including wells) made in the ordinary course of agricultural operations;

(d) the construction of an unmetalled road intended to give access to land solely for agricultural purposes.

17. Power to make rules.

(1) The Chief Commissioner may make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely :—

(a) the form in which applications under sub-section (1) of section 6 shall be made and the information to be furnished in such applications ;

(b). the regulation of the laying out of means of access to roads ;

(c) the fees to be charged for the grant and renewal of licences under section 12 and the conditions governing such licences.

(3). All rules made under this section shall be subject to the conditions of previous publication, which publication shall be made in the official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English ; and the date to be specified under clause (3) of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, shall not be less than two months from the date on which the draft of the proposed rules was published.

ACT No. XIII of 1941

THE INSURANCE (AMENDENT) ACT, 1941.

Received the assent of the Governor General on the 8th April, 1941, and is published in the Gazette of India Part IV, dated 12th April 1941.

An Act further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938.

Whereas it is expedient further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, the for purposes hereinafter appearing ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941.

2 Amendment of section 2 Act IV of 1938.

In section 2 of the Insurance Act, 1938 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act),—

(a) in clause (5), for the words "an insurer" the words "an insurer or a provident society as defined in Part III", and for the words "the insurer" the words "such insurer or provident society" shall be substituted ;

(b) in clause (9), for the words "to which the provisions of Part III apply" the words "as defined in Part III" shall be substituted.

3. Amendment of section 3, Act IV of 1938.

In section 3 of the said Act,—

(a) in the proviso to sub-section (1), for the words, brackets and figures "the expiry of one month from the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1940" the words "such date as may be fixed in this behalf by the Central Government by notification in the official Gazette" shall be substituted;

(b) in clause (g) of sub section (2), for the word "one" the word "five" shall be substituted ;

(c) in sub-section (4), to clause (d) the word "or" shall be added, and after clause (d) the following clause and words shall be added, namely :—

"(e) if, in the case of an insurer specified in sub-clause (c) of clause (9) of section 2, the standing contract referred to in that sub-clause is cancelled or is suspended and continues to be suspended for a period of six months, and the Superintendent of Insurance may cancel the registration of an insurer if the insurer has failed to have the registration renewed " ;

(d) in sub-section (5), after the words, brakets, letter and figure "clause (a) of sub-section (4)" the words, brackets, letter and figure "clause (e) of sub-section (4), or because the insurer has failed to have the registration renewed" shall be inserted ;

"(e) in sub-section (5C), after the words brackets and figure "sub-section (4)" the words, brackets, letter and figure "clause (e) of sub-section (4), or because the insurer has failed to have his registration renewed" and after the word and figures "section 98" the words, brackets, figures and letter "or has his standing contract restored or has had an application under sub-section (4) of section 3-A accepted" shall be inserted.

4. Insertion of new section 3A in Act IV of 1938.

After section 3 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely .—

"3A. Renewal of Registration.

(1) An insurer who has been granted a certificate of registration under section 3 shall have the registration renewed annually for each year after that ending on the 31st day of December, 1941.

(2) An application for the renewal of a registration for any year shall be made by the insurer to the Superintendent of Insurance before the 31st day of December of the preceding year, and shall be accompanied as provided in sub-section (3) by evidence of payment of the prescribed fee which shall not exceed one thousand rupees for each class of insurance business, but may vary according to the volume of business done by the insurer in India in each class of of insurance business to which the registration relates.

(3) The prescribed fee for the renewal of a registration for any year shall be paid into the Reserve Bank of India, or, where there is no office of that Bank, into the Imperial Bank of India acting as the agent of that Bank, or into any Government treasury, and the receipt shall be sent along with the application for renewal of the registration.

(4) If any insurer fails to apply for renewal of registration before the date specified in sub-section (2) the Superintendent of Insurance may, so long as an application to the Court under sub-section (5D) of section 3 has not been made, accept an application for renewal of the registration on receipt from the insurer of the fee payable with the application and such penalty, not exceeding the prescribed fee payable by him, as the Superintendent of Insurance may require :

Provided that an appeal shall lie to the Central Government from an order passed by the Superintendent of Insurance imposing a penalty on the insurer.

(5) The Superintendent of Insurance shall, on fulfilment by the insurer of the requirements of this section, renew the registration and grant him a certificate of renewal of registration."

5 Amendment of section 4, Act IV of 1938.

In section 4 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "a provident society to which Part III" the words "a provident society as defined in Part III" shall be substituted ;

(b) for sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(2) Nothing contained in this section shall apply to any policy of the description known as a group policy, where the number of persons covered by the policy is not less than fifty such smaller number as may be approved by the Superintendent of Insurance and a standard form of the policy has has been certified in writing by the Superintendent of Insurance to be a policy of such description."

6. Amendment of section 5, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (3) of section 5 of the said Act, for the words "to which Part III applies" the words "as defined in Part III" shall be substituted.

7. Amendment of section 7, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (9A) of section 7 of the said Act, after clause (b) the following words shall be added, namely :—

"and may charge the normal commission on such sale or on such investment."

8. Amendment of section 10 Act IV of 1938.

In section 10 of the said Act,—

(a) to sub-section (1) the following words, brackets and letters shall be added, namely :—

"and where the insurer carries on business of the class specified in clause (d) of that sub-section whether alone or in conjunction with business of another class, he shall, unless the Superintendent of Insurance waives this requirement in writing keep a separate account of all receipts and payments in respect of each sub-class of the class specified in clause (d) as may be prescribed in this behalf :

Provided that no sub-class of the class of insurance business specified in clause (d) of sub-section (1) of section 7 shall be prescribed under this sub-section if the insurance business comprised in the sub-class consists of insurance contracts which are terminable by the insurer at intervals not exceeding twelve months and under which if a claim arises, the insurer's liability to pay benefit ceases within one year of the date on which the claim arose.";

(b) in sub-section (2), for the words "the excess of receipts over payments in respect of such business" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"all receipts due in respect of such business";

(c) in sub-section (3), the words and figures "save as provided in section 49" shall be omitted, and for the words "other than those of life insurance" the words "other than those of the life insurance business of the insurer" shall be substituted.

9. Amendment of section 11, Act IV of 1938.

In section 11 of the said Act,—

(a) in clause (c) of sub-section (1),—

(i) for the words "in respect of each class of insurance business carried on by him" the words, brackets and figures "in respect of each class or sub-class of insurance business for which he is required under sub-section (1) of section 10 to keep a separate account of receipts and payments" shall be substituted ; and

(ii) for the words "that class of insurance business" the words "that class or sub-class of insurance business" shall be substituted ;

(b) in sub-section (2), for the words and figures "to which the Indian Companies Act, 1913, applies" the following shall be substituted, namely :—

",as defined in clause (2) of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913,".

10. Amendment of section 13, Act IV of 1938.

To section 13, of the said Act the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

"(6) The provisions of this section relating to life insurance business shall apply also to any such sub-class of insurance business included in the class 'Miscellaneous Insurance' as may be prescribed under sub-section (1) of section 10; and the Superintendent of Insurance may authorise such modifications and variations of the regulations contained in Part I of the Fourth and Fifth Schedules and of the requirements of Part II of those Schedules as may be necessary to facilitate their application to any such sub-class of insurance business :

Provided that, if the Superintendent of Insurance is satisfied that the number and amount of the transactions carried out by an insurer in any such sub-class of insurance business is so small as to render periodic investigation and valuation unnecessary, he may exempt that insurer from the operation of this sub-section in respect of that sub-class of insurance business."

11. Amendment of section 15, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (1) of section 15 of the said Act,—

"(a) for the words "within six months", the words and figures "in the case of the accounts and statements referred to in section 11 within six months and in the case of the abstract and statement referred to in section 13 within nine months" shall be substituted ;

(b) the sentence beginning with the words "The Superintendent of Insurance may extend" and ending with the words "by a period not exceeding three months" shall be omitted.

12. Amendment of section 16, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (2) of section 16 of the said Act,—

(a) to clause (a) the words "as at the date of any balance-sheet so furnished" shall be added ;

(b) in clause (b),—

(i) for the words "for each class of insurance business carried on by him, a revenue account" the following words, brackets and figures shall be substituted, namely :

"for each class or sub-class of insurance business for which he is required under sub-section (1) of section 10 to keep a separate account of receipts and payments, a revenue account for the period covered by any account so furnished";

(ii) for the words "that class of business" the words "that class or sub-class of insurance business" shall be substituted ;

(d) for clause (c) the following clause shall be substituted, namely :—

"(c) a separate abstract of the valuation report in respect of all business transacted in India in each class or sub-class of insurance business to which section 13 refers, prepared in the manner required by that section, and".

13. Amendment of section 17, Act IV of 1938.

In section 17 of the said Act, after the words "and such copies so sent" the words "shall be chargeable with the same fees and" shall be inserted.

14. Amendment of section 21, Act IV of 1938.

To sub-section (2) of section 21 of the said Act the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that no application under this sub-section shall be entertained unless it is made before the expiration of four months from the time when the Superintendent of Insurance made the order or declined to accept the return."

15. Amendment of section 22, Act IV of 1938.

In section 22 of the said Act, after the word "refers" the following shall be inserted, namely :—

"or an abstract of a valuation report furnished under clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 16".

16. Omission of section 24, Act IV of 1938.

Section 24 of the said Act shall be omitted.

17. Amendment of section 26, Act IV of 1938.

To section 26 of the said Act the following sentence shall be added, namely :—

"All such particulars shall be authenticated in the manner required by that sub-section for the authentication of the matters therein referred to, and, where the alteration affects the assured rates, advantages, terms and conditions offered in connection with life insurance policies, the actuarial certificate referred to in clause (f) of the said sub-section shall accompany the particulars of the alteration."

18. Amendment of section 28, Act IV of 1938.

In section 28 of the said Act,—

(a) for sub-section (1) the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely :—

"(1) Every insurer registered under this Act carrying on the business of life insurance shall every year, within thirty-one days from the beginning of the year, submit to the Superintendent of Insurance a statement showing as at the 31st day of December of the preceding year the assets held invested in accordance with section 27, and all other particulars necessary to establish that the requirements of that section have been complied with, and such statement shall be certified by a principal officer of the insurer.

(2) Every such insurer shall also furnish within fifteen days from the last day of March, June and September, a statement certified as aforesaid showing as at the end of each of the said months the assets held invested in accordance with section 27.

(3) The Superintendent of Insurance may at his discretion require any insurer to whom sub-section (1) applies to submit before the 1st day of August in each or any year a statement of the nature referred to in sub-section (1), certified as required by that sub-section and prepared as at the 30th day of June.

(4) In the case of an insurer having his principal place of business or domicile outside British India, the Superintedent of Insurance may, on application made by the insurer, extend the periods of fifteen and thirty-one days mentioned in the foregoing sub-sections to thirty days and sixty days respectively.";

(b) sub-section (2) shall be re-numbered as sub-section (5).

19. Amendment of section 29, Act IV of 1938.

Section 29 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

(2) The provisions of section 86D of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, shall not apply to a loan granted to a director of an insurer being a company, if the loan is one granted on the security of a policy on which the insurer bears the risk and the policy was issued to the director on his own life, and the loan is within the surrender value of the policy."

20. Amendment of section 33, Act IV of 1938.

In section 33 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words beginning with "appoint an auditor or actuary or both" and ending with "himself make such investigation" the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"order an investigation of the affairs of the insurer to be made by an auditor or actuary, or by both an auditor and an actuary appointed simultaneously, or first by an auditor only or an actuary only and afterwards by an actuary or auditor or may himself make such investigation:

Provided that an auditor or actuary appointed for this purpose by the Superintendent of Insurance shall not be an auditor or actuary in the employ of the insurer.";

(b) to sub-section (2) the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that no application under this sub-section shall be entertained unless it is made before the expiration of three months from the date on which the Superintendent of Insurance intimates to the insurer his intention to take such action,";

(c) for sub-section (3) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(3) The results of any investigation made under this section shall be recorded in writing by the auditor or actuary appointed or by the Superintendent of Insurance, as the case may be, and four copies of the record shall be supplied to the Superintendent of Insurance; and when the investigation is completed a copy of such record, or where both an auditor and an actuary have been appointed, of each such record, shall be furnished by the Superintendent of Insurance to the insurer and to the shareholders or the policy-holders who have sent a requisition for such an investigation."

21. Amendment of section 34, Act IV of 1938.

In section 34 of the said Act,—

(a) after the words "incidental to such investigation" the words, brackets and figures "including any expenses incurred before the making of an order by the Court under sub-section (2) of section 33" shall be inserted, and shall be deemed always to have been inserted; and

(b) to the section the following words shall be added and shall be deemed always to have been added namely:—

"shall have priority over other debts due from the insurer, and shall be recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue"

22. Amendment of section 35, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (3) of section 35 of the said Act,—

(a) for the words "and certified copies of the following documents shall be furnished to the Central Government and shall" the following words shall be substituted, namely:—

"and certified copies, four in number, of each of the following documents shall be furnished to the Central Government, and other such copies shall";

(b) in the proviso, after the words and figures "sections 11 and 13" the following shall be inserted and shall be deemed always to have been inserted, namely:—

"of this Act or sections 7 and 8 of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912".

23. Amendment of section 36, Act IV of 1938.

To section 36 of the said Act the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that—

(a) no part of the deposit made by any party to the amalgamation or transfer shall be returned except where, after effect is given to the arrangement, the whole of the deposit to be made by the insurer carrying on the amalgamated business or the person to whom the business is transferred is completed,

(b) only so much shall be returned as, in no longer required to complete the deposit last mentioned in clause (a), and

(c) while the deposit last mentioned in clause (a) remains uncompleted, no accession, resulting from the arrangment, to the amount alread deposited by the insurer carrying on the amalgamated business or the person to whom the business is transferred shall be appropriated as payment or part payment of any instalment of deposit subsequently due from him under section 7 or section 98."

24. Amendment of section 37, Act IV of 1938.

In section 37 of the Act,—

(a) for the words "where any business of one insurer is transferred to another" the words "where any business of an insurer is transferred" shall be substituted ;

(b) for the words "the insurer to whom the business is transferred" the words "the person to whom the business is transferred" shall be substituted ;

(c) for the words "furnish to the Central Government" the words "furnish in duplicate to the Central Goverment" shall be substituted :

(d) in clause (b), for the words "a declaration signed by every insurer concerned" the words "a declaration signed by every party concerned" shall be substituted ;

(e) for clause (c) the following clause shall be substituted, namely :—

"(c) where the amalgamation or transfer has not been made in accordance with a scheme sanctioned by the Court under section 36—

(i) balance-sheets in respect of the insurance business of each of the insurers concerned in such amalgamation or transfer, prepared in the Form set forth in Part II of the First Schedule and in accordance with the regulations contained in Part I of that Schedule, and

(ii) certified copies of any other reports on which the scheme of amalgamation or transfer was founded."

25. Amendment of section 38, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (2) of section 38 of the said Act, for the words "together with" the word "and" and for the words "has been delivered" the words "have been delivered" shall be substituted.

26. Amendment of section 39, Act IV of 1938.

In section 39 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), the words "not being an absolute assignee of the benefits under the policy" shall be omitted :

(b) to sub-section (4) the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that the assignment of a policy to the insurer who bears the risk on the policy at the time of the assignment, in consideration of a loan granted by that insurer on the security of the policy within its surrender value, or its re-assignment on repayment of the loan shall not cancel a nomination, but shall affect the rights of the nominee only to the extent of the insurer's interest in the policy."

27. Amendment of section 41, Act IV of 1938.

In section 41 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1),—

(i) for the words "effect or renew" the words "take out or renew or continue" shall be substituted, and after the word "renewing" the words "or continuing" shall be inserted ;

(ii) the following proviso shall be added :—

"Provided that acceptance by an insurance agent of commission in connection with a policy of life insurance taken out by himself on his own life shall not be deemed to be acceptance of a rebate of premium within the meaning of this sub-section if at the time of such acceptance the insurance agent satisfies the prescribed conditions establishing that he is a bona fide insurance agent employed by the insurer.";

(b) in sub-section (2), for the words "effecting or renewing" the words "taking out or renewing or continuing" shall be substituted.

(To be continued)

IMPERIAL ACTS

(Continued from page 40)

28. Amendment of section 42, Act IV of 1938.

In section 42 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "one rupee" the words "three rupees" and for the words "making an application under this section" the words "making an application in the prescribed manner" shall be substituted ;

(b) in sub-section (3), for the words "a fee of one rupee" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"the prescribed fee which shall not be more than three rupees, and an additional fee of a prescribed amount not exceeding one rupee by way of penalty if the application for renewal of the licence does not reach the issuing authority before the date on which the licence ceases to remain in force";

(c) in sub-section (4),—

(i) in clause (c)—

(a) after the word "cheating" the following words shall be inserted, namely :—

"or forgery or an abetment of or attempt to commit any such offence";

(b) the following proviso shall be added, namely :—

"Provided that, where at least five years have elapsed since the completion of the sentence imposed on any person in respect of any such offence, the Superintendent of Insurance shall ordinarily declare in respect of such person that his conviction shall cease to operate as a disqualification under this clause;",

(ii) in clause (d), for the words "against an insurer or an assured" the words "against an insurer or an insured" shall be substituted ;

(d) after sub-section (5) the following sub-section shall be added, namely :—

"(6) The authority which issued any licence under this section may issue a duplicate licence to replace a licence lost, destroyed or mutilated on payment of the prescribed fee which shall not be more than one rupee."

29. Amendment of section 43, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (1) of s. 43 of the said Act the words "licensed", in both places where it occurs, shall be omitted.

30. Amendment of section 44, Act IV of 1938.

In section 44 of the said Act the words and figures "licensed under section 42" shall be omitted.

31. Amendment of section 45, Act IV of 1938.

In section 45 of the said Act,—

(a) for the words "was on a material matter and fraudulently made" the words "was on a material matter or suppressed facts which it was material to disclose and that it was fraudulently made" shall be substituted, and after the words "that the statement was false" the words "or that it suppressed facts which it was material to disclose" shall be added ;

(b) the following proviso shall be added, namely :

"Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent the insurer from calling for proof of age at any time if he is entitled to do so, and no policy shall be deemed to be called in question merely because the terms of the policy are adjusted on subsequent proof that the age of the life insured was incorrectly stated in the proposal."

32. Amendment of section 47, Act IV of 1938.

In sub section (1) of section 47 of the said Act, for the words "the insurer shall" the words "the insurer may" shall be substituted.

33. Amendment of section 48, Act IV of 1938.

In section 48 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words beginning with "shall be persons having the prescribed qualifications" and ending with "by the holders of policies of life insurance issued by the company" the following words shall be substituted, namely :—

"shall notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Articles of Association of the company be elected in the prescribed manner by the holders of policies of life insurance issued by the company ";

(b) sub-section (2) shall be re-numbered as sub-section (4) and the following shall be inserted as sub-sections (2) and (3), namely :—

"(2) Only and all persons holding otherwise than as assignees policies of life insurance issued by the company of such minimum amount and having been in force for such minimum period as may be prescribed shall be eligible for election as directors under sub-section (1), and only and all persons holding policies of life insurance issued by the company and having been in force at the time of the election for not less than six months shall be eligible to vote at such elections :

Provided that the assignment of a policy to the persons who took out the policy shall not disqualify that person for being eligible for election as a director under sub-section (1).

(3) The Central Government may, for such period, or to such extent and subject to such conditions as may be specified by it in this behalf, exempt from the operation of this section—

(a) any Mutual Insurance Company as defined in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 95, in respect of which the Superintendent of Insurance certifies that in his opinion owing to the conditions governing membership of the company or to the nature of the insurance contracts undertaken by it the application of the provisions of this sub-section to the company is impracticable, or

(b) any company in respect of which the Superintendent of Insurance certifies that in his opinion the company, having taken all reasonable steps to achieve compliance with the provisions of this section, has been unable to obtain the required number of directors with the required qualifications."

34. Substitution of new section for section 49, Act IV of 1938. Restriction on dividends and bonuses.

For section 49 of the said Act the following section shall be substituted, namely ;

"49. No insurer, being an insurer specified in sub-clause (a) (ii) or sub-clause (b) of clause (9) of section 2, who carries on the business of life insurance or any other class or sub-class of insurance business to which section 13 applies, shall for the purpose of declaring or paying any dividend to share-holders or any bonus to policy-holders or of making any payment in service of any debentures, utilize directly or indirectly any portion of the life insurance fund or of the fund of such other class or sub-class of insurance business, as the case may be, except a surplus shown in the valuation balance sheet in Form I as set forth in the Fourth Schedule submitted to the Superintendent of Insurance as part of the abstract referred to in section 15 as a result of an actuarial valuation of the assets and liabilities of the insurer ; nor shall he increase such surplus by contributions out of any reserve fund or otherwise unless such contributions have been brought in as revenue through the revenue account applicable to that class or sub-class of insurance business on or before the date of the valuation aforesaid, except when the reserve fund is made up solely of transfers from similar surpluses disclosed by valuations in respect of which returns have been submitted to the Superintendent of Insurance under section 15 of this Act or to the Central Government under section 11 of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912 :

Provided that payments made out of any such surplus in service of any debentures shall not exceed fifty per cent. of such surplus including any payment by way of interest on the debentures, and interest paid on the debentures shall not exceed ten per cent. of any such surplus except when the interest paid on the debentures is offset against the interest credited to the fund or funds concerned in deciding the interest basis adopted in the valuation disclosing the aforesaid surplus."

35. Amendment of section 50, Act IV of 1938.

To section 50 of the said Act the following words shall be added, namely ;—

"unless these are set forth in the policy".

36. Amendment of section 52, Act IV of 1938.

Section 52 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub-sections shall be added, namely ;—

"(2) On the expiry of the period of three years referred to in sub-section (1), or on the insurer's ceasing before such expiry but at any time after the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, to carry on business on the dividing principle, the insurer shall forthwith cause an investigation to be made by an actuary, who shall determine the amount accumulated out of the contributions received from the holders of all policies to which the dividing principle applies and the extent of the claims of those policy-holders against the realisable assets of the insurer, and shall, before the expiration of six months from the date on which he is entrusted with the investigation, make recommendations regarding the distribution, whether by cash payments or by the allocation of paid up policies or by a combination of both methods, of such assets as he finds to appertain to such policy-holders ; and the insurer shall, before the expiry of six months from the date on which the actuary makes his recommendations, distribute such assets in accordance with those recommendations.

(3) Where at any time prior to the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, an insurer has ceased to carry on business on the dividing principle, the insurer shall, before the expiration of two months from the commencement of that Act, report to the Superintendent of Insurance the measures taken or proposed by him for the distribution among holders of policies to which the dividing principle applies of the assets due to them; and the Superintendent of Insurance may either sanction such measures or refuse his sanction, and, if he refuses his sanction or if the insurer does not report to him as required by this sub-section, the provisions of sub-section (2) shall apply to the insurer forthwith."

37. Amendment of section 53, Act IV of 1938.

In section 53 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the word "Chapter" the word "Act" shall be substituted ;

(b) in sub clause (ii) of clause (b) of sub-section (2), after the words "has continued such failure" the words "or having contravened any provision of this Act has continued such contravention" and after the words "notice of such failure" the words "or contravention" shall be inserted.

38. Amendment of section 69, Act IV of 1938.

In section 69 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "the results of a distribution, amongst policies maturing for payment within certain time-limits, of certain sums" the following words shall be substituted, namely:—

"the results of a distribution of certain sums amongst policies becoming claims within certain time-limits, or on the principle that the premiums payable by a policy-holder depend wholly or partly on the number of policies becoming claims within certain time-limits";

(b) after sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(3) Where after the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, a provident society is to be wound up in pursuance of this section, or where, whether before or after the commencement of that Act, a provident society ceases to carry on business on the dividing principle, the provisions of sub-section (2) and sub-section (3) of section 52 shall, so far as may be, apply in like manner as they apply to an insurer ceasing to carry on business on the dividing principle."

39. Amendment of section 70, Act IV of 1938.

In section 70 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (2),—

(i) in clause (a), after the words and figures "Indian Companies Act, 1913," the words and figures "or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act repealed thereby," shall be inserted;

(ii) to the clause (b) the following words shall be added, namely:—

"the full address of the registered office of the society, the full address of the principal office of the society in British India, the name of the manager at such office, and the name and address of some one or more persons resident in British India authorised to accept any notice required to be served on the society";

(iii) the word "and" at the end of clause (c) shall be omitted and after clause (d) the following word and clause shall be added, namely:

"and (e) the prescribed fee for registration being not more than two hundred rupees.";

(b) in sub-section (4),—

(i) in clause (c), after the word "requirement" the words "or having contravened any provision" and after the word "failure" in both places where it occurs, the words "or contravention" shall be inserted;

(ii) after the proviso the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided further that the Superintendent of Insurance may, without previous notice and without application to the Court for sanction,—

(a) cancel the registration of a provident society which has failed to have its registration renewed, or

(b) cancel, on such terms and conditions as he thinks fit, the registration of any provident society which applies to him for such cancellation if he is satisfied that the society has ceased to carry on insurance business and that all its liabilities in respect of insurance policies are either satisfied or otherwise provided for.";

(c) after sub section (4) the following sub-sections shall be added, namely:—

"(5) When a registration is cancelled the provident society shall not, after the cancellation has taken effect, enter into any new contracts of insurance, but all rights and liabilities in respect of contracts of insurance entered into by it before such cancellation takes effect shall, subject to the provisions of section 88, continue as if the cancellation had not taken place.

(6) Where a registration is cancelled under clause (b) of sub-section (4), or because the society has failed to have its registration renewed, the Superintendent of Insurance may at his discretion revive the registration if the provident society, within six months from the date on which the cancellation took effect, makes the deposits required by section 73 or has had an application under sub-section (3) of section 70A accepted, as the case may be, and complies with any directions which may be given to it by the Superintendent of Insurance."

40. Insertion of new sections 70A and 70B in Act IV of 1938. After section 70 of the said Act the following sections shall be inserted, namely:—

"70A. Renewal of registration.

(1) Every provident society registered under this Act, or under the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, shall have its registration renewed annually for each period of twelve months after that ending on the 30th day of June, 1942.

(2) An application for the renewal of a registration shall be made by the society to the Superintendent of Insurance before the 30th day of June preceding the period for which renewal is sought, and shall be accompanied as provided in sub-section (3) by evidence of payment of the prescribed fee which shall not exceed two hundred rupees but may vary according to the volume of insurance business done by the society.

(3) The prescribed fee for the renewal of a registration for any year shall be paid into the Reserve Bank of India, or, where there is no office of that Bank, into the Imperial Bank of India acting as the agent of that Bank, or into any Government treasury, and the receipt shall be sent along with the application for renewal of the registration.

(4) If a provident society fails to apply for renewal of registration before the date specified in sub-section (2) the Superintendent of Insurance may, so long as he has taken no action under section 88 to have the society wound up, accept an application for renewal of registration on receipt from the society of the fee payable with the application and such penalty, not exceeding the prescribed fee payable by the society, as he may require.

(5) The Superintendent of Insurance shall, on being satisfied that the society has fulfilled the requirements of this section, renew the registration and grant it a certificate of renewal of registration.

70B. Supplementary information and reports of alteration in particulars furnished with application for registration.

(1) Every provident society registered under section 70 before the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, shall, before the expiration of three months from the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, furnish to the Superintendent of Insurance such particulars in addition to those already supplied for the purpose of obtaining registration as are required by sub-section (2) of section 70 of this Act as amended by the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941.

(2) Every provident society registered under the provisions of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, shall, before the expiration of three months from the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, furnish to the Superintendent of Insurance so far as it has not already done so the documents and information required by clauses (a) and (b) of sub-section (2) of section 70 to accompany an application by a provident society for registration under that section.

(3) When any alteration occurs or is made which affects any of the matters which are required under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 70 to accompany an application by a provident society for registration under that section, or are to be furnished to the Superintendent of Insurance under this section, the provident society shall furnish forthwith to the Superintendent of Insurance full particulars duly authenticated of such alteration."

41. Amendment of section 72, Act IV of 1938.

In section 72 of the said Act, the words "established after the commencement of this Act" shall be omitted.

42. Amendment of section 74, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (1) of section 74 of the said Act,—

(a) the words "established after the commencement of this Act" shall be omitted;

(b) in clause (o), after the words and figures "Indian Companies Act, 1913," the words and figures "or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act repealed thereby," shall be inserted.

43. Amendment of section 77, Act IV of 1938.

In section 77 of the said Act, for the word "shall have an office" the words "shall have in British India a principal office" shall be substituted.

44. Amendment of section 79, Act IV of 1938.

In section 79 of the said Act,—

(a) for the words "shall keep at its registered office" the words "shall keep at its principal office in British India" shall be substituted;

(b) for clauses (a) to (d) the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

"(a) such registers in such form as may be prescribed;";

(c) clauses (e), (f) and (g) shall be re-lettered, respectively, as clauses (b), (c) and (d).

45. Amendment of section 82 Act IV of 1938.

In section 82 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the words "and the statements referred to" the words "shall be printed and four copies of these and of the statements referred to" and for the words "within three months" the words "within six months" shall be substituted;

(b) in sub-section (3), before the words "The provisions of section 17" the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"The provisions of sub-section (2) of section 15 relating to the copies therein referred to shall apply to the returns referred to in sub-section (1) of this sub-section, and ",

and to the sub-section as so amended the following shall be added, namely:—

"and the Superintendent of Insurance may exercise, in respect of returns made by a provident society and in respect of an investigation or valuation to which section 81 refers, the same powers as are exercisable by him under section 21 and section 22, respectively, in the case of an insurer".

46. Amendment of section 83, Act IV of 1938.

In section 83 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), for the word "established" the word "registered", for the words "shall cause any new scheme which it proposes to put into operation" the words "shall cause any scheme which it proposes to put into operation for the first time" and for the words "that the scheme is sound" the words "that the rates, advantages, terms and conditions of the scheme are workable and sound" shall be substituted;

(b) in sub-section (3), for the words "and shall send the report of the actuary" the words, brackets and figures "and shall, before the expiration of six months from the commencement of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1941, send the report of the actuary" shall be substituted;

(c) in sub-section (4), for the words "it is actuarially sound" the words "the rates, advantages, terms and conditions are workable and sound" shall be substituted;

(d) for sub-section (5) the following sub section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(5) If the rates, advantages, terms and conditions of any scheme are not reported by the actuary to be workable and sound, the Superintendent of Insurance shall give notice to the society prohibiting the scheme, and the society shall not after its receipt of such notice enter into any new contract of insurance under the scheme, but all rights and liabilities in respect of contracts of insurance entered into by the society before receipt of the notice shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (6), continue as if the notice had not been given.";

(e) in sub-section (6), for the word "discontinued", in both places where it occurs, the word "prohibited" and for the word "discontinuance" the word "prohibition" shall be substituted.

47. Amendment of section 85, Act IV of 1938.

In section 85 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1) for the words 'invest all surplus assets in such securities" the following words shall be substituted, namely:—

"invest in such securities every increase that takes place in those assets and in that part of those assets which is held in cash as soon as practicable after the increase takes place and in any case within six months of its taking place."

and to the sub-section as so amended the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that for the purpose of determining the amount to be invested under this sub section, any deposit made in cash under section 73 shall be taken into account as if such cash were Government securities amounting at the market value of the securities on the date the deposit was made to the total deposited in cash.";

(b) after sub-section (4) the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(5) The provisions of section 86D of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, shall not apply to a loan granted to a director of a provident society being a company if the loan is one granted on the security of a policy on which the society bears the risk and the policy was issued to the director on his own life and the loan is within the surrender value of the policy."

48. Amendment of section 87, Act IV of 1938.

In section 87 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (1), after the words "the principal office of a provident society" the words "or the principal office in British India of a society having its principal place of business or domicile outside British India" shall be inserted, and to the sub-section as so amended the following words shall be added, namely:—

"or by both an auditor and an actuary appointed simultaneously, or first by an auditor only or an actuary only and afterwards by an actuary or auditor";

(b) for sub-section (3) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(3) The results of any such inquiry shall be recorded in writing by the person making the inquiry, and four copies of the record shall be supplied to the Superintendent of Insurance; and when the inquiry is completed, a copy of the record, or of each such record where more than one are made in the course of the same inquiry, shall be sent by the Superintendent of Insurance to the society concerned and shall be open to inspection by any member or policy-holder of the society.";

(c) after sub-section (3), as so substituted, the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(4) All expenses of and incidental to any inquiry made by an auditor or actuary under sub-section (1) including any expenses incurred before the date on which the Superintendent of Insurance receives notice of an appeal under clause (e) of sub-section (1) of section 110 shall be defrayed by the provident society, shall have priority over other debts due from the society and shall be recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue."

49. Amendment of section 88, Act IV of 1938.

In section 88 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-sections (1), (3) and (4), after the words and figures "Indian Companies Act, 1913", the words and figures "or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act repealed thereby" shall be inserted;

(b) in sub-sections (1) and (3), for the words "that Act" the words and figures "the Indian Companies Act, 1913" shall be substituted.

50. Amendment of section 90, Act IV of 1938.

In section 90 of the said Act,—

(a) to sub-section (1) the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that if the Superintendent of Insurance is not satisfied that the assets of the society are sufficient to meet the costs of liquidation including the remuneration of the liquidator, he may decline to make such appointment, and in such a case the society shall itself appoint a liquidator who shall carry out the liquidation as if the winding up was being done by an order of the Court.";

(b) in sub-section (2), for the words "so appointed", the words "appointed by the Superintendent of Insurance under sub-section (1)" shall be substituted.

51. Amendment of section 91, Act IV of 1938.

In clause (d) of sub-section (1) of section 91 of the said Act, after the word "liquidation" the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"including the remuneration of the liquidator and any expenses incurred under clause (g) of this sub-section".

52. Amendmemt of section 92, Act IV of 1938.

To section 92 of the said Act the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(13) The costs of the liquidation including the remuneration of the liquidator and any expenses incurred under clause (g) of sub-section (1) of section 91 shall, if the liquidator decides that they shall be payable out of the assets of the society, be payable in priority to all other claims."

53. Amendment of section 98 Act IV of 1938.

In section 98 of the said Act,—

(a) in sub-section (2), for the words "of twenty-five thousand rupees" the words "of not less than twenty-five thousand rupees", for the words "to twenty-five thousand rupees" the word "to not less than twenty-five thousand rupees;" and for the words "equal to one-third of the gross premium" the words "equal to not less than one-third of the gross premium" shall be substituted, and shall be deemed always to have been substituted;

(b) after sub-section (2), the following sub-section shall be added, and shall be deemed always to have been added, namely:—

"(3) The provisions of sub-section (7) of section 7 shall apply in respect of a Mutual Insurance Company and a Co-operative Life Insurance Society as if for the words 'under the foregoing provisions of this section' the words and figures 'under the provisions of section 98' were substituted."

54. Amendment of section 100, Act IV of 1938,

In the proviso to section 100 of the said Act, the words "balance-sheet, revenue account and" shall be omitted and to the proviso as so amended the following words shall be added, namely:—

"and any member of the company domiciled in that province shall be entitled on application to the company to receive from it a copy of the balance sheet and revenue account".

55. Amendment of section 102, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (2) of section 102 of the said Act, for the words "any provident society which makes default in complying with any of the requirements of Part III" the words "any provident society as defined in Part III which makes default in complying with or acts in contravention of any of the requirements of this Act" shall be substituted and after the word "default" in the second, third and fourth places where it occurs, the words "or contravention" shall be inserted.

56. Amendment of section 103, Act IV of 1938.

In section 103 of the said Act,—

(a) In sub-section (1), for the word "transacte" the words "carries on" shall be substituted, the words, and figures "section 6" and "section 97" shall be omitted, and for the word "transacted" the words "carried on" shall be substituted;

(To be continued)

INDIAN CASES

1941 JOURNAL Vol. 193

[Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the views expressed by the contributors.]

WAR RISKS AND THE LAW OF TORT.

Many employers and occupiers of property to-day are deeply concerned with the extent of their liability to their employees and to members of the public who use their shelters and there appears to be a general ignorance of the provisions of the Personal Injuries (Emergency provisions) Act, 1939, on these matters. There also seems to be a great deal of doubt as to the position of an employer or occupier upon whose property a servant or member of the public is injured as a result of enemy or military action. The object of this article is to attempt briefly to analyse the duties imposed upon such persons by the law and to indicate the extent to which they may be liable for injuries sustained.

The Position apart from Special Legislation.

So far as the common law is concerned, the position, assuming there to be no statutory interference, is that an employer owes to his servants three fundamental duties which he must discharge himself. This does not necessarily mean that the employer must himself personally take the necessary precautions, but it does mean that he cannot escape from his liability by delegating the duty to another person (even though he be a fellow servant, for the doctrine of common employment does not here apply), but will be liable unless that duty is properly discharged by someone. These principles have been laid down by the House of Lords, and in the same decision they formulated what those three duties are. They may be conveniently paraphrased as being (a) to employ reasonably competent fellow workmen, (b) to provide reasonably safe premises and plant, and (c) to provide a reasonably safe system of working. The decision referred to is that of Wilsons and Clyde v. English [1939] A. C. 57. In addition, the employer will always be liable for any personal negligence of which he may be guilty, though for the acts of fellow servants he will be able to plead the defence of common employment, except where the risk of injury from the acts of those servants was no greater than that from the acts of any other member of the public (Metcalf v. L. P. T. B. (1939), 55 T. L. R. 700). Certain rather limited exceptions to the doctrine of common employment are also to be found in the Employers' Liability Acts. Apart altogether from his negligence or liability for the acts of his agents and other servants an employer is under a statutory duty to pay compensation (not damages) to a "workman" who has been partially or totally disabled or killed by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, under the Workmen's Compensation Acts. The liability of an occupier to persons who come upon the land in his occupation depends upon first principles of tort and can be summarised as follows: If he takes payment in return for allowing them to come on to the land, he is taken to warrant that that land and the buildings upon it are as safe as reasonable care on the part of anyone (including an independent contractor) can make them (McClenan v. Segar [1917] 2 K. B. 325; Francis v. Cockrell (1870), L. R 5 Q. B. 501).

The duty to persons who make no payment depends on whether they are invitees or licensees. To the former the duty (though not absolutely clear) is probably to make the premises reasonably safe, and certainly to warn of all dangers of which the occupier either knows or ought to know. To the latter the duty is a more restricted one and is limited to warning of dangers of which the occupier is aware. Of the innumerable decisions on this branch of the law the leading cases are Indermaur v. Dames, L. R. 1 C. P.; Addie & Sons v. Dumbreck [1929] A. C. 358; Hillen v. I. C. I Alkali [1933] 1 K. B. 20455; and Hall v. Brooklands [1933] 1 K. B. 205. To mere trespassers the duty is confined to not doing anything likely to injure them after the occupier is aware of their presence (Liddle v. Yorks C. C. [1934] 2 K. B. 110).

It will be apparent from the above that there was never in any circumstances a liability on an occupier or employer for the results of enemy or military action in itself, but he might (apart from the special legislation to be discussed below) have been liable if by a breach of one of the duties mentioned above he caused or contributed to injury or damage which was also in part due to military action. For instance, if a faultily constructed shelter fell on business visitors as a result of a nearby bomb, or if gas or water escaped into it after bombing because it was negligently constructed or worked, there might have been a liability.

In addition to this common law liability, an employer might have found himself liable to pay workmen's compensation to a workman who had been injured by enemy or military action. Whether any particular bombing or war injury would give rise to such a right to compensation depended on whether the workman was more exposed to that risk than other persons, and in so far as he was exposed to an additional risk (because of a glass roof or the urgent or dangerous nature of his work) he could claim under the Acts (Cooper v. N. E. R. (1915), 32 T. L. R. 131; Allcock v. Rogers [1918] W. N. 16; Bird v. Keep (1918), 118 L. T. 633; see Willis, pp. 109—110.

Effect of Personal Injuries, etc., Act, 1939.

Almost all the above considerations and rules are rendered obsolete and of academic interest only so far as injuries due to military action are concerned by the provisions of the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939 (which will be referred to throughout this article as "the Act"). In addition to conferring rights to allowances and pensions for disablement—whether temporary or permanent—and for death, the Act contains provisions in s. 3 designed to bar any claim at common law or under any other Act.

The rights of the injured person or his dependents to a pension or allowance under this Act and the scheme made under it are of importance only to the injured persons themselves, and this article confines itself to considering how far the Act gives relief from liabilities which would otherwise arise.

The Act draws a distinction between a "war injury" and a "war service injury," both of which are defined in s. 8.

War Injuries.

The definition of "war injury" may be roughly paraphrased as "an injury due to military action"; it includes injuries sustained through enemy bombing or as a result of defensive measures taken to deal with such attacks and is wide enough to cover the case of damage caused by a falling aircraft or part of an aircraft. For such injuries s. 3 provides that no person shall be liable either at common law or under any enactment or contract and this immunity is expressly extended to liability under the Workmen's Compensation Acts. The result is that so far as injuries caused by military action are concerned, an employer cannot be held liable even though he has himself been guilty of a breach of duty or of contract, and has by so doing contributed to the damage, nor will he be liable under the Workmen's Compensation Acts even though the accident occurred whilst the workman was engaged at work in which he was particularly exposed to danger of this sort.

The apparent hardship to the injured person is offset to a small extent by the fact that he is entitled in most cases to a pension or allowance under the scheme.

Industrial Accidents during Air Raids.

Since it is now clear that there can be no liability to an employee for a "war injury," it only remains in this connection to consider how far, if at all, the liability for other injuries may be affected by the existence of an air raid or similer danger. If an employee remains at his post during an "alert" and whilst so engaged suffers an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment there seems to be no reason why liabiltty under the Workmen's Compensation Acts (or for breach of duty or statutory duty) would not be quite unaffected, and it is considered that he would be entitled to claim just as if no such warning had been received. Where he remains at his work in defiance of instructions (whether because he is told to knock off on the "alert" or because the roof spotters have given the immediate danger signal, and he has orders then to go to shelter), and is then injured, it is a more doubtful point whether he can recover, but it would seem that in such a case his conduct is such that he would be debarred from claiming compensation unless the injury resulted in death or permanent disablement, on the ground that such conduct was serious and wilful misconduct under s. 1 (1) (b) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925. If death or serious injury resulted he would come within the proviso to that sub-section and could claim, provided that he was acting at the time in the course of his employment and the accident arose out of it.

A. R. P. Workers: War Service Injuries.

A "war service injury" is defined by the Act (s. 8) as an injury suffered by a civil defence volunteer which is certified to have arisen out of and in the course of his duty as such volunteer and not out of and in the course of his employment in any other capacity. To understand this definition aright it then becomes necessary to ascertain who is a civil defence volunteer. Here again there is a statutory definition in s. 8; but it is most unhelpful as it merely states that he is any person who is certified to be a member of a "civil defence organisation" by a responsible officer of such an organisation. To discover what is a civil defence organisation, it is necessary to turn to the Scheme made under the Act, for s. 8 again defines it as meaning such organisations established for civil defence purposes as are declared by the Scheme to be civil defence organisations to which this Act applies. The Scheme is now that of 1940 (S. R. & O., 1940, No. 1307) which gives a definition in the First Schedule. The relevant passages in this definition are to be found in paras. 6 and 14, which provide that an organisation maintained for the protection of employees and persons who may be on the premises by an employer who employs normally at least thirty employees will be a civil defence organisation provided that (a) it contains normally at least six members: and (b) those members have been or are being, trained effectively and equipped to perform between them the duties of "giving first-aid treatment, dealing with the effects of gas and fighting fires." It will be observed that the roof spotter, the warden and shelter marshal are not included.

It is now proposed to deal firstly with the possibility of accidents to employees who are not members of a civil defence organisation as so defined, and secondly with those who are. If a roof-spotter or shelter warden suffers a war injury, any right of action or claim he might otherwise have had will be barred by the earlier provisions of the Act, which have already been discussed. If, however, whilst discharging those duties he sustains an accident which does not arise out of military action, and so is not a war injury as defined in the Act, the view is expressed that his ordinary rights of action and claim will be unaltered. It also follows that, if his duties are recognised by his employers, he will clearly be acting in the course of his employment and therefore entitled to claim under the Workmen's Compensation Acts.

The position with regard to such employees as are members of a civil defence organisation as above defined is different and more complex. Here again there is no doubt but that he will have no rights in respect of a war injury; the difficulty only arises if he suffers an injury which is not a war injury whilst he is performing his civil defence duties.

The Act provides in s. 3 (1) (b) (ii) that the employer, inter alia, of such a person is not liable for any war service injury he may sustain. It will be recollected that a war service injury is defined as being an injury which arises out of and in the course of his civil defence duties, and not out of and in the course of his employment in any other capacity. Although the construction of this section is not entirely free from doubt, it is almost certain that its effect will be to relieve the employer of all liability for any injury which may be sustained by a recognised member of a civil defence organisation whilst he is performing his duties as such. If therefore a fire-fighter on duty falls down the stairs or a member of the first-aid squad injures himself whilst practising bandaging, they will have no claim, notwithstanding that the accident happened during their working hours and at a time when they were authorised by their employers to undertake the task in question.

It remains to point out that the employer will not be relieved from liability for an industrial accident (which is not a war injury) which happens to an employee of his who is a civil defence volunteer if the accident occurs at a time when he is not performing his duties as such volunteer but is merely discharging his ordinary work:—S. J.

IMPERIAL ACTS.

(Concluded from page 48.)

(b) in the proviso to sub section (2), for the words "this section" the words, brackets and figures "sub-section (1) or sub-section (2)" shall be substituted;

(c) after sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(3) Any provident society or any person acting on behalf of a provident society who carries on any class of insurance business in contravention of any of the provisions of section 70, section 73 or section 83 or does any one or more of the acts constituting the business of insurance in relation to any insurance business carried on in contravention of any of the said sections shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees."

57. Amendment of section 105, Act IV of 1938.

Section 105 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(2) This section shall apply in respect of a provident society as defined in Part III as it applies in respect of an insurer."

58. Amendment of section 106, Act IV of 1938.

(1) Section 106 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section.

(2) In the section as so re-numbered, after the words "If on the application of" the words "the Superintendent of Insurance or" shall be inserted and to the section as so amended the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(2) This section shall apply in respect of a provident society as defined in Part III as it applies in respect of an insurer."

59. Amendment of section 107, Act IV of 1938.

Section 107 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(2) This section shall apply in respect of a provident society as defined in Part III as it applies in respect of an insurer."

60. Amendment of section 110, Act IV of 1938.

In section 110 of the said Act, after sub-section (3) the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(4) No appeal under this section shall be entertained unless it is made before the expiration of four months from the date on which the order appealed against was communicated to the appellant."

61. Amendment of section 113, Act IV of 1938.

In section 113 of the said Act,—

(a) for sub-sections (1) and (2) the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely:—

"(1) A policy of life insurance under which the whole of the benefits become payable either on the occurrence, or at a fixed interval or fixed intervals after the occurrence, of a contingency which is bound to happen, shall, if all premiums have been paid for at least three consecutive years in the case of a policy issued by an insurer, or five years in the case of a policy issued by a provident society as defined in Part III, acquire a guaranteed surrender value, to which shall be added the surrender value of any subsisting bonus already attached to the policy, and every such policy issued by an insurer shall show the guaranteed surrender value of the policy at the close of each year after the second year of its currency or at the close of each period of three years throughout the currency of the policy:

Provided that the requirements of this sub-section as to the addition of the surrender value of the bonus attaching to a policy at surrender shall be deemed to have been complied with where the method of calculation of the guaranteed surrender value of the policy makes provision for the surrender value of the bonus attaching to the policy:

Provided further that the requirements of this sub-section as to the showing of the guaranteed surrender value on a policy shall be deemed to have been complied with where the insurer shows on the policy the guaranteed surrender value of the policy by means of a formula accepted in this behalf by the Superintendent of Insurance as satisfying the said requirements:

Provided further that the provisions of this sub-section as to the showing of the guaranteed surrender value on a policy shall not take effect until after the expiry of six months from such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

(2) Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, a policy which has acquired a surrender value shall not lapse by reason of the non-payment of further premiums but shall be kept alive to the extent of the paid-up sum insured, and the paid-up sum insured shall for the purposes of this sub-section include in full all subsisting reversionary bonuses that have already attached to the policy, and shall, where the policy is one on which the maximum number of annual premiums payable is fixed and the premiums are of uniform amount, be before the inclusion of such bonuses not less than the amount bearing to the total sum insured by the policy exclusive of bonuses the same proportion as the total period for which premiums have already been paid bears to the maximum period for which premiums were originally payable.

(3) A policy kept alive to the extent of the paid-up sum insured under sub-section (2) shall not be entitled by virtue of that sub-section to participate in any profits declared distributable after the conversion of the policy into a paid-up policy.";

(b) sub-section (3) shall be re-numbered as sub-section (4) and in that sub-section as so re-numbered,—

(i) for the words "This section shall not apply to" the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"Sub-section (2) and sub section (3) shall not apply";

(ii) clause (a) shall be omitted ;

(iii) for clause (b) the following clause shall be substituted, namely :—

"(a) where the paid up sum insured by a policy, being a policy issued by insurer, is less than one hundred rupees inclusive of any attached bonus, or takes the form of an annuity of less than twenty five rupees, or where the paid up sum insured by a policy, being a policy issued by a provident society as defined in Part III, is less than fifty rupees inclusive of any attached bonus or takes the form of an annuity of less than twenty-five rupees, or";

(iv) clauses (c) and (d) shall be re-lettered as clauses (b) and (c), respectively.

62. Amendment of section 114, Act IV of 1938.

In sub-section (2) of section 114 of the said Act,—

(a) for clause (b) the following clause shall be substituted, namely :—

"(b) the manner in which it shall be determined which of the transactions of an insurer are to be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be insurance business transacted in India or in British India, as the case may be ;";

(b) in clause (g), after the words "may be" the words "applied for," shall be inserted.

63. Amendment of section 116, Act IV of 1938.

Section 116 of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and to the section as so re-numbered the following sub section shall be added, namely :—

"(2) This section shall apply in respect of provident societies as defined in Part III as it applies in respect of insurers."

64. Insertion of new section 116-A in Act IV of 1938.

After section 116 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

"116-A. Summary of returns to be published.

The Central Government shall every year cause to be published, in such manner as it may direct, a summary of the accounts, balance-sheets, statements, abstracts and other returns under this Act or purporting to be under this Act which have been furnished in pursuance of the provisions of this Act to the Superintendent of Insurance during the year preceding the year of publication, and may append to such summary any note of the Superintendent of Insurance or of the Central Government and any correspondence :

Provided that nothing in this section shall require the publication of the statements referred to in sub-section (1) of section 28."

65. Amendment of section 117, Act IV of 1938.

In section 117 of the said Act, after the words "being a company" the words "or a provident society as defined in Part III being a company" shall be inserted.

66. Amendment of section 118, Act IV of 1938.

In section 118 of the said Act, after the words "and to such extent" the words "or subject to such conditions or modifications" shall be inserted.

67. Substitution of new section for section 119, Act IV of 1938.

For section 119 of the said Act the following section shall be substituted, namely :—

"119 Inspection and supply of copies of published prospectus, etc.

Any person may on payment of a fee of five rupees inspect the documents filed by an insurer with the Superintendent of Insurance under clause (f) of sub-section (2) of section 3, and may obtain a copy of any such document or part thereof on payment in advance at the prescribed rate for the making of the copy."

68. Insertion of new section 122 in Act V of 1938.

After section 121 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

"122. Amendment of Schedule I, Act IX of 1908.

In Item No. 86 in the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908,—

(a) for the entry in the first column the following shall be substituted namely :—

"(a) On a policy of insurance when the sum insured is payable after proof of the death has been given to or received by the insurers.

(b) On a policy of insurance when the sum insured is payable after proof of the loss has been given to or received by the insurers";

(b) for the entry in the third column, the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"(a) The date of the death of the deceased.

(b) The date of the occurrence causing the loss."

69. Amendment of First Schedule, Act IV of 1938.

In Form A contained in Part II of the First Schedule to the said Act,—

(a) in the first column, after the entry "Miscellaneous Insurance Business Account" the brackets and letter "(m)" shall be added ;

(b) in the fifth column, after the entry "Outstanding Premiums (g)" the brackets and letter "(d)" shall be added, and

(c) after foot-note (l) the following shall be added, namely :—

"(m) Where the insurer is required to maintain a separate account in respect of any sub-class of miscellaneous insurance business this heading is to be split up accordingly."

70. Amendment of Third Schedule, Act IV of 1938.

In the Third Schedule to the said Act,—

(a) in regulation 1 contained in Part I, after the words "for every class" the words "or sub-class" shall be inserted ;

(b) in regulation 2,—

(i) after the words "miscellaneous insurance" the words "exclusive of any sub-class of such business in respect of which the insurer is required to maintain a separate account" shall be inserted ; and

(ii) the following sentence shall be added, namely :—

"For a sub-class of miscellaneous insurance in respect of which the insurer is required to maintain a separate account, Form D or Form F as set out in Part II of this Schedule may be used with such modifications as the Superintendent of Insurance may authorise.";

(c) in Form D contained in Part II,—

(i) in the first column the entry "Commission to insurance agents (less that on Re-insurances)" shall be omitted, and for the entry "1. Allowances and Commission (other than commission to insurance agents)", the following entry shall be substituted, namely :—

"1. (a) Commission to insurance agents (less that on Re-insurances).

(b) Allowances and Commission [other than commission included in sub-item (a) preceding]";

(ii) in the first column, after the entry "5. Auditors' fees" the entry "6. Medical fees" shall be inserted, and the existing entries numbered 6 to 12 shall be re-numbered 7 to 13, respectively ;

(iii) all the horizontal lines appearing in the columns and the letters "Rs." against the entries "Interest, Dividends and Rent" and "Less—Income-tax thereon (d)" shall be omitted, and horizontal lines under which the totals of the columns are to be inserted shall be added at the foot of each column ;

(iv) in note (a) the words "In the case of an insurer having his head office in British India" shall be omitted.

71. Amendment of Fourth Schedule, Act IV of 1938.

In Part II of the Fourth Schedule to the said Act,—

(a) in the opening paragraph beginning with the words "The following tabular statements"—

(i) in clause (d), for the semi-colon and the word "and" at the end of the clause the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"for the intervaluation period (except that it shall not be necessary to prepare such statement in respect of any class of business so long as the insurer deposits annually with the Superintendent of Insurance an abstract in respect of that class of business)";

(ii) clause (e) shall be omitted;

(b) in sub-paragraph (2) of the paragraph numbered 8, for the words "as at the valuation date" the words "as a result of this valuation" shall be substituted ;

(c) in the paragraph numbered 9, between the word "fourth" and the word "sixth" the word "fifth" shall be inserted;

(d) for Form G the form contained in the Schedule to this Act shall be substituted;

(e) in Form J, for the heading to the first column "Number of premiums paid" the following heading shall be substituted, namely:—

"Number of annual premiums paid up to the valuation date" and the following note shall be added after the existing note, namely:—

"NOTE.—The reserve value is to be based on the rate of office premium payable by an insured who entered at the age shown and who had, by the valuation date, paid the number of annual premiums shown in the first column."

SCHEDULE.

[See section 71 (d).]

Form to be substituted for Form G in the Fourth Schedule of the Insurance Act, 1938.

FORM G.

Consolidated Revenue Account of for years commencing and ending

	Business within India. (a)	Total.		Business within India. (a)	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.		Rs.	Rs.
Claims under Policies (including provision for claims due or intimated), less Re-insurances—			Balance of Life Insurance Fund at the beginning of the period.
By death. ...			Premiums, less Re-insurances—
By maturity. ...			(i) First year premiums.
Annuities, less Re-insurances.			(ii) Renewal premiums.
			(iii) Single premiums.

	Business within India. (a)	Total.		Business within India. (a)	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.		Rs.	Rs.
Surrenders (including surrenders of Bonus), less Re-insurances.			Consideration for Annuities granted, less Re-insurances (c).
Bonuses in cash, less Re-insurances.			Interest, Dividends and Rents Rs.
Bonuses in Reduction of Premiums, less Re-insurances.			Less—Income-tax thereon (d). Rs.
Expenses of Management (b) (e).—			Registration fees.
1. (a) Commission to insurance agents (less that on Re-insurances).			Other Income (to be specified).
(b) Allowances and Commission [other than commission included in sub-item (a) preceding].			Loss transferred to Profit and Loss Account
2. Salaries, etc. [other than to agents and those contained in sub-item 1 (b) preceding].			Transferred from Appropriation Account.
3. Travelling expenses. ...
4. Directors' fees. ...
5. Auditors' fees. ...
6. Medical fees. ...
7. Law charges. ...
8. Advertisements. ...
9. Printing and Stationery ...
10. Other expenses of management (accounts to be specified).
11. Other payments (accounts to be specified).
12. Rent for offices belonging to and occupied by the insurer.
13. Rents of other offices occupied by the insurer.
Bad debts. ...
United Kingdom, British Indian, Dominion and Foreign Taxes.
Other Expenditure (to be specified).
Profit transferred to Profit and Loss Account.
Balance of Life Insurance Fund at end of the period as shown in the Balance-sheet.
Rs.			Rs.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO COLLEGE

NOTES.

(a) These columns apply to all business except business the premiums in respect of which are ordinarily paid outside India. If any question arises whether any premiums are ordinarily paid inside or outside India, the Superintendent of Insurance shall decide the question and his decision shall be final.

(b) If any sum has been deducted from this item and entered on the assets side of the balance-sheet, the amount so deducted must be shown separately.

(c) All single premiums for annuities, whether immediate or deferred, must be included under this heading.

(d) British Indian, United Kingdom, Foreign and Dominion income-tax on interest, Dividends and Rents must be shown under this heading, less any rebates of income-tax recovered from the revenue authorities in respect of expenses of management. The separate heading on the other side of the account is for United Kingdom, British Indian, Foreign and Dominion taxes, other than those shown under this item.

(e) In the case of an insurer having his principal place of business outside British India the expenses of management for the total business need not be split up into the several sub-heads, if they are not so split up in his own country.

END OF VOLUME 193.